THE gulch ran in a trough of beauty to the foot of Jones' hill, which rose in a sweeping curve into the clouds.

Wild flowers, trees in profuse leaf and mats of vines covered the scarred earth, and the sky was as limpid as spring water; the air carried a weight of heart stirring odors, yet Jim Felton, sitting on the door step of his cabin in the brilliant sunshine, was not a happy man.

He looked at the hollow of the gulch and cursed it manfully and bitterly. The gold should be there—Jim had figured it all out. The old wash cut at right angles to the creek, and at the turn was where its freight of yellow metal should have been deposited, but when you got down to the bedrock the blasted stuff was either slanted so nothing could stay on it or was rotten, crumbling in your fingers, and that kind of bed will hold nothing.

Therefore Jim had sunk about fifty prospect holes, got colors under the grass roots as evidence that pay should be there and nothing but ashy wash beneath it.

When a man is alone and thinks things are wrong optimism comes down on the run, the shades of pessimism gather fast and furious, more especially if a man does his own cooking and the raw material is limited, at that.

The sun had not moved the shadows three inches before Jim had reached the conclusion that this world was all a practical joke of so low an order that no sensible man would even laugh at it, and he drew a letter from his pocket in proof thereof. It was a thin letter, written on delicate paper in a delicate hand, and it showed much wear. He read for the thousandth time:

Dearest Jim—And again I must say "no." Of course you will not understand, for which foolish reason I like you all the better, but you must try to take my point of view. You say that we can be married on nothing and take our chances.

So we can, old simple heart, but aren't those chances all against us? Would you like to be forced to work in some office for just enough to live on? You know you would not, and you know how you would suffer in such slavery.

Nevertheless we cannot live on air, and I doubt if I would stand transplanting to the wild life you love better than you to a clerk's desk. You have that fancy which gilds the tin cans in the back yard. I have that unfortunate eye which would multiply their number by three and their unsightliness by ten. I don't want riches, dear. I only want a modest assurance that I can have enough to live on.

Really is your way of doing a guarantee of even bread and butter? In the garden of Eden you would be the most delightful of companions, but in this world as it is you will not fight for your own. You would risk your life to save a dog, but you couldn't stay at a continued grind—I mean it would kill you actually, physically dead, dead—to save all of us. At first I thought that a fault in you, but now, being older, having compared you to other men, I see it is merely a missing faculty.

I could stick to the desk and would gladly if you would let me, yet I could not even fancy behaving as you did at the factory fire, which is still the symbol in the town for manly courage and presence of mind.

They talk now of the way you laughed and joked with those poor frightened girls, who had such good cause to be frightened, and brought them back to sanity with a jest. I feel that if I had the least atom of heroism in me I would marry you for that feat alone and let cold facts go hang; but, ah, Jim, magnificent as you are on the grand occasions, they come but seldom, and in the meantime, Jim, I'll leave that to your own honesty.

I'm plebeian, Jim, and you're a nobleman with a beautiful but embarrassing disregard for vulgar necessities.

However, I can say this for myself—for surely I may brag a little to my lover—I can try to match your splendid physical bravery by my own moral courage.

You may rest your soul in peace on one point—if I am not for you, I'm for no man, no, not so much as a half glance of the eye. I wouldn't hold myself a bit more straitly if I were your wife.

You'll be angry at this letter. Well, I'll stand your anger. I have caused it, and I'll bear the blame. I know that we could not be happy without some visible means of support, yet I do not blame you in the least for thinking otherwise.

Be as kind to me as you can, Jim, for I love you very much in my commonplace way. I'll admit, too, that I had rather have your fire than my refrigerator—oh, if you could only make some money, not a great deal, but enough for a little house of our own and enough in the bank to buy groceries!

With my best love and an aching lump in my throat, your mother, sister and sweetheart, ANNE.

Jim dropped the letter, and his lips trembled a little. Parts of it touched him deeply, and he was the more enraged and hurt at the rest because of that.

He could not call her mercenary. He knew better. More than one very comfortable income was at her disposal.

Poor fellow! He could only grind his teeth and curse Sweet Briar gulch from the deepest pothole in the bedrock to the top of its loftiest pine. He drew out her photograph and obtained much sweet consolation by thinking how happy they two would be in Sweet Briar gulch together, even if there wasn't a cent of pay in the gravel.

Sick of this ingenious torture, he lit his pipe and drew savagely upon it. With a mocking gurgle about a dram of "slumgullion" passed into his mouth. It was the last touch. He spat out the biting, nauseating stuff, hurled the pipe upon the rocks and danced on it.

And yet the colors frolicked in the gulch. The pines toned the air with healthy breath.

From afar came the th-r-r-up, th-r-r-up, th-r-r-up! of a galloping horse. It was Bud, the mail carrier, coming modestly and quietly at a decent gait down a trail where most would prefer to walk and to "hang on" to something at that.

At first Jim felt irritated by the interruption. He wanted to luxuriate in misery. Still he was a vigorous, healthy man, and the cheery good fellowship of Bud soon made away with that feeling.

"Well, how they coming, Jimmy?" queried the young giant. "Hit her yet?"

"Hit—well, much caloric," replied Jim. "I've begun to believe there ain't a durned thing here."

"You're looking kind of owly, old man. What's up? Don't you feel well?"

"Oh, Bud, I'm sick of everything this day! I don't believe in the constitution of the United States, including the thirteenth amendment, nor the Ten Commandments, nor the attraction of gravitation, nor anything else. It's all a blamed lie."

"No wonder you get like that, mousing around here without a chance to yappi with a feller critter. 'Nough to make you locoed.

"Jump it for a spell. Go uptown. Get loaded; get horribly loaded. Break somebody's window and tell the folks you're a Sweet Briar zephyr come to blow out their lights. Go ahead and do it. When your hair stops pulling you'll feel like a new man."

Jim thought the advice sound, yet a strange feeling had developed in him in his isolation. It was that the eye of Anne was always on him. He had fallen into a habit, which becomes a superstition when a man is alone, of acting as though she were there in person.

However, he didn't feel called upon to offer Bud that explanation of his refusal. He conveyed the idea in one brief word.

"Busted," said he.

"Busted?" retorted Bud warmly. "Busted? Not much you ain't busted while that little package is there, bet cher life! You call for what you want, and the cashier will make good."

HE BEGGED HARD.

"Ah, Bud, how'll I ever pay you back? Keep it, man; keep it," replied Jim in a disheartened voice.

"Say, you ain't got no call to worry about that part of it. There's where my troubles begin," returned Bud. "Now, you take these two bucks and jab 'em in your jeans. Go on, now. Do as I tell you or bashed if I don't lick you and make you take 'em. What's the good of money if it ain't to help a friend out with? I don't care who gets drunk on it just so long as they have a good time.

"Boy, you'll be sailing up the track regardless of orders with your boiler full of suds if you don't get out in the scramble for awhile."

"Lord, I'd like to see a railroad train! Haven't heard a whistle for two years. How far is it to the nearest station, Bud?"

"Plattsburg—fifty mile—due south."

"Christmas! Little far to walk."

"Say, you take this horse, Jim. Go ahead. I can walk just as well as not. I'm getting too fat anyhow. Go on. You take the horse and have a ride to Plattsburg."

"Yes; take the shirt off your back and never mind if a bit of the skin goes with it. I'll see you far away first. Tell you what you could do for me, Buddy. The herd of burros is around now, if you'd round up one of them for me?"

"Sure thing! You sit on the mail sack till I come back. There's a heap of registered stuff in it this trip. Oh, say! What do you think? I was held up t'other side of the Bulldog. Bang, zip, says a little popper from the bushes. I climbed for them bushes, and out goes a beggar like a rabbit. I was after him like a coyote, bet cher life. Who do you suppose it was, Jim?"

"Hang it, how should I know?"

"That little down east cuss with the crook in his back. He begged hard. Poor devil, he was up against the sandpaper side, all right. He heard from the postmaster that there was a lot of valuable mail going out, so he thought he'd make a try for it. Then what do you think he had the cold, cold nerve to do?"

"Pass it up—most anything, I reckon."

"Worse'n that. Struck me for fifty."

"And got it."

"Got it? No; not much he didn't, sonny. He drew just ten, and he was lucky to get that. I've done a favor or two for that feller, first and last, and to have him shoot at me made me sore—although he missed me by several locations, I'll say that for him—so I gave him the ten and told him I'd kick the hump on his back so high up on his shoulders he could wear it for a hat if he ever shoved into my daylight again. And you never in your life saw a humpback make better time than he did.

"Well, here's for your jackass. Which way's the herd?"

"Right up over the hill."

Jim sat patiently on the sack until Bud returned with the burro.

"Here's your thoroughbred," hailoed Bud. "Get ap there, Mary. Look at the knowing ears of him, will you? You bet cher life you've got an animile there that'll go when he gets ready and as fast as he pretty well dern pleases. Nail him!"

Jim tied a gunny sack on his noble mount, and the two rode on together to the fork in the trail. Jim tried to thank his friend, who knocked his hat over his eyes, and said: "Aw, write it down when you've got more time. Never see a feller in my life I cottoned to more'n you, Jim. First I thought you was too smooth for my kind of traveling, but later I see it was only the grain of the wood. I believe in my friends, I do. Here we go hopping around this little world for a small time, and then that's done. S'pose you ain't got any real friends for the trip? Rotten, I say. You go ahead and rip Plattsburg up the back. Wisht I could be there with you. Don't you mind consequences. So long, old man! Hike! You beggar!" the buckskin pony was off with a snort and a splashing of gravel as the irons touched his sides, and Bud vanished down the road without a look behind him.

The next day Jim was in Plattsburg. One does not know what an alluring quality, what a hazy enchantment, can linger around even a small town until an absence in a real wilderness has given man's work a new flavor.

The people coming and going, the traffic of the stores, the dwellings with small cultivated plots around them, warmed Jim like a fire. He had been very lonely without knowing it. In the afternoon he went down to the depot to see the eastern train come in.

Here again absence played a part and restored the locomotive to its proper proportions of a miracle.

As the engine glided in, shaking the ground beneath it, it seemed impossible to Jim that man really made it. What! Bend those mighty rods of steel to his will? Twist and shape those others? Cast those great drivers? And after to drive the monster with a hand?

He drew back as the buzzing engine passed him with something like awe. Then the moving village came to a stop, and the passengers sallied forth to test their legs, wearied with long sitting.

There was humanity of all shades, from the haughty aristocrat of the Pullman to the peasant of the emigrant car.

Jim had a sense of pleasure in beholding well dressed folk again, yet it was merely an aesthetic pleasure, for he found when he began to speculate on the possibilities of the throng before him that he was more interested in those whose all was staked on the trip than in those to whom it was only an excursion.

ELECTRIC CURRENT PIES

Central Station Electric Power is used for almost every purpose for which power is required.

Its use is becoming more general as its advantages over steam drive are being demonstrated.

One of the concerns that has found it economical and satisfactory to change from steam to electricity is the Wagner Pastry Company, of Newark.

Everybody knows "Mrs. Wagner's Famous Pies," but everybody doesn't know that electric current enters into their making. It does though.

The Company formerly used steam drive to operate its machinery, but the steam plant of 23 H. P. was discarded for Central Station Power and the electric current has more than made good.

It will do the same in your case, as our engineers can show you, if you say the word.

THIS 'PEEPING TOM' WAS ONLY A MONKEY

A "Peeping Tom" that had been frightening the farmers' wives and daughters in the farming section of Upper Montclair and Brookdale, nightly for a week past, was discovered Thursday night to be a large monkey. A crowd of over fifty men and boys chased the ape until nearly daylight yesterday, when it took refuge in the woodland on Passaic avenue, near the Nutley line.

For several nights the monkey had been seen peering into windows of houses and in several cases women had been frightened into hysterics.

Thursday night the intruder jumped from a tree on to the piazza roof of the home of Hiram D. Bertram. Mrs. Bertram was putting the children to bed at the time and hearing the noise she raised a window shade and peered out. There was the monkey, grimacing and bowing at her. The woman screamed and her husband and son came to the room. They reached there just in time to see the monkey jump back into the tree and escape. The men gave chase and were soon joined by others, but the monkey was fleet of foot and outdistanced them in a chase of nearly three miles, during which several shots were fired at the animal. It is thought that the monkey escaped from an organ grinder, who passed through the section on July 4 last. A sharp lookout will be kept for the intruder.

Methodists' Good Time.

All of those who went on the Methodist excursion to Asbury Park Thursday reported upon their return that the day had held many delightful features, without a single mishap to mar their pleasure. The only inconvenience experienced was on the train going and coming. This was occasioned by the recent order of the State Board of Health abolishing the drinking cups. The tanks were filled with the usual supply of ice cold water, but customary glasses were missing.

Funeral of Mrs. Ransom.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Ransom, widow of W. K. Ransom, were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Correja on West Seventh street, and were largely attended. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated and the burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. Hughes Camping.

Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Hughes, of Somerset street, are camping at Algonquin Park, Canada. They have with them a complete camping outfit which, with the assistance of an experienced guide, they travel along side the lakes to places that appeal to them as they paddle leisurely along.

Funeral of Mrs. P. M. Sprague.

The funeral services of Mrs. Phebe M. Sprague widow of William E. Sprague, were held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home on Sprague place, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, officiating. The burial was in Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

Funeral of Mrs. Harrington.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary Randolph-Harrington, who died yesterday in the 95th year of her age, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Rev. Edward Shaw, pastor of the church, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ELKS RECEIVE THEIR PRIZES AT ATLANTIC

To see "Hello Bill" at his best yesterday at Atlantic City, it was necessary to be at the office of Harvey K. Eaton, secretary of the Atlantic City committee, who passed out the prizes in ready-to-cash checks payable to bearer.

Portland Lodge went away with four of these checks, $650 in all. The Oregon lodge also won the grand prize of this reunion, the convention of 1912 in the competitive drill the $500 prize went to Newport, as just before the hour set for the drill a thunder shower came up that no lodge was prepared to face except the lodge from Rhode Island.

Mr. Eaton managed the parade prizes in a way as to work a charm. His committee contained not a single Elk. The head of it was former Judge Allen B. Endicott, who had gathered around him such prominent men as Walter J. Buzby, of the Hotel Dennis and C. J. Adams.

C. Lew Gallant, of St. Louis, called on Mr. Eaton and got a check for $250 won by his lodge for the best appearance in line. This is the most sharply contested of the parade prizes and St. Louis is delighted with the victory.

The St. Louis men figured that if their drill was perfect they would carry away the money. The word "St. Louis" was left out to lead everybody to cry out "What lodge is this?" It worked to a charm.

Portland's four prizes, the $650, were given to J. H. Dietz and W. A. Kubli. Portland won first for the aggregate milage, which is figured by mulitplying the number of men in line by the number of miles each travels. The dressing of Portland's floats, two rubber-neck autos covered with roses, cost $600 in itself.

Concannon an Easy Winner.

Joe Concannon, of Perth Amboy, the pool wizard, defeated Robert E. Naylon, of this city, in a pool match at the parlors of Amos B. Stites, on Somerset street, last night, the former making a score of 200, while Mr. Naylon made 117 out of 150. The Plainfielder was given a handicap of fifty, but his opponent easily run up a score of 200 while the local player was making 117. Mr. Stites is now arranging a match between William Rogers, champion of New York State and Mr. Concannon, to be played here within ten days.

THE STATE TRUST COMPANY

Chalmers Cars for 1912

The Chalmers "Thirty-six" is the newest thing in motor cars.

The "Thirty-six" is the latest product of the Chalmers Motor Company, and with self-starter, demountable rims, long stroke motor and four speed transmission, promises to be one of the sensations of the 1912 season.

The Chalmers "Thirty-six" is advertised as the maximum effort up to this time of a company which was a pioneer in the building of medium priced automobiles.

In this new model the Chalmers company has incorporated some of the most distinctive and advanced features of the year. The car appears in four body types—Foredoor Touring Car, Fore-door Pony Tonneau, Berlin Limousine and Cab Side Limousine. All are built on a chassis of 115-inch wheel base.

The motor develops full 36 horse power and is of the most approved long stroke type—4 ¼-inch bore, 5 ¼-inch stroke.

The two-bearing crank shaft, which was introduced by the Chalmers company and which has been one of the features of the famous Chalmers "30," is used on the "Thirty-six." Cylinders are cast en bloc with brass jacketed intake valves.

Among the mechanical features which cannot be seen, but which mean much to the driver of a car, are the new piston ring which entirely eliminates motor smoking, a new cam shaft construction which gives noiseless operation; and a new crank case construction which protects the exposed working parts of the motor from all road dirt.

There is nothing radical in the construction of the Chalmers "Thirty-six" motor, but all features are of the most approved type. Cellular radiator, dual ignition and multiple disc clutch are parts of the regular equipment.

A distinctly new feature among medium priced cars is the four-forward speed transmission.

The Chalmers single pedal control, which has been a popular feature of the Chalmers "30," is retained on the new model.

In point of convenience for driver, the Chalmers "Thirty-six" makes its greatest appeal. The designers have sought to remove the last of the inconveniences of motoring, such as tire trouble, cranking the car and adjusting the carburetor to suit weather changes. All of these inconveniencies are eliminated in the Chalmers "Thirty-six"

Perhaps the most distinctive feature in this connection is the air pressure, self-starting device with which all types of the "Thirty-six" are equipped. The Chalmers self-starter is not an accessory but an integral part of the car, built in the Chalmers factory. The makers are the authority for the statement that this self-starter can only fail to operate when the motor is on dead center, and even then they say it is only necessary to use the crank to turn the motor about two inches, when the self-starter will do the rest. As everybody knows, a motor stops on dead center about once in 1,000 times. If the Chalmers self-starter will work the other 999 times it is indeed a boon to motorists. The engineers of the Chalmers company have tested their self-starter with three different cars in more than 20,000 miles of hard driving. They say that they are satisfied with it.

In a recent demonstration at the factory, with gears set in second speed and the ignition system shut off, the self starter actually pulled a "Thirty-six" carrying seven passengers, from a stand-still, the motor being run by compressed air instead of explosions of gas.

In connection with the Chalmers self-starter is a tire inflater. This tire inflater, combined with the Continental demountable rims with which all types of the "Thirty-six" are equipped, just about does away with the bugbear of tire trouble.

Pretty nearly every driver of a car has, at some time, found it necessary to get under the motor hood into the grease and dirt to adjust the carburetor, and then if's ten to one he made the wrong adjustment and had to do it all over again. On the Chalmers "Thirty-six" there is a clever arrangement for adjusting the carburetor. This is a thumb lever on the dash. All the driver has to do is change the position of the thumb lever on the quadrant to get either a very "light" or a very "rich" mixture of gas. There is no chance to go wrong and there is no chance to get dirty.

Taken all together, these new features make this latest Chalmers model just about as easy to handle as milday's electric.

In body construction the new car is also a long jump ahead. All bodies are of metal with extra deep upholstering and tilted seats. All foredoor compartments are ventilated. Running boards and floor boards are carpeted with gray battleship cork linoleum. A novel and distinctly desirable improvement in body construction is the elimination of polished wood dash and heel boards. These are always getting scratched up because some people simply cannot keep their feet on the floor. To improve this condition the Chalmers company has lined all bodies with leather, which cannot be scratched and which a little rubbing with an oiled cloth makes as good as new.

All bodies have the long straight-line effect, and are finished in a variety of colors, including Slate Gray, Napier Green, English Vermilion, Brewster Green, Maroon, Chalmers Blue and Royal Blue. All, except the Slate Gray, have black chasses. All lamps and hardware are enameled black. The passenger capacities of the various models are as follows: Touring Car, five-passenger regularly, though seven-passenger body is also provided; Foredoor Pony Tonneau, four-passenger; Limousines, seven-passenger.

In adidtion to the new "Thirty-six" the company will continue their well known "30" and "Forty" for 1912. Except for general refinements there are no striking changes in these two models. For 1912, however, both the "30" and the "Forty" will be sold at the same prices as heretofore, but with full equipment.

The "30" for 1912 appears in five body types: Foredoor Touring Car of five-passenger capacity; Foredoor Pony Tonneau and Open Front Pony Tonneau of four-passenger capacity; Torpedo Roadster carrying two passengers, and Inside Drive Coupe for three passengers. All "30" bodies, except the Open Front Pony Tonneau, are of the full foredoor type and, like the "Thirty-six" all have forward compartments ventilated. The dual ignition system is used and all of the features which have made the Chalmers "30" famous are retained. The "30" is offered in the same wide variety of colors as the "Thirty-six."

As in the case of the "30," the "Forty" for 1912 is sold fully equipped for the same price as the 1911 "Forty' without equipment. The "Forty" chassis has no material changes from the 1911 model and carries three body types; Foredoor Touring Car of seven-passenger capacity; Torpedo, of four-passenger capacity; Detachable Pony Tonneau, of four-passenger capacity. A feature of the last named is that it is readily convertible into a racy two-passenger Roadster.

The Chalmers company, which did its biggest year's business during the 1911 season, is looking forward to a new record for 1912. The new line is certainly attractive in every respect. The "Thirty-six," the only model which is new to the public, has been tested by the company's engineers since the first of last November. Three cars of this model have been tried out in various parts of the country. The first three cars of the "Thirty-six" type were driven more than 20,000 miles before even the Chalmers dealers were shown the finished cars. The Chalmers "30" and the Chalmers "Forty" are already too well known to the motoring public to require any introduction.

A SCRATCH POOL CONTEST FOR LOCAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

A scratch pool contest for the championship of this city, Scotch Plains, Bound Brook, Westfield and Dunellen will be started within the next two weeks at A. B. Stites' pool parlor, on Somerset street. The entries for the tournament are now open and will not be closed for fifteen days.

To enter the match, a player must show that he has been a resident of any one of the above towns for at least one year. This will limit the tourney to a purely local championship and will settle a long dispute. It is expected that all the crack shots in this vicinity will enter to try for the prize of $20, which is being offered by Mr. Stites. Entry blanks and full particulars for the contest may be obtained from Mr. Stites, at 19 Somerset street.

HEARD AT TRINITY

Rev. Dr. Abertus T. Broek, Pastor's Brother Preached There Yesterday.

THE VALUE OF MEDITATION.

Explains St. Paul's Statement "For I Went Into Arabia"—The Quartet Choir Renders Several Selections.

"For I went into Arabia," was the text of a sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Albertus T. Broek, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church of Newark, and brother of Rev. John Y. Broek, at Trinity church yesterday morning. The passage was taken from Galatians 1:17, being written by St. Paul. In the course of his remarks the preacher said in part:

"Paul was called to a great work but before he undertook his task he went into that wilderness of Arabia for several months and in this verse, we have the only record of his journey to that country. His trip to that desolate land was a preparation for his work. God never calls men without preparing them for their work first. Moses spent forty years in post graduate duties in the widlerness before he was called to take the children of Israel into the Promised Land and Christ lived for thirty years in quiet humbleness in Nazareth before he came forth to spend those three last years in service.

"God calls a busy man when He wants work done and before he sends him out alone, He prepares him for a long course.

"There are three theories to explain why Paul took this trip to Arabia. The first one is that he went there to preach the Gospel, which he felt was his great duty in life. The second theory, which seems to have a good foundation, is that he fled to that sandy waste to escape the persecution of the Turks, who were casting their fiery darts of torment at all preachers and believers in Jesus Christ. But the third explanation for his going to that land seems to be the most probable as it is based on the fact that he went there to be alone and to meditate.

Paul was about to take up a great work and consequently before he attempted to start upon it, he felt the need of solitude, prayer and meditation. Solitude brings us nearer to the heavenly heights and it is the means for making the heavenly realities more realistic to our hearts.

"Meditation has played an important role in the history of the world and through its means, the Reformation was accomplished for it seems that at once all the nations became unified in their desire to throw down the powers of Mohammed and set up the standard of Christ forever. And in the lives of nearly all our great men, we find a time set apart for thought and meditation and with many of them for prayer.

"Christ spent much of his time in meditation and so our lives should be like his in this particular as well as in service and in activity. Through meditation God is made more real to us and He appears as our friend rather than a far distant powerful engineer of the universe.

"The life which we spend in our little Arabias impresses things upon us and gives us power. It is through meditation that the great scientific and business problems of today are solved. Men of commerce throughout the world have come to realize that thought makes power.

"But we also need meditation in our religious life for not only do we come to know our Heavenly Father as a friend through its overworking forces but we are better able to define our aims. Bringing meditation to a practical point, if we only used it after a sermon, perhaps we would not forget the helpful thonghts from the pulpit as soon as we left the church.

"Let us go to our little Arabias then and meditate! If our religion is precious, why do we spend so little time in thinking of it? Meditation brings comforting thought for while you think of your Saviour, He thinks of you."

During the service, the quartet choir sang several appropriate selections, Roy Titsworth taking the bass parts in place of Fred S. Cutter, who is out of town. Miss Etta Raybert sang the offertory solo.

COUNCIL TO PASS SCHOOL APPROPIATION

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight when it is expected that the members will pass on the extra appropriation of $5,000 needed by the Board of Education to complete the proposed improvements at the high school. Already $35,000 has been appropriated for this work and afterward it was learned that an additional $5,000 would be needed for it is proposed to include a swimming pool, which will require between $800 and $1,000.

Tonight's session of the Council will doubtless be a short one, as the body has already met twice before this month and there is not much business left to consider outside of a few minor matters, which can be easily disposed of by the Council.

SAW BIG PAGENT

Robt. H. Bellows Witnessed Coronation Parade and Was Deeply Impressed.

THE TROOPS ATTRACTED HIM.

Cosmopolitan Crowd Caught His Fancy—High Silk Hat Habit and Stores Delivery Wagons Struck Him as Funny.

After a six weeks' trip to England, Robert H. Bellows, of Woodland avenue, returned on the American liner New York yesterday morning with some interesting stories of the coronation of King George V. He left New York on Saturday, June 3 on the same boat and was in London in ample time to witness the British demonstration from start to finish.

"It was a chance that comes to very few young men to be able to see notables of the world gathered at one place and it all made a profound impression on me." said Mr. Bellows, in telling of his trip. "The streets of London were filled with people from all parts of the world and I had an excellent opportunity to see how they dress. The soldiers of His majesty's possessions from every quarter of the earth were there too, and believe me they were soldiers. The Dominion of Canada had her mounted police and the Empire of India had its native troops. There were nearly a dozen other British possessions represented by soldiery.

"Every now and then I caught a glimpse of some great man of some far off land, passing through Whitall street, the Strand, Bond street, Picidilly Circus or the Victoria embankment. It was a great sight to see the the gorgeous coaches of the Lord mayor of London, the high sheriff and others. These coaches have outriders dressed all in red and they naturally attract attention.

"Luckily, I got where I could get a good view of the coronation parade as it passed on its way to Westminster Abbey, where their majesties were crowned. It was the greatest pageant that I ever expect to witness but when I realized the immense costs of the spectacle and thought how thousands of men fill the parks and walk of the streets of London in search of work I considered that the democratic ways are best and that the plain inauguration ceremony for our President is more sensible. But the English people like this display and they are intensely loyal.

"Because of the coronation festivities I could not see Westminster Abbey where are the tombs of England's great men of past ages nor could I see other historic places including the Windsor castle. I did, however, see St. Paul's cathedral, where the Duke of Wellington is buried, and the Bank of England, which they call "The Old Lady of Threadneedle street." Some things I saw made me laugh. It was really funny to see the great number of men wearing high hats and even young men and boys wearing them. It mattered not what cut of clothes they wore but it seemed highly important that their heads should be covered by a high hat. The delivery wagons of the large stores were too funny for anything. Covered by canvass they looked like little prairie schooners. Every way you turn in London you see tea room signs. They are even more plentiful than gin mills in New York. London is a great city all right but believe me it has a whole lot to learn from New York."

Platt Adams Won Three Events.

Platt Adams, last year's star first baseman on the local Y. M. C. A. nine, had a busy time over the week end in two athletic meets. At the Woodbridge games Saturday afternoon, Adams captured the high jump with a leap of six feet and the shot put, in which he did 48 feet 11 inches. In the running broad jump the handicaps were too much for the Olympic star although he went two feet beyond the winner's mark. In the Pastime A. C. meet yesterday, the lanky athlete took first place in the standing hop, step and jump with a distance of 28 feet 6¼ inches. Ben Adams, his brother, and also a member of the Y. M. C. A. team last year, won second prize in this event.

TOMBSTONE HANDICAP AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The members of the Plainfield Country Club engaged in another novel competition on Saturday, called a "tombstone handicap," which was as amusing as the "birdie handicap" of a week ago. In this play each contestant was given the par score of the score to which was added his individual handicap. He was then allowed as many strokes as indicated by his handicap. C. W. King with a score of 93 and Julius E. Erickson with a score of 80 were tied for first place, both finishing on the eighteenth green.

There were a number of other players who finished within a few inches or feet of the last green. H. D. Hibbard had a score of 77 and D. H. Rowland one of 75, but they did not quite reach the 18th green. W. Lester Glenney had a score of 74 and finished on the sixteenth green and William T. Glenney was not far behind his brother.

Wherever the player finished he was expected to plant a little card on which was printed a picture of a "tombstone."

MISS ELLEN TURNER DIED AT MORRISTOWN.

The death of Miss Ellen Turner at the residence of Mrs. Henry R. Brown, of Swede street, Morristown, Pa., Sunday, July 8, marked the close of an unusual career of seventy-one years continuous and faithful service in one family. She was born in Bandon, Ireland and came to live in the family of the late Alfred Hurst in the capacity of child's nurse in 1840. For twenty-six years past, until her death, she had lived in the families of Mrs. Hurst's daughters, Mrs. William H. Yerkes and Mrs. Henry R. Brown.

Mrs. Brown is a cousin of William R. Cock, of East Fifth street, this city, and her sister, Mrs. Yerkes, is a niece by marriage of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who was pastor of the First Baptist church for nearly fifty years. Miss Turner was in her ninety-third year, was a lifelong member of the Episcopal church and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Union Services.

Rev John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity, conducted the service, which was largely attended, offering the opening prayer and announced the hymns. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, read the scripture lesson and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, offered the prayer. There was also some special musical selections by the choir. The following young men served as ushers at the service: Charles W. Beiter, Leroy Layton, Cornelius F. Schenck, John R. Schofield, Fred L. Soper, Jr., Arthur S. Martin.

To Renominate Smalley.

The political pot in the borough is beginning to boil, though the primary date is two months distant. The most important office to be filled is that of Mayor, and N. B. Smalley, the present incumbent in all likelihood will be induced to run again on the Republican ticket although it is understood that several others would jump at a chance. Councilmen W. L Smalley and J. J. Stahl, whose terms expire, have stated positively that under no consideration will they accept renominations. There will be no dearth of candidates for these positions.

Mrs. Ruth M. Clouser.

The funeral services of Mrs. Ruth M. Clouser, mother of Mrs. E. D. George, of Duer street, were held Saturday at the late home, 2024 North Gratz street, Philadelphia. Had she lived she would have been 85 years old today. Mrs. Cloucer died on Thursday after three years of patient suffering, the result of an accident. She was a sweet Christian woman, and beloved by all who knew her, and she is mourned by a large number of acquaintances. Mrs. Clouser is survived by three daughters and one son.

H.B. PAUL'S DEATH

Retired Hotel Man Succumbs to Bright's Disease at Age of Seventy-Two Years.

RESIDED HERE FIFTEEN YEARS.

Had Conducted Hotels at Swedesboro, Mullica Hill, Woodbury and Trenton—Funeral Service Tonight.

Henry B. Paul, aged 72 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram T. Paul, a resident of this city for about fifteen years and for many years one of the best known hotel men in New Jersey, died last night at his home on Central avenue, from acute Bright's disease. He was taken ill on Thursday. He was a familiar figure about the city and made many friends by his genial ways.

Mr. Paul was born on a farm near Swedesboro, Gloucester county, his father being a well-known hotel proprietor at Swedesboro. Later he succeeded his father at the latter place, where he remained for several years. From there he went to Mullica Hill, where he conducted the Eagle Hotel for nine years. Leaving there he removed to Woodbury, where for eight years he was proprietor of Paul's Hotel. At the end of that time he removed to Trenton and with his brother-in-law, Eli K. Ale, conducted the State Street House, now the Stirling, for 20 years. The firm was very successful in business and the hotel was known all over the State as one of the best.

About fifteen years ago Mr. Paul removed to Plainfield and not long afterwards he was married to Mrs. Lydia Bogart, formerly of Philadelphia, but who had been residing at the home of the late Elias R. Pope, at Park avenue and West Fifth street.

Although not a member of any church, he was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church. He always called himself a Friend. The wife and two sisters, Mrs. Charlotte B. Ale, of Trenton, and Mrs. Harrison, Livermore, of Woodbury, survive him.

Funeral services will be held at the late home on Central avenue tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at which Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate. The remains will be taken the following morning to Colestown, Camden county, where at 12 o'clock noon a service will be held at the Colestown chapel. The burial will be at the latter place.

TO AVOID COLLISION AUTOIST HITS POLE.

Through a misunderstanding in the direction Hampton Cutter, of Woodbridge, was to drive his car, Dr. Joseph Wright, of Westfield, ran his machine into a pole on East Seventh street, near Park avenue, Saturday evening and the force of the collision threw the latter's wife and daughter to the ground. They were not much hurt and after recovering from fright and shock were able to be taken to their home in the car, which was able to run under its own power.

Mr. Cutter, who was accompanied by his wife and sister, turned from Park avenue into the Seventh street entrance to Dr. Endicott's grounds. Dr. Wright was driving west on Seventh street and when Mr. Cutter's car made the swing to enter the driveway, Dr. Wright became confused and pulled to the right, crashing into the pole.

After the accident the physician's wife and daughter were taken to Dr. Davis' office. Dr. Wright thought that Mr. Cutter should pay for the repairs to the damaged car, but Mr. Cutter said he did not think so and eye witnesses agreed with him. Paul Collier, the photographer, took a picture of the machines to be used in the event of a suit.

MRS. P.H. MERQUELIN GOES TO HER REWARD

Mrs. Elizabeth Merquelin, wife of Peter H. Merquelin, died suddenly last night at her home, 1121 Myrtle avenue, of neuralgia of the heart. Although having suffered with the disease for several years, her condition did not become serious until about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Merquelin was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Stelling, and she was born in Newark. After leaving Newark she resided in Jersey City, removing to this city about twelve years ago. W.B.CRAGIN JR. WINS CITY TENNIS TITLE

W. B. Cragin, Jr., of the Plainfield Country Club, a former titleholder, won the Plainfield open championship in lawn tennis on the courts of that organization on Saturday, ending a tournament that started on the previous Saturday with an entry list of twenty-six players. In the final round Cragin defeated Henry J. Cochran, winning the first two sets easily, but having considerable trouble in capturing the third. In this set Cochran took advantage of a slight falling off in Cragin's play, and by deep and hard driving ran up a lead of 5-2. He was unable to get the other game, however, and Cragin by careful play cut down the lead and eventually hammered out a victory.

Cochran and Beers had a strenuous match in the semi-final round, but the former's physical condition was the better and he stood the strain excellently. A. M. Collens, the other semi-finalist, was unable to play.

Cragin's victory was the result of his all around superiority. He combined great steadiness with aggressive tactics, coming to the net when points were needed, and employing a twist service at critical times in his match with Cochran, with excellent results.

The summaries:

Singles—Preliminary round: D. S. Strong defeated W. A. Drake, 6-3, 6-1; A. D. Beers defeated W. L. Righter, 6-0, 6-2; C. E. Lipscomb defeated T. W. Carpenter, 6-0, 6-1; Harry Eddy defeated J. C. Martin, 6-1, 6-2; C. A. King defeated E. Stevenson, 6-3, 8-4; L. Hibbard defeated L. Mead, 6-2, 8-6; H. T. Eaton defeated R. Schoonmaker, 6-3, 6-2; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated W. Schoonmaker, by default; A. Lovell defeated T. Gavett, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; A. M. Collens defeated P. Brown, by default.

First round: H. J. Cochran defeated F. M. Letson, 6-2, 6-0; H. L. DeForest defeated D. S. Strong, 6-3, 6-4; A. D. Beers defeated Lipscomb, 6-0, 6-1; Eddy defeated King, 6-1, 6-0; Eaton defeated Hibbard, 6-1, 6-4; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated Lovell, 6-1, 6-1; Collens defeated W. Merrihew, 6-8, 9-7, 6-2; D. W. Mulford defeated M. H. Long, 6-4, 7-5.

Second round: Cochran defeated DeForest, 6-1, 6-3; Beers defeated Eddy, 6-2, 6-4; Cragin defeated Eaton, 6-0, 6-2; Collens defeated Mulford, 6-4, 6-3.

Semi-final round: Cochran defeated Beers, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2; Cragin defeated Collens, by default.

Final round: W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated H. J. Cochran, 6-2, 6-1, 9-7.

Exercises at Fresh Air Camp.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was the speaker at the Netherwood Fresh Air camp yesterday afternoon. A large crowd attended the exercises, which were in charge of J. D. Loizeaux. Charles Titsworth sang two baritone solos, the musical program being arranged by Clifford Braider. Mr. Broek spoke to the boys and girls, taking for his subject, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock," and "I am the door." A delegation of the Boy Scouts was present in uniform.

BOY BADLY BEATEN

Newark Youth Attacked by Two Men His Jaw and an Arm Being Broken.

TAKEN TO LOCAL HOSPITAL.

Charles Davey, Jr., Frightfully Maltreated Yesterday and Today is in a Serious Condition—His Assailants Escape.

While complying with a request for matches, Charles Davey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davey, of 81 Pesline avenue, Newark, was set upon by two men near Bound Brook yesterday morning and was brutally beaten. He was brought to Muhlenbery Hospital, where an examination showed that his left arm, jaw and nose are broken and nearly all of his teeth knocked out in addition to having received many minor bruises and cuts about the head and scalp. His condition today is said to be serious.

Young Davey, who is sixteen years old, had been fishing along the Raritan river and at day-break had started for home. While making his way to the trolley station at Bound Brook he was accosted by two strangers, who asked for a match. As he laid down his string of fish to reach into his pocket, he was punched squarely on the jaw by one of the men and knocked down. As he arose he was set upon by both of them and his arm was broken in trying to break away from one who was holding him. After regaining consciousness the victim made his way to Bound Brook station.

The police of this city were notified and they had the lad brought here. Drs. Hillman, Moore and Whitford, dentists, and Dr. DuBois, surgeon, were summoned and worked over him several hours.

The men who committed the outrage escaped but the police have a clue on which they are working.

TRINITY JUNIOR C. E. BAND WON MISSIONARY BANNER.

During the morning service at Trinity Reformed church yesterday, Rev. Dr. A. T. Broek, of Newark, announced that the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity church had been awarded the State banner for the largest amount given by any Junior band to missions. Dr. Broek congratulated the local society for its work and added that while he was disappointed over the fanlure of the band of his own church, the Clinton Avenue Reformed of Newark, to win the coveted trophy, there was consolation in the fact that the victors were worthy opponents. Dr. Broek then spoke of the local church and the Clinton Avenue church as sister institutions.

The local society raised $152 during the year for missionary purposes alone. The majortiy of this went to foreign work although a considerable amount was spent for local charities.

INCREASING.

On account of the extreme heat sending people from the City to the country, or my way. I have been compelled to add two more New York men to my Plainfield office and open up an office in New York.

A GOOD THING.

I admit I have made some miscalculations for this week, but that is on account of one of my barkers backing without cause, that is where a lawyer is a good thing. I can attend to my own business now. My other two backers had better look wise, too.

YOUR BUSINESS.

I can not see how Updike, without wearing a plug hat or an automobile to deceive the public can run such a business. But

DUNELLEN LOST GAME ON SLOW PASSED BALL

Dunellen lost a hard fought ten-inning game to Cranford at Dunellen Saturday Afternoon through the carelessness of their manager, who neglected to explain a new ground rule to his own team, while the visitors were made aware of the agreement. The score was 8-7, the winning run being made in the tenth when Palmer came all the way home from first on a slow passed ball, Nash, the catcher, thinking that the wild one was good for only one base.

The Cranford team came to Dunellen with fire in its eyes for it had been defeated by the Dunellenites this season in a close game 5-4. Dunellen led the contest Saturday afternoon until the fourth round when Cranford evened things up. Both sides batted hard and Peacock was forced to retire in the seventh in favor of "Lew" Slocum, who held the hits scattered after that.

Hand was knocked out in the second inning when he bumped into a pole while running for a foul fly. Nash took his place and caught a good game. Slocum won the plaudits of the fans by striking out the side in the ninth inning, while Linehan gained glory for the Cranford team by smashing out two two-sackers and a single.

NEW JERSEY CENTRAL TO ENLARGE SHOPS

The Central Railroad, according to building permits issued during the past week by Building Inspector Brennan, is to commence the enlarging of its Elizabethport repair shops on a scale of considerable magnitude. Plans have been filed for the erection of three large buildings, and several more are to be started shortly. The buildings to be immediately put under process of construction are a planing mill, a lumber storage shed and a car repair shop.

The car repair shop will be the largest structure, 178 by 600 feet, and is to cost $256,000. The planing mill, the dimensions of which are 94 by 300 feet, will cost $65,000, while the lumber storage shed is to cost $45,000, being 93 by 200 feet. Each one of the buildings is to have massive concrete foundations and the superstructures are to be of steel frames filled with brick curtain walls. One story in height, well lighted and ventilated, the buildings will represent the very latest and best in structures of their kind. The John W. Ferguson Company, of Paterson, are the contractors.

The Elizabethport shops are the general repair shops of the central division of the road, and their enlargment on the scale shown by the size and cost of the above buildings indicates that a large number of additional employes will undoubtedly be required to carry on the increased volume of work which is to be done there in the furure.

It is understood that the new buildings will replace the shops in Front street recently destroyed by fire.

No Cases In Court.

This was the first Monday morning since he has been sitting in the city court that Judge William G. DeMeza was not obliged to pass judgment on offenders. Usually Monday morning is the busiest of the week in the city court.

Banker Seriously Ill.

W. A. Clark, former President of the State Trust Co., is seriously ill at his summer home at Spring Lake.

The "Radiant Boy" Ghost.

An interesting house of commons ghost is the "radiant boy." This child ghost has been many times seen and heard. Its complexion is of the colorless purity of Chinese white, a halo of silver sparkles about its head during its peregrinations, and its eyes gleam in their sockets like bright electric lamps. It is evidently in agony, for the palms of its hands are stiff and turned downward, and as it paces from room to room it gives utterance to moans of anguish and never lifts its gaze from the floor. So far as can be ascertained this particular ghost has no pre-spectral history, and why it should have chosen the house for its haunt is a mystery.—London Mail.

Oak Trees.

To extend the life of one really fine old oak tree who would not willingly cut down whole groups of other trees? How infinitely greater is the incentive when one considers a group of titan oaks, lofty, wide spreading, ruggedly picturesque, with vigor unimpaired and grandeur increasing for centuries. Nursery grown oaks frequently transplanted and properly pruned are not difficult to establish. Their rapidity of growth is really on an average with that of most other trees. They should be pruned severely before planting.—Suburbanite.

An Economist.

"You should ride a horse."

"Can't afford it," said the apprehensive person.

"But it will give you an appetite."

"Perhaps. But it will do the same thing for the horse."—Washington Star.

A Prophecy That Failed.

The old Emperor William used to tell a story against himself which well serves to illustrate "that most gratuitous form of error, prophecy." When the emperor was only king of Prussia he saw one day among his troops an untidy looking lieutenant. "Who is that man?" he asked. "An officer," he was told, "who has just left the Danish service and joined the Prussian." "That man will never get on in the army," said the monarch, and he used to add in telling the story, "The man was Moltke, and my judgment of him gives you the measure of my insight."

ARTIFICIAL EYES.

The Art of Making Them Resemble Their Human Patterns.

MATCH IN SHAPE AND COLOR.

They Fit the Eye Socket Perfectly and May Even Be Worn During Sleeping Hours—Made of Glass, For Which No Substitute Has Yet Been Found.

Germany leads all other countries in the manufacture of artificial eyes. The American consul general at Coburg relates that probably ever since the beginning of the world civilized people have endeavored to hide or remedy any flaw in their appearance, such as the loss of an eye would cause. How this was done by the various nations it is hard to say. Up to the present time no discoveries have been made that would offer enlightenment on this subject. There are, it is true, a few unauthenticated accounts as far back as the middle ages, but the first reliable report is given by the French surgeon Ambroise Pare in 1560.

Two kinds of artificial eyes were known to him, the ekblepharos and the hypoblepharos. The ekblepharos was made by painting the eye and all surrounding parts as far as the brows on a plate, which was placed in front of the eye socket and held in position by a string tied over the head. The hypoblepharos was used in a manner similar to that of today, being put behind the eyelid, in the eye socket itself, and was composed of a metal shell of copper, silver or gold, covered with enamel and glass fusions.

It was only at the close of the eighteenth century that these artificial eyes really became of practical use, it being then found possible to do away with the metal shell altogether and employ enamel and glass. The material used was a soft lead glass, easily shaped, but also easily destructible, and an eye had to be renewed every three or four months to prevent the socket from becoming affected.

It is known that in the middle of the nineteenth century eyes were made by enamelers in Dresden, Prague, London and Stockholm, and in Thuringia. The Thuringian makers were not enamelers, but glassblowers working in connection with the porcelain painting industry, whose endless and untiring experiment resulted in the discovery of an ideal material, cryolite glass, the use of which led to a new technique in eye manufacture. Moreover, there can now be produced all the characteristics of the human eye which had been possible in enamel work. The new prosthetic eye received the name "reform eye." To be of value, however, it must be made to exactly fit the eye socket.

Today it is possible to give to the reform eye any form and color desired, and in most cases it can be even worn at night, thereby preventing the lid from sinking into the socket and the lashes from sticking together. At times attempts have been made to replace the breakable glass by vulcanite or celluloid, but such efforts have long since been given up as useless.

In 1852 the method used in France for making eyes was as follows: On the broadly pressed end of a small, colorless, transparent rod of enamel the pupil was first made, and the iris was then formed on this by means of a small, thin pointed, colored enameled rod, the designing of the iris being made possible by melting the point of this rod.

In Paris the good eyes are now so made. A glass tube, closed at one end and of the color of the sclerotic, is next blown into the form of an oval, and in the middle of this a hole is melted, the edges of which are rounded off evenly and pressed a little outward. The iris is then placed in this opening and well melted in. A thick coating of glass remains behind. The eye is rounded off, the projecting rim of the white coat is smoothed with a metal rod, and this coat is thereby joined to the sclerotic. By means of a thin, pointed red rod the blood vessels to be seen on the hard coat of the human eye are then melted in. The superfluous back part of the eyeball is melted off, thereby giving to the eye the desired form. The eye is finally placed on hot sand, where it becomes gradually cooled off.

Glass eyes are made in quite a different manner in Lauscha, the center of this industry in Germany, where their manufacture is altogether a house industry. The eyes are usually made by one member of a family, and the art is handed down from one generation to another. A gas flame is used for melting the glass. A small drop of white glass is put on the white blown ball from which the sclerotic is to be made and is then blown so as to make a circle about eight millimeters (0.315 inch) in diameter. On this circle the structure of the iris is built by means of variously colored glass rods. A drop of black glass makes the pupil. Over the finished iris crystal glass is melted in order to imitate the cornea. The further manufacture is similar to that given in the first description.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW AS TOLD TO Hugh S. Fullerton

By KIRBY WHITE.

Pitcher Pittsburg Pirates, and Who Is Considered One of the Most Promising of the Younger Generation of Twirlers.

There was a fellow named McClure, who never has been heard of in the major leagues, or the minors either, for that matter, who made the greatest play I ever saw.

I have watched Clarke and Leach and Wagner and Miller and all the great players around the circuit play, but I don't think any one of them could have thought quickly enough or worked quickly enough to pull off the play McClure did. The play he made required a lot of fast work.

The game was played at Leesburg, Ohio, in a game against Highland, and I happened to be pitching for Leesburg, although my own team was at Hillsboro. Leesburg and Highland are only a short distance apart and there is great rivalry between the teams. In fact every time I was employed to pitch over in that district it looked a two to one bet the game would end in a fight. We played on a partially inclosed pasture field with a small stand, and the hat usually was passed to collect the admission price. I believe each team had won two games that season and they were to play off the championship of Lees Creek township. Now right on the left field foul line there was a small barn. The foul line cut ten feet from the corner of the barn and McClure was the left fielder. We came down to the ninth inning with the score tied and the crowd going crazy, and then Leesburg scored a run, making the count 4 to 3, and we seemed to have it won. I was going along easily, and with two out thought the game was about over and handed up a soft one that the Highland batter slammed to center for a single. That waked me up and I started to pitch just as hard as I could. You know if a fellow loafs for a minute or two in a ball game and gets himself into trouble the chances are when he tries to pull out he'll only make the matter worse. Well, I put everything I had on a curve ball and sent it cracking around the plate, and one of those big Highland county farmers hit that ball over third base so fast the dust was all I could see. The ball, hit fair, swung onto foul ground and went into the door of that little barn ten feet from the foul line. McClure was chasing it as hard as he could. The ball went into the door with McClure ten feet behind it, and he dived after it as hard as he could. It looked as if he would get the ball out of the barn and hold the runners at second and third, but as he disappeared a bunch of Highland fans who were sitting near by ran over, shut the door and bolted it. That made it look like a home run. The runners, seeing what had happened, slowed up and began to trot around the bases, thinking it was a home run and that the game was over. They didn't know McClure. When the first runner was turning third McClure ran to the window in the barn loft and shot the ball at the plate, catching the runner by 20 feet and retiring the side. He had climbed the ladder and chased to the window to make the throw. And then they had the nerve to protest the game and start a fight, claiming the play wasn't covered in the rules. It took me 20 minutes to lick the biggest guy in their crowd, but we took the ball home, which proved we won the game.

They Gave Proof.

"Yes," the girls gave the bride a commiseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"

THE GHOST OF THE PAST.

It Rose Up to Taunt and Haunt the Poor Human Derelict.

The small crowd of grimy loafers lounged weakly in the little circle of light from the fitfully flickering lamp about the door. Two or three of them were leaning against a many colored poster, almost unreadable in the gloom. The door swung open—it was never shut—and a dapper figure in a red jersey and peaked cap of the Salvation Army appeared with a cheery greeting:

"Come in, men; come in. Fine treat tonight; splendid gramophone; all the latest from the music halls. Come on in."

One by one they went. Comic songs and Sousa marches rang nasally through the hall. Then the cheery voice was heard again:

"Now for some grand opera, gentlemen."

One living derelict who had subsided silently after his arrival from the public house roused himself at the words.

"Opera—grand opera," he muttered hazily.

The familiar whir of the gramophone began again, and then a voice from the aluminium horn announced, "Song from 'I Pagliacci,' by Pompey Carlyle, the famous tenor of grand opera." As the name of the singer was announced the ragged waif stiffened upright where he sat. Then as the first notes rang out his face held all the agony of a lost soul. Straight to his feet he bounded; then, with a cry, "Stop it, for heaven's sake stop it!" and with grimy hands pressed over his face he rushed from the hall, followed by a storm of abuse.

"What's the matter?" queried the commissioner.

"Queer bloke," answered another waif, still gasping from an attack of coughing which had torn his frail body. "Sings outside pubs. Used to be in hopera 'isself. Booze done it."

"What do you call him?"

"Pompey Carlyle."

"Heavens, it was his own song he heard!"—London Tit-Bits.

TOBACCO CHEFS.

Experts That Make Sauces For Flavoring the Different Brands.

"I am a tobacco chef," said the sallow man. "I make the sauces that give us smoking or chewing tobacco as a food chef makes the sauces which give us sole colbert or poulet creole.

"Take this dark, sweet, juicy plug of 'navy brown,' so popular among the more prosperous type of teamsters. Well, the flavor of this plug is due to a sauce made of sugar, licorice, whisky and honey.

"Here is a mild, cool pipe tobacco that college boys favor. Smell it. Very aromatic, eh? Well, it has been steeped in a sauce composed of the essential oils of citronella, bergamot and cassia.

"But it is when you come to the high grade Havana cigar, the cigar that sells for 40 or 50 cents, that you see the tobacco chef at his best. He doesn't make his sauces then of such common ingredients as sugar, bergamot, licorice and so forth. No, he makes them of bacteria. The flavors of the high grade Havana tobaccos depend, you see, entirely on their ferments. Each tobacco undergoes a different fermentation, and here the chef comes in, applying the bacteria of years which cause these fermentations to the leaf.

"Yes, the tobacco chef of the highest type, the one who ferments Havana tobacco, handles the various breeds of bacteria as an ordinary chef handles pepper and salt, mustard and cloves and mace."—Buffalo Express.

Punishment After Death.

A negro, already under sentence of life imprisonment, was convicted of two charges of assault to murder. With great gravity the jury sentenced him to five years on each charge and ordered the prison officers to keep his corpse for ten years after he died. Perhaps a little theology entered the decision, the jury feeling as did the man found hammering away at a snake after he had killed it and who explained by saying he believed in punishment after death.—Judge.

A Statesman's Queer Ambition.

The great Lord Grey had an ambition far above politics. He had passed the reform bill, but that did not satisfy his soul. There was talk of Taglioni, and Grey said quite earnestly, "What would I give to dance as well as she!"

The statesman who had been prime minister and had left an indelible mark on the history of his country was actually envious of an opera dancer!—London Globe.

Right Back at Her.

"Does your husband allow you to have things charged at the stores?"

"Oh, I think he would, but"—

"But the stores wouldn't. Is that what you were going to add?"

"Oh, no. I was going to say that he gives me plenty of money with which to pay cash. Does yours?"—Buffalo Express.

An Unbiased Champion.

"Queer world, isn't it? See that chap over there, the one who is putting up the big holler for individual drinking cups for public use?"

"Yes."

"He hasn't drunk a drop of water for seven years."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Consumption Must Be Prevented Rather Than Cured.

STAMP OUT THE INFECTION.

Unless the Germs of the Disease in the Habitation, Whether It Be House or Tent, Are Utterly Destroyed Fresh Air and "Cures" Avail Little.

There is no cure for tuberculosis, and probably never will be, accepting the word "cure" in the sense of some special medicine. A disease prevented is better than cured, for no one is so well off physically or financially after any illness, and particularly does this truth apply to tuberculosis. The successful prevention of a disease does away with any need for its "cure." This is well exemplified in the case of yellow fever. We have never succeeded in finding a cure for that former scourge of the south, but we have done far better. We have wiped out the disease bodily, bag and baggage, by simple preventive methods.

So writes Dr. F. C. Walsh in the Technical World Magazine, and he declares that notwithstanding the "optimists," the disease is on the increase. He singles out and lays great stress on the fact that consumption is a contagious disease and on the contention that it is not contracted to any great extent through infected milk or even by the using the drinking cups that consumptives use or through the "spitting nuisance." Its spread is through the infection of the habitation. Here is one of his parables:

Brown had moved in the month of May into a house in another part of the town where he had always lived. By fall he had contracted tuberculosis. It was discovered later that several different families who had occupied this same house in succession had lost several members from tuberculosis. No attempt had ever been made to disinfect the house. Brown went to a far western state, pitched his tent on a certain spot, and never made any change from that one spot until his death. Note that fact. As a result the soil over which he slept night after night became saturated with the accumulated germs which he expelled in coughing, so that he was continually at night rebreathing into his system the very "seeds" which cause the disease. He was repoisoning himself nightly and didn't know it. His system would have been able to throw off the original "germ poison" which it contracted, but it was not strong enough to withstand a new dose of the poison every night. Had he changed the location of his tent daily he could have slept each night in an atmosphere practically germ free.

Jones is another victim. He goes to the same state. He has an idea that he can get along without any tent and sleeps with only the stars above, rolled up in his blanket. He naturally moves from place to place, each day sleeping on new and different ground each night. He ends by being cured.

Smith has the disease and goes to the west. He feels and looks in perfect health long before a year is gone. He returns home, satisfied that he is cured. In less than four months he is again in the tenacious clutches of the disease.

There is a lesson in this. The open air treatment is all right, but it must be carried out by right methods. All early cases of consumption which have failed to recover by outdoor treatment must lay the blame to faulty treatment. Jones, who recovered, you will remember, did change his location every day, having no tent to bother him, and in doing so avoided the fatal mistake of Brown.

How about Smith? The case of Smith is of the greatest importance. He had recovered, you will remember, and returned to his home feeling fine—back to what? To the very same plague ridden room in which he had first contracted the disease—a room reeking with tubercular germ life and which had been occupied, it was learned later, by five different consumptives at various times. The disease got a hold on him a second time for the simple reason that he came back to the original source of his disease. He should have sought new quarters, or else the house, and particularly the room he occupied, should have been disinfected before being occupied by him or any one else. These three cases cited are but typical instances. There are thousands upon thousands of Browns, Joneses and Smiths living and dying this very day whose story, if told in its true light, would match exactly the simple but pathetic history of these three men.

The thing that the doctor brings out is that consumption must be prevented rather than cured; that prevention is easy and cheap and lies in disinfection. This, in the case of the consumptive's quarters, he insists, should be at least once a week. The formula is simple: "Fumigate every room in the house with a vapor given off by heating formaldehyde; wash all the floors, windows and woodwork with mild solutions of corrosive sublimate and water." Fresh air, either at home or elsewhere, he establishes, is in itself insufficient.

He reaches the conclusion that the very existence of the hope of a "cure" has been responsible for increase of the disease. He urges people to flee from consumption by killing it in the germ that lurks in house or ground.

Think all you speak, but speak not all you think.—Delaune.

The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch

By HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

People of widely differing nationalities occupied the emigrant car. Jim wondered whether they would ever become Americans according to his ideas of Americans, a people in which he had great pride and delight, and he shook his head doubtfully as he took them in.

Suddenly a small boy darted out of a car—an exceedingly small boy, thin to emaciation, who made his way through the crowd with that sprawling, active, dancing manner peculiar to thin small boys and spiders.

Jim half laughed at the little chap until he saw his face. Then he realized at a glance that the matter was no laughing one for the boy.

At the same time he saw the shocking thinness of the little face made into a wolf's face by hunger, the mingled horror and desperation of the eyes. The big man would not have believed a child's face could express emotions of such magnitude. He was wonder stricken at the sight and felt an instinctive sympathy for the fugitive.

It is a strange thing how fortune will sometimes guide with certainty when reason shows no path.

The boy came unerringly toward Jim. Jim had a sort of prophetic insight that he would. Back behind him the urchin ran. "Don't cher give me away, mister," he pleaded. Jim flapped a hand in answer.

At the time he was leaning against a corner of the station. A little back of him was a small lean-to shed, where various truck was stored.

Out of the car came a burly brute of a man, who stared about him rapidly.

"Dat's der ol' man," whispered the boy. "If he gits holt of me there won't be a hull bone left in me body."

The man walked up to the conductor and spoke to him.

"Aggh!" said the boy. "Now dey'll get me sure. Der jig is up. Dey'll have der hull gang ertop o' me!" the voice trailed off into a strangled sob and then continued in a fierce whisper: "Aggh! If I had me growth I'd show 'em! I'd show 'em!" And then a burst of hair raising profanity.

The argument was growing loud between the man, who was urging something, and the conductor, who was declining. Others were walking toward the moderate excitement.

Jim wheeled and caught the boy in his arms. "Up you go!" he said and tossed him on top of the shed. "Lie low behind the wood there and you are all right."

Then came the conductor's voice: "Say, my friend, if you think I'm going to hold my train while you hunt up a lost kid there's something in you that don't work right. Why didn't you take care of him while you had him? Now you've got just four minutes by the watch. Either hustle around and hunt or drop off the train and hunt. What's that? Now, don't you give me any slack, you black muzzled tarrier, or I'll have the fear of God thrown into you too quick. Get out of here now! Get out of my way!"

The man slouched off and made a hasty search around the station. A woman's face—scarcely an improvement on the man's—leaned out of the car window and jeered at the hunter, who cursed her back savagely.

The man walked up to Jim. "Say, did yer see a kid go by here, mister?"

With a shrug of his shoulders, Jim asked him that question in Mr. Ollendorf's French method about the pink and green overcoat of the shoemaker's wife's sister.

The man showered low abuse on what he supposed was a foreigner until Jim's ribs rose with the desire to kill him.

"Ayr, wot are yer wastin' time wid th' dago fur?" called the woman. "Th' kid's on the roof!" Jim's heart almost stopped, so thoroughly had he identified himself with this quarrel. He made up his mind to fight for the boy, right or wrong.

But he was saved the trouble. It was only a jest of the woman's, for she suddenly called, so earnestly that even Jim was fooled. "No, he ain't neither. I see him! I see him! There he is." It was the perfection of acting, voice and gesture.

The man ran out to see where she was pointing. "Where is he?" he asked, looking wild around.

"On top der flagpole, like er monkey! You're it!" she cried, with a shriek of laughter at the black brows of her dupe.

"I'll show yer der joke when I git in dere," he threatened.

The woman leaned her chin on her hands and smiled. Jim never forgot the utter undauntedness, impudence and malice of that face. "Yer allus goin' to do sumpin', Pete," she retorted. "Yer'll be a man yet."

A more amiable man than Pete might have been provoked by such conduct. He strode forward with white knuckled fists and a very unpleasant expression on his face. Several men started to interfere, but it wasn't necessary.

The woman quietly looked at her bully, chewing a straw with the utmost nonchalance. "Give us a kiss."

"UP YOU GO!" HE SAID.

said she. The man's crest dropped. He said something in an undertone and got on the car.

Jim needed no further knowledge of this delightful couple to be thoroughly on the boy's side. It seemed to him that the man was quite capable of keeping a small animal at hand for the fun of torturing it, and as for the woman—well, if there was her like in hell Jim determined to be good for the rest of his days.

"All aboard!" cried the conductor. And with a few mighty breaths the iron giant whisked its load out in the open again.

"Stay where you are, son, till I see whether that fellow is playing a trick," said Jim, and not until he had looked under the platform, up and down the track and in the waiting rooms did he give the command, "Come down!"

CHAPTER II.

THE passenger agent saw the performance with astonishment. "So you had the boy tucked away all the time?" said he. "Just what kind of a game is this?"

"Dunno," returned Jim. "Let the boy speak for himself. Now, young man, what's the matter?"

The urchin stood before them, taking them in thoroughly with his sharp little eyes. More big men strolled up. As a particularly fine foil to the boy's diminutive form Benny, the baggage smasher, whose overhanging shoulders testified whence came the power that had reduced many a proud Saratoga to elemental conditions, and "Happy Jack," the mammoth, soot black, loose jointed negro porter, placed themselves on either side of him. They made the boy look more like an insect than ever.

"Wot's de matter?" he cried in a voice at once hoarse and shrill, with a cursing note in it and accompanying the words with an extravagant, dramatic gesture of his skinny claw. "I'll tell yer wot's der matter. Dey beat me—dey beat me bad. I don't ast youse to take me word fur it. Look at me back—dat's all I ast yer—jes' look at dat!"

He ripped the shirt from his shoulders. An angry growl went up from all those big bearded men when they saw the horrible stripes and welts—raw, blue and swollen—on the poor little back.

Happy Jack threw up both his gorilla arms. "Good Lawd! Who done you like dat, boy?" he cried. "'F I got m' hookers on him, cuss me 'f I wudden' put bumps on him bigger'n yer hull body."

"Now yer talkin'," shrieked the boy. He raised himself to the tips of his toes, bared his teeth to the gum and, with clutching talons gripping at the air, yelled: "Aggh! If I had me growth I'd bite his heart out! I'd tear his neck for 'im!"

The men looked astounded on this mighty fury, pent in so small and miserable a cage. The voice had a peculiar alarming call to it, like the note of a fire gong.

Suddenly the boy's head dropped on the crook of his arm. "Treated me wuss'n a dog," he sobbed out. "Done me so it makes even dat nigger holler when he sees it."

Happy Jack was taken aback. The other men smoothed down their faces forcibly.

"Say, li'l' boy, you think dat's a p'lite way to talk to people?" inquired Jack.

The boy wiped his eyes on his sleeve and went over to him. "Say, don't yer holt nothin' ag'in me fur der word,"

AN ANGRY GROWL WENT UP.

said he. "Dey've got me looney, dat's wot. Yer've used me liker frien', and if it hoits yer yer can kick me pants fur me, and I won't say nuthin'."

"Well, there's two pound and a half of dead game sport for you, all right!" cried Benny. "Good eye, kid!"

Happy Jack smiled a mollified smile eight inches wide. "You is all right, bean," said he. "An' as fur as my bein' a nigger's concerned, I'll admit my kerplection ain't light." He slapped his ham and brought down a foot on the platform. "Hyah, hyah!" he roared. "You bet dere ain't no dam' blond 'bout me!"

The infectious darky laugh started the others off and brought matters to a common sense footing.

The passenger agent took up the interrogation. Was the man the boy's real father? Answer—"How'd I know? Dat's der song he guv me." Were there any relatives, friends? Answer—"Naw." Well, what did the boy propose to do? Answer, digging his toes into the boards—"Didn't know—anyt'ing." What was his name? "Jim." Jim what? "Didn't know. Sometimes der gun callt himself 'Darragh' an' sometimes 'Mullin' an' sometimes 'Smit.' Aggh! He callt himself the foist t'ing dat come to his tongue. He didn't have no real name."

The agent talked to him a bit more, winding up by saying kindly: "You've had a pretty rough time of it, Jimmy, and we'd all like to give you a lift. Now, just say what you'd like to do and maybe we can fix it."

"I'd like to go along wid dat feller 'f he'll take me," replied the boy, tossing a thumb toward Jim Felton. There was a becoming access of shyness in his manner. Moreover, Felton had an increased interest in him when he knew they bore the same name—a sort of kinship, as it were.

"Well, it's up to you, Mr."— said the passenger agent, with a smile.

"Felton," said Jim, "I'm in. I'll take the boy. Hard rustling down my way, but I guess we can make out somehow. Sure you want to go, kid?"

"Yessir!" very heartily.

"Done, then!"

Happy Jack snatched off his uniform cap, spat on a bill and flapped it into the bottom thereof.

"Goodby, fr'en'," said he. He shook the cap in front of the others. "Here's fur the li'l' rooster. Step up to the capen's office an' settle, gents!" he called. "'Member what de Bible says, 'Fool an' his money soon parted.' Come up! Come up!"

They came up generously.

"Stick a five in there for me, Bill," said Benny to the passenger agent. "I'm strapped."

"How much you got, boy?" asked the agent as Happy counted the money.

"Fo'ty dollars, even money, Misto' Breckenridge." The agent was a bachelor with a fat salary. "Here, that makes it fifty," said he. He turned to Felton. "Now, what do you say if we go across the street and—er—discuss this matter a little further?"

"Go you," replied Felton.

"Now, Jimmy, you sit here for a moment. "We're going on some business."

The boy glanced at them sharply. "Youse fellers is goin' to get a drink," said he.

Those big men put their hands on their sides and roared.

"You'll find that kid worse than a wife, Felton," said the agent.

"No use of our being hypocrites to the little chap. I reckon he's seen worse things than the inside of a saloon. Come along, laddybuck."

They lined up and partook. The agent told the story of the waif. "And we started him off with fifty, Mac," he said to the saloon keeper. "Suppose you break away from some of your ill gotten gains in the good cause."

The saloon keeper opened his cash drawer without words and slid over a five dollar bill. He seemed very glad to part with it.

"Confound it! Now we're upsticks again," said the agent. "Tell you what let's do. Here's ten of us. Each man put up a two and we'll shake the dice to see who gives it to the kid, winner to set 'em up. That'll make seventy-five, a very respectable figure."

They played a new interesting dice game in which the figure of a pig drawn in chalk upon the bar furnished the "layout." It is a game which increases in interest to the last throw. They stuck the saloon keeper and were gleeful.

"We ought to name the boy," said Felton under the inspiration of the second refreshment. "My name's Jim, and I want something else to call him by. I'll make him a present of my last name."

"Gad, that's so," replied the agent.

"Call him Chescheela Jim," put in a cowman. "That's Injun for 'little Jim.' 'Ches' ain't a bad nickname."

"Mac, hand over one of those toy sample bottles of California fizz," said the agent. "We'll put this craft down the ways in shape."

Felton broke the neck off the bottle with a tack hammer and poured the wine on the boy's head. "I christen thee Chescheela James Felton. May you become a good, seaworthy craft and not fill your skin with this stuff when you grow up," said he dramatically.

The small boy squinted up his eyes to keep the wine out, then he shook the liquid from his hair, looked up and grinned.

"Youse fellers is reg'lar kids," said he.

"Lord, that's a great boy!" said the agent. "He's the oldest man in the crowd. Say, let's give him a white man's start, beginning with a bath."

The whole party went to the barber shop and made the darky proprietor dispense a bath and a haircut for nothing.

"Shave, sir?" asked the latter when the hair had been properly trimmed.

"No," replied the youth. "I t'ink I'll let me whiskers grow. Dere's enuff wind in dis country ter keep der moths outen 'em."

Then they raided the clothing store and abused the Hebrew owner until he reduced the price. "Oof der lodt—everyding, shennelmun! Sigsdy ber zent. Dere's no broffit left. It doaned bay fur the freight."

"SHAVE, SIR?"

"Look here, Sol. Will you swear that on a piece of pork?" demanded the agent. The Hebrew moaned.

"Doaned dalk to me," he cried. "My heardt iss prooken."

Clean, trimmed and clothed, Chescheela James Felton was a different looking boy. Months only could take those animal lines out of his face and fresh air and wholesome food fill out the hollows of the cheeks; but, all in all, he was not a bad looking youngster.

Jim Felton bought some supplies for his camp and prepared to start for home that afternoon, as they could yet make fifteen miles before dark.

The new friends of the morning saw them off with hearty goodbys. The boy quite unexpectedly thanked them for their treatment and the money. The poor little soul had heard few words of gratitude and had less chance to employ them.

His speech was curious, but the generous big men saw behind the words and felt really touched by the old child's attempt to express himself.

The two Jims soon pushed on through the rolling foothills near the town into the broken country. The boy kept watching, watching, but said little, until at last they came to the stupendous cliffs of Paha-Sahpedon, overhanging the trail with dark majesty. Jim happened to glance at the boy and saw him looking up, mouth and eyes wide open.

"Say, mister," gasped Ches, "who built them?"

"Built?" repeated Jim, puzzled. Then he understood. "The hand of God, my boy," he replied.

The urchin shivered. "I feel 's if dey was comin' ertop o' me," he gasped. "Let's hook it outer here."

Jim spanked the burro, and they flew out of the Paha-Sahpedon at a canter.

They camped that night in the spruces of Silver creek in one of the prettiest little places that ever lay out of doors. As they prepared the supper and ate it, sharing plate, cup and spoon, the boy was fairly ecstatic.

"Dis is der bulliest ol' time dat ever I had," said he. "I didn't know dere was places like dis 'tall, 'cept Cintral park. Yer can run aroun' here all yer like, can't yer, mister? Nobuddy'll stop yer?"

"Not if you ran a thousand miles, Ches. This is the free land, boy. You can do what you like." Jim spoke with warmth, for, although he felt that the child could not understand, yet the love of the country swelled in him so hot that he could never speak of it carelessly.

"Dat's prutty d— good," responded Ches.

It may astonish you to know that despite the heat wave which appeared simultaneously with our July Furniture Sale, we have been doing an extraordinary furniture business, beginning with a first day unprecedented, and a second day nearly as large, and many other days that have been making records along with the thermometer.

But there is good reason—many reasons, in fact—why each year's furniture sale should be greater than its predecessor. More and more people come to realize the advantages of purchasing furniture during the July Sale, when they can figure their savings positively to be at least 10 per cent. on anything they buy, and often as much as 20, 30 and 50 per cent., according to our eagerness to sell.

More and more people are coming to know Hahne quality, and to appreciate the difference between the real good and the unworthy sorts of furniture, and as it dawns upon them that the wisest economy lies in purchasing only dependable furniture, even though it may cost a little more than the trashy sorts, they naturally turn to this establishment and look to this great July Sale to supply them with things they want at prices that are always fair, and at this particular time lower than ever.

OUR CLUB PLAN

is urged upon those who do not wish to suffer any financial strain in making furniture purchases. By joining our Household Club, requiring only a trifling fee, any trustworthy person, any steady wage earner whose reputation merits our confidence, can buy any reasonable amount of furniture and pay us only a portion of the cost at the time of purchase, making easy payments from time to time to complete the purchase. This plan has been employed by upwards of $10,000 people, many of them perfectly able to pay outright for what they buy, but preferring not to disturb money in the bank, or building association, or otherwise invested, but taking it out of their every-day income.

SOMERVILLE LUCK

County Seat Nine Fasten its Hold on Second Place in League Series.

PLAINFIELD TEAM WINS AGAIN.

High Bridge Shuts Out Westfield—Scotch Plains and Bound Brook Both Meet Defeat—Umpires Give Satisfaction.

While Plainfield's Pets were walking away with their seventh straight victory Saturday afternoon, Somerville severely trounced the Scotch Plains aggregation on the 'Plains grounds and settled for a while the ownership of second place in the Central New Jersey league race. High Bridge moved up side of Westfield by defeating the Mt. Arrarat bunch at High Bridge after a hard 1-0 fight.

The result of the Somerville Scotch Plains game was a great surprise to fandom in this city and the county for anything but a 15-3 landslide had been looked for. Scotch Plains had been playing gilt edge ball until Saturday and that aggregation was picked by many to come off with second place after Somerville's warriors had met their fate, but the unexpected happened and Scotch Plains was a sad town when the sun went down behind the Watchung mountains.

All the games were well attended and the umpiring was generally satisfactory. The Westfield team presented a radical change in its quota of players but the other teams lined up about the same. Another surprise to the fans was the knocking of Ortlieb out of the box by the Plainfield sluggers in the second inning.

Saturday's Results.

Plainfield, 6; Bound Brook, 3.
Somerville, 15; Scotch Plains, 3.
High Bridge, 1; Westfield, 0.

Bound Brook failed for the third time to stem the tide of Plainfield's victories on their home grounds Saturday afternoon and the Pets romped away with another game while the band played 6-3. Bound Brook yelled "Luck" but there was no luck for her chain of defeat had already been forged and could have been heard clanking on the diamond of that historical village long before the Plainfield regulars opened fire. But it was the same old story and when the battle had actually begun, the tailenders were lost in the smoke and completely outflanked in every move of the game.

Driscoll's Darlings opened hostilities by a life sized cannonade on Ortlieb's twisters and amidst a fire of single and double barrelled Louisville sluggers, the Bound Brook slab officer was forced to beat a retreat from the mound and seek the protection of the players' bench. Before Ortlieb had left the field of battle the list of mortalities numbered four against the Bound Brook Braves while only one chalk mark was on the scoreboard to worry the Plainfielders. After Ortlieb had made his exit, "Lew" Wiltse came back into the twirling world amidst thunderous applause from the rooters of both sides. The old vet limbered up his salary southpaw and heaved them over in such a manner that the locals could only gather five scattered hits for the remainder of the game.

Cosgrove started the trouble for Ortlieb in the opening round when he sent a long fly out into right field. Meehan misjudged the swat and added to the chaos by throwing wild on the return. The result was that Cosgrove landed on third and came home easily on Driscoll's sacrifice.

The peerless "Red" Waller was slow in getting started and Bound Brook evened things up in their half. MacLaughlin singled to center, stole second while Adler was wiffing the breezes in vain and romped across the rubber when Meehan shoved a safe drive for a base into right field. The next two men were easy outs on infield grounders.

The locals came back with a will in the second, which was opened with a single from Bill Stalling's willow. Brit Martin did the charity act and Bill took a root on second. Then Evans butted into fandom with a swat to right, which scored Stallings. Big Six Nelson laced a screamer into deep right garden, while Evans cantered home as if he were going to catch an Erie train. The last straw in Ortlieb's career for the afternoon was brought from the stack of Cosgrove's hit collection for the speedy Plainfielder hailed Nelson across with a two base wallop into left. Wiltse then took up the task and after passing Driscoll, caused eGorge to end the inning by flying to Worthley.

Two more tallies for the local league leaders came over in the third in a merry-go-round started when Bill Stallings got a berth through Powers error after one man was down. Brit Martin wielded his willow for a two base clout to left, scoring Stallings, and after Evans had fanned, Nelson again stepped to the plate. Old Faithful was again there with the stick and sent another two sacker into the right field canvas. Waller made three terrible wafts at the atmosphere but that was as far as it went and so the Plainfield scoring came to a close.

In the fifth Bound Brook took a brace and looked dangerous. Nolan sent a hot one to Waller, which the Sandy One let go past his glove and then "Red" advanced him to second when he hit Powers with a speedy in shoot. They moved up another peg on Bollinger's sacrifice and Nolan same home when McLaughlin died unselfishly by way of Martin to Driscoll. Adler touched one of Red's beauties for a clean hit, scoring Powers, but Nolan was an easy out and the agony was over.

Neither side had another good chance to score although Nolan did reach second on a hit and a steal with none out in the seventh. But the lanky fielder was caught napping and Bound Brook groaned.

Cosprove and Nelson did great stick work while the former made some pretty stops in the field. George, who played short stop for Plainfield, made a favorable impression accepting eight chances without an error. McLaughlin again played a lightning game on short for Bound Brook, his sitting stop and throw to first being the feature of the spectacular work. By the way, the umpire wasn't roasted much and the scorer's pencil made these marks:

Somerville handed out the record drubbing of the Central New Jersey League Saturday afternoon when Scotch Plains was defeated 15 to 3, on their home grounds. The game as played lacked lustre, ginger and enthusiasm. The six big tallies on the board, in the county seater's division, before the continuity of zeros opposite the locals was interrupted by a unit, took all the fight out of the players and acted as an aenesthetic on the spectators.

Warry was hit at will and his support was not at any time of the type that has won for the 'Plains nine a reputation for agility and sureness in handling sharply hit pills. The absence of plenty-speed was noticeable in the work of the outfielders as well as those adorning the diamond. On the other hand Clinton had the Scotsmen straining ineffectively to connect, although his team mates were as bad as Warry's in backing him up. One more foozle is totaled in the visitor's error column than in the local's, but there was this difference—erring did not occur when it meant scoring.

Joe Alberts was the only Kilty whose numeral under H, classes with those in like position for the Cawleyites. That three makes the column look top heavy owing to the line of units beneath. A squint at the line in the other box shows that it is a tower of strength and substanitality and is the real answer for Somerville's win. The score;

Westfield Shut Out.

In a gruelling pitchers' battle at High Bridge Saturday afternoon, High Bridge shut out Westfield 1-0 and tied the Mt. Arrarat bunch for fourth place in the Central New Jersey league. Both twirlers allowed but four hits but High Bridge managed to bunch a couple of safe drives in the fifth round and brought a tally across the rubber.

Trinity Lost Again.

The First Baptist team struck its stride Saturday afternoon on the Oval and with Carlton Smith in the box, an easy victory was scored against the Trinity Reformed boys. Smith held the Trinity batters to nine hits while the Baptist fattened their averages off VanZandt's delivery for a total of eighteen drives.

Captain Schenck's boys played a rather loose game in the field while Trotter's trippler's made only two misplays. Bailey and Smith did good battery work, both on the points and at the plate, for the former clouted four singles and the latter three. Trotter's work on third was of the high class variety, the snappy infielder making some difficult stops that looked good for hits.

By JACK M'CARTHY.

Manager Danville (Ill.) Team, Formerly Star Outfielder With Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago and Brooklyn.

The greatest play ever made in baseball was made by Charles W. Murphy when he acquired the Chicago club.

But if you ask me the greatest play ever made on the diamond, I believe it was one that Hans Wagner made against me when I was a member of the Brooklyn team. I have seen a lot of plays that I considered great, but never one to equal that which the big Dutchman pulled off, and it is hard to understand even now how he managed to do it.

I always have considered Wagner the greatest ball player I ever saw and have given him credit for doing more than any shortstop in the world, with the possible exception of Herman Long, but this play of which I'm telling comes under the head of the miracles.

It happened on the old Pittsburg park, down at the head of the Ohio river. We had been giving the Pirates a hard fight, but in the ninth inning they were leading us by a score of 3 to 1. Lefty Leifield, who is one of the greatest left-handed pitchers I ever batted against, was pitching, and he was good. We had two men on bases, and not a soul out, when I came to bat. I knew the play was to bunt, but Leifield's fast ball was jumping so far that it was next to impossible to bunt it. I asked permission to try to poke the ball over the third baseman, and it was granted. I figured that if Leifield kept the ball fast, high and inside the plate I might draw Leach, who was playing third, out of position and chop the ball either past him or over his head. The scheme worked out perfectly. I let one ball go over, bluffing as if to bunt. Leifield tried to keep the ball inside, but pitched high and right over the plate. I had shortened up on the bat and just tapped the ball on the line over third. Leach was coming forward at top speed, and although he leaped the ball cleared him, and it looked as if one run would score and that we would at least tie the game. Neither base runner thought there was a chance to catch the ball. But Wagner evidently had been in motion before the ball was pitched. Possibly he anticipated what I was trying to do, for as the ball was dropping to the ground, not more than ten feet back of third base, Wagner lurched forward, stuck out one hand and scooped the ball before it could touch the dirt. His plunge caused him to turn a somersault onto foul ground, but he sat up quickly, and still sitting, tossed the ball to second, completing the double play, and the runner coming down from first had to scramble to get back to the bag to avert a triple play.

ORDER BOND ISSUE

The Common Council Authorizes $74,000 to be Raised For Immediate Use.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS $34,000.

High School Addition to Cost $40,000—The Street Bonds are to Run for Three Years and to Draw 5% Interest.

The Common Council at an adjourned meeting, last night authorized the issue of $74,000 worth of municipal bonds, $40,000 on account of the proposed addition to be made at the Plainfield High School building and $34,000 on account of the proposed improvements of a dozen or more streets. In the case of the money for the street improvement two-thirds of it will be returned to the city by the property-owners.

At a previous meeting an issue of $35,000 was authorized and passed upon for the high school improvements, but when the bids were received it was found that an additional $5,000 would be needed. This was certified to by the Board of School Estimate, as in the case of the $35,000, but the finance committee, not being sure of its powers or rights to increase the amount, sought legal advice from Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, of Newark. That firm presented an opinion last night at the request of the finance committee, also submitting a form of resolution and coupon to be passed upon, and these were adopted later in the evening.

According to the opinion of the Newark firm, the Council had the right to increase the appropriation and the whole matter was passed upon the same as one resolution. In the case of the bonds for school improvements, they will run along with the other outstanding school bonds, maturing at the same time. They are to bear interest at 4 per cent. Of the issue $2,000 will be due in 1933, $6,000 from the years 1934-'37; $7,000 from the years 1938-'39, at which time the last of the school bonds mature. In the case of the street bonds they are to run three years and can be redeemed at any time after the first year. The $40,000 bond issue is not in excess of 3 per cent. of the total amount of city tax.

Councilman George S. Clay alone voted against the resoution appropriating an additional $5,000 for the school improvements, it being understood that he does not approve of the swimming pool feature proposed. It was explained by Mr. Buxton, who presented all the papers in the matter of the bond issue that in the case of those for the school William S. Tyler had gone over the matter carefully and the resolutions were prepared under his direction. All the members voted in the affirmative on the school and street bond issue. The street improvement bonds are to bear interest at 5 per cent. and sealed bids will be received for both issues on Monday night, August 14, at 8 o'clock.

The Council also passed on the form of bonds and coupons, and through resolutions $250 was appropriated to employ Hawkins, Delafield & Longfellow, of New York, to pass upon all the bonds; also $250 to have the bonds engraved by the Columbia Press Company, of New York. Another resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted authorized public advertisements for the sale of bonds in The Daily Press and Courier News; also the New York Commercial and Financial Chronicle, New York city.

"JOY" RIDING CHAUFFEUR LANDS IN COUNTY JAIL.

Because he took a ride in his employer's auto, Albert O'Connell is now in the county jail, at Somerville on a charge preferred by former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, under a recent act of the Legislature making it a misdemeanor for chauffeurs or others to take out an auto without the consent of the owner.

O'Connell, who had been the trusted chauffeur of the Clark family, it is alleged, by Mr. Clark, took out the car Saturday night and went to Newark and Coney Island. He returned with the machine at an early hour Sunday morning, and after placing it in the Clark garage went to bed. While he slumbered his employer swore out a warrant for his arrest. The chauffeur was arrested by Police man Hanlon and taken before Justice Sutphen, who committed him to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. This is said to be the first arrest. This is said to be county under the new law.

M. E. PASTOR RESIGNS TO ENTER P. E. CHURCH

Consternation and regret spread among the officials and parishioners of the First Methodist church, of Rahway, when the pastor, Rev. Robert A. Brown, handed in his resignation, to take effect immediately. He said he had already sent to the district superintendent, Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, in Plainfield, his resignation as pastor, also as a member of the Newark M. E. Conference.

Rev. Mr. Brown resigns to enter the Episcopal ministry, having received notice of his acceptance on Friday afternoon and also of his appointment to the assistant rectorship of St. Bernard's church, of Bernardsville.

The resignation of Mr. Brown is due in part to the fact that during the last few years the assignments of pastorates which he has received have steadily reduced his salary. He was appointed to the Rahway church in April and went there under protest from a Newark church, where he was receiving $1,200 per year. The salary of the pastor at Rahway was $800. Previous to that time he occupied pulpits in New York city, and only a few years ago he was receiving $3,200 per year.

TO MAKE UNIFORM SIDEWALKS IN CITY

An amendment to an ordinance relating to the construction of repair of sidewalks was offered by Councilman W. L. Gloak at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night, the purpose being to seucre uniformity in the matter of laying bluestone flagging or concrete walks. According to the amendment where a street is eighty feet wide, the distance of the edge of the walk from the side lines must be eight feet, and where the street is seventy feet wide, it must be five feet, and where the street is sixty feet wide, it must be three feet, and where the street is fifty feet wide it must be two feet. For all less widths of streets, the walks must be of equal distances between the side and curb lines. The amendment was passed on two readings and ordered advertised and a public hearing will be granted August 7.

Another resolution by Mr. Gloak, which was adopted, provided for the setting of the curb on the city's property at West Third street and Plainfield avenue.

A communication received from a Newark publisher of law books, informed the Council of two new books pertaining to the laws of cities and townships, and the matter was referred to the law committee. A communication from the Association of Standardizing Pavement Commission was also referred, while a supplemental letter from the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, furnishing the additional names of men employed by that company as policemen was referred to the police committee.

To Reside Abroad.

Rudolph Kaiser, of East Seventh street, who has held a responsible position with the North German Lloyd, sails today on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Gross for Bremen, where he is to assume a higher position. Mr. Kaiser has been a resident of Plainfield for several years and has made many friends here.

Miss Mary McDonough, of Summit avenue, has removed to the house formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George Schaffus, on Fairview avenue.

MAY RETAIN BETTS

Expected That Assistant Supt. of Schools Will be Made Deputy Commissioner.

KENDALL WILL ACT SOON.

New Head of State's Schools Expected at Trenton the Latter Part of the Week—Betts Still on the Job.

The immediate plans of Calvin N. Kendall, the new commissioner of Education, are somewhat indefinite according to a letter received from him by former State Superintendent Charles J. Baxter. The letter came in response to a telegram sent by Mr. Baxter when the appointment of Mr. Kendall was announced by Governor Wilson last week.

Mr. Kendall said that he would probably be in Trenton for two days the latter part of this week, after which he will have to return for a time to Indianapolis.

It has also been intimated that Mr. Kendall will appoint this week a deputy commissioner who will be one of the four assistants provided for in the new law. The deputy will have particular supervision over controversies and disputes arising under the laws and rules and regulations effecting the department.

This work has been performed in the past by Brognard Betts. of North Plainfield, the retiring assistant superintendent of public instruction. It is anticipated that Mr. Betts will be selected as the new deputy by Mr. Kendall. Pending the arrival of Mr. Kendall, the work of the State department of pub'ic instruction is being prosecuted as usual the only business actually held up being that which requires formal approval by the new commissioner, or his deputy.

Mr. Bette resides on Washington avenue, North Plainfield, and is a vestryman of Holy Cross church.

ASSAULT CHARGE AIRED IN THE POLICE COURT

The trial of the assault charge lodged against Peter Johnson, of Essex street, by Harry Cohen, of West Third street, took place this morning in the city court and resulted in Johnson being found guilty but owing to mitigating circumstances sentence was suspended.

The assault grew out of an argument the two men had regarding Cohen's fire pot which he was using in putting a tin roof on the porch of a house being built by Johnson for Isaac Goldberg, of Liberty street. The pot was laid on a block inside the house and had set fire to the wood. Johnson threw it outside and an argument ensued in which Cohen was also ejected. V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for Johnson and J. Henry Crane was counsel for Cohen.

Newark Star Appeals.

A writ of error was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday carrying up to the court of Errors and Appeals for review the Supreme Court the verdict in favor of the Potter Printing Press Company of this city against the Newark Star for $16,754. The verdict was rendered several weeks ago after the case had been in the courts for many months and grew out of the sale of a printing press to the Newark Star which the paper claimed was unsatisfactory.

This delightful weather should put everyone in the notion of going with the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist churches on their annual excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday. A grand day at the shore is promised. The train will stop at all local stations in Plainfield, also Dunllen, both ways. Going the train will leave here at 8:15 and returning leave the Park at 6:30.

PRESENT 2 PLAYS

St. Mary's Comedy Club Members Seen in 'Miss Civilzation' and 'Love's Alchemy'.

SOME CREDITABLE ACTING.

The Proceeds for Benefit of T. A. B.—Vocal Music and Dancing Other Features of an Evening's Entertainment.

A large crowd enjoyed the plays presented by the Comedy Club of St. Mary's Church in St. Mary's school hall last night, and the Thespians incidently materially swelled the maintainance fund of the T. A. B. Society, for whose benefit the shows were given. Miss Civilization and Love's Alchemy were the pieces given. During the intermission Miss Mathilde Bruguiere sang several selections that were well received. Dancing rounded out the evening's pleasure.

Miss Josephine Murphy assumed the title role in Miss Civilization and won the approval of the audience by her display of talent. William Sullivan acquitted himself creditably in the comedy end of the piece, sharing honors with Miss Murphy in the frequent applause.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Moore composed the cast of Love's Alchemy and it would be difficult to say which production scored the greater success. The story of Love's Alchemy is of a young couple married but a few months and the household expenses are proving to be a source of worriment to the young husband, thus marring the happiness of their home. To relieve this condition and to instruct the young wife in the art of curtailing expenses, her cousin (Mrs. Moore) masquerades as a maid. All goes well until the maid's admirer, a close friend of the young husband, is caught by the latter making love to her. In the explanation following all is straightened out and the alchemy, a love medicine, analyzed.

The cast of both pieces follow:

"Miss Civilization"—Alice Gardner, Miss J. Murphy; Harry Hayes, G. A. Keating; Joe Hatch, F. P. Cullen, Reddy, The Kid, W. V. Sullivan; Capt. Lucas, F. I. Donnelly.

"Love's Alchemy"—Miss Mabel Blossom, Mrs. T. A. Moore; Ralph Delmore, T. A. Moore; Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. P. H. Burns; Robert Dawson, P. H. Burns.

CITY HOME EMPLOYES RESIGN THEIR PLACES

Andrew McDowell as superintendent and his wife as matron of the City Industrial Home presented their resignations at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night and they were accepted. Councilman Montgomery presented the resignations to George B. Wean, acting clerk, without making an explanation as to why Mr. and Mrs. McDowell had decided to leave the Home.

It was reported today that the reason for Mr. McDowell's retirement, was a misunderstanding concerning the rules governing the management of the home. The superintendent, it is said, appeared before the councilmanic alms committee a few days ago and had a talk with the members relative to his duties, and it is asserted that he was then given to understand that the rules must be obeyed and that he would be expected to comply with them. Then, it is said, Mr. McDowell decided to give up his position.

The resignations are effective August 1. It is admitted that while Mr. and Mrs. McDowell have been in charge of the Home everything has been satisfactory to the alms committee and no complaints of any kind have been received. So far as known the successors of Mr. and Mrs. McDowell have not been engaged.

BABY CAMP OPENS FOR THE SEASON.

The King's Daughters' baby camp on Johnson's drive, Watchung mountains, was officially opened for the season yesterday, although no special exercises marked the event. Miss Olive Schreibweiss, of this city, will be the nurse for the camp this season. The matron is Mrs. Emma Bird.

Contributions for the baby camp will be received at The Daily Press office, promptly transferred to the camp authorities and acknowledged in these columns. The fund to date amounts to $87.

AS CITY COUNSEL

W. A. Coddington's Appointment as Attorney to Health Board Means Much.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE ACTS.

Names Former Judge As Lawyer For Tax Office Matters—Has Served Common Council As Lawyer Recently.

When the Common Council last night appointed former Judge William A. Coddington as counsel to the Board of Health at the request of that body and later when in executive session the Councilmanic finance committee named the same lawyer as attorney for the tax colector's office, it was understood that in effect Mr. Coddington will be special counsel to the city while there is no corporation counsel. Since the death of Craig A. Marsh, Mr. Coddington has been consulted by the Councilmanic committees at various times and has given great satisfaction the councilmen say.

At the request of Mr. Buxton, the communication form the Board of Health was read for information. He explained, before a vote was taken, that the appointment of Judge Coddington was made at the suggestion of Dr. William H. Murray, of the board, who had informed him that he had had business with Judge Coddington, when he, Dr. Murray, was a member of the State Board of Health, and he was much pleased with the way in which the judge handled several matters. In view of this the finance committee recommended the appointment of Judge Coddington.

All the members voted in the affirmative for confirmation. The resolution making the appointment was drafted by Judge Gilbert Collins for the finance committee.

BANDIT FOILED SAID HE CAME FROM HERE

While train No. 8, on the Chicago and North Western Railroad was speeding over the barren waste country between Tama City and Belle Plaine, Iowa, early this morning a bandit, who later claimed to hail from this city, attempted a hold-up but he was shot before he could carry out his plans. The bandit was terrorizing the sleepers in one of the Pullmans, making them put their valuables and money in a pile under threats of being shot when a brakeman entered the car.

The robber wheeled about and covering the brakeman with a gun ordered him to throw up his hands. For reply the brakeman drew his revolver and shot the bandit through the abdomen. The man fell unconscious but was still alive when Belle Plaine was reached and he was rushed to a hospital where he expired shortly after being received.

Before dying he made a statement and said he was W. J. Morrin, of Plainfield, New Jersey. The name and address are supposed to be fictitious. He added that he was alone in the attempted hold-up and that no one knew of his intention to rob the train. "Morrin" figured on making a big haul from the occupants of the sleeper and thought that he had locked both doors to the car, thus preventing his act being discovered until he had made good his escape when the train slowed down some distance further on.

FROM GERMANY SHE COMES TO BE MARRIED

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Clara Lindemann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franz Lindemann, of Berlin, and Prof. Henry vonHofe, formerly of Berlin, but now residing at Watchung avenue and Pearl street. Miss Lindemann is a passenger on the Steamship President Lincoln, which is due to arrive in New York on Sunday or Monday, and Prof. vonHofe will be at the pier when the steamship arrives, having completed arrangements for the wedding to take place aboard ship.

The approaching marriage is the culmination of a romance which began in Berlin. They were playmates then and when he became a professor of music, Miss Lindemann was one of his pupils. Before he came to this country they were engaged and it was planned that they should be married in the near future. Since coming to Plainfield Prof. vonHofe has been engaged as the leader of the singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein. He is also a teacher at the New York German Conservatory, the Mozartverien, of New York and the Harlem Mannerchor.

WANT CITY TO ADOPT POLICE PENSION LAW

The presentation of a communication from the Plainfield Patrolmen's Benevolent Assocation informing the members that the police pension law is in effect and requesting that it be given careful attention provoked a little discussion at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night. Councilman George S. Clay moved that the matter be referred to the police committee and that an ordinance be drafted and presented for action. He thought it was about time that something was done.

Councilman Buxton amended the motion to have the matter referred to the finance committee, and it was further amended to have it referred to the lawn committee. Councilman Mygatt agreed that the communication should go to the finance committee so that the members could check up the finances and see just what the city would be able to do. He asked Councilman C. C. Randolph, chairman of the police committee, if the latter was ready to make any recommendations in the matter, and Mr. Randolph replied that he was not prepared to do so. The question was finally referred to the finance and police committees.

Many other cities in the State have taken advantage of the new law and the policemen are anxious that something be done by the local authorities.

BRAKEMAN KILLED

William Wrage Slips From Locomotive at Somerville and Meets Instant Death.

HE RESIDED IN DUNELLEN.

Had Been in Jersey Central's Employee for Several Years—Parents Survive Him—Funeral Services Tomorrow Night.

While attempting to board a locomotive at the Somerville "Y" yesterday afternoon, William Wrage, aged twenty-five years, of Dunellen, a brakeman on the Central Railroad, slipped from the step and was instantly killed when the engine knocked his head against a cross-tie. The body was taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wrage, of Walnut street, Dunellen.

Just how the accident happened is not exactly known as the locomotive was going at a very slow rate of speed when Wrage met his death. The engineer said that he saw the brakeman turn the switch on the "Y," which serves as a turntable for the locomotive and walk toward the engine which was advancing at slow speed. He waved his arm to the engineer to go ahead and attempted to board the engine in order to ride to the empty cars, which he was to couple to the locomotive.

As Wrage put his foot upward toward the step, he was seen to fall forward heavily. The engine was quickly brought to a stop but it was found that the man's skull had been fractured from the impact with the crosstie, thus killing him instantly. The body was not mutilated in the least as the wheels had not passed over it.

The dead man had been in the employ of the railroad for several years and was assigned to Conductor Marshal Henry's train, which leaves Dunellen early in the afternoon, going to Somerville, where the engine is turned on the "Y" and then makes a trip to Jersey City. Wrage had turned the switch for the locomotive day after day and had always stepped on the step of the pilot and ridden back to the uncoupled coaches.

Mr. Wrage was extremely popular in Dunellen, where he had lived for several years. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, in which organization he took an active interest.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the residence of the dead man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wrage, of Walnut street. Interment will be made in the Quakertown, N. J., cemetery.

H. CODDINGTON TAKES HIMSELF TO PRISON.

After a wait of about three hours at the gate of the State prison at Trenton, Saturday night, Horace Codington, disbarred lawyer, of Somerset county, convicted of misappropriating public funds, was admitted to the institution. Codington dreaded the thought of being brought to the prison under guard, and when he heard that his conviction had been affirmed by the Court of Errors and Appeals he set out for the prison to surrender himself. He managed to elude the Somerset county officers and reached the prison Saturday night.

Although he told who he was and that he had been sentenced to serve eighteen months in the prison, he could not be admitted, as he had no commitment papers. Word was telephoned to the Somerset county officials explaining the situation, and finally the under sheriff of the county arrived with the necessary papers and Codington was admitted to the prison and placed in a cell.

This particular lot of youngsters scarcely had enough clothing to permit bringing them to this city, but after considerable trouble, they were finally fixed up for the trip. Persons having any old clothes of any description that they do not want will confer a favor by communicating with Miss Curry.

DRAWING COLOR LINE AMONG FIRE-FIGHTERS.

Asbury Park, July 18.—The delivery of 900 feet of fire hose to the Eureka Fire Company, a colored organization, has stirred up a hornet's nest among the members of the fire companies. The matter is likely to be aired at the Council meeting and the firemen are preparing to turn out in large numbers to enter a protest.

Councilman William C. Weeden is responsible for giving the hose to the colored company and he declares that he is willing to take any blame that may be laid upon him. The white firemen do not recognize the Eurekas as being "real fire-fighters." Some of them say that it was through the vote of members of the Eureka company that Mr. Weeden was elected a councilman and now he is only paying back the debt.

Seven straight—now come eleven!

But what do you think of Somerville now?

And Scotch Plains was picked as sure winner but again baseball, like life, is a funny proposition after all.

George made a favorable impression with the local rooters at Bound Brook Saturday, for the new short stop accepted eight chances without an error. The ex-collegian also made a safe drive and stopped some difficult ones. From the looks of things Dave Driscoll evidently believes in letting George do it.

That scoop up by Cosgrove was a pretty piece of work but it didn't go with the Ump., Mr. Degnan. The Plainfield centre gardener picked the ball right off the ground on the bounce as clean as a butcher shaves chipped beef and many of the fans thought that the ball was actually caught on the fly. Cosgrove came running in, as it would have made the third out, but Degnan was not influenced and Cossie turned around and walked right back again.

Bruggy didn't do much on second base for Somerville Saturday for the huskey one made two errors, although his bat did come in handy twice.

Jimmy Montross can handle the indicator almost as well as he can fling the horsehide. The Smiling Vet, of this city, did good work in the umpire's job at the 'Plains Saturday and would make a worthy regular.

Lew Wiltse is still there as a slab artist and if you don't believe it just ask "Red" Waller. The Plainfield twirler couldn't do a thing with Wiltse' southpaw slants and viciously fanned the air three times upon one occasion at the plate. That's sufficient proof that Lew is not a dead one for Waller can clout. So take that home, put it on the floor and run over it a few times!

When Powers interrupted that speedy inshoot from "Red's" wing Saturday, the Plainfield twirler was rather frightened. The ball struck Powers in the vicinity of the heart and caused him to drop as if lifeless to the ground. A few minutes of first aid work brought him around alright and he took his free base with a smile. Powers said afterwards, however, that he would much rather hit than be hit.

McDonald, the first sacker of the Somerville team, is some slugger with the willowy whip. Four hits were chalked to his credit in Saturday's game, one of these being a two sacker. It was his home run swat that tied up the Plainfield-Somerville game on July 4. And just perhaps those fans don't like Mac in Somerville. Why Casey was never in it with him.

George Ortlieb is suffering from a sore arm, this being in a large measure the reason for his knockout Saturday afternoon. It is seldom that "Ort" can't stay with them even if he does lose the game.

Leid's two base clout broke up the game for Westfield against High Bridge for the hit came just at the right time and scored the only run of the day.

But beware of Bound Brook in the future! That's all!

THE ROYAL A. C. SWAMPED BERKELEY HEIGHTS NINE.

The Royal A. C., of this city, won an easy game from the Berkeley Heights A. C. on the Royal's diamond Saturday afternoon by the score of 11-1. The local boys got a lead of eight runs before the visitors knew what had happened and the Berkeley team could not catch up.

Ford and Albert Somerset played gilt edge ball for the Royals, handling the infield siziers in great shape. Coleman and Davis made a good showing by their speedy running catches in the outfield. The Royals outbatted their opponents, 7 hits to 4.

Lineup and score by innings:

Royal A. C.—P. Somerset, 3b; Garner, ss; Ford, 1b; A. Somerset, 2b; Coleman, cf; Davis, lf; Jones, c; Kline, p; Barnes, rf.

Berkeley A. C.—W. Burg, ss; C. Burg, 1b; Fox, c; Rogers, lf; Hajar, 3b; Montross, p; Exner, cf; Mille, 2b; Smith rf.

Struck out—by Kline 11; by Montross 3. Bases on balls—off Montross 4; off Kline 3.

LOCAL Y.W.C.A. HELD A MID-SUMMER PARTY

Fifty young women attended the mid-summer party at the local Y. W. C. A., last night, the affair being held in the music room of the association. The feature of the occasion was the performance of the Plainfield "stunt" by the members of the Silver Bay Conference delegation from this city. The local young women were dressed as nurses, each wearing the official red cross and costume. One of the number was represented as being injured and the nurses applied first aid to her.

Miss Margaret Mosher, the physical director of the association, gave exhibition solo dances. Among the figures which she danced were the Highland Fling, the Sailor's Hornpipe, the Russian Mesurka, and the Espanita. All the numbers were loudly applauded.

During the evening the Silver Bay delegation sang a toast to Miss Amy Tapping, the secretary of the association, who was a member of the conference delegation. The company then played charades, after which the cool refreshment of ice cream cones was enjoyed by all.

HOLY CROSS' CHOIR ENJOYS CAMP LIFE.

The Holy Cross choir boys have been living camp life at Camp Comfort, Hedges Lake, Cambridge, N. Y., for the past ten days and have been letting people in that vicinity know of their prowess. The local boys defeated a baseball team from St. Peter's church choir, of Albany, who have been camping nearby by a score of 15-13.

In the baseball contest, Elmer Perry did the twirling for the Plainfield team, pitching a steady game, and LeRoy Stewart won a silver watch, offered by Douglas Anderson, for the first home run of the season. The team lined up as follows: William Carson, rf; William Riley, lf; Fred Van Norden, cf; Charles Patrick, c; Elmer Perry, p; Charles Chamberlin, 1b; LeRoy Stewart, 2b; Robert Herbert, ss, and Juan Babcock, 3b.

The weather has been delightfully cool at the camp, yet all the boys are well tanned. Several large bass have been caught by the campers, a five pound one being pulled in by Charles Isby, the sexton of the church. It is expected that the boys will return home Saturday, although W. S. O'Brien, the leader of the camp, and several of the older boys will remain for two weeks more.

DENTISTS MEETING

New Jersey State Dental Society Hold Their Convention at Asbury Park.

TO ATTEMPT TO REORGANIZE.

Plainfield Represented—Plans to Increase Membership of the Society Whose Roll is Particularly Small.

Many dentists of Plainfield and surrounding places are attending the annual convention of the New Jersey State Dental Society held in Asbury Park today and tomorrow and Thursday. The meeting this year promises to be of unusual interest on account of an effort which is to be made to reorganize the State society on an entirely new basis. There are also several matters of routine business of importance to be gone over.

On the other hand Dr. David C. Baker, of Orange, and Dr. C. W. Holbrook, of Newark, who compose a committee appointed by 134 dental surgeons of the State, in a circular directly charge that the sole object of attack is Dr. Meeker.

The present membership of the society is said to be about 30 per cent. of the reputable practitioners of dentistry in this State. The reorganizers announce their objects to be increasing the membership o fthe State society and uniting all the local societies into one compact and harmonious organization.

Among the Union county members are Charles G. Davis, Clive W. Montford, George T. Moore, W. E. Stelle, Raymond Stevens, Frank S. Wells, John R. Westervelt, Otis B. Whitford, all of this city.

Several of the Union county members hold important places on the different committees, these being; Thomas F. Martin, of Rahway, and Dr. Oscar Adelberg, of Elizabeth, on the membership committee; Charles F. Jones, of Elizabeth, on the clinic committee; Thomas F. Martin, on the exhibit committee, Walter Woolsey, chairman of the committee in the public schools of Union county and also county prosecutor for this county.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Johnson L. Miner, of New York city, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, next Sunday morning.

At the morning service Sunday, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, drew a vivid lesson from Hebrews 11-37, taking as his text, "The Roll Call of the Faithful." He told of the horrors of the time when idol worship was observed and said that all who shed the blood of the faithful in all ages are but followers of Ahab and Manassah. Telling of the horrible death of Isaiah, the pastor said that he was a man better than his age and declared that a leader to be safe must not be too high above the people.

Dr. DeHart to Live Here.

Rev. Dr. William H. DeHart, pastor of the Reformed church, Raritan, also for many years stated clerk of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, will take up his residence in Plainfield September 1, having leased the new house, 1072 Arlington avenue. He recently resigned his pastorate of the church at Raritan. He has a wife and two sons, Fred W. and Arthur V. DeHart. His many friends will welcome him to this city.

Lester Woodruff, of Manning avenue, is visiting relatives in New York city.

Act Abolishing Public Drinking Cups Does Not Apply to Mfg. Plants.

STATE HEALTH BOARD EDICT.

Cups for General Use Not to Be Used in Hotels, Schools, Public Buildings, Theatres or Railroad Trains and Stations.

The law abolishing public drinking cups, which went into effect on July 4, seems to have left it open to argument whether factories are to be construed as coming under the provisions of the act. In the rules of the State Board of Health defining those places which are to be considered as public places, no mention is made of factories. After clearly enumerating by specific classification those places which are prohibited from providing or maintaining public drinking cups, clause E of the rule says: "A public place within the meaning of this act will be construed to include any and all places whether maintained by private or public authority, to which the public has the right of access at any time with or without compensation."

This, it is contended. does not include factories, since the public does not have access to them at any time.

Speaking of the new law, Health Inspector Richards said to a reporter this morning:

"I have not yet received a copy of the rules issued by the State Board of Health, but I do not believe that factories will be affected as the law now reads. Y. M. C. A. buildings, about which there was some question, will, I am told, be considered as a public place within the meaning of the act. I believe the law will have to be amended. It is a new thing and points will arise which were not foreseen at the time it was framed."

Following are the rules as issued by the State Board of Health:

"Resolved, By the Board of Health of the State of New Jersey, that the following rules and regulations are hereby adopted:

"That on and after July 4, 1911, it shall be unlawful to provide or maintain a common drinking cup—

"a. In any public park, street or highway.

"b. In any hotel, public school, public hall, theatre, moving picture show or public library.

"c. In all municipal, penal, philanthropic and other institutions in this State.

"d. In any railroad or trolley station, railroad car, boat, or in any vehicle used for the carrying of passengers for a consideration.

"e. A public place within the meaning of this act will be construed to include any and all places whether maintained by private or public authority, to which the public have the right of access at any time, with or without compensation."

Will Visit England.

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and son, of West Seventh street, left this morning on the Steamship New Amsterdam for Europe, where they will remain until fall. Their address abroad will be in care of the American Express Company, 6 Haymarket, London, Eng. Mail sent to that address will be forwarded to them in Holland, England and Scotland, which places will be visited.

ESKIMO FAMILY LIFE.

A Glimpse of the Home When White Guests Are Present.

The usual sights on entering an Eskimo habitation are: On the way opposite you a steamer-like berth covered with skins—the sleeping quarters of the family; underneath, or in front, sit one or two women, busily sewing; to the right, a man making hunting gear. Never will you find an Eskimo family idle. All occupants are naked to the waist, sometimes only covered with a loin cloth. Along the wall on either side burn several lamps. These lamps are shallow soapstone basins filled with the oil of the seal, whale or walrus; along the edge is placed a little ridge of moss, which answers the purpose of the wick in our lamps. The lamps do not smoke, and, besides illuminating, throw a great heat. Above the flame hangs a piece of blubber, to replenish the oil, also a teakettle.

You are cordially invited to take off your things and stay awhile. This means disrobing to the same extent, for the air is foul and the temperature that of a Turkish bath. If you come during meal time, which is at any hour of the day, you are cordially invited to partake; you decline and no offense is given. If the meal consists of frozen fish, blubber or something they know the white man abhors, some joker will especially entreat you to join his dish and then there is a great laugh all around. The Eskimo loves to laugh, play practical jokes on his friends, respond in witticism, and is of a happy, childlike disposition. Treachery, stealing and lying are practically unknown among them, the two latter only since some of them have imitated the white man. I am not including the Siberian, Greenland or Labrador Eskimo.—Captain F. E. Kleinschmidt in Pacific Monthly.

ILLICIT DIAMOND BUYING.

Dodges the Traders Worked in Kimberley's Early Days.

There are as many stories of I. D. B.—i. e., illicit diamond buying—in South Africa as there were of smuggling in England a century ago. Louis Cohen tells of some of the dodges in his "Reminiscences" of Kimberley's early days. "Dogs were enlisted in the traffic and used as carriers. Often the poor animals were first kept without food until they were on the verge of starvation and then given lumps of meat containing diamonds, which they bolted. Safely arrived at Christiania, across the Vaal river, the faithful dumb friends of man were immediately rewarded for their services by having their stomachs ripped up and the imbedded baubles taken out. Horses, too, were utilized, being fed with balls of meat containing diamonds and driven across the river under the very noses of the police. Carrier pigeons were requisitioned to 'fly through the air with the greatest of ease' laden with the brigands' booty. Hollowed heels inclosing diamonds sealed down with wax were also expedients employed with decided and profitable success."

One lady had an ingenious way of getting out of a scrape. She was cooking dinner when a Cape boy knocked at the door and sold a forty carat diamond to her husband. "It was a trap. A detective immediately rushed in to arrest the buyer, searched the house, but no diamond could be found. The good wife had placed it in the stuffing of a goose she was basting."

The Use of Esquire.

The recovery of a letter which had been sent to a little town in Germany and never delivered to the person addressed cured the writer of the custom of adding "esquire" to a name on the superscription of mail matter. The letter in question would probably have been promptly delivered had the address read simply "Mr. John Brown." But the sender had addressed it "John Brown Esquire," and the communication rested comfortably in the "E" compartment of the poste restante department, waiting to be called for by "Mr. Esquire." One of the popular guide books warns against the use of "Esq.," saying that it might be mistaken for a name.

Real Leghorns.

Little Willie was taken out into the country on a bright spring day. As he played with his sister in the farmyard a group of Leghorn chickens approached, led by a Leghorn rooster.

"Willie," said the little girl, "why are those chickens called Leghorns?"

"Look at their ankles," Willie replied. "Don't you see the little horns on them?"

Very Much Alike.

The late Frank Work once defined humorously the difference between a curbstone broker and a legitimate broker with a seat on the stock exchange.

"It is much the same difference," he said, "as the one between an alligator and a crocodile."—Buffalo Express.

Traditional.

MAIL POUCHES.

They Cost From a Few Cents to Thousands of Dollars Each.

Uncle Sam has twenty-eight different kinds of mail bags in service, and they range in cost from 22 cents to $2,156 each. There are mail pouches for almost every conceivable use, and you can ship almost anything that comes within the postal regulations with a minimum of loss and breakage, says Harper's Weekly. Probably the most peculiar mail bag is the one arranged for carrying bees. Sending bees by mail was a difficult operation before the "bee bag" was adopted. Usually the bees arrived at their destination dead or so exhausted that they were of little use. Now these little honey makers can be shipped by mail several thousand miles in the "bee bag" without suffering and can obtain air and a good supply of food during their transit.

Mail bags are made of various materials. The cheapest are of cotton and the most costly of leather. Those used on fast expresses are re-enforced with metal so that they can be flung from fast moving trains without damage. Even then these bags, or "catcher pouches," do not last much more than a year and a half, while some of the cotton bags used for the work will remain in service upward of ten years.

In parts of the west, where the mail must be carried for many miles on horseback, special pouches are in use for slinging over the animal's flanks. In the far frozen north special bags are made for sled transportation, and in the cities a bag in use for pneumatic tube service is made of a composition called "leatheroid." The ordinary cotton mail bags are woven so closely that they are practically waterproof, and in the weave there are thirteen stripes of blue. Each country marks its own mail pouches in some individual way, so that if one gets lost in a far country its ownership can be readily detected.

Nearly 65,000,000 mail bags are used each year by the whole country, and as they are being worn out all the time the supply has to be kept up. There are mail bag hospitals, where tens of thousands of them go every week. One such mail bag hospital repairs upward of 5,000 a day. These crippled bags are in all sorts of dilapidated conditions. A railroad wreck may injure several hundreds or thousands, and these must all go to the hospital before entering active life again. Christmas is responsible for much damage to the mail bags, owing to the hard service they get, and immediately after the midwinter holiday season several hundred thousand bags go to the hospitals.

Mail bags are the most traveled of all articles in use today. They are constantly moving, and it would be impossible to estimate the number of miles a bag ten years old has traveled.

Up to Henry.

"You talked in your sleep last night, Henry."

"Did I, my dear? Wh-what did I say?"

"Henry, you are leading a double life!"

"No, dear; don't—don't say that. I think I must have been having a bad dream if I said anything that seemed to indicate"—

"A bad dream! I should think you were having a bad dream. You kept yelling 'Robber!' 'Rotten!' 'Kill him!' 'Run it out, you lobster!' and a lot of other things that were just as absurd. I want you to confess now—fully and freely—and I promise you that if it is anything a good woman should forgive I will forgive you."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Made Napoleon Wait.

On the day when the courier brought news of the signature of the peace of Amiens, Talleyrand thrust the impatiently awaited document in his pocket, went to the emperor and engaged him in current affairs. When these were all disposed of he said: "Now I have good news for you. Read!"

"And you could not tell me this immediately?" exclaimed the astonished Napoleon.

"Certainly not, for then you would listen to nothing else."

Not Surprised.

"Funny thing about Boliver," said Wiggins.

"What's that?" asked Bjones."

"Why, they operated on him for appendicitis the other day, and, by ginger, when they came to look there wasn't anything there," said Wiggins.

"Well, I'm not surprised," said Bjones; "I never could see anything in Boliver myself."—Harper's Weekly.

Modern Childhood.

Grandmother—And now would you like me to tell you a story, dears? Advanced Child—Oh, no, granny; not a story, please! They're so stodgy and unconvincing and as out of date as tunes in music. We should much prefer an impressionist word picture or a subtle character sketch.—London Punch.

Funny, but Not Humorous.

"Who says there are no women humorists?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"My typewriter spells as funny as Artemus Ward in his palmiest days."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Inducement.

"John, whatever induced you to buy a house in this forsaken region?"

"One of the best real estate men in the business."—Life.

If the thief lacks opportunity he thinks himself honest.—Sterne

SNOBBERY BELOW STAIRS.

The Way English Servants Ape Their Master's Airs and Graces.

Writing on snobs in the New York Tribune, Frederick Townsend Martin, the society millionaire, says:

We are all familiar with the ludicrous snobbery among English servants that existed in the time of Mr. Pickwick. Not so many of us however, appreciate what snobbery exists today in the realms of the servants' hall. I was once visiting Baron Ferdinand Rothschild, when my valet came to me and asked if he could go to London by the morning train and get back in the afternoon.

I said to him, "Why do you want to go?"

He replied: "Oh, sir, as we are only stopping here a few days, I did not put in my evening suit, and last night, you being a foreigner, I found myself ranked above all the others and had to take precedence of those who were traveling with dukes, earls and viscounts. I outranked them all and took in the housekeeper to dinner. And my mortification was great when I noticed that every one of the men around the table was in evening clothes, and I alone was in my ordinary black suit. By the way, sir," he continued, "perhaps you, being an American, don't know that in the servants' hall the valets and maids are always called after their masters' and mistresses' names. They don't call them Lady So-and-so, but simply by the last name. Thus, Earl Cork's servant would be called 'Cork.' And in the servants' hall they are seated at the housekeeper's table in exactly the same grade and rank as that observed by their masters and mistresses upstairs."

FRONT DOOR NIGHT BELLS.

Doctors Are Not the Only Ones Who Have Use For Them.

At 1 o'clock in the morning a man who was looking for a doctor found a door plate on which he distinguished the words, "Night bell," and rang the bell. When the door opened and a figure appeared in the semidarkness of the hall he said:

"Hurry up, please. There is a sick woman at No. 132."

The man inside said "All right," and in a few seconds both men were racing down the street to No. 132. In the top floor front room lay a very sick woman. The newcomer pulled a small table to the bedside and took from his pocket a sheet of paper and a fountain pen.

"What on earth are you doing with that?" said the man who had summoned him. "You're a nice doctor, you are."

"Doctor?" echoed the man. "I'm not a doctor; I'm a lawyer. Didn't you read the sign, 'Lawyer's night bell?'"

"But what does a lawyer need of a night bell?" the other man asked.

"To enable the people who want to make wills in the dead of night to find him readily," was the reply.

"Once in a while I'm called up to straighten out more serious entanglements, but most of the legal papers I write after 10 p. m. are wills. A lot of people who take sick suddenly recollect that they have never made a will and they want to repair the omission while there is time. When you said there was a sick woman here I naturally thought of wills, not medicine. There is a doctor in the corner house."—New York Times.

"Magic" Cloths.

Many housewives gladly pay 25 cents for so called "magic" cloths, as they are very useful for silver and other metals. Being dry, they do not soil the hands or clothing and do their work until the cloth itself wears out. To make such a cloth take one quart of gasoline, one-half pound of whiting and one-eighth ounce of oleic acid, mixing all together and shaking well. Soak pieces of woolen cloth in the mixture and hang them in the open air in a shady place to dry. When the cloths are dry the "magic" qualities have been given to them, and these they will never lose. The material must be wool.—New York Globe.

"Dinner of Deadly Enemies."

Lady Randolph Churchill once gave at her house in Connaught place what she called a dinner of deadly enemies. It was thought, says Mr. G. W. Smalley in his "Anglo-American Memories," a hazardous experiment. "It proved a complete success. They were all well bred people. They all recognized their obligations to their hostess as paramount for the time being. In some cases ancient animosities were softened. In all they were suspended."

The Shoplifter.

Old Jed Shucks and his wife had visited New York city, and after they got home Jed was describing to his friends the wonders of city ways.

"An' we went to a big department shop," he said, "an' we got inter one o' them 'ere things wot whizzes ye clean up to the top—what in tarnation is their name, ma?"

"Shoplifters, Jedediar," Mrs. Shucks replied.

Encouragement.

"I tell you," said Dottypate, "I'm nobody's fool."

"Oh, well, never mind, Dotty, dear," said Miss Cynica. "Some day some nice girl will come along and take you."—Harper's Weekly.

The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch

By HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"It is," replied Jim. "Now, Ches, will you do something to oblige me?"

"Sure!"

"Well, then, don't swear. I don't like to hear boys swear."

"I won't cuss another cuss if I kin help it. Dey'll come out too quick for me sometimes, but I'll try to do dat now."

"Thank you. Now, let's get the stuff cleared up and roll in."

CHAPTER III.

IN the middle of the night Jim heard a strange noise, a puzzling sound he could not trace. Becoming wider awake, it resolved itself into a stifled weeping.

"Hello there, Ches! What's the matter?" he cried.

The boy flung himself into Jim's arms, with a cry. "Ar, I'm scart to deat'," said he. "Take holt uf me, mister! Take holt uf me! Dere ain't anyt'ing but you and me here 'tall."

Jim gathered up the trembling figure. "Nothing will hurt you, Ches," he said. "You're safe here."

"I wasn't t'inkin' of gettin' hurted," retorted the boy, with shaky indignation. "Did youse t'ink I'd weaken fur dat? Yer don't know me, den. Dat ain't bodderin' me. I've been hurted plenty. I'm just scart. Dat's w'ats der matter."

"Well, now, you cuddle right up in my arms, like a little puppy dog and you'll feel all right."

"Say, you're prutty good stuff, Mr.

THE WHIRRING DEFIANCE OF A RATTLESNAKE.

Felton," whimpered the little voice. "Dis is der bulliest time I ever had, even if I am scart."

"I think you're a brave boy, Ches. Now go to sleep."

A small hand reached timidly around until it found the man's and gave it an affectionate squeeze. "Good night, sir," said Ches.

Jim lay awake, thinking dreamily, long after the boy's regular breathing showed that he was at peace again. The man felt a tenderness for the waif so abruptly put in his care that only a lonely man can feel. He speculated about the boy's future; he wondered what kind of a man he would make. Surely, with a foundation of such courage, the better part could be brought out.

Then he wondered what Anne would say to the adoption, or, rather, what advice she would give, for he felt entirely sure of her broad humanity outside of their one difference. He felt the need of her practical sense. Soon he had drifted into thinking of Anne entirely—not bitterly now, but with a steady longing. The gray light of the waning moon sifting through the boughs was the true lumina for reverie. Why had he not answered her letter? Perhaps by this time—

What was that moving in the grass? He had noticed a sort of something before. He threw up his right hand in a threatening gesture to frighten the intruder away.

Instantly he got his answer, and an icy wind seemed to ruff his hair—that insistent, dry, shrilling sound that will make a man's blood turn cold if anything will, the whirring defiance of a rattlesnake.

Jim thought quick and hard, with chills and fever coursing over him ad libitum. He did not want to waken and frighten the boy. He managed to slip his arm out without disturbing the sleeper. But now! There wasn't a club around except the short sticks of the fire. A two foot stick is not the proper equipment for rattler hunting except to those born with nerves so strong that they do not hesitate to catch Mr. Crotalus by the tail and snap his head off.

Jim thought of the rope he had used for a cinch and made for it with his eye on the snake lest the latter should approach closer to the boy.

With a deep thankfulness for the heft of the rope he returned and struck with all the strength of his big body and pounded away in a sort of crazy rage, although the first stroke had done the business.

He snapped the sweat from his brow as he looked down at the still writhing reptile.

"My God! What might have happened if the boy hadn't waked me?" he thought. The superstition of the miner rose in him rampant. "I believe that kid's going to bring me good luck," he said. "Darned if I don't. Well, I could stand some."

He took up the body of the rattler on a stick and heaved it far away, then lit his pipe.

"I don't think I care for any more sleep tonight," he laughed. "Like Ches, it ain't that anything will hurt me out here, but I'm everlastingly scared."

He watched the night out, reveling in his enjoyment of the mystery of the coming morning, that phase of the day which never ceases to be unreal and which calls out of the watcher sentiments and emotions he is a stranger to for the rest of the day.

The sun hung on the sharp point of Old Dog Tooth like a portent before he woke the boy.

Ches was all amazement for a second; then he gave a glad cry.

"Gee! Yer still here, ain't yer? No pipe in dis." He looked all around him. "Say, dis is a reg'lar teeayter uf er place, ain't it?" he remarked. "Dis is der scene where der villun almost gits der gent wid der sword if der stage mannecher didn't send sumun ter help 'im out."

Jim laughed at the sophisticated infant. "You don't believe in the theater much, then, Ches?"

"Aggh!" replied Ches. "If it ain't seven it's 'leven on der stage, but it's mostly craps in der street."

"Well, son, there are such points on the dice," admitted Jim. "But let's have something to eat and we'll feel better."

Ches rustled around after sticks in his funny, angularly active style, singing a song the while from the gladness of his heart. It was a merry song about mother slowly going down the hectic path of phthisis pulmonalis and sister, who has, one is led to believe, taken to small bottles, small hours and undesirable companions, refusing to come home and lift the mortgage which is shortly to be foreclosed, all in the narrow confines of twenty-five verses.

Jim listened to the inspiriting ditty in astonishment.

"Bird of the wilderness, blithesome and cumberless, Sweet be thy matin o'er moorland and lea!"

he quoted. "For heaven's sake, child," he continued in some irritation, "where did you learn that echo of the morgue?"

"Don't you like 'er?" asked Ches, in his turn astonished at such a lack of taste. "W'y, dat's er gig in der city. Everybuddy an' der ginnies wid der organs is givin' dat out all day long."

"Well, let 'em," commanded Jim. "Don't introduce it to this part of the country. As you render it through the nose and with the wail at the end it is a thing to make a strong man lie down and give up the ghost in sheer disgust. Ches, does it really make you feel good to sing it?"

"Yessir—kinder," replied Ches hesitatingly.

"Lord," thought Jim, "what a life to make a song like that a recreation!" Then aloud: "It's bad luck to sing before breakfast, Ches. I'll teach you a livelier song than that when we hit the trail again."

So it came to pass that during the first miles of their day's journey the way was enlivened by the notes of "The Arkansas Traveler," "Garry Owen," "Where's My Linda-Cinda Gone," "Baltimore Girls" and other songs of a lively character.

Ches approved of these in moderation. Then Jim tried an experiment. With a serious face, but half an eye on the boy, he howled, moaned and grunted "The Cowboy's Lament," which still presents the insoluble problem of whether the words or the music are drearier. "OoooooOO! Pla-a-ay your fifes l-o-o-w-l-y, a-a-nd beee-at your drums sl-o-o-o-wly and play the dead m-a-arch as you carry me o-o-o-on!" mourned Jim. Ches was all attention. "For I'm o-o-o-nly a p-o-o-or cowboy, and I know I've done w-r-o-o-o-o-o-ng!" wailed the singer in conclusion. "How'd you like that, Ches?"

"Say, dat's a ringer!" cried the boy enthusiastically.

Jim sat him down by the roadside and laughed his fill. "I think you're hopeless," he gasped.

The boy was hurt in a way he could not understand. Something pained him, a new sensation of not being up to the requirements of another's view. His forced acute intelligence made a bullseye shot.

"P'r'aps w'en I've got er chist and t'umpers on me like you I'll like der udder kin' er song," he said.

Jim looked at the pathetic little figure on the burro, and his conscience smote him. "That's right, boy," he replied very kindly. "I was only joking. Ought not to be any ill feeling between friends over a joke, you know. Now, you sing ahead all you plenty please."

"Don't say nuttin' more about it," replied Ches. "It's all square."

A little farther on Jim noticed a piece of quartz outcrop with a metal stain on it. Now, a miner can no more pass such a thing than some others could refuse to pick up the pin shining at their feet, so he took a stone and hammered off a specimen for future reference. In the meantime Ches, on the burro, got around the turn of the trail.

Suddenly the boy set up a shout of excitement. "Oh, mister," he yelled, with a string of profanity, his promise forgotten in his heat, "come quick an' look at der cat! Come quick, quick, quick! What a cat! You never see sich a cat!"

A Bird's Barbed Wire Fences.

There may be seen along the roadsides in Central America a brown wren about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the nest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.

A Detective Story.

I like detective stories; I read them, I write them, but I do not believe them. The bones and structure of a good detective story are so old and well known that it may seem banal to state them even in outline. A policeman, stupid, but sweet tempered, and always weakly erring on the side of mercy, walks along the street, and in the course of his ordinary business finds a man in Bulgarian uniform killed with an Australian boomerang in a Brompton milk shop. Having set free all the most suspicious persons in the story, he then appeals to the bulldog professional detective, who appeals to the hawklike amateur detective. The latter finds near the corpse a boot lace, a button boot, a French newspaper and a return ticket from the Hebrides, and so relentlessly, link by link, brings the crime home to the archbishop of Canterbury.—T. K. Chesterton in Illustrated London News.

A Hand at Whist.

"That was a remarkable hand you held just now," said the commercial traveler to his companion at cards.

"Pretty fair, pretty fair. But I've held a more wonderful hand than that."

"Really?"

"Yes. Once I was playing whist and dealt myself a hand of thirteen trumps."

"Great Scott!"

"And the funniest part of the matter is that I only took one trick."

"Impossible!"

"No, it's not. I played last and trumped my partner's ace. He was a hasty man, and before I could explain matters he lost his temper, and the game broke up in a row there and then. Funny game whist, isn't it? My deal, I think."

Diversions of Earlier Georgia.

Micajah Williamson kept a licensed tavern in the town of Washington. In front of this tavern was a large picture of George Washington hanging as a swinging sign. John Clarke (governor 1819-23) used to come to town and, like most men of his day, get drunk. They all did not "cut up," however, as he did on such occasions. He went into stores and smashed things generally, as tradition says, but he always came back and paid for them like a gentleman. Once he came into town intoxicated and galloped down Court street and fired through the picture of General Washington before the tavern door. This was brought up against him later when he was a candidate for governor, but his friends denied it.—Macon Telegraph.

Looking For Them.

Major d'Ariandes, like many another French soldier, was tired of waiting for promotion and opportunities to distinguish himself. He seized an opportunity to enjoy a little excitement and at the same time remind Louis XVI. of his baffled ambitions. He made a balloon ascension, which at that time was thought to be a very risky affair. The king promptly reproved him for his rashness.

"Your majesty will pardon me, I hope," said the officer, "but the fact is the minister of war has made me so many promises in the air that I went up to look for some of them."

Her Triumph.

"Maria," Mr. Dorkins said, with a note of exultation in his voice, "I turned a trade today that netted me a clean $2,000."

"H'mph," ejaculated his spouse in her loftiest you make me tired manner, "I went out today to hunt up a first class cook, and I got her, John—I got her!"—Chicago Tribune.

Got His Fill.

"Did you like the party, Rufus?"

"Yes, mother."

"Then why didn't you stay till it was over?"

"What was the use? I couldn't eat any more."

No Exception.

Miss Young—In Turkey a woman doesn't know her husband till after she's married him. Mrs. Wedd—Why mention Turkey especially?—Boston Transcript.

The Greater Blessing.

Jawkins—Ah, my boy, it's a fine thing to have a friend whom you can trust. Pawkins—It's a jolly sight better to have one who will trust you, old man.

Strenuous.

"He used to be a straight enough young chap. What made him get crooked?" "Trying to make both ends meet, I believe."—Exchange.

Cities and Race Vitality.

The Napoleon wars so drained the flower of French manhood that even today the physical stature of the average Frenchman is nearly half an inch below what it was at the beginning of Napoleon's reign.

The country in America today is constantly paying a similar tribute to the city in the sacrifice of its best blood, its best brain, the finest physical and mental fiber in the world. This great stream of superb country manhood which is ever flowing cityward is rapidly deteriorated by the softening, emasculating influences of the city until the superior virility, stamina and sturdy qualities entirely disappear in two or three generations of city life. Our city civilization is always in a process of decay and would in a few generations become emasculated and effeminate were it not for the pure crystal stream of country youth flowing steadily into and purifying the muddy, devitalized stream of city life. It would soon become so foul and degenerate as to threaten the physical and moral health of the dwellers.—Success Magazine.

Morse and the Telegraph Operator.

Immediately after the successful completion of the first transatlantic cable and the consequent celebrations, in which, of course, Cyrus W. Field bore a prominent part, Professor Morse had occasion to send a telegram from a small town in Ohio to his home in New York. He wrote out his message and presented it to the operator, who rapidly checked it off with his pencil and curtly demanded a dollar.

"But," said the venerable inventor, "I never pay for messages," and, seeing an inquiring look in the operator's eyes, added, "I am, in fact, the father of the telegraph."

"Then," said the operator, firmly convinced that he was being imposed upon, "why don't you sign your own name, Cyrus W. Field?"

Professor Morse when telling the story used to say that he was too humiliated to answer.

Armchair Etiquette.

The question of an armchair was once a matter of high state in the fortunes of Prussia. This was in the year 1696, when the Elector Frederick on visiting at The Hague that Prince of Orange whom his father and he had been instrumental in raising to the dignity of king as William III. of England was informed that during the interview the king would be seated on an armchair of state, while he (the elector) would be accommodated with an ordinary settle or stool. In great dudgeon (as Mr. Brayley Hodgetts recalls in "The House of Hohenzollern") the elector rejoined that if he was not worthy of an armchair his troops had at least been thought good enough to assist the Prince of Orange to mount the royal throne of England. Finally a compromise was effected, and the two sovereigns conversed with one another standing.

The Same Custom.

A magazine editor at the Authors' club, in New York, was talking about H. G. Wells. "Wells is now the foremost English novelist," he said. "Strange that a man so talented should misjudge us as he does. When he was over here he found fault with everything. One day at lunch, getting tired of his attacks on the tyranny of our trusts and our bosses, I said: 'Well, at least, Mr. Wells, you must admit the grandeur of the magnificent statue of Liberty that rears its proud head over our harbor?'

"'Oh, yes,' said Mr. Wells, 'you have the same custom as we—you rear your finest statues to the dead.'"

An Essay on Woman.

A woman is sometimes fugitive, irrational, indeterminable, illogical and contradictory. A good deal of forbearance ought to be shown her and a good deal of prudence exercised with regard to her, for she may bring about innumerable evils without knowing it. Capable of all kinds of devotion and of all kinds of treason, "monster incomprehensible," raised to the second power, she is at once the delight and the terror of man.—Amiel.

A Novel Revenge.

Cook—Yes; my mistress is a prima donna and a horrible creature. She treats me like the dirt beneath her feet, but I revenge myself by opening the drawing room window when she is not at home and by howling with all my might so that the neighbors may think her voice is cracked.—Fliegende Blatter.

A Trade Secret.

"What did your firm dismiss Grigg for?" asked the first traveler.

"He gave away a trade secret," replied the other.

"You don't say so?"

"Yes. He told a customer that our chief was an old scoundrel, and the chief overheard him."

All In.

Friend—I was just in the art gallery admiring your "Napoleon After Waterloo." The fidelity of expression on Bonaparte's face is positively wonderful. Where did you get it? Mr. Dobber—From life. I got my wife to pose for me the morning after she gave her first reception.—Puck.

Greatness.

Greatness lies not in being strong, but in the right use of strength, and strength is not used rightly when it serves only to carry a man above his fellows for his solitary glory.

Power when employed to relieve the oppressed and to punish the oppressor becomes a great blessing.—Swift.

DEMOCRATS SPRING TWO SLATES IN HUNTERDON.

Califon, July 18.—Politics in old Hunterdon on the Democratic side of the fence are beginning to resemble last week's weather. The fight at the primaries will be to decide who shall be Democratic boss of the county. For the past two years the activity of Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Clinton, in local county and State affairs, has not altogether been satisfactory to former leader James N. Pidcock, of White House, and efforts will be put forth by factions for the selection of the Democratic leader. Both Pidcock and Gebhardt claim the title. The strife this fall will be for sheriff, county commissioner and member of the Assembly.

The Gebhardt faction announces David L. Holcombe, of Delaware Township, for sheriff; John Johnson, of Bethlehem Township, for commissioner and David H. Agans, of Readington Township, for member of Assembly.

Pidcock will support Samuel D. Skillman, of Readington Township, for sheriff; James H. Terwin, of Flemington borough, for commissioner. His candidate for Assembly has not been announced, but it is believed he will support a prominent Democrat in the northern aprt of the county.

Former Assemblyman Oliver C. Holcombe, of Lambertville, announces himself as a candidate for re-election.

No announcement as yet, have been made for the offices on the Republican ticket. It is rumored, however, that Deputy Sheriff Frank C. Barkley, of Lambertville, will be a candidate for sheriff.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomomrrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets. There will be preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

QUIZ UNDER WAY AS TO FOOD STORAGE METHODS.

Trenton, July 18.—Determined to get at the root of the cold storage matter now that the law gives the State Board of Health the power to regulate the length of time food products shall stay in storage and the method employed, Dr. R. B. Fitz Randolph, as chief of the division of pure food and drugs, has sent to cold storage warehousemen demands for preliminary and quarterly reports.

An inspection of the questions to which answers are required shows that the scientists of the State laboratory are to determine whether the right kind of refrigeration is being employed in keeping food products, and in this way aid the inspection of the department, who is to do nothing but constantly inspect cold storage plants.

Mr. Randolph requires of the cold storage men that they report at once the capacity of their plants in cubic feet, the average temperature maintained in the storage rooms, the method of refrigeration, direct or ice; what means are taken to keep out and regulate humidity, of what material floors and walls and ceilings are composed and what methods are employed for keeping them clean and wholesome; also if there are any special rooms for the temporary storage of foods when first brought into the warehouse.

Look for Hotel Thieves.

Asbury Park, July 18.—The police are looking for two young men who registered at a hotel on Grand avenue and who got away with not only a week's unpaid board bill, but a suit of clothes, a rain coat, a pair of shoes and several articles of jewelry belonging to patrons of the house. The names of the alleged thieves as given to the police are J. N. Manning, of Brooklyn, and J. W. Martin, of Buffalo. The robbery was committed late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

JERSEY CITY VOTE ON COMMISSIONS TODAY.

A special election, by which the voters will decide whether they want the commission form of government, is being held in Jersey City today. Sheriff James J. Kelly, the Democratic leader, is opposed to the commission system. He and his friends are of the opinion that they will keep intact the present form of government by a two to one vote.

The commission advocates kept their campaign going last night. The County Board of Elections has dismissed election officers whose terms it was contended should not end before August 1 and replaced them with men declared to be favorable to the opponents of commission government. The Board refused to appoint challengers for friends of government by commission because they failed to file a list within five days of the election.

Frank Monahan, Chief of Police, has issued special orders for the day, and the word has been passed that the test at th polls must be a fair one. The champions of the commission idea will watch ferryboats and tunnels.

INSPECTORS NAB AUTOISTS.

Asbury Park, July 18.—A fine of $10 each was imposed on five autoists Sunday who drove their machines through the streets without having them equipped with lights. The autoists were Charles Ferguson, A. Jacobson, William McGibbons, T. E. Tichenor and A. L. Manning.

The arrests were brought about by State inspector who came here from Trenton to note conditions. They stationed themselves in various parts of the city where the auto travel was heavy, and found plenty to do. The campaign well be kept up, the police department says, until offenders shall realize that the resort is not to be trifled with so far as violations of the auto law are concerned.

LEAGUE MAGNATES TO CHOOSE NEW UMPIRES

A meeting of the league magnates of the Central New Jersey organization will be held tomorrow night at the Queen City hotel in this city. Several important matters of business will be brought up especially that concerning umpires. It is expected that several good officials will be chosen by the magnates tomorrow night as there are seven applications filed for the consideration of the league.

These applications have come from four umpires of New York city, one from Newark, one from Orangeand one from this city. The Plainfield applicant is Harry Montross, a brother of the famous Jimmy Montross. With these regular officials it is hoped that the umpire troubles will come to an end. A regular schedule for the officials will be made out in order to avoid any more mix-ups.

In order to do away with the weekly meetings of the magnates, a set of strict rules governing the organization will be adopted tomorrow night. It is the intention of the officials of the league to appoint an arbitration committee, which will meet and act upon all matters of currant interest in the organization.

LUDERUS IS NOW THE HOME RUN KING IN BIG LEAGUES.

It is now Frederick Luderus, king of home run hitters. Ty Cobb and Honus Wagner, in their palmiest days, never performed as Luderus, the sterling first baseman of the Phillies and sensation of the National League. Cobb and Wagner have sent many a pitcher back to the minors by turning apparent defeat into victory with a timely hit or two, but a record the equal of the one just compiled by the member of Charley Dooin's pennant contenders is still to be made. Basebell experts are ready to give to Luderus the title of champion home run hitter. It happens that Luderus has not compiled his home run hits all against the same club. He has scored one or more against each of the seven other clubs in the league. His circuit drives, the club against which they were made and dates are:

CLERGYMAN TELLS HAPPINESS SECRET.

The sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Gallup, of Providence, R. I., at the third union service of the First M. E., First Presbyterian, First Baptist and Trinity Reformed churches, held in Trinity Reformed church, Sunday night, was a helpful one. The same may be said of the sermon he preached at the First Baptist church in the morning.

Dr. Gallup has an attractive delivery with a peculiarity of pausing before giving utterance to the strongest word of his sentence. This makes his point additionally forceful and convincing. Sunday evening he drew his lesson from the book of Ecclesiastics, which, he said, is not a book of unconnected subjects as some consider it, but is rather a panorama of the preachers' existence. He put street upon certain passages more or less familiar to all, whether students of the Bible or not, by reason of the potency of their truth, which makes them of more common usage than many other passages of scripture.

At the outset, Rev. Dr. Gallup reminded his hearers that this is summer, a time when everybody is in search of something and he then announced his subject: "A Worlding's Discovery, or the Secret of Happiness," and told of the young man who had sought happiness in sensuality, business, art, literature, and lastly in religion. After identifying himself with Jesus Christ, he wrote his experiences for the benefit of others and the keynote of his work was faith and obedience as the real secret of happiness.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW

AS TOLD TO Hugh S. Fullerton

By JACK DOYLE.

Doyle, Now an Umpire in the National League, Was One of the Greatest Ball Players of His Time.

Jimmy Callahan made what I regard as the greatest play I ever saw on a baseball field. Further, I believe he is the only man who ever made the play. Afterwards when managing ball clubs I tried repeatedly to get fast pitchers to attempt the play, and not one of them ever got close to it. Whether this is because no one else had the nerve and the quickness of foot to do it, or whether it is impossible for any one to do it as Callahan did, I can't decide.

The play was made while Callahan was pitching for Jimmy Manning at Kansas City, shortly after he broke into the game. You fellows know how fast Cal is even now that he has come back after long retirement, and how fast he was when he first came into the National league, but when he was at Springfield and at Kansas City he was even faster. I was not in the game, but happened to be watching it from the stands, and was interested in seeing Callahan work, because I knew him—we had been neighbors up in Massachusetts.

The game was a close one, but Kansas City grabbed a run in the sixth and seventh and led by a score of 3 to 2 in the eighth, when the opposing team—I have forgotten which team it was—got men on first and second bases without a man out. Being a player myself I understood the situation and was surprised that Callahan spoke to the second baseman and shortstop. I wasn't surprised that he spoke to them, but that they went back and seemed to leave second base wide open, giving the runner there a change to get a flying start either to steal third or in case the ball was bunted. It looked as if the Kansas City team had gone crazy and I began to feel sorry for Callahan at receiving that kind of support. Cal took his pitching position; the shortstop played deep and at least 35 feet from the bag, and neither he nor the second baseman made an effort to make the runner stick close to it. The runner came up at least 30 feet and it looked a cinch for him to steal the moment Cal started to pitch. I didn't know it then, but that was exactly what Callahan wanted. He didn't look back at all, but as he started as if to wind up and pitch he whirled and made a dash back toward second base. The runner had taken a step to start his steal of third. He saw Cal whirl, hesitated, and started back toward second. Callahan had nearly twice the distance to cover, but he had a flying start, and he tagged the runner before he could slide into the base, turned the whole game upside down and saved Kansas City and himself from defeat.

Cal had figured the play, the man and the distance, and calculated that with the flying start and the instant of hesitation on the part of the runner he could beat him to second, and he did. I am informed Callahan turned the same trick three times in one season, but I never have heard of any one else making it successfully.

Mistake in Creation.

A certain skeptic was contending before a minister that the work of the Creator was manifestly imperfect. He pointed out what in his opinion he considered the "noted defects in the human organism, for instance, and thought of better contrivances?"

To his delight there was the frank reply, "Why, yes, I really think I have."

"In what respect?"

"Why," drawled the parson, "you see when I want to shut out anything disagreeable from my sight I can draw down my eyelids and it's all done; but unfortunately I haven't any flaps to my ears."

Free conversation ceased at about that point.—The Christian Guardian.

Alas, the Workingwoman!

"Poor woman! She works hard all day and then she's up nearly all night with the babies."

"What's the matter with her husband? Why doesn't he help her?"

"Oh, he puts in all his time agitating for an eight-hour day for the workingman."—Catholic Standard and Times.

RESTORES WATCH; REWARD IS "THANKS."

A young woman rushing for a train to New York in the Lackawanna station Newark, Sunday morning, parted company with her gold watch and boarded the train unconscious of her loss. The watch rolled far under the train. A young man who saw it disappeared under the car and came up watch in hand.

What appeared a most gallant act suddenly took on quite a different color. He gave a sheepish smile and swung the timepiece toward his own trousers pocket. Very quietly the conductor detained the young man, remarking, "Are you quite sure which woman dropped it?"

Quickly the young man slipped the timepiece into the hand of the conductor and disappeared. The conductor walked through the train, and at once the young woman arose, whispering to him her trouble. She got her watch. He got a "Thank you'," uttered very faintly.

BRIDEGROOM A SUICIDE BY CUTTING HIS THROAT.

Camden, July 18.—With his throat cut from ear to ear, the body of Jesse Loffler, twenty-four years old, was found Sunday afternoon lying in a clump of trees near his home at Runnemede, a rural community several miles south of Camden.

Until an investigation had been made by Coroner Saunders it was thought that a murder had been committed, but that the man had ended his life was a razor was established when the blood-stained instrument was found hidden beneath some leaves.

Loffler lived with his father-in-law, J. L. Davis, a blacksmith, of Broadway and Mechanic street, Camden, who has his summer home at Runnemede. The suicide had been married only six weeks, and about the only motive his relatives could assign for his tragic deed was worriment over the serious illness of his wife.

For the leader of their mid-week devotional services tomorrow evening the First Baptist church has invited Rev. F. K. Mathiews, of Scotch Plains, to direct the meditations and he will speak on the subject of "The Prayer Meeting As a Present Possibility."

AUTO SPEED CRAZE

The Reckless Driving of Cars Through City Streets Cause For Alarm.

ABLE JURIST'S ARRAIGNMENT.

"When Auto Driver Only Blows Horn at Street Crossing and Kills a Pedestrian He Is Guilty of Murder."

Despite the vigilance of the police, reckless driving of automobiles through the city street continues. Almost at any hour of the day, here and there in the business section violations of the auto speed law may be seen and many narrow escapes have been reported. For instance, at 11:55 this morning a yellow automobile, driven by a woman, with a woman passenger, dashed down Watchung avenue. As it sped by the trolley station at Fourth street and Watchung avenue, an unusually dangerous spot, the car was being driven at a rate of twenty-five miles an hour in the opinion of bystanders who commented on the recklessness of the woman driver. She made no effort to slow down her machine and simply blowed the horn when within forty feet of the streets' intersection. A policeman had just gone around the corner and his back was turned when the exhibition of reckless driving took place.

"When an automobile driver only blows a horn on approaching a crossing and strikes a foot passenger, and kills, he is, in my mind, guilty of murder." This arraignment of reckless chauffeurs was delivered yesterday by Judge Mayer Sulzberger in quarter sessions court in Philadelphia.

"The duty of a chauffeur," said Judge Sulzberger, who is credited as being the ablest of Pennsylvania's jurists, "is to stop or so to reduce the speed of his machine that he may have it under instant control at the intersections of streets, and failure to do so is evidence that must be submitted to a jury as malice against the community; it is evidence upon which to determine whether the driver is guilty of murder of the second degree, or, in an aggravated case, murder of the first degree.

"That all rests upon the presumption that malice must be individual is not so. If it is directed against the whole community it is evidence enough to go to the jury for murder; it is like the man who uses a deadly weapon on a crowded street, because an automobile is a deadly weapon when run to the danger of man.

"Railroads have specific tracks and rights of way on which to run their engines, and they protect all street crossings by gates, but in an effort still further to protect the community, they have spent millions upon millions of dollars to raise or lower crossings, that such dangers may be eliminated. And now comes a machine in the very midst of hundreds of people, not on specific tracks, not operated by men of much experience, but by any one who can raise $250 to buy a second-hand car.

"The street crossings are a continuance of the sidewalk, and the pedestrian has the same right on the street crossing as on the sidewalk. The automobile must cross the intersection with due regard for the foot passenger. When the automobile driver only blows a horn when approaching the crossing and strikes a foot passenger and kills, he is, in my mind, guilty of murder.

"Under present conditions, reasonable rapid transit must be allowed. Trolley cars are always under control at street crossings, and, in my experience, I do not know of one case in which a car of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company has killed a person at a street crossing. The fruitful parent of trolley accidents is the darting of children from the sidewalk in the middle of the block."

PLANS COMPLETED FOR G.O.P. OUTING

Owing to the fact that this is the vacation season the attendance at the meeting of the Union County Republican Committee, in the Dix building this week, was not large. There were about twenty members present. A report was received from the outing committee that arrangements for the annual excursion which will take place this year on August 12, were practically completed.

The committee has chartered the steamboat Isabel for the trip, the objective point of which is Far Rockaway and from the present outlook the outing will be one of the most successful in the history of the organization. Tickets are selling well and accommodations are being made for about 400 members and guests. The start will be made from the Recreation Pier, Elizabeth, at 10 o'clock in the morning. The return trip will be made in the evening. The next meeting of the committee will take place on August 21.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF HENRY B. PAUL HELD

The funeral services of Henry B. Paul were held at the late home on Central avenue, at 8 o'clock last night, and the house was thronged with relatives, friends and neighbors of Mr. Paul. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mr. Paul was an attendant, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church.

The simple life lived by Mr. Paul was exemplified by the simple funeral services. Mr. Broek read appropriate Scripture selections, offered prayer and Dr. Anderson also offered prayer. Mr. Paul was a Friend, and the services were in keeping with his unostentatious life. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends.

Mr. Paul had been a resident of this city about fifteen years, and prior to that resided at Swedesboro, Mullica Hill, Woodbury and Trenton. The remains were taken today to Colestown, Camden county, where a short service will be held at the Colestown chapel, and the burial will take place.

UNION CO. TAX BOARD DECISIONS ARE UPHELD.

GOV. WILSON TALKS AT DENTISTS' DINNER.

Governor Wilson addressed the Monmouth County Dental Association last night at their sixth annual banquet held in the Brunswick Hotel, Asbury Park. He referred to the dental organization as being one of worth and declared that associations such as these represent the spirit of America and make the nation indomnitable.

The basis of life, he said, is sympathetic knowledge of each other and power to get together. Due to the fact that he was scheduled to address the Monmouth County Democrats the Governor's speech was brief. The toastmaster of the evening was Dr. W. E. Truex, of Freehold. Mayor T. Frank Appleby delivered the address of welcome.

BABY CAMP FUND

One Hundred Dollars Has Been Received and Much More is Needed.

CONTRIBUTIONS TODAY $13.00.

Congregational Church Primary Class, $4; In Memoriam, H.H.B. $3; Another $5, and Herbert $1—An Appeal For More.

Thirteen may be unlucky but The City Union of King's Daughters does not share that view at least since this morning when $13 was added to the Baby Camp Fund. The best of it all is that the fund has reached the $100 mark and by tomorrow will be on its way for a second century of American eagles.

The primary class of the Congregational church Sunday-school contributed $4.00 today, and $3.00 was received as "In Memorium H. R. R." In the name of "Another" came $5.00 and "Herbert" donated $1.00.

It is needless to explain why this fund is being raised for every mother's son of us know what a laudable undertaking the baby camp on the mountain is and what it means to the poor little tots who are sheltered there during these trying days. When the camp was opened for the season on Monday, fifteen sick little ones were received and under the constant care of the matron and the nurse it is hoped that they will be restored to health. If you feel inclined to help such a worthy cause send your contribution to The Daily Press and it will be promptly acknowledged in these columns and just as promptly transmitted to the camp authorities who are sorely in need of ready money. Remember there are no expenses attached to this fund and all the money received is spent for actual necessities at the camp.

NEIGHBORS PROTEST AGAINST BLDG. PERMIT

There will be some excitement at the special meeting of the North Plainfield Council tonight when the matter of building permits is brought up before that body. It is expected that a large delegation of the residents of Jefferson avenue will be present to protest against the granting of a building permit to Henry DeMott for a frame structure on that thoroughfare. Several other requests for permits to build will be discussed by the council.

Plans for the proposed widening of Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnston's drive will be looked over by the councilmen for approval. The question of paying the bill for the paving of Clinton avenue will also be brought up and discussed tonight.

GOVERNOR WILSON TO SEE STATE'S TROOPS.

For the first time in his life Governor Wilson will see troops of the National Guard of New Jersey in camp on Saturday. Throughout his many years as a resident of New Jersey the Governor has never seen troops in encampment at the State grounds at Sea Girt, although deeply interested in the military organizations of the State.

The 2d and 3d regiments will arrive at the camp on Saturday for a week's manoeuvres. Platforms for the officer's tents have been placed in position at the encampment grounds, and everything is taking on the customary bustle indicative of the near-opening of the encampment.

WORK ON STREETS

Twelve Thoroughfares Are Being Macadamized by the City Authorities at Present.

OILING ON MANY OF THE ROADS.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett Finds This the Busiest Season of the Year For Street Improvement Work.

Twelve new paved roads are being built by the city through contractors, all being of macadam with a tar coating on four of them. The new macadam streets are the result of petitions to the Common Council and they will make a large addition to the total milage of improved paved streets. In addition to the building of roads, Street Commissioner Gavett has been busy with repairs to a large number of the highways in the city, which have been badly torn up during the spring and early summer.

The application of oil and tarvia to the roads this spring have proved most satisfactory and the tar preparations still is being used extensively to keep down the dust and make a finish to the road beds. Richmond street has received a thorough renovation between Front and Second streets and the work along the trolley track is in the process of completion. The steam roller is now at work on the approach to the East bound depot of the Central Railroad, which is being graded and repaved.

Mobus & Burke, a local firm of contractors, were the lowest bidders for the building of the new roads and all but one of these are being constructed by that firm. The paving of Randolph road between Park and Woodland avenues is being done by John McNabb, of Bound Brook.

The streets, which are to be paved with macadam by Mobus & Burke are Irving place; Leland avenue between South avenue and Cushing road; East Seventh street from Belvidere avenue to Terrill road; West Fifth and West Sixth streets from Monroe avenue to Clinton avenue; East Sixth street from Richmond street to Berkman street; Webster place from Putnam avenue to Seventh street; Columbia avenue from Leland avenue to Frederick street; Essex street from John street to Spooner avenue; Central avenue from Elizabeth street to the city line; and Central street from Woodland avenue to South avenue.

A tar preparation will be used on Irving place, East Seventh street, Essex street and Central avenue. It is expected that different kinds of tar coatings will be tried out on these thoroughfares as there are many of them on the market.

The work on Irving place has been completed and the finishing touches are being applied to the new pavement on Randolph road. It the present cool weather continues the work will be rushed along at a fast rate. A delay of several days was encountered on account of the recent hot wave, the men being able to work but for half a day at a time.

BANDIT LIVED HERE

Youthful Hold-up Man Who Was Shot is Identified as William Morris.

DEATH REPORT ERRONEOUS.

He Is a Plumber By Trade and Formerly Lived With His Parents On East Fifth Street—His Recovery Expected.

The parents of the young train robber who was shot by a brakeman of the train he was trying to hold up on the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, between Tama City and Belle Plaine, Iowa, early yesterday morning, were located by a Daily Press reporter today. They are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morris, of 445 East Fifth street. The boy, who was shot, resided with them until about two years ago when he left home to seek work in the West. His Christian name is William and he is twenty-two years old. He is a plumber by trade and it appears that he secured work in Kansas City, where he first located.

Morris' parents heard from him at intervals while he was there, but had not heard from him for several months until this morning, when a telegram was received from the hospital in Belle Plaine announcing that the report of the boy's death was erroneous.

The bullet of the brakeman's revolver shattered the bone of the upper leg. Morris was shot when he refused to surrender to the brakeman, who had surprised the bandit while the latter was terrorizing the occupants of a Pullman sleeper, threatening them with death unless they gave up their money and other valuables.

While in this city young Morris had as companions a number of boys whose reputations, according to the police, were not above reproach and when he left here it was in company with one of them, much against the wishes of his parents. While he had been in trouble here it was never anything of a serious nature and it was hoped that as he grew older he would mend his ways.

Morris' father worked for a number of years in the local freight house and also was employed at different times by Mobus & Burke, contractors, driving a steam roller. He is at present working in Caldwell and comes to his home in this city Saturday night, remaining until Monday morning.

OLD GLORY TO FLY FROM PRIZED STAFF

Timothy F. Harrington, of Greenbrook road, known as the "alfalfa king," is planning to float the Stars and Stripes from a big flag-staff, which was recently erected on his beautiful estate. The flag-staff was the steel mast used on the American yacht, "Puritan," twice winner of International yacht races. Mr. Harrington purchased it in New York and had it brought to his home.

Yesterday Clarence Mundy, known about the city as a "steeple-jack" "shinned up" the pole and fastened a rope in the pulley at the top and today Old Glory is floating to the breeze. Mr. Harrington since coming to Plainfield has acquired considerable property, in addition to his estate on Greenbrook road, and he has been very successful in raising alfalfa. He also owns a large tract at Deans, in Middlesex county, which he uses for the same purpose. Mr. Harrington is also engaged in the wholesale butcher business in New York city.

Funeral of Mrs. P. M. Merquelin.

The funeral services of Mrs. Peter H. Merquelin were held at the late home on Myrtle avenue last night at 8 o'clock and were leargely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated, reading Scripture selections and offering prayer. There was a large number of beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends. The remains were taken to Newark today for burial in Fairmont cemetery.

To Grade Hospital Lawn.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital have started to grade the hospital grounds on both the Park avenue and Randolph road sides. The entire place is to be ploughed up and a new lawn is to be planted. A large amount of manure will be necessary for the work and the officers of the institution would like to hear from any stablemen, who would be willing to donate several loads.

MAN GOES TO JAIL FOR MAKING THREATS

Fortanto DeMarso, of East Third street, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or spend 30 days in the county jail by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for an attempted assault on Harry Percella, who conducts a barber shop on Richmond street. Yesterday afternoon DeMarso went to the shop and made threats of "doing up" the proprietor. Before starting for home last night Percella armed himself with a piece of lead pipe and was followed by DeMarso, who after renewing the threats made in the afternoon, threw stones, none of which hit his intended victim.

Patrolman Dobson arrested DeMarso on Percella's complaint. In pronouncing sentence Judge DeMeza told Percella that he had done the proper thing in making the complaint rather than taking the law into his own hands. DeMarso had no money and was led back to the cell. He will be taken to the county jail.

SUSPENDS SENTENCE ON HIS SCHOOLMATE

Under circumstances most unusual, Warner Pierson received a suspended sentence of a $10 fine or 20 days in the county jail, when arraigned this morning in the city court before Judge William G. DeMeza. Warner was arrested last night by Patrolman Kelley on complaint of Mrs. George Zepp, of Liberty street, after he had asked her if she did not remember him and followed her across the street insisting on an answer. In court this morning Mrs. Zepp at first disclaimed ever having seen the prisoner, but after he had refreshed her memory by telling her that he was in her class at school and lived next door to her on West Second street eighteen years ago, she recalled him.

While this explanation was being made, Judge DeMeza recognized in Pierson a school mate. His Honor, Mrs. Zepp and Pierson all lived on the same block on West Second street and went to the same school. Pierson left Plainfield when still quite young and only returned several weeks ago. Since being away he had changed considerably. Travel in foreign lands, and there are but few he has not visited, has entirely effaced all familiarity recognizable to his old friends, of his features and figure and he presented a sorry sight as he stood abashed before his accuser.

Judge DeMeza told Pierson of the memory his words had revived and spoke kindly to him saying that he should brace up and try to do better. The prisoner had admitted having been under the influence of liquor. He broke down and cried while the judge was talking and this had a visible effect on Mrs. Zepp. She said that she remembered Pierson but did not recognize in the staggering man last night the school mate of years gone by. Her words had much to do with sentence being suspended. Pierson went away saying that he would swear off.

Plainfielders Going Abroad.

Among the Plainfielders leaving Plainfield for ocean trips on Saturday will be Mrs. Elich, a cabin passenger on the Floride, of the French Line for Berne, Switzerland; Miss Lindmark, of West Third street, on the Cedric, of the White Star Line, for Sweden, and Miss Marie Skittenhelm, who has been a maid in the home of Mrs. F. G. Mead for fifteen years, who leaves on the President Grant, of the Hamburg-American Line, for Hamburg. They all secured their tickets through the agency of Mulford Estil, of Park avenue.

P. H. S. Boys on Long Trip.

Jack Zerega, Franklin Newell, Dixon Phillips and Walter Harrington, all pupils at the Plainfield High School, left yesterday for Portland, Me., from which place they will go to Hobel, Maine, where H. R. Hubbard, of the P. H. S. faculty and Mr. Webster, of the North Plainfield High School faculty, will join them. The party will enjoy a three hundred mile canoe and camping trip through the lakes and woods of Maine, returning the first week in September.

Thimble Club's Outing.

The Thimble Club is enjoying the day as the guest of Mrs. Isaac P. Runyon, of Prospect place, at the Henry farm on the Pluckemin road between Pluckemin and Martinsville. The members left this morning on a trolley and were met by Mrs. Runyon at Somerville and conveyed in a big farm wagon to the Henry place. At 1 o'clock the Thimbelites enjoyed a box luncheon "under the spreading chestnut tree." P. S.—The thimbles were left at home.

AUTO'S 2 VICTIMS

Mrs. Fred Happle and Miss Laura Bornman Seriously Hurt in an Accident.

CAR DASHED INTO BIG POLE.

John Bornman, the Driver, Only Slightly Injured—Mrs. Hopple's Ankle Broken—Miss Bornman's Ribs Broken—Will Recover.

In order to avoid running into a motorcyclist who had suddenly stopped ahead of him, John Bornman, of Scotch Plains, drove his automobile to the side of the road on "dead man's curve" near South Amboy yesterday afternoon and the machine crashed into a telegraph pole, severely injuring Miss Laura Bornman, a sister of the owner of the car, and Mrs. Fred Happle, both of Scotch Plains. Mr. Bornman escaped with only a few slight bruises.

Quickly following the accident a telephone call was sent to the Perth Amboy hospital for the ambulance. At the hospital an examination showed that Miss Bornman's injuries consisted of several broken ribs, numerous bruises and contusions. Mrs. Happle sustained a broken ankle and severe cuts and bruises of the head and limbs. At first it was thought that Miss Bornman's injuries would prove fatal but it was reported by the hospital authorities today that she was resting comfortably and that she will recover. Mrs. Happle was said to be entirely out of danger.

The car was not badly damaged and it was brought to Martin's garage in this city last night by Mr. Bornman, who returned to the hospital at Perth Amboy today. A broken side door and a few broken accessories were the only injuries to the machine, the engine and wheels remaining intact and in perfect order.

There are several conflicting reports as to the cause of the mishap but the one told by Mr. Bornman himself seems the most probable. The owner of the car says that he was returning from Keyport and had reached the "dead man's curve" at about 5:30 yesterday afternoon, when he saw a motorcyclist on the curve just ahead of him. The motorcycle was running at a fast clip when its driver saw another machine approaching in the opposite direction and suddenly stopped his wheel. Before Mr. Bornman could catch another glimpse of the motocycle, his car was right upon it and in order to avoid crashing into the man, he swung his car to the outside of the curve. He applied his emergency brake but the suddenness of the retardation caused the car to skid on the soft road bed and strike a telegraph pole sideways. Miss Bornman and Mrs. Happle were thrown out of the car by the sudden jolt, both being hurled heavily to the ground. Mr. Bornman held his seat.

Another rumor regarding the cause of the accident circulated about this city this morning, was that Mr. Bornman was inexperienced in operating the car and in the close position lost control of the machine, which he steered into the pole. The truth of this statement was denied at the F. L. C. Martin Company garage this morning, the claim being made by them that Mr. Bornman was a careful driver and was quite experienced in running his machine. The motorcyclist, who would not give his name, sent a call for the ambulance to the Perth Amboy hospital and then hurried on his way.

This accident is only one of many serious smashups which have occurred at this curve during the last few years. The place is a particularly dangerous one insomuch that there is a sharp turn shaded by a thick foliage. The other side of the curve is a long steep hill, this being hidden from the view of those coming around the turn. The road on the curve is very narrow, barely allowing two automobiles to pass one another at the same time, and if either machine should happen to be going more than ten miles an hour, a collision would surely result.

Auto and Trolley Collide.

Harrison Coddington, of North Plainfield, accompanied by members of his family in an automobile, had a slight collision with a main line trolley car, going east, on West Front street, this morning. Mr. Coddington had just turned from Madison avenue into Front street, when the car came along. The fender struck the rear end of the auto. There was practically little or no damage.

Ayers had neglected to obey the laws of quarantine, which had been placed upon his home on account of the illness of his son with diphtheria. The defendant said that he was not aware of the necessity of the strict guard upon the house and so the Recorder suspended sentence.

The members of the organization hired a special car, which left Dunellen at seven o'clock, and made the "loop", taking in Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy and Boynton Beach, where a stop of several minutes was made. ENGLAND'S ATHLETES COMPARED WITH OURS

J. W. Spaulding, who has just returned from a trip to Europe, made the following statement in relation to the results of the English and American championships which were held on July 1. He makes the statement after comparing the English and Pittsburg championships that an American team could have been sent to the English championships this year, which would have won positively all the events, except perhaps the four-mile, and with George Bonhag in good shape we would probably have won that, too. The four-mile race was the only event in the English championship in which the winner's performance was better than that at Pittsburg. The English championships heretofore have principally been won by Englishmen, but this year, Mr. Spaulding stated, the meeting took on a sort of international aspect, and the foreign athletes won championships that heretofore have never been won by anyone but an Englishman. It shows just how the different countries of the world are progressing athletically.

The following table of performances of the American and English championships will prove interesting reading at this time:

100 yards dash—(A.) F. L. Ramsdell, 0:10 2-5; G. Henry, 0:10. 220 yards dash—(A.) F. L. Ramsdell, 0.22 1-5; J. Nelson, 0:24 4-5; E. J. F. Lindberg, 0:49. 880 yards run—(G.) H. Braun, 1:59 4-5; M: W: Sheppard, 1:54 1-5;. Mile run—(E.) D. F. McNicol, 4:22 1-5; A. R. Kiviat, 4:19 3-5. 4-mile run—(F.) H. Kolehmainen, 20:3 3-5; 5 miles—G. V. Bonhag, 25:50 2-5. 120 yards hurdle—(E.) P. R. Phillips, 0:16 1-5; A. B. Shaw, 0:15 3-5. Running broad jump—(E.) P. Kirwan, 23 fett 5½ inches; P. Adams, 23 feet 40-100. High jump—(G.) R. Pasemann, 6 feet; H. Gumpelt, 6 feet 11 inches. Pole vault—(G.) R. Pasemann, 12 feet; E. T. Cooke, H. Coyle, S. Bellah, 12 feet 6 inches. 16-pound shot put—(E.) J. Barrett, 43 feet 5 inches; P. McDonald, 47 feet 9 inches. Throwing 16-pound hammer—(E.) G. E. Putnam, 147 feet 7½ inches; C. Walsh, 177 feet 6½ inches.

BASEBALL.

Report has it that Tommy Mullin is going to join the McNulty Brothers' team. The speedy infielder has left the Scotch Plains aggregation anyway.

That foul wallop by Nelson Saturday was one of the longest hits ever made at the Bound Brook grounds. The ball went sailing far past the left fielder and only stopped when it hit a house over on the adjoining street. Before it was stopped the sphere was rising continually and there's no telling where it might have gone had not the house been in the way.

It is reported that James McAleer, of the Washington American League club, has purchased the Boston Red Sox. The report seems to have foundation in that McAleer has been spending some time with President John I. Taylor, of the Boston aggregation, who was desirous of selling out.

Dunellen's remarkable record of victories was brought to a halt Saturday when Cranford won out in the tenth round. The fact that Manager Bogardus failed to tell his players of a new ground rule resulted in the first defeat which his team has suffered for a long time.

Jack Peacock is getting back in the game again, being the regular box artist now for the Dunellen team. Last Saturday Jack pitched gilt edged ball while he was on the mound, retiring after the seventh inning in favor of Slocum.

When it comes to strike-outs, you have to hand it to Lew Slocum. The local youngster seems to have hypnotic influence on the batsmen for he always manages to fan at least ten per game. At Dunellen Saturday, "Lew" struck out the Cranford team in the ninth inning and there were some good batters up, too.

Nolan, the star Bound Brook outfielder, seems to have a great fondness for "Red" Waller's curves. The lanky one has clouted "Red's" delivery for seven safe hits in the three games that Plainfield and Bound Brook have played this season.

Frank Evans made a rather favorable impression with his playing on the Plainfield team last Saturday, it being his first good chance to show what he could do. In the field he handled everything O. K., but he was weak with the stick, seeming to lack the ginger of a good, hard swing at the horsehide.

Hartman doesn't seem to be doing a whole lot in the New York State League with the stick although he is fielding along with the best of them. He was good enough for Plainfield, anyway.

The absence of Joe Harter was greatly felt by the locals at Bound Brook Saturday for there was noticed a lack of one good reliable hitter in the fourth man up. Eddie Stallings comes across with a safe wallop only at intervals and can't be counted upon like Harter.

The Monroe Avenue Sunday-school looks as if it would make a runaway with that city league. That 4-3 victory Saturday was a great feather in the Methodists' cap. But the First Baptist team is to be counted in the race for although it has lost two games and won only one, there are some speedy players in the Baptist school and when they strike their gait, there's no telling what will happen.

MAKE THIS YOUR STORE
There's scarcely a summer need that this great store cannot supply for less money than you would pay in New York. Do you think that we would deliberately make such a statement if we thought we could not make good? Hardly.
L. Bamberger & Co.

"Make this your store." We extend this invitation to all New Jersey—to you and your neighbor—to your friends and their friends. We know what an excellent summer shopping place this is and we want those who are NOT acquainted with the Bamberger store to come and acquaint themselves with our stocks and liberal selling methods.

INCREASING.

On account of the extreme heat sending people from the City to the country, or my way. I have been compelled to add two more New York men to my Plainfield office and open up an office in New York.

A GOOD THING.

I admit I have made some miscalculations for this week, but that is on account of one of my barkers backing without cause, that is where a lawyer is a good thing. I can attend to my own business now. My other two backers had better look wise, too.

YOUR BUSINESS.

I can not see how Updike, without wearing a plug hat or an automobile to deceive the public can run such a business. But

CREDITORS PLEASE RISE.

I have a contract signed to be completed next Tuesday, 18th, after which I will be able to look you all square in the face.

EXASPERATED AUTOIST GIVES HIS CAR TO BOY.

Hammond, Ind., July 18.—Cecil Hancock, a twelve-year-old Jasper county boy, was presented with a motor car by an exasperated New Yorker, who, while motoring to Chicago, met with an accident near the farm owned by William Hancock, the boy's father. The tourist refused to give his name, but the auto license bore the number "8605-New York."

While descending a hill near the farm the New Yorker lost control of his machine and it plunged into a ditch. Young Hancock helped the occupant out of the wreck and its owner made the air blue with lurid remarks about the blankety-blank machine.

"I'll give the car away for anything to get rid of it," he said.

"Give it to me," suggested the boy.

"Take it and welcome."

He then hired the boy to drive him to the nearest railroad station, where he boarded a train for Chicago.

Albany, N. Y., July 19.—According to the new registration number George E. Shaw, of Three-Mile Bay, owned car No. 8605.

RAHWAY COMMISION RULE.

Rahway, July 19.—A meeting was held Monday night at which a government by commission league was formed. About 120 persons attended. Rev. Dr. Frank Moore, superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory, presided; former School Commissioner Henry M. Woodruff was elected chairman; Isaac Osborn Bunn, secretary, and William F. Rossell, treasurer. The name adopted was "The Commission Government Association of Rahway, N. J."

James B. Fuber explained the objects and benefits of commission government. He said Rahway would be entitled to three commissioners, one of which would hold the office of Mayor at a salary of $1,000. The other two commissioners would get $750 each.

It was decided to appoint a committee of five, one from each ward, each of whom would appoint four others, to make a house-to-house canvass for signatures. To adopt commission rule in Rahway it was stated 660 votes would be required. Petitions circulated at close of meeting were signed by fifty-three persons.

Quantities of dust lodge in coiffures and it is quite difficult to remove it except by a perfectly thorough shampooing, such as may be had at Mme. Brunelly's hair dressing parlor. Coiffures are made to order, of natural, wavy human hair, and matched so perfectly that it is impossible to detect the difference.

BUILDING AND LOAN PREMIUMS OPPOSED

The afternoon session of the New Jersey League of Building and Loan Associations in the Coleman House, Asbury Park, yesterday brought up the question whether premiums should be continued or abolished. One man strongly in favor of abolishing the premium is John G. Butterfield, of Jersey City. Edward Zusi, Newark, is another, and he said that it worked well in the West End Association in Newark.

President Joseph A. McNamee declared that it would not be long before all the building and loan associations would adopt this plan, and that when they did so building loans would increase and the number of stockholders would be much greater.

The objection to premiums seems to be that they are not fair to the investor. It has been proven that only about twenty-three out of every 100 shareholders are borrowers, and for that reason the burden of the premium is put upon them.

William G. Nelson, who spoke on insurance policies in the morning session, was of the belief that each association should work out its own method and said that as long as an association was prosperous that is all that should be taken into consideration.

The president pointed out that only ten per cent. of the population in the State were members of building and loan associations, which proved that they are not yet run on the mutual cooperative plan.

Dr. Charles Pranard, of Paris, who spoke about French associations, declared that they were unlike those in this country. He averted that it was gratifying to see in what close relation the shareholder was with the officers of the association.

President McNamee supplemented the remarks made by the doctor and said that it is the duty of the officers to see that the interests of the stockholder is looked after at all times and that he should never forget the moral obligation owed the shareholder.

The address of welcome by Mayor T. Frank Appleby was well received by the association. The Mayor spoke on the poor man's bank and showed that by conservative methods the Asbury Park Association had worked itself up into a great organization with a resource amounting to $1,700,000.

Vivian M. Lewis, State commissioner of banking and insurance, was scheduled to speak but sent a telegram announcing that he could not come.

WANT WIDER BRIDGES FOR NEW BRUNSWICK.

New Brunswick, July 19.—A delegation from the Board of Trade of this city appeared before the Board of Freeholders Monday afternoon with regard to widening the Albany street bridge. P. J. Young, A. P. Daire and Secretary F. M. Yorston comprised the committee. Mr. Young in presenting the matter said they desired to have the bridge widened so that the roadway would take in the present sidewalk on both sides of the driveway. An eight-foot sidewalk according to their idea, could be built upon braces extending out from each side of the masonwork. This would give ample room for vehicles and foot passenger traffic over both the driveway and walks, being now crowded and unsatisfactory because of the narrowness of both. The proposed widening could be done, he thought at a cost of about $15,000.

Director F. H. Hendricks said the county engineer had looked into the matter and did not think the plan feasible. It was a question whether the bridge would properly support braced extensions on the sides.

Freeholder A. J. Gebhardt, in whose territory the bridge is located, expected to have an engineer at the meeting Monday with another plan, but he failed to get there. The matter has been taken under advisement.

Interlaken Aviation School, Maybe.

Asbury Park, July 19.—A plan is on foot to start an aviation school at Interlaken on the grounds where the aviation meet was held last year. Walter Ferris, formerly manager for Glenn H. Curtiss, is negotiating with the Interlaken people for the tract. If suitable arrangements can be made, work on the hangers will begin in a few days.

Clark Mundy, of Stone street, the borough, who has been under treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital and who has now recovered from a four months' illness, will return to his old position with William L. Smalley, the butcher, at Park avenue and Fourth street.

ELIZABETH'S EXCISE CONDITIONS AIRED

There is hardly an official or citizen of prominence in Elizabeth who has not been before the Union County Grand Jury in its probe of excise conditions, it is reported. Since the jury was recalled a week ago, several persons have been put through a gruelling examination, one Polish saloonkeeper who seemed to be inconsistent in his answers, being jailed as a material witness and later released on bail.

General D. F. Collins, head of the Peter Breidt Brewery, and who is thoroughly conversant with the saloon situation in Elizabeth, was before the jury for some time Monday afternoon, and, it is reported, was asked point blank if his brewery had ever paid any funds for the purpose of being favored by the board of excise. He was also asked, it is declared, if any representatives of his concern distributed such funds, or, if they were distributed, whether he would have knowledge of such action. He denied that such was the case, and said that if it had been done he would know it.

Lawyer John J. Stamler, who is counsel for this brewery, and whose attack on Commissioner Thomas Y. Bye led to the jury's recall, was on the stand both before an dafter his employer.

It is said that he declared that the General indorsed his course in publishing a letter in which he openly charged Bye with irregular conduct, which letter brought on a suit.

Collins is said to have denied that he approved of Stamler's action, but on the contrary that he thought adversely of his decision to make public such a statement and attack. Stamler had previously been before the Grand Jury.

Former Mayor Victor Mravlag, who did his best to remedy saloon conditions while he was Mayor, was also a witness. He is understood to have told the jury that the situation needed improvement. Just what information, if any, he gave in regard to the acts of any of the commissioners has not been divulged. Mayor Alfred A. Stein was also before the body.

Patrick Whelan, the new excise inspector, and several citizens were called yesterday.

Just when the jury will finish its work is problematical. There is a rumor to the effect that it will be today. Interest is rife as to what the result of the investigation will be.

Stamler has not as yet filed an answer to the civil suit started by Bye for $25,000 damages. The latter, it is said, is determined to push the suit.

Forty Men Strike.

New Brunswick, July 19.—Forty of the sixty men employed at the plant of the New Brunswick Piano Box factory, on Burnet street, went out on strike yesterday morning because Messrs. Mullin and Wendt, proprietors of the place, refused to grant their demand for Saturday half-holidays the whole year. The men have been getting a Saturday half-holiday during the three summer months and liked it so well they demanded it as a permanent feature with full pay.

Only Three Sites Unclaimed.

Of the thirty-two pieces of property in the borough, which were advertised by the borough clerk for sale on account of unpaid taxes last year, all but three were reclaimed. One of these three places was a vacant lot which was sold at auction.

Mrs. F. A. Weber, of West Third street, has just returned from Frenchtown and Milford, where she was the guest of Mrs. Warren Simanton and Mrs. Stephen Gulick, respectively, for several weeks.

HE CHAINED HIS SON TO A HEAVY LEAD BAR.

Long Branch, July 19.—Charged with chaining his nine-year-old son Norman, to a four-foot chain and lead bar, Charles Pierce, of Dudley street, was arraigned before Recorder Arrowsmith, at city hall Monday morning. Pierce admitted the charge and was held for a hearing until Saturday. The boy was surrendered to William C. Fort, representing the New Jersey Children's Home Society at Trenton, who prosecuted the complaint.

Neighbors of Pierce testified to his cruelty. Pierce shifted the blame on the boy's stepmother, who, he declared, would let the boy out on the streets after he had ordered him to stay in the house. Pierce said that he was compelled to resort to a weight and chain to keep the boy home as he ran away whenever he got a chance.

TURTLE 141 YEARS OLD.

At Least Some Think So, For Penny of 1770 Was Found in Shell.

The largest turtle seen on the Chelsea beach, near Boston, Mass., this season was captured Monday night by Romaine Giannette, an East Boston shoemaker. When he seized it by the tail and turned it over a large copper penny dropped out of its shell. The coin was minted in 1770 and marked with the name of George III of England. Chelsea residents are divided as to whether the turtle is actually 141 years old or has been delving in Captain Kidd's pirate chests somewhere below the waters of Massachusetts Bay.

Many Take Examinations.

Woodbury, July 19.—About 100 men of all ages and political faiths presented themselves yesterday before Gardner Colby, Chief Examiner, and his assistants for the civil service examinations as election officers under the Geran act, in the academy. It resembled a school of grown-ups, which, in fact, it was. The biggest "pupil" was Arthur Y. Hall, of this city, who tips the scales at nearly 300 pounds.

People are so Careless.

Asbury Park, July 19.—The bulletin at the Casino Monday contained in addition to "lost and found" notices, one hair switch, pair of men's socks and a pair of children's sandals. Only a few days ago a set of false teeth was found on the beach and the finder wanted the artificial molars as a decoration for the bulletin board, but Patrolman William Rogers said no.

Forecasting the Weather.

Of all the scientific departments the weather bureau was started with the least amount of knowledge of its particular subject. Independent observers had gathered a small amount of disassociated facts and based conclusion as it suited them upon the facts. But meteorology was a very indefinite thing, strongly fibered with bad guesses, myths, traditions and theories. It was like the German grammar of which Mark Twain complained. For every page of rules there were forty pages of exceptions. When the weather bureau was started it was with little worth while. It had to map out a campaign of study, and there was no way of telling how long it might be before the study would permit of the laying down of rules. Every one knows that the bureau is far more efficient than it was. It is getting the hang of the weather, learning its multitudinous tricks, its coyness and treachery. It is in the nature of the case a slow affair.—Toledo Blade.

Not to Be Deceived.

"John," she asked after she had finished packing her trunk, "will you remember to water the flowers in the porch boxes every day?"

"Yes, dear. I'll see that they are properly moistened regularly."

"And the rubber plant in the dining room. You know it will have to be sprayed about three times a week."

"I'll remember it."

"I'm afraid you'll forget the canary and let the poor little thing starve."

"Don't worry about the bird, dear. I'll take good care of him."

"But I feel sure you'll forget about keeping the curtains drawn so that things won't all be faded out when I get back."

"Don't give yourself a moment's uneasiness about the curtains. I'll keep the house as dark as a tunnel."

"John, I'm not going. You have some reason for being anxious to get rid of me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Druids.

The Druids were evidently of very great antiquity, for there cannot be much doubt that it was one of their customs that Virgil had in mind when he wrote in the "Aeneid," vi, 142, that the "only means of access for a living mortal to the world of spirits was the carrying of a golden twig which grew in a dark and thick grove." The resemblance of the story to the Druidical rite is perfect. The Druids practiced their rites in dark groves. If a mistletoe was discovered growing upon an oak a priest severed it with a knife, and a festival was held under the tree at which two milk white bulls were offered as a sacrifice. This was a sacrifice to the sun god, and the mistletoe, from its pale greenish yellow tint, was regarded as a kind of vegetable gold and was accordingly looked upon as being a fit offering to the sun.—New York American.

Catching Speed.

Two wild eyed horses, wearing dilapidated harness and drawing a battered delivery wagon, stopped at the stable door.

"Just had a runaway!" panted the driver.

"Then, for heaven's sake, don't put those horses in with the other horses that will soon go out on a trip," said the head hostler. "If you do they'll run away too. They always do. Before I learned as much about horses as I know now I brought on a dozen runaways by doing that fool trick. The horses that have just been on a spree are still worked up to fever pitch, the rest of the horses catch the spirit of the devil from them, and as soon as they get out they take a header."—New York Times.

Deep Mourning.

The manager of the theater racked his brain in vain.

"We must do something," he repeated bitterly. "People will expect us to do something to show respect to the proprietor now that he is dead."

"Shall we close for the night of the funeral?" suggested the assistant stage manager.

"With this business? You're a fool, laddie, a fool. No; put the chorus in black stockings."

And it was even so.—Sporting Times.

A Virginia Dish.

In a baking dish place alternate layers of sliced apples and sliced boiled sweet potatoes, each layer sweetened and flavored with nutmeg. Add a lump of butter, pour over a little water and bake slowly until the top is nicely browned. Serve in dish in which it is baked.—National Magazine.

Friendly Candor.

"Is he a friend of yours?"

"Well, he seems to think he is. He never meets me without feeling that it is his duty to tell me something that will leave me unhappy for the rest of the day."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Loyal.

"I have no patience with Dubbins. He sneers at Velasquez."

"Well, I don't care much for foreigners myself, but if Velasquez is a friend of yours I don't blame you for getting sore."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Too Willing.

Tramp—Mister, would you give me a nickel for a meal? Pedestrian—For a glass of beer, more likely. Tramp—Wotever you says, boss; you're payin' for it.—Exchange.

"I mislaid $50 last night."

"Hard lines! Can't you think where you put it?"

"Yes. I put it on the wrong card."—Toledo Blade.

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

HELPFUL WORDS.

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?

Does it ache especially after exertion?

Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms indicate weak kidneys;

There is danger is delay.

Weak kidneys fast get weaker.

Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly,

They strengthen weak kidneys.

Read this Plainfield testimony.

Richard H. Day, 95 Grove street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Nothing has occurred to alter my high regard for Doan's Kidney Pills and I willingly give permission for the continued publication of my testimonial. What Doan's Kidney Pills did for me, they will do for other kidney sufferers. I had a dull pain across the small of my back and there was an extreme lameness in my hips. Standing for any length of time or walking any distance aggravated my trouble greatly. As the attacks grew worse instead of better, I concluded that something must be done and as I had frequently read about Doan's Kidney Pills, I finally gave them a trial. The contents of two boxes cured me."

Shooting Stars.

Astronomers estimate that about 150,000,000,000 of shooting stars reach this earth in the form of meteorites or dust every year. Of course shooting stars in reality are not stars at all; they are little cosmic particles, often weighing much less than one ounce and composed mostly of iron and carbon. Most of them travel around the sun in the same fashion that comets do, following very flattened elliptical trajectories. Sometimes it happens that the trajectory of some of these bodies cross the trajectory of our own earth. If the little meteorite and the earth get to that point at the same time they naturally collide. These planetoids are not luminous in themselves. So long as they fly through ether (which is utter nothingness) there is no friction; therefore no heat and no light. But as soon as they enter the atmosphere with which our globe is surrounded their speed is so great that the friction against the air immediately lights and volatilizes them.—New York World.

Train Your Breathing.

"If one learns to breathe properly when young he finds the benefit of it in middle and old age," said a physician.

"You will notice that when a middle aged man gets into a train he holds his breath and then grunts loudly as he sits down. This is a stupid practice. It throws a terrific strain on the heart and may even burst a blood vessel in the lungs or the brain. Many of those sudden deaths we hear of are due to holding the breath while making a violent effort. Only the trained athlete is usually free from this fault. Athlete or not, every one should practice easy and regular breathing. If it cannot be managed with closed mouth then the mouth should be opened when performing such operations as lifting a weight, running upstairs, stepping into a railway carriage, and the like. You may add years to your life by this little precaution.—London Globe.

A Heartless Father.

"I need some help with my household duties," announced a Malden woman when her husband came home the other night.

"What's the matter with our daughter?" the husband wanted to know.

"Our daughter? The idea! Why, Jim, you know she's awfully delicate, and she would die if she had to do any household work. She has her school, and"—

"And what? Her teacher's report shows that she isn't doing a bit of school work."

"But she is the star member of her basketball team, and you know she is eager to take the prize at the gymnasium contest. But that's just like a man—wanting a delicate girl to engage in rough, hard labor. Be ashamed of yourself, Jim Jenkins! You have no feeling."—Boston Traveler.

Modern "Dew Ponds."

The ancient "dew ponds" of England have their modern counterparts on the rock of Gibraltar, where drinking water is obtained by the condensation of the abundant dew in especially prepared basins. The primitive process consists in making a hollow in the ground and filling the bottom with dry straw, over which is placed a layer of clay. On a clear night the clay cools very rapidly, and the dew is condensed into water in the basin. The pond is improved by putting a layer of asphalt or portland cement under the straw. At Gibraltar the present practice is to use wood instead of straw and sheet iron instead of clay.

Electric Centipedes.

Least attractive among the insects which give light are the so called "electric centipedes," black crawlers with many legs which have been likened to serpents' skeletons in miniature. They move in a snakelike fashion, forward or backward, leaving behind them a bright track of phosphoric light. However, they are most accustomed to appear in the daytime, when the illumination they afford is not visible.—London Times.

Made the Cannon Balls Fit.

The first battle of the war of 1812 was fought at Sacketts Harbor, July 9, 1812, and consisted of an attack made upon the village. The inhabitants had but one gun of sufficient size and strength to inflict damage, a thirty-two pounder, for which they had no shot. This difficulty was overcome by the patriotism of the housewives, who tore up carpets from the floors and with strips wound the small balls to fit the cannon.

The Retort Caustic.

Artist's Friend (patronizingly)—I think those thistles in your foreground are superbly realistic, old chap! 'Pon my word, they actually seem to be nodding in the breeze, don't you know!" Ungrateful Artist—Yes. I have had one or two people tell me they would almost deceive an ass!"

The Greatest Social Force.

The middle classes are the preponderant social force of today in republics as well as in monarchies, in Europe as in America. Everything everywhere subordinated to the necessity of satisfying them as speedily and as thoroughly as possible.—Ferrero in Paris Figaro.

Two of a Kind.

Polite Neighbor—Everybody says your husband is such a wide awake man, Mrs. Jobbles. Mrs. Jobbles (with a sigh)—Yes, and the baby takes after him!

There is no utter failure in trying to do what is good.

'PRINTER'S DEVIL' AN IMP SAYS PREACHER

Baltimore, Md., July 19.—As every printer knows there is in every shop a youth known as the printer's "Devil," but now, according to the Rev. Watson Case, who preached in the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday, the printer's "Devil" may, after all be only an imp and the printer himself be the real, genuine Devil, the great evil genius presiding over the caldrons and red hot highways of Gehenna.

Mr. Case is very orthodox and he firmly believes that Satan does exist. He does not know just where Satan has his earthly headquarters for the entrapping of human souls, but he believes that there is a chance that Satan is a printer. He said as much Sunday. He did not say whether the Printer Satan was a linotype operator or a case man.

"Don't be fooled," he said, "into the belief that the Devil does not exist.

"He does exist. Heathen nations from time unknown have believed in and actual spirit of evil, and in some places we know their belief has even taken the form of devil worshipers. I know not where the abode of this devil that haunts men's footsteps may be—perhaps it is in some remote star, perhaps in the innermost recesses of our earth. For all I know, he may have telephone and telegraph wires or a mailing system at his command and I am very sure he runs many of the printing presses of the world.

"He may have an intellect a thousand times as great as Daniel Webster's. He may be a scientist, for all I know. But I know that he is abroad in whatever land man inhabits, and warfare must be constantly waged against him."

Charles Dunn, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Dunn, of South avenue, is seriously ill at the home of his parents with inflammatory rheumatism.

382 NEW STATUES IN STATE LAW BOOKS

Out of the great mass of bills and joint resolutions which was piled upon Governor Wilson at the last session of the Legislature, he has by his approval of 382 bills put that number of laws on the statute books for 1911. Besides the bills approved the Governor approved 8 joint resolutions and vetoed 48 bills. Last year Governor Fort approved 308 bills and 2 joint resolutions.

As all of the proofs of the laws passed and approved have been read except the annual appropriation bill, it is likely that the session laws will be in shape for delivery within the next ten days.

Miss Frances Newell, of West Seventh street, and Miss Claire Britton, of East Front street, have returned home from Norwalk, Conn., where they visited friends.

CORONATION PAGEANT AT PROCTOR'S TODAY

Plainfield people will have the opportunity to review the Coronation Pageant at a trifling cost, although the arrangements for its reproduction have been made at a big expense to Proctor & Sanderson. The brilliant historic spectacle will be shown in motion pictures, which have just arrived from England, at Proctor's theatre at every performance for three days beginning this afternoon.

The pictures were taken as King George V and Queen Mary were being escorted to Westminster Abbey, where the coronation service, including the crowning of King of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Possessions Beyond the Seas took place. Not only England's great men and women, including the nobility, the parliament, the ministry and other officers of the state and church are shown vividly but the crown princes and special ambassadors, the government heads of the Possessions, and the troops from almost every country in the world are to be seen.

There are also vivid pictures of the scene at Buckingham palace taken on the return of the royal party from the abbey and of the second day's parade when the lord mayor of London and the mayors of the boroughs did homage to the newly crowned ruler.

Other features of the bill for the week are the vaudeville numbers including "Gus Edwards' Telephone Girls," a bevy of switchboard beauties, who dazzle all the male receivers, and special scenery and special music; De Dio's European circus, in which clever ponies, wonderfully trained dogs and amusing monkeys, cutting up shines most of the time much to the delight of the audience; Rossner and Hillman, Protean players in their remarkable impersonations, "Plays and Players, Past and Present;" Marron and Heins, and a two-man minstrel show.

FIVE SECRETARIES TO BOOM BOY SCOUTS

The Executive committee of the Boy Scouts of America is planning to put five traveling secretaries in the field this fall. These men who have shown ability in forming local councils of the scout organization and skill in handling boys will be distributed throughout the country. Their work will comprise supervision of the local organizations and scout activities and also the extension of the scout movement.

They will visit different cities and towns studying the scout councils and the work of the boys. They will help in the up-building of the local Council and in strengthening it in the community by bringing in men of different religious faiths. They will study the methods of the Scout Masters and give them instructions and suggestions, where necessary. They will take special interest in the boys themselves outlining scout stunts for them and giving them some helpful talks. They will be the representatives of the National Council in the field and will be supposed to exercise corrective measures where untoward influences seem to be injuring the Scout movement.

JERSEY CITY REJECTS DR. WILSON'S PANACEA

At a special election in Jersey City yesterday the voters rejected the commission form of government as provided for in the Walsh act by a majority of 1,309. The vote was 11,672 for and 12,981 against adoption. The election in Passaic has been put off one week.

Jersey City is the fourth city in New Jersey to turn down Governor Woodrow Wilson's commission plan, following the example of Bayonne, Hoboken and New Brunswick. The vote has been close. Trenton, which has adopted the plan, held its first election under it yesterday.

By the terms of the act it was necessary for the advocates of the plan in Jersey City to poll at least 11,769 votes, or 30 per cent. of the total number cast for members of assembly in the city at the 1911 election, even though there had been a majority for adoption. The Republican seventh, eighth and ninth wards gave majorities for commision government. The Democratic downtown wards went very heavily against it.

The bulk of the electioneering against the commission plan was done by the Democratic organization followers of the late Robert Davis, under the leadership of Sheriff James J. Kelly and his fellow-advisors in the "Big Six," which recently dwindled down to the "Big Five." They were on the job from 6 in the morning until the polls closed at 7 p. m. They were assisted by many of the anti-organization men who now pay their allegiance to Mayor H. Otto Wittpen, the mayor, however, worked for and voted for commission government.

LONG OUT OF WORK HE HANGS HIMSELF.

Despondent because of ill health, coupled with the fact that he was unable to get work to support his large family, James Guncer, fifty years old, committed suicide at his home in Second street Passaic during Monday night. Yesterday morning his wife missed him, and after searching the house found him hanging in the bathroom. One end of a rope was fastened to a pipe and the other end was about his neck. He had been hanging there several hours, according to the physician who examined the body.

Guncer was ill recently and had to quit work. When he got a little stronger he failed to find employment. He seemed downcast Monday night but his family tried to cheer him up. He waited until his eight children and wife were in bed and asleep and then he got up and went to the bathroom, where he ended his life.

Miss Palma Martinsen, of this city, will leave tomorrow on the Steamship Oscar II. of the Scandinavian-American Line, for Esberg, Sweden, having purchased her tickets for passage through Mulford Estil's agency.

A DEFAMATION SUIT. AGAINST A NEIGHBOR.

James Devinney, of Beverly, has instituted suit for $5,000 charging defamation of character against his neighbor, Robert L. McGuigan, of the same place. The case has grown out of the mysterious death of Robert, the fourteen-year-old son of McGuigan, who was found dead on the steps of his father's home last September with a strap tied around his neck. A coroner's jury drawn to hear the case declared it one of murder, while the county authorities declared it one of suicide.

Devinney and McGuigan were good friends until about two months ago. Then rumors became rampant that McGuigan was accusing Devinney of murdering his son. Devinney engaged an attorney to institute a suit against his alleged accuser, and as a result a writ was served yesterday.

IT'S CAMP WILSON

Co K Leaves Saturday For Sea Girt For a Week of Real Hard Work.

GEN. COLLINS IN COMMAND.

Program as Contained in General Orders for the Week Issued From Second Brigade Headquarters.

Next Saturday is the day, Sea Girt is the place and Company K of the Second Infantry, N. G. N. J. are the boys. It's the time for the summer camp, and every private in the ranks of the local company is as eager to go as a youngster looking forward to a picnic. Camp Wilson, as it will be known this year, will be formally inaugurated next Saturday, when the Second Brigade detrains at Sea Girt, marches out onto the broad expanse of the magnificent meadow, which stretches like a piece of green velvet from the railroad tracks to the white targets behind the mounds along the beach, and pitches its tents. General Dennis F. Collins will be in senior command of the camp. Col. Robert L. Patterson has been appointed to the department staff.

This week will be one of busy preparation. The encampment is to be conducted along thoroughly military lines and the men have a strenuous tour of duty ahead of them. Most of the time will be devoted to practical and theoretical instruction, and there will be few opportunities to indulge in social activities. A feature of this year's camp will be a consolidated field hospital conducted in accordance with regulations of the regular establishment. The War Department is sending to Sea Girt all the necessary equipment for a brigade hospital.

During the second week of camp, the First Brigade and First and Fifth Regiments, under General E. W. Hines, will occupy the Sea Girt grounds, and the third week will see the Fourth Regiment, First and Second Troops and Battery B, under canvass. The First Troop comes from Newark, the Second from Red Bank and Battery B from Camden. All will be commanded by Colonel Henry H. Brankerhoff. The Camden battery will march all the way to camp, in order to taste the glories of a soldier's life. Four days will be taken to make the trip.

Following is the program for the week as contained in the general orders issued from Second Brigade headquarters:

Saturday, July 22—Opening of camp, parade Third Infantry, followed by guard mount.

Sunday, July 23—No exercises; divine service, Governor's cottage, 11 a. m.; review of entire command.

Monday, July 24—Forenoon—Company and battalion drill; close order. Afternoon—Officers' tactical ride and walk, preparation and study of exercise for following day.

Tuesday, July 25—Forenoon—Company exercise in advance, rear and flank guards and patrols, under supervision of battalion commanders. At close of exercises troops will be marched to camp by non-commissioned officers, and officers discuss exercises on the ground. Afternoon—Battalion drill, close order, one hour, followed by officers' tactical ride and walk and study of exercises for following day.

ASKS $10,000 MORE FOR REPAIR OF ROADS

The County Road Committee of the Board of Freeholders Tuesday went to Trenton for the purpose of asking the State Road Commissioner for an additional $10,000 to extend the present repair work along Rahway avenue, Elizabeth. The matter of having the county take back that portion of Newark avenue, Elizabeth, which was given over to the city some eight or nine years ago was also placed before the commissioner. He promised to take both propositions under advisement.

The county authorities are desirious of regaining possession of Newark avenue so that it may be paved with granite blocks upon a concrete foundation.

The street at present is in bad condition along the section belonging to the city, and as the thoroughfare is an important one, connecting as it does the two cities, it is the sentiment of the County Road Committee that it should be put in first-class condition as soon as possible.

ROUTINE MATTERS OF BORO COUNCIL

Routine business, held over from the last regular session was transacted at the special meeting of the North Plainfield Council last night. After considerable discussion on the part of Mayor Newton B. Smalley and Councilman Woolston, the claim of $1,100 made by Mobus & Burke for the macadamizing of Clinton avenue from Greenbrook to Greenbrook road was ordered paid on a resolution affered by Councilman Alexander Milne.

Councilman Woolston thought that $1.10 per foot was too much for the paving of the street but the Mayor explained that the cost of hauling the stone and the extra fine quality of the work made the macadamizing expensive.

A permit was granted to Percy S. Dayton for an addition to his barn on Rockview avenue, the new part to be one story high and 15 by 24 feet.

After the meeting Harry C. Vanemburgh, borough engineer, presented his plans for the widening of Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnson's drive to the councilmen for consideration. The proposed work was shown satisfactorily on the maps to the borough fathers who will meet, Friday, July 28, to hear any objections to the widening of the street from property owners. The ordinance for the widening will come up for its third reading at the August meeting of the Council.

PREFERS PLAINFIELD TO MOSCOW, RUSSIA

Herbert E. Parker, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., has just declined a call to the office of general secretary in the association at Moscow, Russia. The offer was made to Mr. Parker last week.

The invitation, which was given the Plainfield secretary, is a great honor to him as the Moscow association is one of the two branches of the Y. M. C. A. in Russia. To the secretary of that association an opportunity would be offered to work with the Russian imperial family and the church in carrying out the ideals of the Y. M. C. A., which is heartily endorsed by the Czar and his family. A sum of $50,000 for a new building in Moscow has been subscribed already and the success of the work in that city is assured.

The call to this work came from Franklin Gaylord, secretary of the Russian National committee. After due consideration, Mr. Parker refused the offer. He said that he enjoyed the work in this city and that while he would like to enter into the larger field at Moscow, he did not think it possible on account of his family, whom he would not like to take to that country.

Eric Moraller, a former Plainfielder, is now the physical director in the association at St. Petersburg, having been there for several years. Mr. Parker has been engaged in the work in this city for the past four years and has won an enviable reputation through his work in uplifting civic and social conditions here.

Tigers Eat Up Giants.

The North Plainfield Tigers defeated the North Plainfield Giants yesterday afternoon by the score of 16 to 2. The battery for the Tigers were L. Stites and W. Royle, and for the Giants, H. Maurey, W. Ray and J. Ready. The umpire was T. Staggard.

PRIDEVILLE HAPPY

Protest Made Against Granting DeMott a Bldg. Permit Heeded by Council.

SOME SHARP TALK WAS HEARD.

Residents of Neighborhood Talk Very Plainly and Mr. DeMott Has Something to Say—Mayor Smalley Gives Advice.

"If you try to violate the borough ordinance regarding the erection of unsafe dwelling Louses, you will only be fooling yourself, Mr. DeMott," said Mayor Newton B. Smalley after the Borough Council had unanimously refused to grant him a permit at its special meeting last night. And Mr. DeMott started to tell the borough fathers what he thought of them but Councilman Alexander Milne moved that the meeting be adjourned.

Sixty of the residents of "Prideville," better known as "Bull Frog City," were on hand to protest against the granting of a building permit to Mr. DeMott, who, they claimed, cared not for looks nor safety and was trying to build a shack fit only for animals in the vicinity of their comfortable, neat homes. The audience was a spirited and cosmopolitan one, numbering among its members such a notable as Colonel Perry, the Mayor of "Bull Frog City." But these citizens were there for a purpose and they let the governing body know that they were going to stand up for their rights to the very end.

Long before 8 o'clock the throng of Pridevilleites began to arrive at the firehouse and one jovial pedestrian upon seeing the unusual crowd asked where the fire had been. After the Council had disposed of its routine business, a hush fell over the officials and residents of Prideville as Mayor Smalley called for the reading of applications for permits. Councilman J. J. Stahl read the specifications on Mr. DeMott's application. It called for three dwelling houses on Jefferson avenue, each to be thirty-seven feet wide by twenty-one feet deep and two and a half stories high. There were to be ten rooms in the proposed buildings and they were to be separated by a space of sixty-five feet of Heaven's pure air. At the end of the petition, Mr. DeMott added the epitaph that if the Council would grant his request, he would paint and finish up his other houses and clear the dump, which is located nearby.

After the application was read, the Mayor gave Mr. DeMott a chance to defend himself and he declared that "the voice of the people should rule and that everyone should have his rights." He endeavored to explain the situation that he was obliged to face in order to bring any return from his property in that vicinity and that he intended to put up first class houses, which would be the pride of Prideville.

William Maurix, of Jefferson avenue, thought otherwise and expressed himself emphatically against Mr. DeMott. Mr. Maurix claimed that such alleged shacks as Mr. DeMott would erect were unfit for cattle and were a danger to the health of the community. Augustus Feiring declared that these houses should be thrown over the second mountain and then burned up. Herman Klinsman was sure that there would be no pride left in Prideville if the Council granted the permit and that there would be no future for that section of the borough if such action were taken. He said that the class of tenants in Mr. DeMott's house was of the most undesirable sort and were a nuisance to the residents of that community. Larry Banner quite agreed with Mr. Klinsman.

After the citizens had had their say, Councilman Stahl suggested that the question be laid over until another meeting. Councilman L. B. Woolston stated that he was sorry that Mr. Stahl would not take a stand in the matter and heartily opposed the granting of the permit.

Mayor Smalley expressed his views very plainly. He said that the Council should take a stand now and then to quelch forever any applications for buildings in the borough which would not be of the best sort. He said that the residential sections of North Plainfield should be raised to a higher plane and that action should certainly be taken against any attempts to lower the standard of homes in the borough. In closing his remarks, the Mayor warned the councilmen against the granting of such permits and urged that an example for the future be set once for all.

Councilman Stahl then offered a resolution for the refusal of a permit to Mr. DeMott and every councilman voted for it. All the borough fathers were present except B. R. Waldron.

THIS SUMMER GARDEN IS AN INVITING PLACE

The finishing touches put on the summer garden at the rear of the Hotel Waldorf, on East Front street, have made it one of the most delightful and inviting spots in this city. The scenic effect is enhanced by the natural surroundings consisting of fine old widespreading maples.

Special attention has been given to having the various articles of furniture and lights arranged to suit the patrons and harmonize with the general scheme and purpose for which the garden is intended. Roomy, comfortable, rustic benches and chairs are placed here and there and large electric fans provide cooling breezes. On every place the eye rests it is greeted with a nice blending of colors most restful. Henry Windham, the proprietor, is solicitude itself in seeing that the wants of his customers are supplied with what they crave.

The addition to the elevated part of the large dining room has also been completed, giving a seating space of 200. This was necessary owing to the increased business.

CHARLES L. TURRILL WEDS MRS. HOHGRAEFE

Charles Lamb Turrill, son of Mrs. J. E. Turrill, formerly of Grove street, but now of Douglass, Mass., and Mrs. Elizabeth Freddie Hohgraefe, formerly of Germany but recently living with her mother at Allendale, were married yesterday at the Ascension Memorial church, New York, by the rector, Rev. John Floyd Steen. Only the members of the two families witnessed the ceremony. The couple motored to Plainfield last night, stopping with the groom's mother, and went to Allendale today. Tomorrow they will go to Boston, and then to Douglass, Mass., where they will reside.

The bride has lived the greater part of her life in Germany, where her first husband, who died about five years ago, was an attache of the Imperial Court. Mr. Turrill met his bride while she was on a visit to this country and later, while abroad, he visited her at her home in Germany. She is an accomplished young woman and has made many friends since coming to America.

Mr. Turrill, with the exception of about five years that he lived in New York, resided in Plainfield all his life. For many years he held an excellent position of responsibility with Brown Brothers, bankers, in Wall street, New York. He had considerable trouble with his eyes from constant inside work and upon the advice of his physician gave up that position and with a friend engaged in the chicken business at Douglass, where they conduct a large chicken farm with great success.

BOOM WOODHOUSE FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Friends of Robert H. Woodhouse, of this city, are urging him to become a candidate for the Assembly nomination to succeed Calvin E. Brodhead, also of this city, who is prominently mentioned as a candidate to succeed State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in the upper branch of the State Legislature. Mr. Woodhouse has been actively identified with local political affairs since coming to Plainfield and his friends believe that he would have no trouble in being elected.

Mr. Woodhouse, it is claimed, has an intimate knowledge of public affairs and would make a good legislator. He is engaged in business here being a member of the firm of Woodhouse-Lough Machinery Company and is also the representative of the DeTamble automobile in this section of the State.

Thirty-five Delinquets.

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, is preparing the list of properties which will be sold for unpaid taxes this year. This list will be advertised Tuesday of next week, there being thirty sites on the roll.

Bicycist Fined $1.00.

Thomas Duffy, of Norwood avenue, was fined one dollar in the borough court this morning for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk Tuesday. He was arrested by Marshal Kiernan and told to appear this morning.

Grand Jury Adjourns.

The Union County Grand Jury, which had been investigating the excise matter at Elizabeth for a week back, suddenly adjourned at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until Monday, September 12.

CANDIDATE'S IDEA

Carlton B. Pierce Makes a Statement as to Grade Crossing Abolition.

HE REVIEWS THE SITUATION.

The Conditions In Other States Are Outlined By Cranford Citizen Who Aspires to the G. O. P. Senatorial Nomination.

Former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, who recently announced his candidacy for the State Senate upon a platform including the abolition of grade crossings, today gave out a statement in the matter. Mr. Pierce says:

"In view of the public interest in the grade crossing question, I have been asked to make a brief statement giving the existing situation, and the legislation I would propose to correct it. The field is open in New Jersey, and this makes it desirable that a solution be reached, based upon principle.

"It is of interest first, to consider the situation in other states:

"Connecticut—Each railroad is required each year to abolish, at its own expense, one crossing for every sixty miles of road owned. The law was passed in 1889, and under it the roads are gradually eliminating their crossings, proceeding at the rate of about sixteen a year.

"Massachusetts—The railroad pays 65%, the municipality not more than 10%, and the state the balance. Of the state's portion, 15% may be imposed upon a participating street railway.

"Vermont—Railroad pays not less than 65%, the municipality not more than 10%, and the state not more than 25%. If the percentages apportioned the state or municipality are less than the possible maximum, the railroad pays the difference, in addition to its 65%.

"New York—Has a complicated schedule depending upon the special circumstances, ranging from payment of the entire expense by the railroad, to payment of one-half by the railroad and the remainder by the state. The usual rule, however, is one-half by the railroad, one-quarter by the state, and one-quarter by the municipality.

"Wisconsin—No statutory percentage or limitation. The expense in each case is apportioned as the equities of the case warrant.

"New Jersey—No statute upon the subject, except to permit contracts between railroad and municipality. In practice, while various sharing contracts have been made, the bulk of the work has been done at railroad expense. I am advised for instance, the pending offer of the Pennsylvania to elevate its tracks at Rahway, is upon the basis that the railroad shall pay the entire expense, including property damages.

"Position of the Courts—While the Legislatures of the various states have thus been weighing equities and benefits, and seeking a schedule of apportionment upon that basis, the courts have gradually been solving the problem upon a totally different theory.

"In successive decisions, the United States Supreme Court has declared the principle, that an affirmative duty rests upon the railroad to conduct its business safely; and that in the enforcement of this duty, the state through its police power, either directly or through a commission or municipality, may order a road to eliminate a crossing as a menace to public safety.

"In the Bristol case, 151 U. S. 556, the court sustained an order, made by the railroad commission under the Connecticut grade crossing act, directing the railroad to eliminate a crossing at Bristol. The railroad contended unsuccessfully that the order was in derogation of its rights under State and Federal Constitutions.

"In the Duluth case, 208 U. S. 583, decided in 1908, where the city had ordered a road to repair an overhead bridge, the railroad defended both on the constitutional ground, and the further ground of a contract made with the city twelve years before, by which the city agreed to keep the bridge in repair. The court swept both defenses aside, holding as to the contract, that it was against public policy and void, the city having no authority to contract away its governmental duty to require the railroad to protect its crossings.

"In the Minneapolis case, 98 Minn. 380, affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court in 1909 (214 U. S. 497), the court took the final step of sustaining an order made by the city directing a railroad to erect a bridge, over a street laid out after the railroad was built.

"These decisions, and others of similar import, completely establish the proposition that the duty rests

MR. ARENS SCORES STREET COMMITTEE

Residents of Rahway road, who for the past two and a half years have been trying to have that thoroughfare improved, are rather indignant over some recent work on the road. Sigfried Arens, who with his mother, Mrs. Otto Arens, own over a thousand feet frontage on Rahway road, in speaking of the matter today, said:

"The property-owners on Rahway road are delighted with the fine way the street committee, at last, has kept its promise in repairing that thoroughfare. It has taken crushed stone from a culvert on Watchung avenue and dumped it on Rahway road, not even covering the stone with dirt. This is the extent of the repairs after more than two years' work. In discussing the matter with Street Commissioner Gavett today I was informed that Councilman F. E. Mygatt intends putting some Tarvia on the road, but when this will be done no one seems to know. We pay taxes and expect to get some improvements, but all we get is a promise."

STATE BOARD UPHOLDS PISCATAWAY ASSESSOR

The State Board of Taxation has rendered a decision on the appeal made by Levering & Garrigues, of Dunellen, from an assessment made by the assessor of Piscataway Township on the ground that is was assessed on goods in transit. The Township assessor is upheld as is the Middlesex County Board of Taxation to whom the matter was carried. It is important inasmuch as it establishes a preceedent on the taxing of goods in transit and will give Piscataway Township an additional $100,000 valuation.

The goods in question were purchased in Bethlehem and billed to North River with a privilede of stop over at Dunellen at the Levering & Garrigues works. There the raw material was milled and otherwise prepared according to plans of the building in which it was to be used, after which it was reloaded and forwarded to the point of destination. The company admitted that assessment was not made on the goods in Pennsylvania nor in New York and W. A. Codington, representing the Township, after raising this point declared that the material in question represented a part of the company's assets and should be taxed accordingly. Carlos C. Gallup and Lindabury, Depue and Faulks were the counsel for Levering & Garrigues.

SAMUEL H. KEEFER DIES OF APPENDICITIS

Samuel Hine Keefer, aged 30 years, of 968 West Sixth street, died at Muhlenberg Hospital at 9:30 o'clock last night, where at noon yesterday he was operated upon for appendicitis. Mr. Keefer had been suffering with the disease for several days before he knew what it was. On Tuesday a physician was called in and he at once decided that Mr. Keefer had a severe attack of appendicitis. When the operation was performed, the physicians discovered that the disease had reached an advanced stage and there was practically no hope for recovery.

Mr. Keefer was a graduate of Stevens Institute and since leaving college had been in the employ of the Niles, Bement, Pond Company, as a student of the enginering department. He was at first employed as a student apprentice and quickly developed special talent for the work. He was for sometime employed at the Pratt-Whitney plant of the company in Hartford, Conn., and was transferred to the Pond Machine Tool Works, this city, three years ago. Mr. Keefer was of an inventive turn of mind and about two years ago invented an electric motor control for reversing motors, which has proved of the greatest value for the work for which it was intended. Mr. Keefer made many friends here through his quiet and courteous manner and all deeply regret his untimely death. He is survived by a mother, who lives in Worcester, Ohio; a wife and one child.

The funeral services will be held at the home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter, pastor of the Park Presbyterian church, Newark. The burial will be in Fairmount cemetery, Newark.

$200,000 COLLEGE

Contracts Are Signed For the Re-Building of Mt. St. Mary Institution.

DESCRIPTION OF STRUCTURE.

Main Section to Be Four Stories High—Three Story Addition to Be Used For Boys—To Be Completed In Eight Months.

The contracts for the mason and carpenter work in rebuilding Mt. St. Mary College on the Watchung Mountains, near this city, was signed yesterday at Trenton by Mother Gabriel, head of the order, under the direction of Bishop McFaul.

The work will be done by John Abbott, of this city, and will cost $177,080. This together with other smaller contracts which are still to be given will make the total cost of rebuilding the college about $200,000.

The main section of the building will be four stories high, and will be erected on the site on which the old college stood. This building will be joined by a new three-story structure which will be used for boys.

The old college building was burned last March, leaving only some of the walls standing. Since that time the school has been conducted in different houses which were hired for the purpose. There are about 100 girl students at the school.

The new plans provide for young boys as well.

W. A. Boring, the same architect who modeled the old building, has charge of the new one. It is expected that the building will be ready within eight months. Another wing will probably be added to the structure within a short time.

BAPTIST EXCURSION TO ASBURY PARK TODAY.

Under threatening skies, fourteen coaches pulled out of the North Avenue Station this morning, well filled with excursionists of the Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches, bound for Asbury Park on the annual excursion of the Sunday-schools of these churches. Many glances were cast at the low hanging clouds and then the weather prediction made in the morning papers was eagerly read. Next, the person nearest was queried as to the opinion formed on the weather and that time honored joke about the Baptists always having rain just naturally followed. None fortunately remained home by reason of it, however, and a spirit of optimism was noticeably dominant in the handkerchief waves of adieu as the train moved away and the skies cleared.

NETTED FIFTY DOLLARS AT ICE CREAM FESTIVAL.

The Young Ladies' Society of the German Lutheran church held an ice cream, cake and fancy work social last night on the lawn at the home of the Misses Agnes and Olga Ruschke, of West Sixth street. The affair was largely attended and $50 was realized. The Misses Ruschke arranged the social and it was due to their efforts that it proved to be so enjoyable and profitable. They were assisted by the Misses Elsie and Lena Grotman at the fancy work table; Miss Anna Moldenke, at the candy table; Miss Hedwig Grotman, at the ice cream table, and Sophie Faber, at the cake table. The lawn was tastefully decorated with streamers and Chinese lanterns.

TWO ARE MENTIONED FOR COMMON COUNCIL.

Cornelius vanHerwerden, of South avenue, and Henry L. Hall, of Woodland avenue, are being boomed by their friends for the Republican nomination in the Second ward for ward councilmen. Mr. Hall has stated, his friends say, that if the nomination is tendered him he will not decline. Friends of Mr. vanHerwerden say the same of their choice. The latter is the father of former Councilman Jan vanHerwerden, at present a banker at Moorestown, N. J.

Wayside Park Meeting.

The local corps of the Salvation Army will continue its special series of meetings at Wayside Park tomorrow evening. Captain Lena Jackson, who has been helping in these meetings, with her vocal solos and at the piano, will say farewell as she proceeds to her new appointment at Albany, N. Y. A special speaker from Somerville will deliver the address and give some vocal solos. A large congregation was present last Sunday evening, when the Rev. C. J. Greenwood, of Westfield, delivered a strong gospel sermon.

AUTO RUNS BACKWARD DOWN HILL AND BURNS.

Flemington, July 20.—Marcus Goodman and family, of Clinton, escaped almost unhurt in an automobile accident in which their car was burned near Flemington Tuesday night.

While ascending a fairly steep hill the chauffeur attempted to change gears. The machine stopped, then started down the hill backward. The driver lost control of the car, which ran into the ditch and turned completely over.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, their two children and the chauffeur were thrown from the machine. All escaped injury except Mr. Goodman, who was bruised about the side.

Report has it that Clifford Randolph, the former star twirler on the old Clinton Avenue team will pitch for High Bridge at Bound Brook Saturday. Clif is in town now, having returned from Haverhill, Mass., two days ago, and he is going to High Bridge tomorrow to talk with the manager of that team. The supposition is that he will twirl if there is an agreement between the two. Randolph has been doing box work for the Haverhill team of the New England League.

Manager Dorflinger will present practically the same lineup in the game against Scotch Plains in this city Saturday. Joe Harter will undoubtedly be back on the team again, an engagement out of town keeping him away last Saturday. George will undoubtedly be at short stop with Brit Martin on the keystone sack.

Hope, who is twirling for the Westfield team this season, was a mainstay in the box for Bliss' New Brunswick's last year.

Honus Wagner was the first National leaguer to reach the century mark in the number of hits for the season. The big Dutchman slammed out four hits Tuesday, thus bringing his total up to 101.

In the First Baptist-Trinity Reformed game in the Sunday-school League last Saturday, two old high school stars faced one another in the pitching department. Carlton Smith, who used to twirl for the North Plainfield High School team, did the flinging for the Baptist aggregation while Harry VanZandt, for three years the "Matty" of the Plainfield High School, was on the slab for the Trinity church nine. Both pitched good games but Smith had the better support and won out.

Captain Bert Trotter is to be complimented upon the improvement of his First Baptist team for the way in which the players on that nine have blossomed forth of late is almost wonderful. Trotter has been working hard and keeping his men at stiff practice during the week. Evidently the Baptists are going to make a long fight for that championship.

M'KEON NAMES PLAYERS FOR NEW NEW BRUNSWICK TEAM.

Jimmy McKeon's newly organized New Brunswicks will make their bow on Sunday, when they will face the Long Branch team, composed of some of Bliss' New Brunswicks. Manager McKeon had hopes of getting the Cuban Stars for the opening attraction. This team had already been booked, however, and they will appear in New Brunswick the following Sunday.

McKeon's team will lineup as follows:

BIG LEAGUE CLUBS AFTER JACK MARTIN

Both the Cincinnati and Chicago National League teams have opened up negotiations with Hal Chase, manager of the Yankees, for the purchase of Jack Martin, the local "phenom," who is now with the Richmond team of the Virginia League.

His sensational playing with that team has attracted the attention of the big league scouts. Martin signed with Hal Chase, who farmed him out to Richmond. Manager Chase may decide to keep him himself, and turn down the offers of Cincinnati and Chicago.

NEW UMPIRE CHOSEN FOR CANTRAL LEAGUE

The seven applications for the umpire's appointment in the Central New Jersey League were considered by the officials of that organization at their meeting in the Queen City Hotel last night. M. J. Stockdale, of Elizabethport, was chosen to take the place of Frank Cox, of New Brunswick, who resigned his position recently on account of the pressure of other business. James Cunningham, of Brooklyn, was appointed to the position of substitute umpire.

Mr. Stockdale comes with a good reputation, having officiated in many games in and about Elizabeth and has always given satisfaction. The new "ump" was at one time a ball player himself and can see things from the player's standpoint.

Westfield and High Bridge were not represented at the meeting last night, the latter management having received a blowout on his automobile just outside of High Bridge. On account of the absence of these two managers, the schedule for umpires was not orranged as it had been expected.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Platt Adams, the former first baseman on the local Y. M. C. A. nine, and one of the largest point gatherers for the New Yrk A. C., will not compete for the all round title. "The strain would be too much on me, and I wish to compete in the senior championships," is the answer Platt gave to the query as to his reason for not competing. Platt was favored by the experts for the title and his decision to remain out of the running will be received with regret by his large host of followers.

It is not at all improbable that Harry Gissing, on his return from Europe, will enter the ranks of the New York A. C. again. The crack half-miler seems to have an agreement to join the folds of the winged foot club on his return.

"Mel" Sheppard showed surprising speed for a middle-distance man in the 2:30 last Sunday at the Melrose A. C. games. Jim Rosenberger covered the distance in record-breaking time, and the "peerless one" was only a few yards behind "Rosie."

Number of influential negroes in New York have conceived the plan of organizing an athletic association of their own. It will be known as the Vulcan Athletic Association and already has 220 enrolled members. The club will shortly apply to the Metropolitan Association for membership in the A. A. U.

While Platt Adams was corraling the prizes at the Woodlebridge games last Saturday, his younger brother, Ben, who played second base on the local Y. M. C. A. team last year, won a handsome gold watch at the games of the Bronx Church House. The younger Adams captured first place in the standing two hops and a jump, beating out for the first time such performers as Healy and Ahearn. Ben made a jump of 31 feet 2 inches.

Martin Sheridan, all-round champion, will compete in the weight events today in the games of the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer at Boston. Sheridan will try and break the world's record for the discus throwing from an eight-foot circle.

"Mel" Sheppard will attempt to shatter the mile record at the United Scottish Clans games which will be held at Springfield, Mass., on August 19. Sparrow Robertson, who is an authority on tracks, says the Springfield track is lightning fast and if Sheppard is capable of lowering the present figures, he can surely turn the trick on that track.

WIDOW MUST PAY FUNERAL EXPENSE

A judgment for $191.55 was given in the District Court this morning by Judge William Newcorn in favor of August Schmidt, an Elizabeth undertaker, against Mrs. Eleanor Mackey, also of that city. W. L. Hetfield, Jr., represented Mr. Schmidt and George Schmidt, of Elizabeth.

The suit was brought by the undertaker against the widow for the funeral expenses of her husband who died last February. He was in poor health for a long time and the last month of his life lived with his parents. His death occurred at their home and all arrangements for the funeral were made by them. He was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and the $500 death benefit was in part paid to the parents. The portion received by the widow, she alleged, was used in paying the debts her husband's illness had caused.

In rendering decision Judge Newcorn said that he was sorry to have to give judgment against the widow and told the members of her husband's family present that they should come to her assistance in settling the bill.

BATTLE WITH BULLDOG.

Long Branch, July 20.—While trying to protect his seventeen-year-old daughter from the attack of his bulldog, Frederick Rurham, of this place, was seriously bitten by the animal Tuesday.

Miss Durham was playing with the dog when it turned on her and sank its teeth in the back of her dress. With the animal clinging to her the girl ran screaming to her father, who was in another room. The parent tried to shake the dog off and finally managed to do so, but not until its teeth had practically torn the girl's clothing from her back.

When the permit was refused the residents of Prideville filed slowly out of the Council chamber, one by one. But Mr. DeMott remained. He had some few words to say and he said them but his opponents had left the room. He asked the Council if he had to have a permit to tear down his houses and upon hearing that he did not, the defeated insurgent of the Prideville Republic declared that he would take away his houses.

solely upon the railroad to separate its crossings when public safety requires it. The decisions must powerfully affect future legislation; for with the principle established that apportionment statutes are gratuities, the tendency must be to drop them and stand on the law.

"Situation in New Jersey—A singular and important fact affects the New Jersey situation, and I think controls it. It appears that prior to 1873, railroads were chartered in New Jersey by special act. These acts are substantially uniform in language, and in each case include the requirement that the road shall separate its grade at intersecting highways. The language employed is as follows:

" 'And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to construct and keep in repair good and sufficient bridges or passages over or under the said railroad, where any public or other road now or hereafter laid shall cross the same, so that passages of carriages, horses and cattle on the said road shall not be impeded thereby.'

"The general railroad act of 1873 adds the word 'across,' making the langauge read, 'over, under and across,' thus for the first time sanctioning grade crossings, but as practically all the roads in the state were built under the special charters, we have the situation, extending through the state, of charter obligations requiring the separation of grades at highways.

"I do not think too much stress can be laid upon this point. Charter obligations are the fundamental conditions of a road's existence.

"With the charters in the case, added to the legal obligation declared under the Supreme Court decisions, I think the duty of the legislature plain, to require the roads, fairly and reasonably, and with due regard to their financial strength, to fulfill their charters, and gradually eliminate their crossings at their own expense."

MISS BORNMAN'S INJURIES SERIOUS

Miss Laura Bornman and Mrs. Fred Happel, both of Scotch Plains, who were severely hurt in an automobile accident near South Amboy, Tuesday night, are slowly improving at the Perth Amboy hospital, where they were taken immediately after the accident. Miss Bornman, whose injuries are the more serious, will probably be detained at the institution for a number of weeks. Her left leg was fractured below the knee and she sustained severe cuts on the right leg, a large and deep gash over the right eye, a badly bruised right hand and several cuts and bruises about the body.

Mrs. Happel's ankle was fractured and she will probably leave the hospital soon. Fred Happel, who, together with his children, Doris and William Happel, was a member of the party, sustained cuts and bruises of the left hand and leg, but was able to go home, while John Bornman, who was operating his own car, escaped with a cut of the upper lip, as the result of flying glass from the broken wind-shield, and a slight bruise on the hip.

Mr. Bornman and Mr. Happel were on the front seat and the rest of the party were seated in the rear. All but Mr. Bornman and the two children were thrown out. The children escaped without any injury, although they were greatly frightened.

The party had been to Asbury Park and was returning home when the accident occurred at which is known as "dead man's curve," about two miles from South Amboy. Mr. Bornman said today that he turned his car from the road rather than hit a motorcyclist. The emergency brakes, he said, were applied and a second later the auto struck a hole in the side of the road which threw the car against a big pole.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL FOR WATCHUNG CHAPEL

The Wilson Memorial chapel of Watchung held a peach and ice cream festival on the lawn of Mrs. William Demler last evening. The inhabitants of Watchung turned out as a body and an enjoyable evening was spent by all. The sum of $75 was raised.

The attractions were the Girls' club table in charge of the Misses Mae H. Keiderling and Theresa E. Schmidt. The Princeton punch table by the Misses Agnes W. Mantz, Elsie F. Schmidt and Margaret E. Eaton. The fishing pond was presided over by Clarence B. Schmidt; the cake table by Mrs. Melvin H. Cleaves and Miss Sadie H. Bodenheimer; the fruit table was in charge of Mrs. Charles E. Spier; the watermelon booth by Laurence J. Vail, and the clipping line by Kenneth Randall and Douglass W. Demler. The Wakefield orchestra, composed of Miss Sadie O. Holt, pianist, Prof. Charles K. Schwol, mandolin, Prof William R. Schmelzer, violinist and Miss Marie A. Texier soloist, played during the evening and the music rendered by it was appreciated by all in attendance.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY BETTER.

Long Branch, July 20.—Archbishop Farley, of the Roman Catholic church, is here convalescing from an illness, which originated as the result of the recent heat wave in New York.

The prelate arrived at Long Branch two weeks ago in an extremely weakened condition, and his illness caused much anxiety until he took a pronounced turn for the better this week. He will remain here until late in the summer.

Women and Banking.

The cashier of a bank which has many women depositors, in speaking of these customers, said that the stock stories about overdrawn accounts and ignorance as to bank methods had become pointless. Whatever may have been the case before, women give banks no more trouble now than men. "The woman who insists on drawing money when her balance has been exhausted because there are still blank checks in her book has disappeared, and in her place we have a woman who wants interest on her money and who knows what 'call money' means," said the cashier. Referring to the 'old kind,' he added: "One day we did have a real case. A woman rushed in, said she had just figured up her account and found she was $500 short. Husband away—no other money—what could she do? She had brought jewels to leave as collateral security till he returned, and then we looked up the matter and found she had over $800 to her credit."—New York Tribune.

A Dance Without a Smile.

They have a singular kind of dance conducted on the greens of country villages in Russia. The dancers stand apart, a knot of young men here, a knot of maidens there, each sex by itself and silent as a crowd of mutes. A piper breaks into a tune. A youth pulls off his cap and challenges his girl with a wave and a bow. If the girl is willing she waves her handkerchief in token of assent. The youth advances, takes a corner of the handkerchief in his hand and leads his lassie round and round. No word is spoken, and no laugh is heard. Stiff with cords and rich with braids, the girl moves heavily by herself, going round and round and never allowing her partner to touch her hand. The pipe goes droning on for hours in the same sad key and measure, and the prize of merit in this "circling," as the dance is called, is given by spectators to the lassie who in all that summer revelry has never spoken and never smiled.

Wanted More Converts.

Southey in his life of Wesley relates the following whimsical incident. He states that some of the opponents of these religionists in the excess of zeal against enthusiasm took up a whole wagon load of Methodists and carried them before a justice. When they were asked what these persons had done there was an awkward silence. At last one of the accusers said. "Why, they pretend to be better than other people, and, besides, they pray from morning till night."

The magistrate asked if they had done nothing else.

"Yes, sir," an old man said. "An't please your worship, they have converted my wife. Till she went among them she had such a tongue, and now she is as quiet as a lamb."

"Carry them back; carry them back," the magistrate said, "and let them convert all the scolds in the town!"

Icebergs and Echoes.

Icebergs are always a source of worry to the transatlantic steamship skippers. It isn't pleasant to run along through a fog or a murky night and smash into one of these floating mountains of ice. The liner captains have a way of finding ice that at first strikes the landsman as curious. When it is suspected there are bergs in the neighborhood the whistle is kept going. If there is an echo the navigator slows down and keeps a sharp eye out, for echoes don't grow in the open ocean.

Disraeli's Gorgeous Costume.

When Disraeli was a young man he once went on a vacation trip to Corfu in this extraordinary costume: "A blood red shirt with silver buttons as big as shillings, an immense scarf for girdle, full of pistols and daggers; red cap, red slippers, broad blue striped jacket and trousers. His servant, engaged for the occasion, wore a Mameluke dress of crimson and gold, with a white turban thirty yards long and a saber glittering like a rainbow."—London Spectator.

The Difficulty.

The First Worker—Manner born be blowed! D'joo mean ter say if me an' you come into a bit o' splosh we couldn't keep our ends up with these 'ere dooks and people?

His Doubting Friend—Oh, we should be ori right, but our missuses 'd give the game away, yer know.—London Sketch.

The Landlubber.

They were enlightening the landlubber as to maritime matters. He was becoming more and more crestfallen as their explanations progressed.

"Why, I always thought," he sadly sighed, "that the port side of a ship was the one nearest port!"—Boston Herald.

Maddening.

"They really fear she will become insane. You see, she found a diary he kept before he married her."

"Oh, I see! And the awful revelations"—

"'Revelations?' No. It was all in cipher, and she couldn't read a word of it."—London Tit-Bits.

An Affront.

D'Auber—Your daughter paints in the Dutch school, does she not? Mrs. Newrich—Not much she don't! We pay $50 a quarter to give her private lessons at home. Dutch school indeed!—Philadelphia Record.

Posting Mother.

"Did that young man kiss you last night?"

"Mother, do you suppose he came all the way up here just to hear me sing?"

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 23, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons from the animals.—Psalm civ, 10-31. (If convenient, an outdoor meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The One Hundred and Fourth Psalm is well called "the psalm of creation." In its main outline it follows the story of creation recorded in the first chapter of Genesis. It paints for us "in the frame of the world and the order of nature the living image of God's wisdom, power and goodness, exhorts us to praise Him, because in this our frail mortal life He manifests Himself to us as a Father." Of this remarkable psalm Humboldt, the great naturalist, once wrote: "It might be said that one single psalm represents the image of the whole universe. We are astonished to find * * * the heavens and the earth sketched with a few bold touches. The contrast of the labor of man with the animal life of nature and the image of omnipresent, invisible power renewing the earth at will or sweeping it of its inhabitants is a grand and solemn creation." We do well to meditate upon this psalm, not only for the lessons it may teach us in relation to the topic, but also that by it there may be breathed into us a deeper and truer spirit of devotion to God.

From the animals we may learn a lesson on God's providential care of His creatures. This lesson is frequently emphasized in Biblical reference to animals. The psalmist here has it in mind, and Christ in His Sermon on the Mount used the illustration of God's care for "the fowls of the air" to teach His disciples to put their trust and confidence in God. How wonderfully God cares for all His creatures! Not only the young lions, but all other beasts of the forests and fields, "seek their meat from God." All creatures of the sea, "both small and great beasts," "wait upon Thee that Thou mayest give them their meat in due season." Each creature must have its appropriate food, and God has wonderfully provided just the food that is needed and has given to each the skill to find its own food. "Behold the fowls of the air, for they sow not, neither do they gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feedest them!" Need we fear them? If God has made such wonderful provision for all animal life, will He not care for those whom He has created in His own image and redeemed by the precious blood of His own Son? Are we not much more than they? And if He cares for the less will He not much more care for the greater? Therefore let us trust Him.

From the domestic animals we may also learn important lessons. The ways of the wild beast may be unfamiliar to us, but who cannot recall some trait of the animals associated with the life of man that teaches a useful and important lesson? The ox and the ass, the dumbest of God's creatures, teach us a lesson on gratitude. Isaiah in denouncing the ingratitude of Israel contrasts it with the gratitude of these dumb beasts when he says, "The ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib, but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider." While animals are grateful to their masters for food, are we ungrateful for all the goodness of God? The faithfulness of the dog is proverbial, and the horse is all but human in its manifestations of intelligent affection, and from these animals we should learn the lessons that they are capable of teaching us.

Visiting the zoological gardens and noticing the variety of creatures and the variety of food required to meet the needs and daily conditions of each one, we were set wondering over the divine response to the dependence of all living things. He giveth them, each one, their meat—that which is precisely suitable for each one—in due season or whenever the need of each one really rises into a cry. "Our sufficiency is of God." Dependence on Him meets response from Him, which claims our thankfulness and our service.

A Great and Mighty Army.

The Christian Endeavor movement has been a never failing inspiration to the young people, has rendered assistance to the pastor inestimably beyond value, has united the young people of the world in loyalty to Christ, and, best of all, has been a great and mighty army used by the great head of the church in leading multitudes of people to Christ.—Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D.

WHY IT HAS PROSPERED.

Christian Endeavor has prospered because of the unpaid service of millions of young people and their devoted pastors.

It has prospered because it is founded upon universal principles.

It trusts the young people, and they perpetuate and extend it.

Ministers and church officers direct the society, but do not need to spend their time and strength in continually urging and pushing it. It has self moving and self propagating powers.

The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch

By HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Say, dat is prutty," said Ches enthusiastically. "Hit her again."

"Young man, you can come up here whenever you feel like it in the future. But as for now, I'm for home and grub."

"Dat ain't so bad neither. Der animile's jumped me up an' down till I cud hold more'n a man. Dis spook's hang out business won't quit, will it?"

"No, sir; that's a fixture. Hang on tight now, and I'll race you to the cabin. One, two three!" And away sprinted Jim down the hill trail, the burro lumbering after.

"No fair! No fair!" yelled Ches. "Yer've got me skate doped. T'row us a tow!"

Jim wheeled at the doorway and took in the excited, happy little figure bumping on the burro's back. For once in his life he had the satisfaction of an indisputable proof that he had done well. With a sudden access of affection he caught the boy in his arms and stood him on the ground. "Well, here's our home, Ches," he said.

Home! The street Arab filled his puny chest, took a long, devouring look about him and sought a definition of the word to make sound the lift of pride and hope that rose within him.

"Yer mean nobuddy kin chase us out of dis?"

"Nobody."

"It's our'n," the boy went on, with curious vehemence. "Like dis here," snatching an old knife from his pocket and shaking it in his tight fist, "ter t'row away, ter sell er ter keep, and nobuddy got nuttin' ter say about it?"

"Just that, laddybuck—that and nothing else."

"No more slinkin' an' snoopin' aroun' dodgin' der coppers, no more stallin' fer der push, no more dirt of no kind. Say, I can't git dat jus' in a minute."

He stood grappling with the new idea. In the search an old one came to the top. His face changed rapidly. The furtive, hunted look returned. In a tone the odd quiet of which contrasted with the former heat he spoke again. "Yer for me now, ain't yer, Jim? If—if der Gun should happen ter come here yer wouldn't t'row me down at dis stage of der game?"

The big man answered him with an equal soberness. He thrust a hand before the boy's eyes—a splendid hand, massive and corded at the base, running out to long, shapely, intelligent fingers, and every line in it spoke of power.

"Do you see that hand, Ches?"

"Yessir."

"If the 'Gun' shows his face where that hand can get a grip on him it will do the business for him in one squeeze, and if the hand can't reach there's a rifle inside that can. Now, get that out of your mind once for all."

"Well," said the boy—"well—aw, I'll be d—d, dat's all I kin say, Jim," and rushed into the house.

The miner leaned back and laughed and blew his nose, laughed again and blew his nose again; then he wiped the dust out of his eyes, swore a few words himself and followed the boy within.

The next day Jim started on his work in earnest. Before he had sunk a hole here or there in the broad smooth surface of the bar of gravel that he felt certain hid his bonanza.

Now he determined to begin at the creek bank and drift straight across the bar. That meant 600 feet of tunnel at the best unless fortune was much kinder than she had hinted at before, quite an undertaking for one man, considering the timbering and all.

It must have been a miner who wrote that hope springs eternal in the human breast. Surely in no place other than the mines is the fact so manifest. There was once a man seventy-three years old who was sinking through a cap of cement 200 feet thick. The stuff was just this side of powder work, barely to be loosened with a pick. The old man had to climb down sixty feet of ladder, fill his bucket, climb up again and dump it, and so on and so on and so on. Besides, he had to walk thirty miles and back again with his load whenever he ran out of provisions. It had taken him a year to put his shaft down the sixty feet. There were 140 more to go, each foot getting harder, the Lord only knew what would be at the bottom when he got there, yet to sit in that old man's cabin for an hour was to obtain a complete exposition of the theory and practice of optimism. It is an unbelievable story and would be senseless were it not entirely true.

Beside that effort, Jim's task took on the tint of an avocation, but the man who runs 600 feet of tunnel single handed earns whatever may be at the end of it.

The tunnel was the one thing that Ches abhorred in his new surroundings. Whether it was that it reminded him of the dingy holes of his city life or whether it was a natural antipathy, Ches was one of those who can never enter a confined space without the sensation of smothering. At any rate, neither argument nor coaxing could get him to put a foot within its dark mouth.

An old miner would have shared his feelings in this instance, for Jim, so thorough in some things, was a careless workman. Your old miner would have shaken his head at the weak caps and recklessly driven lagging, frames out of plumb and made of any stick that came to hand, more especially as they were to support loose dirt of the most treacherous sort.

Ches worked outside, dumping the car that Jim had made of four tree sections for wheels and sluice box boards for sides. Jim, the ingenious, had rigged up a pulley system whereby Ches could run the car out and in without interrupting the work on the face.

It was hard labor for Ches at first, but he gritted his teeth and stuck it out manfully.

"Bime-by," he would say to himself, "I'll have er muscle on me like Jim, an' den I'll yank dis cussed ol' car right out in der middle of der crik." And he examined the small bunch on his arm critically a dozen times every day.

Meanwhile his hero and idol was outdoing the human in his exertions. The effort he put forth would have killed an ordinary man. He fought the stubborn earth as though it were an enemy. Stripped to the waist, bent over in the low tunnel, hour after hour Jim plied the pick and shovel with the regularity and power of a machine. There was at once something fascinating and heroic in the rippling glide of the muscles over his broad back and in the supple swing that sent the pick to join the packed dirt.

"BIME-BY, I'LL HAVE ER MUSCLE ON ME LIKE JIM."

It all looked so easy. It was as if the dirt were very soft and not the striker very strong. Nevertheless fourteen hours a day of this, varied occasionally by cutting timbers and carrying them by hand to the tunnel, some of them a weight enough for a horse, others not adequate, "just as they came" being careless Jim's motto, told even on his engines.

They had a certain mark on the canyon side—a wildcat's hole it was—and when the sun threw the shadow of the western wall upon the mark the day's work was finished.

A Curious Swiss Custom.

In one part of the canton of Ticino, Switzerland, a very quaint marriage ceremony prevails. The bridegroom dresses in his "Sunday best" and, accompanied by as many friends and relatives as he can muster for the fete, goes to claim his bride. Finding the door locked, he demands admittance. The inmates ask him his business, and he solicits the hand of his chosen maiden. If his answer is deemed satisfactory he is successively introduced to a number of matrons and maids, some perhaps deformed and others old and ugly. Then he is presented to some large dolls, all of whom he rejects with scorn amid general merriment. The bridegroom, whose temper is sometimes sorely tried, is then informed that his ladylove is absent and is invited to come in and see for himself. He enters and searches from room to room until he finds her in her bridal dress ready to go to church. Then all his anxiety is at an end, and the nuptials are duly celebrated.

The Man Guessed Right.

In a church at Amsterdam there is a very ancient funeral monument of white marble on which are engraved a pair of slippers of a very singular kind with this inscription, "Effen Nyt," which means "exactly," and the story of this singularity is this: A man who was very rich, but who was a bon vivant, took it into his head that he was to live a certain number of years and no longer. Under the impression of this idea he calculated that if he spent so much a year his estate and his life would expire together. It happened that he was not mistaken in either of his calculations; he died precisely at that time which he had presented to himself in fancy and had then brought his fortune to such a predicament that after the paying of his debts he had nothing left but a pair of slippers. His relations buried him in a creditable manner and had the slippers carved on his tomb with the above laconic advice.—Tales and Anecdotes.

A Curious Tea Case.

A correspondent of the British Medical Journal gives an account of the curious symptoms he experienced after drinking tea. He writes: "Whenever I take tea I go through a regular procession of events most distressing and stultifying. Shortly, these are as follows: Within fifteen minutes of walking (movement seems to be essential) I feel hot about the scalp and knees. The former feels as if pepper were dusted all over it. Then I practically lose my sight and hearing and if in conversation cannot say more than 'yes' or 'no' because I am so faint and listless; then I lose the power of walking quite straight and choose the wall side of the path. Lastly I break out into a general perspiration, and within forty-five minutes I return to my senses." This correspondent adds that he has consulted many medical men, but has never found any means of relief.

When a Peanut Sprouts.

"Few persons are perhaps aware that a thing of beauty is a common peanut plant growing singly in a six or eight inch pot and grown indoors during the colder weather," said a florist. "Kept in a warm room or by the kitchen stove, a peanut kernel planted in a pot of loose mellow loam and only moderately moistened will soon germinate and grow up into a beautiful plant, extending its branches over the pot. The leaves close together like the leaves of a book on the approach of night or when a shower begins to fall upon them. The plant bears tiny yellow flowers. There is nothing else just like it."

Lengthy and Monotonous.

One of the most curious contracts entered into by an operatic artist was that agreed to by Farinelli. When he visited Spain, Philip V. was suffering from mental depression, from which nothing aroused him until the arrival of Farinelli. The queen was so delighted to see her royal spouse once more interested that she engaged Farinelli at a salary of $10,000 to remain in Madrid. This he did, singing the same four songs to the king every night for ten years.

An Old Smallpox Cure.

The following primitive "cure" for smallpox was discovered by the Leytonstone (England) guardians in one of their registers for the year 1700: "Take thirty to forty live toads and burn them to cinders in a new pot, then crush into a fine black powder. Dose for smallpox, three ounces."

He Lumped It.

"My coffee is not quite sweet enough," remarked he.

"Well, if you don't like it I suppose you'll have to lump it," said she, with a smile, passing the loaf sugar his way.

"I hope your husband has no secrets from you."

"Not many. However, he never would tell me what he paid for the engagement ring."—Kansas City Journal.

Somewhat Vague.

The Smitten Man (fervently)—Love you, darling? Why, before I met you I thought only of having a good time in life.—Puck.

The virtue of justice consists in moderation as regulated by wisdom.—Aristotle.

Woe Is His.

First.—My wife is my boss. I shall not deny.

Second.—She maketh me to lie down behind the bed when swell company comes, and she leadeth me behind her up Main street.

Third.—She restoreth my pocketbook after she has spent all of its contents for stylish skirts and theater tickets, and she leadeth me up the main aisle at church for her new hat's sake.

Fourth.—Yea, though I walk more than half the night through dark rooms with a crying baby I will get no rest, for she is behind me; her broomstick and her hatpin they do everything else but comfort me.

Fifth.—She prepareth a cold snack for me, then maketh a bee line for an aid society supper. She anointeth my head with the rolling pin occasionally. My arms runneth over with the bundles before she is half done with her shopping.

Sixth.—Surely her dressmaker's and milliner's bills shall follow me all the days of her life, and I will dwell in the house of my wife forever.—Urich (Mo.) Herald.

Signaling at Sea.

The custom of signaling at sea by means of various colored flags is very ancient, and the method seems to have been brought to a degree of development bordering very closely on perfection. Many people have been astonished at the length of messages conveyed in a few moments and with the use of but half a dozen flags in various combinations, and when the extent of the language and the complexity of many necessary messages are considered the eighteen flags in the signal flag locker seem very inadequate. However, it must be remembered that the signal code utilizes a sort of shorthand, and many long messages, known to be of frequent occurrence, have been contracted to a single showing of flags in a given combination. The number of flags hoisted when a signal is made never exceeds four. With the eighteen flags of various colors, using four for each signal, no fewer than 78,642 combinations can be made.

An English Ghost.

A Westmoreland ghost used to haunt the shores of Windermere, where the Lowthers from time immemorial have been lords of the lake—the "crier of Claife." One tempestuous night in prereformation times a cry was heard across the water by the ferryman at the Nab inn—"A boat!" The ferryman, against all his cronies' persuasions at the inn, set out. After many hours he reached the Nab again, his boat dragged down by some unseen weight and himself with hair on end, a raving lunatic. Soon he died, and every stormy night his wraith was heard in agonized shrieks across from Claife till at last the resident monk of Furness was sought in his retreat on Lady Holm and persuaded to "lay" the unhappy spirit, which he duly did. Harriet Martineau and others tell the tale.—London Chronicle.

The Weaker Sex.

The young woman had spent a busy day.

She had browbeaten fourteen sales people, bullyragged a floorwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, laid down the law to a modiste, nipped in the bud a taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a block for her, discharged her maid and engaged another and otherwise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon.

Yet she did not smile that evening when a young man begged:

"Let me be your protector through life!"—Life.

New Angle on Help.

"Why did you inquire so particularly into the wardrobe of that girl you just hired?" asked one of two women who were leaving an employment agency.

"To find out how carefully she will guard against burglars," said the other. "My experience has been that a girl who has nice things of her own will lock up more securely at night and keep a sharper eye out for sneak thieves in the daytime than one who has nothing of value to lose."—New York Press.

She Was Right.

"How effusively sweet that Mrs. Blondey is to you, Jonesey," said Witherell. "What's up? Any tender little romance there?"

"No, indeed. Why, that woman hates me," said Jonesey.

"She doesn't show it," said Witherell.

"No, but she knows that I know how old she is. We were both born on the same day," said Jonesey, "and she's afraid I'll tell somebody." — Harper's Weekly.

The First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse was erected at Pharos, near Alexandria, in Egypt. It was finished in 285 B. C. Its height was 550 feet, and the light, which was kept burning on top at night, was visible forty-one miles away. This tower existed for some 1,600 years, when it was destroyed by an earthquake.

The Idea.

"Can a married man acquire happiness?"

"Sure! You don't think that bachelors are the only ones that die, do you?"—Toledo Blade.

Generally.

"Pa," said Freddy, "what is a social scale?"

"Generally speaking," replied pa, "it's a place where they weigh money."

There is an oblique way of reproof which takes off from the sharpness of it.—Steele.

HEIR TO A BARONY A GOOD MOTORMAN

German residents of West Hoboken have just learned to their surprise that Herman Ludowig, whom they have known for years as a motorman on the West Hoboken street cars, is really Herman H. von Ludowig, heir to a barony and great estate in Germany.

Von Ludowig, who was an officer of cuirassiers in the German army, fought a sabre duel over a woman with a fellow officer in his regiment. Believing he had killed his rival, Von Ludowig, on the advice of friends, fled from Germany. He never let his family know where he was, fearing the German police would track him down.

He had brought some money with him from Germany and not long after landing in this country met a girl he had known in Darmstadt and married her. His money ran out and he was forced to take a position as a motorman in Hoboken. He has held the place ever since, though he has been back home to see his family.

Von Ludowig's father was created a baron in 1866 and served as a general in the Franco-Prussian war, being decorated with the Iron Cross and the Order of the Black Eagle. His mother is the Duchess Von Der Host, a connection of the Prussian royal family.

About a year ago he learned that his rival in the duel had not been killed. As his parents were to celebrate their golden wedding, he went back to see them.

His family lives at Castle Petersdorf, a show place, and he received a hearty welcome from the people of the town. All the members of his family are wealthy, but the proud motorman refused aid from them and returned to his humble home. He is unwilling to talk about himself, but his family told of his trip to Germany and of his family connections.

Intercollegiate "Champs."

In the record book of the intercollegiate association, an endeavor has been made to figure out the all-round athletic champion among the colleges. The table, which announces the champion in each of sixteen branches of sport engaged in by the colleges, rank Cornell first, with five championships; Yale, second, with four and a half; Princeton, third, with two and a half; Harvard, fourth, with two, and Pennsylvania, Columbia, Haverford and Annapolis, fifth, with a point each.

Elks Game Off.

The Elks game scheduled for today between the Plainfield and Elizabeth teams has been postponed. The reason assigned is many of the ball-tossing antlered ones of the Betsytown lodge are brousing in foreign fields on their annual pilgrimage. The game was to have been played at Elizabeth this afternoon but yesterday afternoon Captain Hoyt, of the Plainfield Elks, received word that it was found impossible to get together a nine that would reflect credit of that lodge.

Billy Sunday's Fortune.

William A. Sunday, quondam professional baseball player, now professional revivalist, closed the evangelistic season of 1910-1911 in Erie, Pa., the other day $70,507.77 to the good as a result of his year's work. This return for about 10 months' work, more than the President of the United States has drawn for the same time, is evidenced by the fact that from a monetary standpoint evangelistic work is more profitable than playing professional baseball.

Gotch in Training.

Humboldt, Ia., July 20.—Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, is getting into training for his coming match with Hackenschmidt, on Labor Day. He does fourteen miles of roadwork in the morning and works on the gripping machine, plays handball and wrestles.

Elks Ball Schedule.

Negotiations arranging games with Dover, Burlington, Camden and Paterson lodges of Elks are under way and it is expected that by August 1, a complete baseball schedule for the month will have been completed by the Plainfield Elks.

BASEBALL.

Manager Alberts has his eye on several good shortstops to take the place left vacant by "Tommy" Mullin going with McNulty Bros., but has not selected a man yet. It will be hard to fill Mullin's place as he was not only a fast infielder but was handy with the stick.

Frank Hand, who sprained his knee while catching at Dunellen last Saturday afternoon, will probably be out of the game for several weeks, as the injury bothers him considerable and he is unable to get around without the aid of a crutch.

PRAISE WILSON FOR HIS ADMINISTRATION.

Trenton, July 20.—For the purpose of offsetting a report that the Democrats of Salem county were not in complete accord with the political views of Governor Wilson, a committee selected by the Salem Democratic Club called upon the Governor late Tuesday afternoon to assure him that such was not the case.

Certain machine forces have been busily engaged for some time in trying to forment antagonism to the present administration. Salem county was one of the places in which such an attempt was made, and the Salem Democratic Club concluded that the best way to reach an understanding was to authorize a delegation of its members to call upon the Governor and let him know exactly how the club felt toward him.

The committee selected was composed of George F. Mitchell, chairman; Colonel D. Stewart Craven, J. Warren Davis, Dr. L. F. Hummell and Freeholder William Hannah.

The committee told the Governor that instead of looking with disfavor upon his administration, the Democrats of Salem were with him almost to a man and were both willing and anxious to follow his leadership. They also said that under the leadership of the Democratic Club a thorough organization is being effected in the county, giving every reason for the hope that a complete Democratic victory will result there next fall. Governor Wilson expressed himself as pleased with the situation and promised to visit the county during the fall campaign.

WILSON IN PASSAIC.

Governor to Talk Tonight for Commission Rule.

Passaic, July 20.—Victor L. Mason, chairman of the Passaic Commission Government League's committee on speakers, announced yesterday that Governor Wilson will speak here on commission government tonight, and that Senator Borah, of Idaho, and John Z. White, of Chicago, are coming Saturday. The meetings will be held in the Passaic High School auditorium.

A delegation of members of the league, headed by Mr. Mason, will meet the Governor at the Pennsylvania depot, Newark, at 5 o'clock this afternoon and auto to Mr. Mason's home, where they will entertain him until shortly before the meeting opens. In the party will be Robert G. Bremner, George M. Hartt, William F. Gaston, Charles F. H. Johnson and George P. Rust.

'PHONED "WE'RE MARRIED."

Daughter of Bayonne's Police Chief Furnishes Surprise.

Bayonne, July 20.—Chief of Police and Mrs. John Yore yesterday announced the marriage in New York last Saturday of their daughter, Miss Madge B. Yore, and Frank D. Millar, of London, Canada, son of H. A. Millar, manager of the London Advertiser.

The wedding had been set for the fall, but the couple concluded to give their friends a surprise and after the ceremony they telephoned the news to Mr. Yore and then left for Bermuda.

Fifteen-Year-Old Forger.

Trenton, July 20.—John Neuls, a fifteen-year-old orphan, was arrested yesterday for forging a check. The Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company is the boy's guardian and he frequently gets checks signed by Nelson Petty, one of the officers. He got the money so easily that he decided to write his own check and now he is in jail.

RECEPTION GIVEN FOR NEWLY WEDDED PAIR

Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Bludworth, who were married in New York on July 6, a surprise to their relatives and friends, were given a reception last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Mankin, of Dixie lane and Berkeley avenue. The affair was largely attended by relatives and friends, including a great many from Bayonne, where the Mankins resided before coming to this city two years ago.

The house was elaborately decorated for the reception with flowers, while the porch was brilliantly illuminated with numerous incandescent electric lights . An orchestra furnished music for the reception and also for dancing. The bride received many handsome gifts.

The bride's name was Miss Ruth Mankin. Mr. Bludworth has been living at the home of the Mankins for sometime. The couple left for New York on July 6 and when they did not return that night the parents thought that their daughter had gone to Bayonne to visit friends The next day they received a telegram announcing the marriage.

Mr. Bludworth formerly resided in the west. He was a student at the Military Academy, West Point, for two years, but left there to take a position with a large electrical company in New York city, where he is at present employed. Mr. Mankin, father of the bride, is engaged in the wholesale hardware business in New York.

PASS TRACK ELEVATION BILL OVER MAYOR'S VETO.

Rahway, July 20.—Disregarding the Mayor's veto, the Council Tuesday night passed the track elevation ordinance by a vote of 9 to 0. It was the second veto Mayor Howard had sent to the Council on this ordinance.

A communication was received from William S. Martin, former councilman, from the Fourth ward, whose name was ordered stricken from the roll, at the previous meeting of the Council, because he had moved from the Fourth to the Third ward, since he was elected. It read: "I am informed by competent authority that the action taken by your honorable body is illegal. Section 22 of the city charter states that Council shall judge the qualifications of its members and in this respect you have, by receiving my motions and resolutions, and by appointing me, on January 1, last, to several of your committees recognized and eccepted my qualifications as member of your body. I accordingly demand that my name be placed on the roll of the Council and that the clerk be instructed to call my name on roll."

The communication was ordered filed, and Council at once through President Stewart B. Moffett, filled the places made vacant by the deposing of Mr. Martin, as follows: Chairman of fire and water committee, which also makes him member of Board of Water Commissioners, Charles Bostwick; chairman of law committee, C. W. Ludlow; member of finance committee, Richard F. Crosse; to fill Bostwick's place on fire and water committee, David H. Trembly.

As Martin had approved of the bills paid Monday night, previous to action being taken on them, Martin's name was ordered to be erased from each, by the clerk.

TACKS SCATTERED ALONG WASHINGTON, N. J., STREET.

Washington, N. J., July 20.—Some one has sprinkled West Washington avenue with tacks and automobile tires have suffered. Both the borough authorities and the Warren County Automobile Association have offered rewards for information leading to the conviction of the guilty person or persons. The tacks were literally strewn along the avenue rrom the residence of Samuel Coen to the bridge below Dufford's Crossing. The tacks, which were about an inch long and unusually sharp, were scattered on both sides of the road. Several automobilists had tires punctured. John Marlatt picked up a handful of the tacks and Samuel Thatcher, a bicyclist, also picked up a similar quantity.

The citizens in general denounced the outrage and requested Mayor C. B. Smith to offer a reward of $25 in the name of the borough. The automolie club offers a similar reward. The tacks are said to be of the kind used by upholsterers.

White Woman Kills Negro.

Both lived in the same house and jealousy is believed to have prompted the crime. The woman, who admits her guilt, was jailed without bail on a charge of murder.

To Organize a Tax League.

The purpose of the organization is to bring about a more equitable assessment of taxes. All interested are invited to attend.

INDORSE WILSON FOR 1912.

The expected split in the Pennsylvania Democratic State Central Committee came about yesterday, when the two factions in the party held separate State Committee meetings and completely reorganized.

Both factions, however, agreed on the indorsement of Gov. Wilson, of New Jersey, for the Democratic Presidential nomination. The only other Presidential candidate boomed was Gov. Harmon, of Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A Stover, of East Second street, are parents of a girl born to them yesterday. Mr. Stover is one of the clerks at J. A. Smith & Bros.' grocery.

MEN AND RELIGION

Rev. F.K. Mathiews Represents Local Y. M. C. A. at Lake George Conference.

TO START GREAT CAMPAIGN.

Country-Wide Movement to Be Conducted Through Newspapers and by Laymen—1,350 Cities to Be Included.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, in Scotch Plains, left last night for Lake George as a delegate to the "Men and Religion Conference," which starts tomorrow at Silver Bay. Mr. Mathiews will represent the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. at this meeting, which will be attended by the leading laymen and ministers of the country. It will be one of the greatest conferences ever held at Silver Bay.

The purpose of this gathering is to outline the program of the "Men and Religion Forward Movement," for the coming year. One of the greatest campaigns in the history of the country will be systematically waged by men and boys in every city of the United States between September 1911 and May 1912, the plans for which will be made at this conference. Plainfield will be in the midst of the work and a committee is being formed in this city which will cary on the allotted tasks for local people.

The forward movement is a cooperative one on the part of the men's organizations of the evangelical churches in behalf of the Christian life of men and boys in North America. The objects of the movement are to create an effort to secure the personal acceptance of Jesus Christ by the individual manhood and boyhood of our times; to enroll men and boys in a daily and systematic study of the Holy Scriptures; to increase and continue the emphasis of the Christian religion as the one and only hope of the world and to make the abiding missionary enterprises of the church at home and abroad the most vital and permanent element in the Christian life ;to emphasise the modern message of Christianity in social service and usefulness; to unite churches, brotherhoods, Sunday-schools and Y. M. C. A. departments in a workable plan of permanent specialized efforts for men and boys.

In order to accomplish its purpose a thorough campaign of this country has been planned by the leaders in the movement. Advertising and personal work will be the principal methods used in the work. A publicity campaign will be carried on in the leading newspapers and magazines in the country setting forth the Christian enterprises and all sorts of religious work. The foremost writers of the time have promised to contribute to the periodicals.

The personal work will be done by experts and men well trained in religious campaigns. Teams of these experts will be stationed in ninety of the largest cities of the country. Institutions will be inaugurated by them for the purpose of training others and meetings for the public will be led by them. Auxiliary stations will be made in the largest second class cities in the vicinity of the largest towns and from these the country districts will be reached. Plainfield will be in touch with Newark, which is the only city in this State where a team of experts will be located. The local members of the committee will attend the institute meetings in Newark and will then carry on the work in this city and in Dunellen, Scotch Plains, Bound Brook, Warrenville, New Providence, South Plainfield, New Market and other adjacent towns.

Before the last of September, there will be 1350 towns and cities in the United States reached by the workers in the movement and Sunday, September 24, has been designated as Rally Day for the Forward Movement in the churches of all denominations throughout the country. At that time the five phases of the movement will be presented, namely the problems, of Bible study, the boy, social service, missions and individual evangelism.

The national committee on the movement is composed of ninety-seven of the most prominent laymen in the country, James G. Cannon, president of the Fourth National bank, of New York city, being chairman of the delegation. Among the other notable men on the committee are William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, Fred B. Smith, a Y. M. C. A. evangelist, R. Fulton Cutting, of New York city and H. B. F. McFarland, of Washington, D. C. The only representative on the committee from this state is James M. Speers, of Montclair.

INTER-CITY LEAGUE BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Plainfield bowling enthusiasts have just been apprised of the plan to form a ten-team intercity bowling league in which this city will be represented. The other teams comprising the league will be Elizabeth, Newark, Montclair, Hoboken and Jersey City. "Billy" Huttenbach, the hustling manager of the Iroquois alleys of Newark, is the prime mover in the project and he has been in communication with local alley owners with a view of interesting them in the plan.

Bowling has attracted the interest of many Plainfielders and is a popular sport in this city. "Johnny" Campbell, the genial owner of the alleys on Second street, is in favor of the scheme, and he is joined in the movement by such prominent bowlers as Chauncey F. Stout, Francis J. Blatz, P. S. Kiely, Edward A. Laing, Jack Todd, V. W. Nash, Jr., and Fred H. Firstbrook.

The entry fee is $25 and it is intended to make the first prize $250. Each team will roll three games at home and abroad with every club on the circuit. The teams will be composed of five men.

NEIGHBORS' QUARREL IS AIRED BY COURT

Recorder Charles M. Dolliver listened to a neighbor's squabble in the borough court this morning when Mrs. John G. Reinman, of Harrison avenue, appeared against Mrs. George Hansen, of Greenbrook road, on a complaint made by her on Monday. S. S. Swackhamer was the counsel for the complainant while Robert Newton Crane appeared for the defendant.

The trouble arose last week when Mrs. Hansen met Mrs. Reinman in the latter's back yard and it was alleged at the hearing that she called Mrs. Reinman several vile names in the presence of the complainant's children. On one or two other occasions, according to Mrs. Reinman, she was insulted by Mrs. Hansen. Mr. Reinman alleged that the insults by Mrs. Hansen had caused his wife to suffer a nervous collapse. Several other witnesses appeared for both sides.

After listening to the testimony, Recorder Dolliver reserved the decision until next week.

KILLED HIS NEIGHBOR'S CHICKENS WITH POISON

Julius Barrel, of Grove street, was arraigned in the borough court this morning on complaint of Augustus Wolfe, his next door neighbor, who claimed that Barrel had called him insulting names. The trouble started over some rat poison, which the defendant claimed had been thrown in his yard by Wolfe and had caused the death of several of his chickens. Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence of $5 upon the defendant.

Robert Whitnack, of New Brunswick, and Jeremiah Holmes, of Newark, both colored were arrested on Watchung avenue last night by Marshal Charles Keller who found them drunk and disorderly. Whitenack attempted to escape by running into a house on Warren street and the owner of the place refused entrance to the marshal. He finally made his way in and handcuffed the prisoner. The two men were fined $3 apiece when arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning. They paid their fines and left town.

WAWAYANDA MEET

Plainfield Boys Win Athletic Championship at the Y.M.C.A Camp.

ALL ASSOCIATIONS COMPETE.

Elizabeth Was Second and Montclair Third—Some Local Lads Did Remarkably Well In the Contest.

The Plainfield boys at the New Jersey Y. M. C. A. camp at Lake Wawayanda gained a long lead toward the winning of the championship of the State for the local association by scoring 48 points in the second athletic meet at the camp this week. The local boys competed against all the associations of the the State and so far have made the greatest number of points in the championship race. There are two more athletic meets to be held by the other associations, which will try to beat out the Plainfield score. It is probable however, that the record of the Plainfield boys will not be surpassed as no other delegations will be at the camp in united forces during the next month. The Paterson contingent is the nearest competitor to the local Y. M. C. A., having scored 46 points in the first meet but as there are no more boys from the Silk City to come to the camp, little fear is manifested by the local athletes of being defeated by them.

On account of delay in arriving at the camp, the Plainfield delegation did not enter the first athletic meet, its efforts were concentrated however, in the second set of games. In the second meet the Montclair and Elizabeth associations were close runnersup, making 22 and 23 points respectively. The local team went into nearly all the events, there being four classes for weights. C. W. Bingaman, the secretary of the Plainfield boys' department coached the local athletes and directed their efforts in the meet.

The surprise of the field day was the breaking of three camp records by the Plainfield boys. William Peacock, of Putnam avenue, hung up two marks in the senior events. He put the twelve pound shot for a distance of 32 feet 10½ inches,making a record, and jumped 17 feet 4 inches in the running broad jump, also setting a new standard for this event. Walter Bell in the junior class established a high mark in the running hop, step and jump, going a distance of 32 feet 3 inches. Peacock ran second in the 220 yard dash in fast time beside setting the records in the other two events.

Harold Tomlinson, Craig Blair and Frank Dunning also did good work for the Plainfield team. Tomlinson captured the 95 pound 50 yard dash, Blair tok first place in the junior 75 yard sprint and running broad jump, and second place in the hop, step and jump. Dunning took a first and a second place.

The aquatic meet at the camp is being run today with several of the local swimmers and divers in the various events. From all indications the Plainfield association should have another batch of points added to its score when the aquatics are over tonight.

After the athletic meet Wednesday, the Plainfield boys celebrated their excellent showing by having a spread on Dudly Island around a large camp fire. Mr. Bingaman made a presentation of a large flag pole to the camp when the campers had gathered around the fire at night. The pole was made by Mr. Bingaman, being cut from a large pine tree. The local secretary then placed the pole on the top of a giant pine and it will be used as the official standard flyer of the camp. Charles R. Scott, state secretary of boys' work, presented the camp with a handsome American flag to be used on the pole.

At a special meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, Tuesday afternoon, the women not only wiped out the deficit of $88.81, but it was shown they had contributed $486.28 for the new carpet in the church. The women were highly commended for this action, and merit great praise for the spirit of their activities and generous way of coming to the financial rescue of the church, for they are doing a noble work.

THEY SPENT THE DAY AT SEASHORE RESORT.

The annual excursion yesterday of the Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches provided the usual amount of pleasure of the crowd and it maintained the high standard of excellence in management established years ago. The same committee was in charge that has conducted the excursions from these churches for the past twenty years. It was composed of F. O. Dunning, for the First Presbyterian; Charles A. Steiner, for the Congregational; Robert Radford and Joseph W. Hawkins, for the Park Avenue Baptist church.

There were no accidents to mar the outing at the shore nor on the train going or coming. In fact it was remarked last night, when the excursionists arrived, the good time that had been made with the heavy train.

LIVELY CONTESTS

Hot Fights For G. O. P. Shrievalty and Senatorial Nominations in Union Co.

WILLIAM WRIGHT WARMS UP.

Deputy Sheriff Visits Plainfield Seeking Support—Thompson and Pierce Both Want Ackerman's Job.

As a general rule the first Republican booms for the county office nominations are sprung at the party outing in August, but there is already a lively scramble for both the State senatorial and the shrievalty plums. The aspirants in each instance is permitting no grass to grow under his heels for they are quietly visiting the various sections of the county to enlist the workers in their behalf. The liveliest candidate yet, William H. Wright, of Rahway, spent yesterday in Plainfield shaking hands with local voters. He was given a warm welcome and expressed himself as highly pleased at the situation here. A couple of hundred well-known Republicans signed his petition.

Wright is especially strong in Rahway, Westfield, Summit and Plainfield it is claimed by his friends, but as there are two local candidates in the field in Elizabeth he has much work ahead there. Most of the leaders there, however, say that they favor his candidacy and his prospects of getting a majority of the county seat delegates is said to be quite good.

Six years ago Wright was a candidate for the shrievalty, but stood aside for Dr, William Lawrence, of Summit, and again three years ago he sought the nomination again but withdrew in favor of Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, who subsequently made Wright his deputy.

The other candidates are George S. Stewart and Joseph H. Neill, both of Elizabeth. Stewart has been a member of the Union County Board of Elections for some years and has just been reappointed by Governor Wilson for a two years' term. He is chairman of the Elizabeth Republican city committee. Neill is enlisting the support of the union labor men in his city in his candidacy.

The struggle for the senatorial nomination is also interesting the Republican voters. The two candidates for the nominaiton are former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, and Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield. Pierce is a New York lawyer and has taken much interest in New Jersey affairs. He has received the endorsement of the Cranford committee and is pursuing a publicity campaign for the nomination. Thompson has been much in the public eye and his friends claim that he possesses all the qualifications of strength shown by Pierce and has others that Pierce is said to lack. Neither is a factionalist. Political wiseacres say that Thompson's position is stronger according to the present situation than is Pierce's.

FIVE YOUNG WOMEN HOME FROM BERMUDA.

Mrs. Edith V. Lawrence Miss Anna Matthews, Miss Marie Matthews, Miss Mary Cumberson and Miss Alice Lude, all of this city, comprised a party that has been enjoying a delightful trip to Bermuda. They left Bermuda on July 15 and arrived home on Weduesday. They made the trip on the Oceana, of the Bermuda-Atlantic Line, one of the largest and fastest boats sailing to Bermuda.

While in Bermuda the women visited various places of interest, including Hamilton and St. George; launch trips and carriage drives about the island with a native guide, who explained the interesting sights. A visit was made to the "Devil's Hole," which is several hundred feet below the surface of the ground, the interior being a perfect fairyland of glittering limestone formation.

Sunday-school Workers Meet.

The officers and visitors of the Home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver on Fairview avenue, when the quarterly reports were presented and turned over to those appointed to receive them. These reports showed the number of lessons studied by the members of the department, the amount contributed for missions; also the number of visits made by them to the Sunday-school, and altogether were very satisfactory. A social time with refreshments followed.

Only the immediate relatives and a few close personal friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon over wavy white satin trimmed with lace and silver card. Her veil was caught up by a wreath of orange blossoms Miss Keeley wore a princess gown of white silk embroidered marquisette over white messaline. Following the ceremony a reception took place at their future home, which the groom recently built and furnished at 956 Union street.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne left last night for Niagara Falls and will pay a two weeks' visit to his relatives in Detroit Mich., before returning.

WEAKFISH ARE BITING WELL IN RARITAN BAY

Weakfish are biting unusually well this week at Sewaren and the reports from R. O. Acker, the well known boatman of that place, sound almost like fish stories. Mr. Acker keeps a record of the catches of parties using his boats at the famous red buoy and cinder beds.

Among the catches this week were H. Chamberlain and Ephraim Compton, of this city, 10 weaks and 2 blues; Adam Bartlemann, Elizabeth, 12 weaks and 1 blue; W. Lebmann, Elizabethport, 11 weaks; Frank Miller, Elizabethport, 18 weaks; John Meyer and Gus Smith, Newark, 22 weaks; Jack Schwemmer and brother, Newark, 24 weaks, 3 eels; Hulmers and Reich, Newark, 12 weaks; Jack Buhl, Newark, 14 weaks; A. SUIT FOR DAMAGES DISMISSED BY COURT

The action for damages brought by Arthur R. Phillips, a milkman, against John McNabb, a contractor, was disposed of in the District Court yesterday afternoon by Judge William Newcorn, who declared that there was no cause for action. Mr. McNabb was repairing and macadamizing a number of streets for the city in the West End and on June 9 Mr. Phillips alleged that owing to an unfit condition of Prescott place, one of his horses was injured and its harness badly damaged when the front wheels of the wagon struck an obstacle in the road where Prescott place and West Third street intersect.

Edward Totten, driver for Mr. Phillips, testified that the accident occurred at 3:12 o'clock in the morning while he was delivering milk, and that there were no warning lights displayed nor anything showing that the road was being repaired. Mr. McNabb, several of his employes, and the city inspector testified that there had been an six-inch excavation at that point, but owing to a twelve-ton roller having been working over the road all that day the alleged abrupt raise had been reduced to an easy incline that was passable for all kinds of wagons and vehicles.

W. A. Codington represented Mr. McNabb and Winfield S. Angleman was counsel for Mr. Phillips.

Auto Hits Bike.

Joseph Leach, of South Plainfield, riding a bicycle, collided with an automobile at Front and Grove streets at 9:30 last night. He was thrown from his wheel but escaped injury. The driver of the automobile stopped and after ascertaining that Leach was uninjured, drove on. The number of the car was 14,903.

DECISION ON NOTE

Fraud No Defense When Physician's Paper Gets Into Third Party's Hands.

ECHO OF MIDDLEKAUFF DEALS.

Evidence of Indebtedness For National Mining and Leasing Stock—Recovery On Note In District Court.

Francis J. Blatz, representing Horace G. Adams, clerk of the local District Court in his action against Dr. George V. VanNest, of Hopewell, seeking to recover on a $300 note which the latter gave to the late Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, for mining stocks, received word today from Judge Huston Dixson, of the District Court, Trenton, where the suit was tried, that judgment had been given the plaintiff for $308.06, which represents the face of the note with interest. This is the first decision in one of several suits of a similar character to be tried and in consequence is of special interest. Mayor G. W. V. Moy represented Dr. VanNest in the above suit.

The note in question was originally made by Dr. VanNest for $400 given to Middlekauff in exchange for stock. Later the note was discounted at a banking institution, which in the trial was shown to be an innocent holder. The bank when payment was refused, then assigned it to Mr. Adams for collection. It was shown at the trial that Dr. VanNest had made two payments of $50 each on the note, reducing it to $300, but when the dividends stopped on the stock held by Dr. VanNest, it is said, he stopped further payment on the note, claiming fraud.

Francis J. Blatz, in his argument for the plaintiff, claimed that Dr. VanNest had shown his liability in the matter by making two payments on the original note, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, that the fact that the dividends on the defendant's stock stopped did not relieve him of the responsibility in the matter. He further contended that if Dr. VanNest had any defense it was against Middlekauff, who discounted the note which he made.

At the trial, Mr. Moy representing Dr. VanNest, sought to prove that the note was obtained through fraud, and Dr. Van Nest himself in testifying, stated that he had investigated affairs of the National Mining and Leasing Company, and found the company to be unsound.

There are a number of similar suits to be tried within a short time one of which is listed for trial in the local District Court, on Monday, in which William H. Abbott, of this city, is the plaintiff and George Wyckoff, of Clinton, the defendant.

Responds to Appeal.

The appeal made in The Daily Press yesterday for manure to be used in improving the lawns at Muhlenberg hospital has met with a ready response. This paper today received a telephone message from Sigfried Arens, of Rahway road, who offered to donate forty or fifty loads, or as much as is needed. The generous offer has been accepted.

How to Have a Warm House

First—install a BOYNTON "Square Pot," Patented, Furnace in the basement.

Then—in the morning before business and in the evening before retiring, step down and turn the BOYNTON clinkerless, ash-cutting grate. This clears the fire perfectly. Now put in a little coal; set the dampers for the degree of heat you wish, and leave the to do the rest. The BOYNTON is the most reliable house-heater known. It consumes less coal and gives more heat for the coal consumed, than any other heater on the market.

The BOYNTON "Square Pot" never holds dead fire. BOYNTON Boilers are now equipped with this same economical fire box and quick clearing grate. See your dealer about BOYNTON "Square Pot" furnaces and boilers.

WILSON TALKS FOR COMMISSION RULE

Passaic, July 21.—Before a large audience in the High School Auditorium last night Governor Woodrow Wilson spoke on commission government, on which Passaic will vote next Tuesday. The Governor said a better system for hiding responsibility in government couldn't be invented than the present. Americans had cheated themselves in the method they had adopted of correctly registering their opinion in government.

Commission government was one of the modern means of enabling the people to master their own government. It is better to have the government of a community under one man than to have it spread among several men, to whom the responsibility could not be attached.

"You have a hard job in some States finding out where legislation originated," he said. "You have a hard time ascertaining where the statutes in New Jersey came from. Almost every statute originates in a lawyer's office, which may be all right in itself. Laws are enacted by means of obscure birth, silent passage and unknown purpose. I, myself, have had the scrutinizing of bills, the purpose of which I have had to ask the introducer what it meant. I've had to send for man after man to ask him what was the matter with the existing law sought to repeal.

"Individual impulses, not public impulses, are behind legislative acts generally, but there is a great body of definite opinion waiting to be expressed through men now being sought. The people will not be fooled in future and the men who tried to thwart them will be the losers. There were men in Hoboken, New Brunswick, Jersey City and Bayonne who made up their minds they weren't going to let the people have commission government. They were adepts at getting out the vote. For the time they are preventing the people from having what they will eventually get.

"Sooner or later these men who have temporarily impeded the progress of these things are going to look like 30 cents when they will have discovered their mistake."

BEGS HUSBAND FOR FINAL SHOT.

While lying in bed beside her husband, Mrs. Jennie Garvey attempted suicide by shooting herself early yesterday mornin at her home, 839 Bergen street, Newark, and may die. She implored him to complete her death by another shot. He rushed for a doctor.

Mrs. Garvey had been in ill health for some time and was under the care of a physician for a nervous disorder. She had attempted self-destruction before and a trained nurse was attending her during the day. The day previous she inquired of several persons as to just where the heart was located, and evidently tried to put a bullet in her heart. In this she failed, the bullet entering the stomach and lodging in the liver.

The shot was fired from a revolver which she had secretly purchased last week.

Mr. Garvey was wakened by the shot and as he jumped from the bed his wife begged him to shoot her again and end her suffering. He called Dr. Robert Chapman, who lives next door, and the doctor, realizing that the woman's condition was critical, had her removed at once to the City Hospital.

Mrs. Garvey is thirty-four years old and had undergone an operation a few months ago. This left her in a bad nervous condition and she was also obsessed with the idea that she was going into consumption.

The Schwaber I, a new Zeppelin dirigible balloon, made a successful flight to Switzerland.

Miss Annie E. Peck climbed two lofty mountain peaks in Peru, both being extinct volcanoes.

The old "ice trust" still controls, according to Oler's testimony at a hearing in New York.

Eighty-five deaths from July 12 to 16 in Italy from cholera were reported by the authorities.

Several Gloucester (Mass.) fishermen were arrested and fined for catching bait in Canadian waters.

David S. Mills, former president of the Audubon National Bank, New York, was arrested on a charge of misapplying funds of the bank.

The Senate at Albany failed by two votes to pass the emasculated Blauvelt measure, which had been passed by the Assembly at an early hour.

Congress—Senate: Senator Jones spoke in favor of the Canadian reciprocity bill, and Senator Bailey attacked it. The House was not in session.

John E. Parsons, testifying in the sugar inquiry, said the government should keep its hands off business corporations and not manacle great industries.

The trial of Gilbert E. Perkins and Charles Franklin, detectives, charged with using the mails to defraud Charles H. Strong, a millionaire, was continued at Erie, Penn.

The petition of 235 creditors for a blanket receivership of all the property of E. G. Lewis, publisher and promoter, was granted in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis.

The Board of Estimate of New York rejected the latest Interborough offer, and the B. R. T. lacked one vote of getting the extensions; this action may be changed today, in which case the Mayor threatens to veto all routes.

HAWTHORNE DECIDES FOR COMMISSION RULE.

Hawthorne, July 21.—With almost as many votes cast as were recorded at the previous election, the voters of this borough turned out Tuesday in support of the Walsh commission government bill, and by a safe majority decided to adopt the new form of rule. The vote was 166 in favor of the plan and 123 against it.

The supporters of commission rule attribute the outcome to the large vote which was induced by the fact that with the commission government referendum the voters also acted upon the question of a municipal water supply.

The residents here were enthusiastic from the start over the Walsh bill. They saw opportunities for the borough's growth under a more modern and economic form of government, and there was little difficulty in getting the necessary signatures to the required petitions.

As provided under the law, only 140 votes would have been necessary in favor of the proposition to render the election effective. There was no real campaigning in favor of the new plan, for it was generally regarded as certain that it would receive a majority.

SPORTS OF TODAY

MANAGER CAN'T UMPIRE A S.S. GAME

The regular weekly meeting of the executive committee of the city Sunday-school Baseball League was held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. The important question before the council was that of umpires, a dispute having arisen on account of several of the managers of the various teams officiating in the games. It was decided that no manager of any team in the league should be allowed to umpire in any of the league games.

A death blow was dealt to padding the team in the league when it was voted last night that no new players could join the Sunday-school simply for the sake of participating in the games. This was done to eliminate contests for the players and to make the league championship a matter of merit rather than one of cleverness in obtaining players.

The league magnates deposited five dollars toward the account for the thirty dollar cup, which will be awarded to the winning team.

RUTGERS COLLEGE HAS PHENOMENAL ATHLETE

Few college men can boast of as good an all around athlete as Rutgers College, which has among her students one of the best track athletes for every event that has been in any of the institutions for several years. The wonderful track man is Valentine B. Havens, who is now entering upon his senior year at that educational institution, having been elected captain of the Rutgers track team in his Junior year and being chosen to succeed himself for next season.

Havens can do more events and do them well than any of the famous college athletes today. His best work is on the high hurdles, which he runs in 15 3-5 seconds. In the intercollegiates this year, Havens took third place in this event and is picked to win it next year. The best official time that the Rutgers star has made in the century dash is ten flat although he was caught twice last year and once this year in 9 4-5.

The 220 yards dash is easy for Havens in 22 4-5 seconds while the low hurdles are run by him in less than 26. He can clear over twenty feet in the running broad jump and has a mark of 5 feet 7 inches in the high jump. In the quarter the Rutgers man is always good for less than 54 while he has done it in as low as 52 seconds.

Not content with the track events, Havens sometimes tackles the shot, which he can shove out for 33 or 35 feet any day in the week. For the distances over a quarter, he is only a mediocre runner but he lets others take these roles for him.

"Val" is 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 155 pounds when in training. He is running the hurdles this summer for the New York A. C., where it is expected that he will carry off a large number of first prizes. He was prepared at Brooklyn Boys' High School but now lives in New Brunswick. In addition to being the best track athlete in Rutgers, Havens has the distinction of being champion tennis player in the college as well as the star orator, debater and chess player. He is well known locally and has a large number of friends in this city and in Rutgers. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity and the Cap and Skull honorary society. He is a good student and stands well in his studies.

Can Scotch Plains stop Dorflinger's Dandies?

The "Nos" seem to be in the majority.

If the 'Plains team is to make any showing at all, it will have to put up a speedier article of baseball than it did against Somerville last Saturday.

The curtain rises at the Oval tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and from all external appearances at present there is going to be a record breaking crowd. Scotch Plains will have its whole roll of citizens here almost to a man plus a few of the fairer sex.

Tommy Mullin, who quit the Scotch Plains nine to join the McNulty Brothers team of New York city, has been released by Manager Joe Alberts and is now looking for a berth on one of the Central League teams. It is rumored that Tommy will appear on the bench tomorrow afternoon in a Plainfield uniform. He held down this job for the local aggregation last year, playing right field at odd times.

Either Warry MacLaughlin or Frederickson will do the heaving against Plainfield tomorrow. Both of these southpaws are twirling in great shape and a close game is expected.

Westfield's new team will have a thorough tryout tomorrow on the home diamond when it tackles the Somerville sluggers. Hope will most likely do the pitching for the Mt. Ararat bunch with Jimmy Clinton on the Somerville slab.

Manager Joe Alberts has been scouting around this week for a new shortstop and a new second baseman, both Hall and Mullin having left the team. It was announced by him last night that he has his men picked but he would not state who they were.

DECLARES LAWYERS GET LITTLE REWARD.

Atlantic City, July 21.—That there is no calling in which more service is rendered for less material reward than the law, was the contention of Isadore Feibelman, of Indianapolis, in an address Wednesday before the Commercial Law Lague of America, in session at the Hotel Rudolf.

"If we charge a client too little," he said, "we become 'cheap lawyers,' and he is afraid to entrust his business to us. If we charge him too much we are called 'robbers' and we lose his business altogether. One of the lawyer's greatest rewards is that he serves his clients honestly and to the best of his ability, but this reward does not pay office rent and clerk hire."

One of the features of the sission was the appearance of Miss N. L. Cowan, of Jacksonville, Fla., the only Portia present at the gathering. Miss Cowan is a handsome young woman and is possessed of the added distinction of being the only woman commercial lawyer in the United States. She was given an ovation and will take a prominent part in all future sessions of the convention.

Will Be Buried Here.

The funeral service of Samuel Hine Keefer will be held tomorrow afternoon at the late home, 968 West Sixth street, at 3 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter, of the Park Presbyterian church, Newark. A change in the place of burial has been made from Fairmount cemetery, Newark, to Hillside cemetery, of this city.

SAILOR STYLES.

Yoho! the jolly sailor gairl is on the bounding deep—and also terra firma. Have you noticed the vogue for styles that suggest the nautical in dress and hat?

On blouses the sailor collar and suffs are of contrasting material and color. There is the ever-popular foulard, dotted with striped and plain that is combined with linen, batiste, challis and silk. It is easily cut in deep lines and forms a simple finishing touch to morning blouses.

Then there is the servicable serge suit. In dark blue, or in cream, the durable, inexpensive and washable material forms stunning cotumes for morning or afternoon. Sailor dresses are satin-trimmed generally, the collar and cuffs being of this material.

On the separate coats the sailor collar is very noticable. It must be very deep—almost reaching to the waist—and need not be any depth at all in front, if you do not care for it.

The linen sailor suit for juiors is always favored by sensible followers of the simple style for young girls. For outing it has been adopted by older women with much success.

And last of all comes the sailor hat! The brim is straight and broad—or narrow. The crown is quite large and the hat is worn far down over the head. If the stiff brim be unbecoming, there are variations that show turned-up lines.

Not every one who wears these styles is a sailor, but she is well dressed, which is more to the point.

A REVISED VERSION.

A few months ago a preacher delivered a discourse on "Jonah" at La Centre, Ky., in which he is reported to have said: "When Jonah left that fish he hit the ground a-runnin', and started full tilt for Nineveh. One of the sisters looked out of her window and saw a cloud of dust down the road, and after looking intently, said to her husband: 'I believe in my soul, yonder comes Brother Jonah." She went to the door and hollered, 'Good mornin',

"'Good mornin',' answered Jonah, without turning his head.

"'Where you goin' so fast, Brother Jonah?'

"'Goin' to Nineveh,' he replied.

"'Well, stop and take dinner with us.'

"'Ain't got time. Three days lat now.'

"'Oh, come in and get wour dinner Brother Jonah. We've got fish for dinner.'

"'Don't talk to me about fish.' said Brother Jonah.

"'Well, come in and have a drink of water.'

"'Don't talk to me about water,' and on he went a-clipping toward Nineveh."—The United Presbyterian.

At the Literary Club.

"Maria, what was done at the meeting of your literary club last night?"

"We fined Mrs. Chillicon-Kearney $5 for accusing Mrs. Highmus of cheating at bridge."—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking Loose.

Jack—So you smoke only ten cigars on your entire wedding trip—one a day, I suppose?

EDITOR GOES, BUT THE "DEVIL" STAYS.

George C. Woodruff, proprietor and editor of the Litchfield, Conn., Enquirer, announced in this week's issue, published yesterday that he had gone to Detroit to attend the annual convention of the National Editorial Association and that until his return, about August 1, the paper would be conducted by his associate, James P. Woodruff, with the "devil's" aid. He closed thus:—

"Let 'er go. Have all the fun you want." The readers were warned to "stand from under." The associate editor, Mr. Woodruff, in a foot note said:—

"It will not be necessary for the readers to 'stand from under' while we are at the helm. We throw no bricks and we doubt if the heavens will fall because of anything which we may say. The 'devil' wishes to say he 'is doing his darnedest' and if angles could do more he would welcome the assistance."

COMMUTERS LEARN BOARD IS POWERFUL.

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners yesterday issued a statement denying its right to take up the question of the adjustment of railroad rates between points in this State and New York. The board declares that the matter is one that is entirely in the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and announced that it "will not be coerced into the adoption of a policy in which it believes it has no jurisdiction."

The statement will probably end the fight that has long been in progress between the Public Utility Commission and the New Jersey Commuters' Association.

CENTRE OF POPULATION MONROE CO., INDIANA.

A stump in the midst of a dense thicket will probably mark the centre of population of the United States, under the new census. Professor W. E. Coggshall, of Indiana University, yesterday declared he was reasonably certain he had found the spot.

The pivotal point is in Monroe county, Indiana, sixty miles from Indianapolis. The place is thickly populated with rabbits and rattlesnakes.

WILSON DODGES PITFALL.

Sagaciously Permits Baby Prize Honor to Pass Him.

Governor Woodrow Wilson has dodged the most serious pitfall that has menaced his path in New Jersey, and a profound sigh of relief has arisen from the summer Executive mansion at Sea Girt. The crisis arose thus:

Recently the Governor was asked by John W. Aymar, president of the Asbury Park Carnival Commission, to present prize cups to the babies in the baby parade in August. The Governor at once had visions of trouble, disputes and unpopularity, and declared: "I know nothing about babies. That is properly a task for a committee."

Columbus Club Outing.

Labor Day has been selected by the Columbus Club as the date on which to hold the annual clambake. The committee consists of David B. Doyle, chairman; John Kyle, Richard O'Neil, Harry J. Pasch, Richard McCarthy, J. J. Kenny, A. A. Cannon and T. J. Carty.

PUBLIC CUPS DOOMED DECLARES DR. RAMSEY

That criticisms of the law against drinking cups are not justified by conditions, was the opinion expressed by Assemblyman Dr. W. E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy, in an interview. The doctor also stated his belief that the people will become educated to the benefits of the bill when they more fully realize the relation of the matter to the health of the thousands who have been accustomed to drinking out of public cups. "I have heard no number of complaints," he said, "only a few scattering ones. The idea of those interested in the general welfare, coincides with the reasons the authors of the bill had in mind. If you could see the children that come into my office, and into the office of every doctor, with growths beginning on their mouths, you would more fully realize the importance of the law. I am convinced that these growths in the great majority of cases, were contracted from public drinking cups."

Dr. Ramsay said that the bill was presented to him to introduce in the Legislature by the New Jersey Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. "The bill went through without a dissenting vote," the Assemblyman said, "the members realizing the good that would be accomplished by such a measure."

Intimations that have been made by those opposed to Dr. Ramsay say that the bill will be repealed when the Legislature meets next winter, are believed by the Assemblyman to be utterly impossible. "The bill was passed," he said, "partly for its educational advantages on the public, showing the people the necessity for guarding against infection. When this is more fully understood, there will be less talk about law." This adverse talk is only a minimum amount, was his opinion.

Regarding the likelihood of the bill being amended so that the railroads would be forced to install individual cups, Dr. Ramsay did not think that this could have been done. "Such a clause in the bill would have made it unconstitutional, I believe," he said. "I doubt that we could compel anyone to do such a thing." The same holds true regarding a separate bill providing for individual cups. The fact that railroads did not oppose the bill at Trenton, but have been known to speak favorably upon it, makes it appear that the railroads can be induced to provide for the drinking public without legislation. "Men who were known to be railroad men, voted for the bill,' said Dr. Ramsay, who also mentioned the large orders of individual cups being filled for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Months before the bill was introduced the Pennsylvania had installed devices in its stations in New Jersey, whereby an individual cup can be procured for one cent.

Public demand, Dr. Ramsay believes, will overcome whatever inconvenience is now suffered by the people, and will force a remedy. The Pennsylvania's action, it is highly probable, will be followed by other railroads. "While it is undoubtedly embarrassing to enter a railroad station and want a drink of water, to find no means of procuring it," said the doctor, "Still, it is better to have this temporary inconvenience than the contamination from public drinking cups." The complaints, what there have been of them, have arisen from those having occasion to visit a railroad station. The drinking cup law is enforced in several Western States, where the advantages of it are realized.

Rev. Johnson L. Miller, former pastor of the Baptist church at Flemington, but now of New York city, will preach at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning.

VENERABLE MISSIONARY DIES AT EAST ORANGE

Rev. Dr. Caleb Cook Baldwin, ninety-one years old, is dead at his home, 32 Chelsea place, East Orange. Dr. Baldwin, who was well known in this city, was one of the first Presbyterian missionaries at Foochow, China, where during his fifty years service, he translated the Bible into Chinese, compiled the "Catechism of Christian Doctrine" as well as a Chinese-English dictionary of 3,000 pages.

Born in Bloomfield, N. J., Mr. Baldwin attended the district schools of the town, later entering Princeton Theological Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1864. A few years later he married Harriet Fairchild, of Bloomfield, and upon his ordination in 1884, in company with his wife, he was sent to the Fooshow post by the American Board of Missions of the Presbyterian church.

During the half centruy heserved as a missionary in China, Dr. Baldwin returned to America only three times, in 1859, 1871, 1885 and in 1895 he came back to spend his last days near his old home.

One son, Albert B. Baldwin, with whom the aged clergyman made his home, and three daughters, Mrs. Whitman Robbins, of Durban, Africa; Mrs. William S. Fairchild, of Glen Ridge, and Mrs. H. Gertrude Gerry, of East Orange, survive. In recognition of his literary efforts on behalf of the Chinese people a Baldwin memorial library will be built in Foochow.

BURGLAR BEATS MARSHAL.

Then Escapes on Officer's Bicycle Dodging Bullets.

Hackensack, N. J., July 21.—Borough Marshal William B. Manchester, of Maywood, found a burglar in that town yesterday morning but let the man slip away. Moreover, the escaping burglar departed on the Marshal's bicycle. Manchester fired siv shots at the man, and N. B. Beama, who was awakened by the noise of the scuffle, fired two shots from his bedroom window but none hit the fugitive.

Marshal Manchester was summoned to the residence of C. E. Breckenridge, the burglar alarm having sounded when a library window was opened. The chauffeur, armed with a shotgun, was patrolling the grounds, this being the third visit by burglars in as many weeks to the Breckenridge residence. The two men searched for the burglar but failed to find him.

The marshal started for home, and accidentally met the stranger. "It's pretty lat for you to be out, and I don't recognize your face," said the marshal. "No, I don't live here," said the burglar, as he drew a revolver. Then came the struggle and the marshal's defeat.

The bicycle tracks were trailed for nearly two miles, leading in the direction of Paterson.

Tunis Berry.

Tunis Berry, the oldest veterinary doctor in New Jersey, died at midnight at the residence of his niece, 1070 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, yesterday. He was born in New York State, and had lived for half a century in Union county. He was a dealer for many years in horses, cattle and farming implements. For several years he had been in failing health. Mr. Berry resided in Roselle for a number of years, after which he removed to Elizabeth. His wife died five years ago. He leaves no family. In politics he was a lifelong Democrat. He was connected with the Presbyterian church of Roselle, a retired pastor of which, Rev. Dr. Isaac A. Blauvelt, conducted the funeral services at his late home this afternoon.

New Stamp Issue.

A new issue of postage stamps which will combine "utility with art and harmony," in the judgment of Third Assistant Postmaster-General Britt, is about to be authorized by Postmaster-General Hitchcock. The head of Washington, the first President of the United States, will appear upon the first six of the series, and the head of Franklin, the first Postmaster-General, will appear with a different border design, upon the last five. All the new stamps, it is understood, including the one- and two-cent denominations, will bear numerals to denominate their value.

HUNT NEGRO ABDUCTOR OF LITTLE WHITE GIRL.

Burlington, July 21.—Two posses of farmers and couty officials are searching the woods along the Schuyler Ferry road, near this city, for a giant negro, and a small white girl in short dresses, who the police believe, is the victim of an abduction. Farmers have sworn to take the negro dead or alive.

Ten days ago a young girl disappeared from the home of her parents in Charleston, near here. In some points the description of the girl with the negro tallies with that of the missing Charleston girl, for whom the police of the county have been searching.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Flettwood, and Constable William Fleetwood were in charge of the search yesterday. They say farmers agree that the negro is one of the most desperate characters they have ever seen. A farmer's wife first saw the girl when the negro fled from a hedge, dragging the child after him.

KITCHEN STOVE USED AS JEWELRY SAFE.

Thinking that the kitchen stove would be a safe place to secret their jewelry while on a trip to Coney Island Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bartolomucci, of Roselle, placed a gold watch, diamond earrings, two gold rings and a child's gold ring and other trinkets, to the value of $150 in the stove and departed for a day's outing. Upon their retrun, a sister-in-law of Mr. Bartolomucci, started to prepare a supper of spaghetti and not knowing that the jewelry was in the stove soon had a hot fire and prepared the evening meal.

After all had done ample justice to the meal, Mr. Bartolomucci happened to think of the hidden jewelry and rushed to the stove to see what condition it was in, only to find that the entire lot was a scarcely recognizable molten mass of little value. Mr. Bartolomucci was considerably upset by the discovery and decided that the stove is no place for valuables.

GIRL AUTOIST ALMOST GOES OVER PRECIPICE.

Newton, July 21.—Nursing some bruises, but otherwise none the worse for her experience, Miss Frances Gorda, eighteen years old, a graduate of the Newton High School this year is at her parents' home, after a thrilling experience in which she was saved from being hurled over a precipice in an automobile Wednesday.

Miss Groda, one of the few young women drivers in this locality, took her father's machine out and was going down a steep incline a few miles out of town, when the brakes got out of order. She was alone in the car. Fortunately, as it developed, she could not change the course of the machine before it crashed into a big rock at the side of the road.

The collision smashed the front of the machine and threw the fair driver from her seat. Had the car missed the rock, there was nothing that would have prevented its going over the embankment fifty feet deep. The accident occurred near the farmhouse of W. B. Whitlingham and from there Miss Groda received assistance.

PUT UP BATHING HOUSES FOR NEGROES.

Asbury Park, July 21.—Directly in front of the new $10,000 swimming-pool and north of the Asbury Park fishing pier, builders yesterday began erecting bath-houses for negroes. They are being set directly on the sand. The beach commission has a resolution on its minutes providing for building the houses at the foot of Eighth avenue in the district wherein are located some of the largest hotels and cottages. This action was taken several weeks ago.

Such a storm of protest was raised by the North Asbury Park residents and summer visitors that the commission was in a quandary. Injunction proceedings were threatened and it was openly declared that just as soon as a piece of timber was put on the ground legal proceedings would be instituted. Commissioner Hulick held out for locating the bathing grounds for the negroes at the foot of Wesley Lake and this likewise raised a row.

RAHWAY FLIER FALLS.

Mineola, L. I., July 21.—The latest addition to the Hempstead Plains colony of fliers, a tailless biplane built and operated by Frank Boland, of Rahway, N. J., is in the repair shop, the front control having been broken late yesterday, when Boland landed heavily after a flight during which he did almost everything save loop the loop.

Boland had taken his flier, which is painted a light blue, for several runs over the grass, but no one expected that it would take to the air. After a short run the machine left the ground and Boland stayed aloft until he completed a circuit of the field. He arose to a height of almost seventy-five feet and sailed over the hangers. He came down in front of the grandstand and in landing broke the front control and one wing.

The Boland machine is the most compact yet constructed. The body closed resembles that of a ground vehicle. It has an engine of his own design. Several months ago one of the Boland engines was used in a machine in which Morok, a Belgian aviator, dropped into North River. Both the engine and the machine were lost.

FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL.

Believed J. T. Dunn, of New York, Committed Suicide.

Atlantic City, July 21.—A man believed to be J. T. Dunn, of New York, was found dead in his bed at an Atlantic avenue hotel last night. The man had gone to the hotel before 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, and had not been seen since that time. When the proprietor of the hotel missed him yesterday he went to the room and finding the door locked from the inside, burst it open. He found the body of the man across the bed, partially clothed.

There was a bullet wound in the left breast directly over the heart, and a 32-caliber revolver on the bed. It is believed to be a clear case of suicide.

There was nothing in the pockets of the clothing that would give a clue to the identification of the man. The only clue is a label on the inside pocket of the coat which reads: "Made by Stewart, twenty-sixth street and Broadway, New York, J. T. Dunn, 998."

WILL BOOM WILSON.

Princetonian Declares He Has No Backing in Bureau.

William F. McCombs, Jr., formerly secretary of the Princeton Club, of New York, and a lawyer with offices at 96 Broadway, New York, says that he has no backing in the Woodrow Wilson Publicity Bureau that he has inaugurated in a suite of offices at 42 Broadway, New York. He is undertaking the work of making the Governor of New Jersey better known throughout the country entirely at his own initiative and at his own expense.

The office contains besides necessary furniture, a filing clerk, a stenographer and a head, who is experienced in the publicity business. The work of the office is to answer questions concerning the public life of New Jersey's executive when such questions come and to forward literature exemplifying the Governor's fitness to hold high office where such literature will do the most good.

GOVERNOR BIDS MANY TO SEA GIRT COTTAGE.

Sea Girt, July 21.—Governor Wilson yesterday morning sent out the invitations for his first official reception at the Sea Girt cottage. It will take place while the Second Brigade is in camp. He will follow the custom set by his predecessors, and have the politicians the first week, and will have receptions each of the following weeks, but said yesterday morning that his plans for the second and third Thursdays were not definitely decided.

The list of guests for next Thursday includes former Governors, United States Senators, members and officers of both the Senate and Assembly, the county chairmen of both the Republican and Democratic parties, heads of the State departments at Trenton and a few other political friends of the Governor. He said yesterday morning that the list did not make quite 500, but his attention was called to the fact that there are always a large number who come uninvited. He said that perhaps the number would reach that figure. The catering this year will be done by Charles J. Fury, of Trenton.

WHAT ANTHRACITE MEN WANT FROM EMPLOYERS.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 21.—Resolutions embodying demands that the mine workers want to make upon the anthracite operators were presented to the convention of the anthracite mine workers here Wednesday and referred to a resolution committee. They include recognition of the union, the use of the check-off system in collecting union dues, the weighing of coal and payment by weight instead of the size of the car, standard price for powder used by the mine workers and an increase in wages for all classes of workers ranging from ten to twenty per cent.

The legislative committee was asked to pass upon resolutions providing for the election of ten additional mine inspectors, that mine bosses be eligible to the position of mine inspectors; that mine inspectors be directed to enforce the hoisting engineers' eight-hour day law; that non-speaking laborers shall not be permitted to enter the mine and that the chief mine inspector be forbidden to interfere with the present miners' certificate law.

WANTS TO BE ASSEMBLYMAN.

Newton, July 21.—Dr. C. L. Burd, a former coronor, has announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination as Assemblyman. He resides in Ogdensburg and has entered the race in opposition to Assemblyman Charles A. Meyer, who is going to seek re-election.

Meyer claims to have the backing of the organization. The announcement of Dr. Burd created surprise in political circles, although there was no one who doubted but that the nomination would not be won this year without a fight.

In this connection the name of County Counsel Yays had been mentioned as that of a possible candidate. He has not as yet come out for the place, but close friends declared yesterday that he is in a receptive mood and that within a few days he would probably make a statement.

LABOR UNION ELECTS.

Patrick J. Donovan Is Again Honored with Presidency.

Elizabeth, July 21.—The Central Labor Union held its semi-annual election last night with the following results: Patrick J. Donovan, president; Joseph Bareis, vice-president; George J. Reiss, corresponding and recording secretary; Sidney Ellis, financial secretary; Henry Zimmerman, treasurer; John Keys, guide; L. A. Springer, warden; trustees, William Bedlington, John Keys, Geo. Speidel, A. E. Heim; executive board, Joseph H. Neill, E. J. Miller, George Speidel, Albert J. Himmen, T. S. Capton, Samuel Bohl.

Most of these were re-elected including the president, who has served several terms.

STAMLER HAS COUNSEL.

Elizabeth Excise Scandal to Be Fully Aired.

Elizabeth, July 21.—It was learned yesterday afternoon that John Stamler, a lawyer, who had made serious charges against Excise Commissioner Thomas Y. Bye, who is now suing him for $25,000 damages, has engaged former Attorney General Robert H. McCarter and Judge Clark McK. Whittemore, of this city, as his attorneys.

Stamler was put through a rigid examination by the grand jury which just adjourned for the summer, but it is said he has not as yet convinced the jurors that his accusations against Bye have strong foundation.

Canada's Honey Crop Short.

Toronto, Ont., July 21.—Dealers in honey declare that the drought of June and early July has caused a shortage of over 1,000,000 pounds in Ontario's harvest from hives. The practical failure of small flowering field crops is given as the cause. The honey yield in some counties is valueless. The average yield a year ago, according to the records of the Beekeepers' Association, was 58.3 pounds per colony, while this year's will be below 50, or a total shortage of over 1,000,000 pounds. The association has directed a sharp advance in prices.

That has been my slogan for years. Early Combines and Corners.

"Engrossing" was an offense punishable in England by fine and imprisonment, and the laws against it struck at those—called "engrossers"—who planned to gain control over necessities, such as grain or foodstuffs in considerable quantities, either by purchase or otherwise, with the intention of raising prices. The statute book holds quite a series of enactments designed to prevent anything in the nature of what we know as a "corner" or "combine." "Regrating" was a criminal offense, and so was "forestalling." The former consisted of buying and selling the same day in the same market or near it, and the latter implied the purchase of merchandise on the way to market or before the hour at which the market commenced with the intention of selling at a profit, while it was also "forestalling" to circulate rumors calculated to raise the prices of commodities. Though these laws have fallen into desuetude, they were in force in our grandfathers' time.—London Mail.

He Let Her Sleep.

Some years ago a Swansea vessel was caught in a terrible gale. The captain had his wife on board, and when the wind was still rising he told her to go down below and sleep, for all was well. He remained on the bridge till the mate came up and said: "We've done all we can. Hadn't you better tell the chaps to get out the boats?"

"Yes, yes, my lad, if you think so," said the captain, who knew the only choice left was whether to go down with the ship or in a small boat, which couldn't live ten seconds in that sea. The engineers came up with the news that the fires were all out. "Very well, my lads," said the captain quietly; "save yourselves if you can."

"Won't you fetch the wife on deck, sir?" asked one of the men.

"No," was the calm reply; "let her sleep, poor old girl. I am going down to have a smoke." And, smoking by the bedside of his sleeping wife, he went down with the ship.

Modern Maps.

There are Egyptian maps dating from 1400 B. C., but in spite of this long history it has been astonishingly difficult to make progress in charts until very recent times. Errors are perpetuated; truth is forgotten; advance is slow. As late as 1900 charts of the Alaskan coast issued by the United States were said to be thirty miles wrong, and nearly all commercial map makers still represent mountain chains as caterpillars, and the fringe of the shore is adorned with a blue wavy frill. As for railroad maps, the less said the better, the great railroad map of the northern belt of the United States adorning the walls of the Broad street Pennsylvania station in Philadelphia being distorted east and west, north and south and otherwise, its accuracy in large part not being over 30 per cent, yet it is a more than usually good railroad map.—Engineering Magazine.

The Last Gladiators.

It was in A. D. 430 that the edict was passed which forever abolished the gladiatorial combats. In the deserts of Lybia there lived a monk named Telemachus, who, touched by the cruel stories of the combats, went to Rome, leaped over the barrier of the arena of the Coliseum, threw himself between the groups of fighters and implored them in the name of Christ to desist. Telemachus fell, slain by the swords of the gladiators, but there never was another fight in the Coliseum. The spirit of the monk had its effect, and the above mentioned edict was soon passed.

Cruikshank's Fagin.

During the time Cruikshank was illustrating "Oliver Twist" he spent days traversing the east end of London in search of a face that would correspond with his conception of the character of Fagin. One day while standing before a mirror in his dining room "pulling faces at himself," so to speak, for the want of something better to do, he accidentally made the features for which he was looking. The picture, therefore, of Fagin is really that of Cruikshank himself.

At Last.

A well known clergyman, called to other duties, says a writer in the Western Christian Advocate, preached his last sermon before the installation of his successor. The local paper, in announcing the order of services, gave it as follows:

"Sermon by the Rev. Blank; solo and quartet, 'Hushed at Length.'"

His Wanderings.

Stranger—What wonderful tales old Blinks relates! He must have been a great traveler in his day. Native—He was never outside the county in his life; but, you see, his mind has wandered for years.

out all the former day's fatigue and started them as eager as hounds for that of the new day—that is, within limits, for when a man overworks as continually as Jim had done no paradise sleep nor balsam air can turn him right perpetually.

And for that reason the claim declared a holiday, consisting of a hunting trip. It was a curious hunting trip. Not one "Bang!" went the clean and polished rifle. They stalked four deer, crawling on their bellies, quivering with the chase, rounding behind rocks. Then when the game was within range up went the rifle. Jim squinted along the sights, then dropped it.

"What's der matter?" whispered Ches. He had been waiting for a long time to hear the gun go off.

"They seem to be having a pretty good time by themselves there, Ches."

"Yes, dat's so, but I've heard deer meat was good." Ches was disappointed at this manner of hunting.

"So it is," replied Jim. "Probably nobody has that notion stronger than the deer." He followed the four pretty animals below them with tense eyes. He loved to hunt, but he hated to kill.

"See here, boy," he said, sitting down and pulling off his boots, "I think I can show you some fun. Do you notice they're feeding up to that nose of rock? Well, I used to be rather quick on my feet once, and I think if I can slip down behind there without their winding me if one gets close enough I can catch him with my hands, which is a trick I'd like muchly to accomplish. Now, you sit here and watch and for your life don't make a move or sound. By Jiminy, if I could do that!" He trotted light footed down the slope out of sight.

The boy soon saw him reappear behind the sharp rock wall that jutted out into the valley, rubbing crushed pine needles upon himself with the idea of overpowering the human odor, although, whether effective in its purpose or not, it was not necessary, a strong up wind from deer to man making it impossible that they could scent him.

They waited and they waited, a big man crouched like a tiger below and a highly excited small boy above, while the deer did every exasperating thing that animals could do.

One hour went by—two—when suddenly the buck rose and walked straight up the canyon in a course that would take him within twenty feet of the rock. Jim heard him snort and prepared for action, laying hold of a corner of stone to get a spring from all fours.

The deer shadow floated black on the grass before him, and Jim leaped—to the biggest surprise of his life, for instead of making the least effort to escape the buck charged and that with such sudden fury it was all the man could do to lay hold of him anywhere as they came to dirt together.

The next ten seconds was delirium, each combatant doing something as quick as he could without any definite aim. Jim received a painful rake across the chest from the antlers and a jab in the leg from the sharp hoofs, while the deer was the worse for several bangs over the head and an ear nearly pulled off as they rolled over together.

Meanwhile Ches had legged it down the hillside at his best speed, enthusiastically cheering what he supposed was a prearranged performance. Jim had promised him fun, and that whirling heap below supplied plenty of it.

"Hooray!" yelled Ches. "Hooray! Hold him dere, Jim, till I get down!"

Jim heard the shrill voice as he succeeded after a desperate effort in getting an arm around the deer's neck so that he could do something in the choking line, and he smiled grimly in the heat of battle. "All right, Ches," he gasped. "Don't—hurry!"

"Keep out of this!" he yelled a moment later as Ches burst out from the bushes. "You'll get killed!"

But Ches was not to be denied. He danced around the pushing, tugging, straining storm center and the moment opportunity offered slipped in and seized the buck by a hind leg.

If he had touched an electric battery the effect could not have been more instant. The deer fanned that muscular hind leg with its boy attachment at the rate of 700 strokes to the minute. Poor Ches' head was nearly snapped off his shoulders, and the breath was literally jerked out of his body, but he hung on with all the strength that pulling the car had given him.

It was not much help, but it was a diversion. Jim gulped a lungful of air, gathered his powers and came down with all his might. Slowly the stubborn neck bent, so slowly that Jim feared he would give out before gaining the mastery. As it yielded his leverage increased, and at last, exerting every ounce of strength that was in him, he downed the foe and held him there, his leg over the front legs, whose armament he had felt before and was not desirous of feeling again.

But the deer gave up the struggle and lay quiet, looking up with great pleading eyes.

"Yes, you devil!" cried Jim. "You look meek enough now, but if you weren't a handful of hard luck ten seconds ago I never ran across one. You hurt, Ches?"

"I got a lovely t'ump on me smeller, but I'm in it yet. Do I let go or don't I?"

"Not on your life! Wait a moment." He worked his weight over on the deer's body. "Now!" he said. "Quick! Jump loose!" Again the deer glanced up reproachfully, as though to say, "How suspicious you are!"

The instant Ches jumped clear so did Jim. They watched their late antagonist, who sprang to his feet and went off with frisky leaps, apparently as fresh as ever.

Then they looked at each other. Ches was rubbing his stomach with his left hand, while he wiped the blood from his nose with the right. Jim's coat and trousers were torn, he had a deep scratch across his chest, a gouge in his leg, and he trembled from the exertion.

"Well—Ches!" he panted. "We've—had—a—nice—rest—haven't we?"

"Wouldn't it 'a' been tur'ble if yer hadn't caught him?" replied Ches. And then they simply whooped.

They were just of an age. Any one would have said so on seeing them approach the cabin, arms flying, tongues wagging, bruised, tired and happy.

"Jim," said a very sleepy little boy after supper, gorged like an anaconda, "yer don't see t'ings like dat in N'york, not much yer don't. If dat racket had come off in der Bowery dere'd be headlines—'dlines—on der extries—more'n a mile"—

Jim picked him up and tucked him into his bunk. "More'n a mile long. G'nigh'," sighed Ches.

Jim lit his pipe and went out for an evening smoke. It was some little time the next morning before he could realize what he was doing out there under the tree.

He had been in some ways a graver man of late. What he had undertaken as an experiment, a generous impulse, had been turned into a lasting responsibility.

What's the Matter With Thomas?

There are some names which seem peculiarly suited to royalty; Louis, for instance, has a kingly sound. Francis, George, Henry in both spellings, Charles, William, Edward and James all have served their turn. Johns there have been, and Stephens. I remember a Robert in Sicily and a Peter in Russia and Servia. Frederick has often worn the crown, and royal honors are even now paid to Ferdinand in Bulgaria. But was there ever, anywhere, a king named Thomas? Oscars and even Haakens ascend the dais, but ever through all the centuries Thomas remains the subject, sometimes struggling up to a bishopric or an earldom, but never attaining the crown. Nicholases wear the imperial purple; Godfreys lord it over Jerusalem; Alexis struts in ermine; Alexanders fare forth to conquest; Julius and Leo don the triple crown, but Thomas, poor plebeian Thomas, has never a crown to his name. Now tell me, you who are wise in the occult influence of names, what is the matter with Tom?—London Idler.

Washington as a Humorist.

While president Washington's humor seemed to find expression in the diplomacy of self protection. A French revolutionist came to him for a general testimonial, which Washington did not care to grant, yet he did not wish to give offense to the French by a curt refusal, so he wrote an evasive card worthy of Lincoln—"C. Volney needs no recommendation from G. Washington."

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown Washington treated him with high consideration. At a dinner given in honor of the distinguished prisoner Rochambeau proposed "The United States" as his toast; Washington responded with "The king of France;" Cornwallis, perforce, faintly suggested "His majesty," when Washington startled them all by announcing, "The king of England—may he stay there!" with a ready wit that made even Cornwallis laugh.—Century.

Cards and Card Playing.

In a paper in the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts Professor H. Cheney, discussing the part played by gambling in magic, observes: "The use of cards is said to be derived from the Turot cards, which were originally employed for occult purposes. The legend which ascribes the invention of cards to the purpose of amusing a mad king does not seem at all a sufficient explanation, and there is in addition the fact that cards of a kind existed before the said king. In further support of this idea the well known practice of telling fortunes by cards may probably be regarded as a survival of a regular form of divination by such means. It seems, in fact, that card playing for stakes is a mere development of a ceremony in which individuals consulting the oracle decided to abide by its pronouncements as to the holding of disputed property.

Meteors and the Atmosphere.

One of the most useful results arising from the study of sporadic meteors is the light thrown upon the question of the height of the atmosphere, since it is the friction of the air that sets them on fire, and if their elevation is known at the moment of their first appearance the probable height of the atmosphere can be calculated. On Aug. 11, 1909, a brilliant meteor happened to impress its picture simultaneously on three photographic plates, at Tashkend, Iskander and Tschimgan, in Russian Turkestan. The distances between these places furnished base lines from which the height could be deduced. The calculation shows that the meteor first appeared at a height of 69.45 miles above the earth and disappeared at fifty miles.

The Orange in Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who can eat an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The senorita cuts off the rind with her silver knife, then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.

Unpalatable.

The Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon was fond of a joke, and his keen wit was, moreover, based on sterling common sense. One day he remarked to one of his sons:

"Can you tell me the reason why the lions didn't eat Daniel?"

"No, sir. Why was it?"

"Because the most of him was backbone and the rest was grit."—Youth's Companion.

Adroit.

"He is what you might call an adroit man."

"Decidedly. His sins never find him out and his debts never find him in." —Exchange.

W. D. MURRAY TELLS OF Y.M.C.A'S CAMP

William D. Murray, of this city, who is deeply interested in all kinds of boys' work, is enthusiastic over the State Y. M. C. A. boys' camp at Lake Wawayanda, which he recently visited. He spent three days with the boys in their camp life and made an address at the camp meeting last Sunday afternoon. Twenty-five boys from this city are at the camp, being one fifth of the entire number there. Boys from all parts of the State are at the camp and the Plainfield delegation is competing against the other groups in all the athletic meets and various other contests.

In speaking of the life at Wawayanda, Mr. Murray said that it was just ideal. The camp is situated on Chapel Island, there being twenty-five tents there. The boys sleep on the island and eat in the mess-room on the mainland, a rope ferry connecting the two departments. Seven boys and one leader sleep in each tent, there being twenty-five leaders in the company. Of these twenty-five leaders, seventeen different colleges are represented while some are principals of public high schools and masters in preparatory institutions. The entire camp is in charge of Charles R. Scott, state secretary of boys' work.

The majority of the leaders are engaged and every night after taps are blown, these men can be seen writing letters to their sweethearts until late hours. "Some of the leaders are married," said Mr. Murray, and the Press reporter asked if they did not write letters, too. "Yes," was the reply, "only they don't write so long or so fast."

Mr. Murray said that C. W. Bingaman, the secretary of the local boys' department, was one of the most popular leaders at the camp and that the Plainfield boys were liked by everyone. They have rendered a great service to the camp by digging a well on the island for the water supply. The work was begun by the Plainfield campers last year and finished this season, the interior being all lined with stone. The water is now being analyzed and, if pure, will be used for years to come.

When asked about the camp routine life, Mr. Murray said that the boys arose reluctantly when the bugle blew at 6:30 and ate breakfast at 7 o'clock. The morning swim was enjoyed at 9 o'clock after which the day was spent at will. In the evening after supper, a Bible class is held as is also one after the morning bath. These classes are bing led by Rev. C. O. Wright, of Ridgewood, who is giving his time to this work during the week. Speakers are at camp Sunday afternoons and at odd times on week days. Charles R. Scott gave an illustrated lecture at the camp last night upon the "Rescue of the Balloon America." Mr Scott was a passenger on the steamer Trent, whose crew effected the rescue.

The Bible study at the camp is most helpful the sessions being held out of doors, and the courses of study are arranged to fit the surroundings. The results of these Bible study groups have been most successful.

Next Saturday will be visitors day at the camp and a large number of Plainfielders are planning to go to see the local boys in camp before they return to this city.

New Member Fire Department.

James Fitzpatrick, tillerman at No. 3 Engine House on West Fourth street, was presented with a fine boy by Mrs. Fitzpatrick, yesterday and he is now receiving the congratulations of his friends.

STORM BENEFITTED THE CROPS GREATLY

During last night and this morning this section was visited by severe electrical storms, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain at intervals. Seldom has there been witnessed such a continuous display of lightning, which at times was almost blinding. There were a number of real sharp flashes and terrific thunder. Reports of slight damage were received this morning.

Two trees on the sidewalk adjoining the home of A. L. Force, 82 Duer street were hit by two bolts, one following the other in quick succession, and one tree was stripped of its bark about half way down, the bolt entering the ground. The other tree was slightly affected. At the same time there was a perceptible rattling of dishes and chandeliers at the home of Mr. Force.

Another bolt is said to have hit something in the Netherwood district of the city, but no damage has been reported. At times the downpour of rain was very heavy and as a result gardens and farms were much benefitted. One farmer remarked today that last night's rain would probably save the early corn crop which has been in danger of late by the dry spell.

DRIVEN FROM TOWN HOBO GOES IN AUTO

Ragged and unkept, a dirty old linen duster about his shoulders and the stump of a cigar in his mouth, an old man was arraigned before Recorder Hauenstein, at Union Hill, Thursday, charged with vagrancy.

"He's Augustine J. Major," a policeman told the recorder. "He hangs out in a Bowery lodging-house and is a professional panhandler. He's been coming over here for years begging on the streets."

"Is that true?" asked the recorder.

"Guess it is," replied the prisoner. "I'm seventy-three years old and have been panhandling here longer than most of you have been alive."

"Well, I'll give you just one hour to leave town," said the court. "If you don't go I'll send you to prison."

"That being the case," answered Major, with a laugh, "I guess I'll quit Jersey as befitting a man of my means. Will some one please 'phone for the best touring car in this section of the State? I want that car." Some one, to cary out what was believed to be a joke, telephoned for the car. When it arrived Major stalked forth and told the chauffeur to open the door.

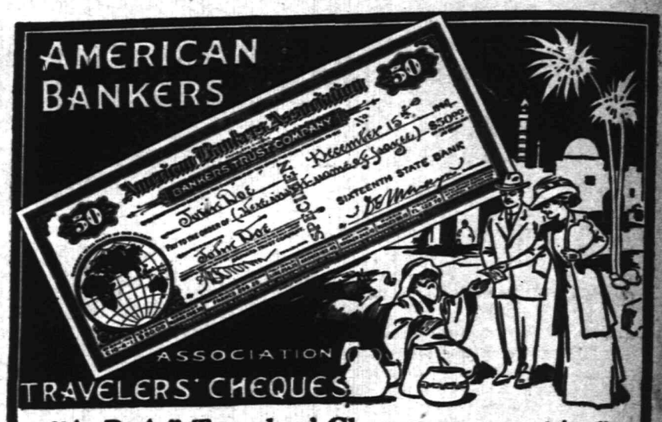
"Who is going to pay for all this?" asked the chauffeur.

"I am," spoke up Major, as he pulled from a pocket of his tattered trousers a roll of bills that made policemen and court attendants gasp. The wrapper about the roll was a $100 bill. Major climbed into the automobile, doffed his cap to the policemen and said to the chauffeur:

"Now drive to the West Shore ferry. Then you can take me to my mansion on the Bowery. If this is'nt enough to pay you for your trouble I'll draw you a check on my banker."

—Among the specialties at Neuman Bros.' tomorrow will be an extra fine display of Maryland and Rockford muskmelons, Georgia peaches, table plums, etc., the prices for which will be reasonable.

Mrs. S. A. B. Green and daughter, Miss Green, of Park avenue, left yesterday for Corning, N. Y., for an extended visit.



"A. B. A." Travelers' Cheques are current in all parts of the globe and readily accepted at face value in payment of hotel, transportation and other travel expenses. A necessity for tourists abroad; a convenience for travelers at home. Self-identifying. Safe to carry.

ON DEATH PENALTY

Walter Linbarger Aims to Have Executions Abolished in New Jersey.

STATES WHY HE OPPOSES IT.

Tells Advance Made In Other States In Inflicting Penalty For Murder—To Have a Bill Introduced.

In the following interview Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, sets forth his reasons for his opposition to the death pepnalty for murderers and asserts that he will have a bill introduced at the next session of New Jersey's Legislature to abolish executions in this State:

"I fully appreciate the fact that many people differ from me on this important question; they believing that it is necessary to execute the murderer in order to safe-guard society. In stating my opposition to capital punishment, I shall endeavor to give the reasons as briefly and in as intelligible a manner as possible. In common with all law abiding citizens, I recognize that wilful and deliberate murder is a shocking and revolting crime, which calls for speedy and severe punishment, but I am of the firm conviction that the penalty should not be the forfeiting of another life as is now the case under the present law. but the imprisonment of the murderer for life.

"Let us try and look at this question not from a revengeful or a sentimental point of view, but from a calm, reflective and humane standpoint. Capital punishment is the commission of other crime by the punishment of another. I believe that life, the most wonderful and mysterious thing in all the universe, is a direct gift from the Creator to man; that since the State cannot give life, it has no right to take that which it cannot give, even if taken by virtue of an act of the Legislature. We observe that in any community where a person is executed, it has an extremely demoralizing effect upon that community. The taking of human life, whether done legally or otherwise, is revolting to humanity in any civilized State. As an evidence of this feeling we note the protest of the citizens of our Capital City, Trenton, against the recent establishment of the electric chair for the execution of murderers of this State. I firmly believe that crime is the result of an imperfect mental development, the fact of which nearly all eminent criminologists of the world admit, and that man is also largely a creature of hereditary environment; thus, by virtue of this law, we find the murderer often the production of a condition over which he has no control, and is thus, in a measure, irresponsible for his crime. To imprison him for life when he is legally accountable is justice, to execute him is, in the opinion of the writer, barbarous and a travesty upon our boasted Christian civilization. That there would be more convictions were life imprisonment the penalty I do not question.

"The history of criminal jurisprudence shows that many criminals have escaped punishment, or have been convicted of a degree of crime calling for a lighter punishment than was commensurate with the crime committed. Owing to the fact that a first degree conviction carries with it the death sentence, the jurors, feeling that they do not want to have their hands stained with the blood of a fellow man, whereas if the penalty were life imprisonment they would not hesitate to convict in the first degree if the evidence so warranted. I do not believe that the severity of the punishment deters the criminal for the reason that he does not expect to suffer for the crime which he commits, hence he does not consider the degree of the penalty, whether it be life imprisonment or death. Let the law be speedily executed in all criminal cases and this will deter more effectually than the severity of the penalty.

"Before a further exposition of this subject, let us briefly consider the objects of the law in executing the murderer. There are two reasons advanced why the State inflicts the penalty: First, the removal of the murderer from society, whereby he can no longer endanger his safety; second, that his execution may serve as an example to others, and thereby act as a deterrent to crime, and the dignity of the law be sustained. In order to establish my position upon this question, I shall endeavor to show that to vindicate the law in either case it is unnecessary to inflict the death penalty. No one can deny the fact that the removal of the murderer from society is accomplished by his imprisonment, which, I believe my readers will admit, satisfies the first object of the law.

"That the more humane method

IT TOOK TWENTY MEN TO GET COW IN WELL

It took twenty men and a stout rope to rescue Daisy Maime, a pet cow owned by Mrs. Joseph Wehrl, of Union avenue, Elizabeth, yesterday when she fell into a deep hole formerly used as a well at Parker road and Union avenue in that city.

The cow was placed in charge of a Mrs. Grall, of Parker road, during Mrs. Wehrl's absence. Yesterday she had been missed for some time, and Grall's dog, a pet in the family, came bounding into the house and, tugging at his master' clothes, took him to where the cow had fallen. Then he summoned neighbors and after much effort Daisy Maime was rescued. She is doing well today, Dr. F. A. Zucker having ministered to her wants.

LIGHTNING'S BOLTS

Many Places About the State Struck During Fierce Electrical Storms.

PLAINFIELD WAS VERY LUCKY.

No Damage Done Here Except to Trees, Whose Limbs Were Torn By Gale—A Deluge of Rain.

Closely following the two electrical storms which swept over this vicinity Thursday night and early Friday morning moving in the same direction, came another yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock and still another this morning at 2:05 o'clock. Accompanying the pyrotechnical display with which the heavens were illuminated, were deluges of rain and gales of wind. Many trees were stripped in part or their heavy foliaged limbs but no really serious damage was done. From many places in the disturbed area come reports of damage done by lightning, but more has been done here in the past by less severe storms. Scotch Plains seems to have been the storm centre last night. The rain descended in sheets. The streets in Plainfield and nearby places were flooded so that the running of cars was interferred with.

A bolt of lightning struck some electric light wires just outside of Christ Hospital, in Palasaide avenue, Jersey City, during the morning storm and ran along the wires into the building, setting fire to the roof over the operating room. Patients were much upset by the shock, but the nurses managed to quiet the fears in short order. The city firemen put out the blaze before more than $50 damage was done. While on its way to the hospital the hose cart of Engine Company 11 crashed into the rear of a trolley car in Central avenue. Richard Jenkins, the driver, was thrown from his seat and Capt. Patterson of the company, was pitched headlong into the street. Jenkins received superficial bruises and Patterson was injured internally but not seriously. One of the horses broke a leg in the collision and was shot.

During the previous thunderstorm at midnight a bolt zipped the cupalo on the City Hospital in Baldwin avenue, Jersey City, crippling the lighting system and throwing the institution in darkness. A copper cornice and some terra cotta and tiling were torn away. Two men charged with stabbing another who had been taken to the hospital for the purpose of giving their victim a chance to identify them tried to escape in the excitement. They were nabbed at the street door.

Hudson county was peppered in spots by lightning. A bolt hit the factory of the United Embroidery Company, Summit avenue and Walnut street, West Hoboken, ignited some woodwork and put the electric motors out of business. It also caused a small sized panic among the factory hands. The loss by fire was small.

Lightning struck a chimney on the North Hudson Automobile Company's garage at Blum street and Bergenline avenue Union Hill, and started a fire in the roof. The blaze was extinguished by the town vamps.

The flag pole on Public School 8, Second and Monroe streets, Hoboken, was shattered, and a flag pole on Cordts & Katen lamp's store, at First street and Park avenue that city, was splintered by another bolt. Lightning struck a tree under which four young men had taken refuge at Dover, N. J. Clarence Ridner, 17 years old, was killed and his brother, Harvey, 15 years old, was so badly hurt that he may not recover. James and John Wearne, 18 and 16 years old, were severely burned. The electrical storm was the worst in many years. Cattle were killed in the field, small barns were struck and telephone and telegraph service was interferred with.

A bolt of lightning that shook Bayonne at about 5:30 o'clock last night killed William Geible, a boss carpenter, who lived at 203 Broadway, that city. The lightning struck him on the right side of the jaw, burned his hat and tore his clothes from shoulder to foot on his right side. His shoe was ripped open. He leaves a widow and two children. His companion, Peter Welsh, of 127 Hobart avenue, Bayonne, was knocked down by the shock and he remained unconscious for three hours. He will recover.

Near Flemington, N. J., Stephen Yard's barn was struck and burned and three cows perished. Cornelia Hall's barn was struck and burned with its contents. Winfield Case's barn was partly burned and several haystacks were fired.

In Rutherford, N. J., lightning struck the five story storage building of George B. Holman, on Park avenue, setting fire to it. The water

DR. CARROLL'S JOB

North Plainfielder to be Secretary of the Methodist Ecumenical Conference.

AT TORONTO IN OCTOBER.

He Was Special Educational Commissioner to Porto Rico and Is Recognized As Authority On Church Census.

Dr. Henry K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, the borough, who for several years has been identified with the missionary work of the Methodist Episcopal church, has been selected for the secretaryship of the Methodist Ecumenical Conference, which will represent 15,000,000 M. E. members and adherents in the whole world and will meet in Toronto, Canada in October.

During the past few years, Dr. Carroll has held several important positions not only in the Methodist denominations, but during the administration of President McKiniey, he was sent to Porto Rico as a special education commissioner to gather all the possible facts and figures regarding the new possesions which were afterward compiled in a voluminous and complete report presented by him to the Government. This report is said to have been one of the best of the kind ever prepared.

Dr. Carroll has also been engaged in taking church census of this country and his fund of knowledge concerning churches of all denominations makes his services in his new position most valuable. For some time Dr. Carroll was secretary of the missionary board of the Methodist church, resigning that position within the past few years. Since then he has been employed in doing other kinds of work for the denomination.

RELEASED IN $300 AS WIFE DESERTER

Dominic Muldowney was arrested in the borough last night by Marshal Pope on a warrant issued on an indictment found by the Essex County Grand Jury charging desertion. He was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza, as the nearest magistrate here this morning and placed under $300 bonds for his appearance in the court of Quarter Sessions, in Newark next Friday. Thomas Egany, of West Fourth street, qualified as bondsman and J. Henry Crane has been retained as counsel.

Muldowney says that he did not desert his wife but that she left him, taking their child and going to Newark. He has been making his home with her parents in the borough. Since she has been residing there he avers that he has visited her and at different times has taken articles of wearing apparel to the little one. Her action charging desertion according to him came very much as a surprise.

CELEBRATES TODAY NINTIETH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Margaret Bryant, of West Fourth street, is today celebrating her ninetieth birthday. She was born in Somerville, July 22, 1821, residing in that city for a few years, after which she removed to New Brunswick, where she remained for a few years, then removed to a farm at South Plainfield. There she lived for twenty-five years. She came to this city in 1893, and has remained here ever since.

Mrs. Bryant is the last of twelve children, having six brothers and five sisters. For a woman of her age she is unusually active; her only defect being in her eyesight. One would hardly believe by a casual glance at her that she was nearing the century mark. She attributes her longevity to the plain and humble life on the farm, where the greater portion of her earlier days were spent.

Funeral of S. H. Keefer.

The funeral of Samuel Hine Keafer, who died Thursday night in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late residence, 968 West Sixth street. Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter, pastor of the Park Avenue church, of Newark, officiated. The pall bearers were employes of the Niles, Bement, Pond company, for which the dead man had worked as a mechanical engineer for the past three years. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

INSPECTED ROADS

Federal Road Director Shown Jersey Highways by State Supervisor Meeker.

WAS AGREEABLY SURPRISED.

All Parts of the State Were Visited and Some Photographs Taken For Lectures On Good Roads.

Morris O. Eldridge, director of public roads for the United States, with headquarters in Washington, has been spending the past few days with State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, of this city, and in company with the latter has been making an extended inspection tour through the State Mr. Eldridge, when he left Plainfield yesterday had nothing but words of praise for New Jersey roads, declaring them to be the finest he had seen in all his travels about the country. He was so much pleased with what he saw that he took a great many pictures of the roads which he will use in his illustrated lectures.

The trip made by Mr. Meeker and Mr. Eldridge included Bordentown, along the Jersey shore, taking in Ocean Boulevard, Seabright, the mountain district, including Morristown, Stockholm, Franklin Furnace, Newton, Bernardsville, Whitehouse and other points in this immediate vicinity. Mr. Eldridge told Mr. Meeker at the conclusion of the trip that he considered the roads in New Jersey ninety-five per cent. perfection.

By way of comparison with roads in New York State, Mr. Eldridge said that in the latter State, one would find ten miles of good roads and then ten miles or more of bad roads, but in this State he had found them all to be uniformily good and he thought that to be the greatest factor in road building. Mr. Eldridge especially favored roads treated with Amiesite, declaring that they showed the best wear, especially where the automobile travel was the heaviest.

Several photographs were taken of the new road between Watchung and Sterling for use in lectures, it being the opinion of Mr. Eldridge that that thoroughfare represented the highest type of road construction.

JAMES ELAND TOLD THAT HE SHOULD LOVE HIS WIFE.

James Eland, colored, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza, in the city court this morning on complaint of his wife charging assault. The couple had an argument over some family money matters and the husband becoming enraged is alleged to have abused his wife. He made a flat denial of her charge and said that the trouble was occasioned by her treatment of him. Judge DeMeza, after learning that the martial relations between man and wife had not been distrubed before during the seven years of their married life, told them to go home and make up. He suspended a fine of $10 or 20 days over Eland as an incentive to follow the advise given.

TO STOP SPEEDING AUTOS AT THE SHORE.

Recorder Keffer, at Atlantic City, has decided to take extreme measures to combot the speed evil, which threatens the lives of pedestrians on the avenues in the resort. Before announcing his plan the magistrate will get the support of the State. He sent yesterday for the State Superintendent of Motor Vehicles, J. B. R. Smith, who is to be in court today.

It is understood that the recorder proposes to revoke the driver's license of every chauffeur who violates the speed law in Atlantic City hereafter. Autoists who are sane elsewhere come here and immediately develop the speed mania in dangerous form.

PIANO FIRM CHARGES HOPE WITH CONSPIRACY

On complaint of August Breckenfelder, of the Hallet & Davis Piano Company, of Newark, John Hope was arrested at his home, 1223 West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, charged with conspiracy. The complaint alleges that Hope purchased through Breckenfelder a piano valued at $265 and after paying about $100 in installments he moved away from Newark. The purchase was made three years ago and since leaving that city his address was unknown.

The Hallet & Davis Company put a private detective to work on the case and Hope was traced to this city. He had disposed of the instrument in order to raise money. The local police turned him over to the Newark authorities and he was taken to that city last night.

POLICE COURT NOT COLLECTION AGENCY

Pasquale Riccardi and Dominic Ventilla, partners in an Italian restaurant until recently located on Plainfield avenue, but who removed in the early morning hours one day last week, were arrested yesterday on complaint of John Donato, the owner of the building vacated without his knowledge. When moving the young restauranteurs took a gas range that did not belong to them, but on which that had made partial payment. In disconnecting it they did not turn off the gas and the landlord with his family had a narrow escape from asphyxiation. The complainant was told by Judge DeMeza that his court was not a collection agency and if he desired to have the stove returned or to be paid the balance on it, he would have to take the matter to the district court, where civil proceedings could be instituted.

The young men said that they had no intention to endanger the lives of the landlord and his family and their reason for moving out at night was because the business was not paying and they did not want to lose a day from the work they had both secured. After telling the danger they had exposed the other occupants of the building to, Judge DeMeza suspended a fine of $5 of 20 days in the county jail over each.

CO. K. BOYS ARE OFF FOR CAMP

Five full squads of Co. K, Second Regiment of New Jersey, departed early this afternoon for the annual weeks' camping at Sea Girt. On the North Avenue Station platform were many friends of the soldier boys to say good-bye. The leaving was characterized with a bouyancy of spirits befitting their natty appearance.

Tomorrow another squad will leave for camp and the full complement of the company will be at the seaside ready for the drilling and extended exercises which always features the event. Co. K has been assigned the duty of guard mount and between attending to this duty and making their tents ready the boys will be kept busy for some hours after their arrival.

While in camp the boys will participate in all the instruction work that is a part of the week's duties and in the inspections are sure to come in for the usual amount of praise and comments that has fell to their lot in the past. Captain Kitchell looked over his command with a critical eye and expressed himself well pleased with the showing the boys made.

A Surprise Party.

A delightful surprise party was given last evening at the home of Miss Minnie Wuergler, 740 Webster place, in honor of Miss Carrie Meier, of Brooklyn. There were recitations by Robert Fahn and Charles Creger; piano selections by Clark Hammell, and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Refreshments were served late in the evening. The affair was arranged by the Misses Anna and Minnie Wuergler and Winifred Brennan.

CAPTURE LAMBERT

Fugitive Wife-Deserter Arrested by Marshal Pope of the Borough at Westfield.

HE SKIPPED NINE MONTHS AGO.

Police of Three Counties Searched For Him—Taken to North Plainfield and to Be Transferred to New Brunswick

Isaac Lambert, of Oak Tree, who has been wanted by the police of Somerset, Middlesex and Union counties for the past nine months, was arrested near Westfield last night by Marshal Lemuel Pope, of the borough force. The man was taken into custody on a warrant sworn out before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape, of the borough, by his wife, who charged him with non-support. Immediately after the warrant for his arrest was issued, Lambert skipped town and has evaded the vigilance of policement for nine months.

Marshal Pope was notified by a party of two men from Westfield at 10:30 last night that Lambert had been seen in the vicinity of the swamp near that place. The officer immediately went to Westfield and after a long search found Lambert in a shack on Sheeler's path, where he had been living since last Tuesday. Another man, named Benjamin Conner, was with Lambert at the time, the two having inhabited the crude hut together.

The fugitive wife-deserter made no resistance when Marshal Pope told him that he was under arrest and he was brought to the borough jail, where he is being held awaiting the necessary legal action on the part of the Middlesex county authorities. No bond has been fixed as yet for the prisoner but it is supposed that he will not be able to secure his release.

Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker, of North Plainfield, has turned the case over to Overseer of the Poor Benjamin F. Mundy, of Bonhamtown, a small community near Metuchen, under whose jurisdiction the matter will be advanced. Lambert will be transferred to the New Brunswick jail within a day or so and the case will be tried in that city.

Mrs. Lambert, who made the complaint against the prisoner last November, is the daughter of John R. Vail, of Duer street. Her husband deserted her with her two little children and she has heard nothing of him since the complaint was made to Overseer of the Poor Becker. It was then that the warrant for his arrest was sworn out. Mrs. Lambert and her children have been living in the meanwhile at the home of her parents on Duer street.

Lambert was formerly employed as a motorman on the Public Service lines in this city but was always regarded, it is alleged, as a hard character. Upon leaving his wife, he has spent his time in a shiftless manner, living from hand to mouth. He has worked about this vicinity on farms as a day laborer during the last nine months but has kept away from the cities.

MISCHIEVOUS YOUTHS ARRAIGNED IN COURT.

Thomas Jones, colored, and Johnny Hiner, white, of East Fourth street, were before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning charged with breaking windows in the Baird factory at East Fourth and Washington streets. The boys admitted having committed the offense but asserted that it was purely accidental. An arrangement was made through the court to allow the boys to have the broken panes replaced at their parents' expense and if there is any further complaint of this kind, the court said, it would mean additional punishment.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will speak and the choir of Trinity Reformed church, and the children's choir will sing at the gospel service to be held at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Don't Wait For the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness, Profit By Plainfield People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Plainfield prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered intensely from pains through my back and I also had a distressing weakness of my kidneys. I was in misery and nothing gave me the least relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which I obtained at Randolph's drug store. They acted on my kidneys at once and not only removed the pain from my back but corrected the kidney weakness and restored me to good health. I shall always be willing to give Doan's Kidney Pills the praise they deserve."

Premier Asquith informed Mr. Balfour, the Unionist leader, by letter that he possessed the King's guarantee that any exercise of the royal prerogative necessary for the passage of the veto bill would be made.

Attorney General Wickersham declared, in an address at Hancock, Mich., that the big industrial combinations were going to be split up and would not be permitted to reorganize under other forms and go on just as before.

John E. Parsons, testifying in the sugar inquiry, said the American company had contributed to political campaigns as a "corporation right," and advised the Congressmen to solve the problem of controlling the trusts, if it had to be solved.

The Board of Estimate, of New York, awarded the system of new subways in its entirety to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and contracts for the construction of four sections of the Lexington avenue line were signed, sealed and delivered.

N. C. Beattie, Jr., of Manchester, Va., was held by the Coroner after an inquest on the former's wife, who was shot and killed while automobiling with her husband on Tuesday; his cousin, Paul Beattie, was also held in connection with Mrs. Beattie's death.

President Taft announced to the Union and Confederate veterans at Manassas, Va., that arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France would probably be signed within ten days, and that he expected three other powers to enter into similar agreements with the United States soon.

OLD GUARD OF DENTISTS LOSE.

Asbury Park, July 21.—Without opposition the "insurgents," or younger blood of the New Jersey State Dental Society, carried the day in electing a complete set of officers and thus paving the way for the proposed reorganization which for months had been a rock upon which the factions split. The outcome of the election was a surprise, inasmuch as it passed off without any candidate in the field for the "old guard."

The unexpected happened when Dr. William W. Hawke, of Flemington, the vice-president, a "regular," and in line for the presidency, declined to be a candidate. He was placed before the convention and immediately asked that his name be withdrawn. The other "old guard" members followed suit and refused to even let their friends nominate them.

One of the more important consequences of the outcome is the retirement of Dr. Charles A. Meeker, of Newark, as secretary, which position he has held for thirty-five years.

The officers chosen are:

President, Dr. William I. Thompson, of Asbury Park; vice-president, Dr. William H. Gelston, of Camden; secretary, Dr. Edwin W. Harlan, Jersey City; treasurer, Dr. Charles J. Jones, Elizabeth; financial secretary, Dr. James L. Wolverton, Trenton; member of State board of examiners, Dr. Vernon D. Rood, Morristown, and librarian, Dr. J. G. Halsey, of Swedesboro.

As the first step in the proposed reorganization, the new constitution patterned after that in vogue in Illinois, was adopted.

SPIKE DRIVEN IN NECK STOPS LINEMAN'S FALL.

Trenton, July 22.—One of the linemen of the Bell Telephone Company had a terrible experience in a fall from the top of a twenty-five-foot pole Thursday night. A protruding spike was driven through his neck, nearly serving the jugular vein, dislocating his jaw and seriously lacerating his face.

The lineman was William A. Forrest, twenty-three years old, of 7 Thompson street. He was working on the line at Penn's Manor, a short distance below Morrisville, when his body belt broke.

After having been treated at St. Francis' Hospital, the injured man was removed to his home. He will probably recover.

"SUPPORT WILSON" TO BE SLOGAN IN BERGEN.

Hackensack, July 22.—"To uphold Governor Wilson" will be the issue and slogan which the Bergen county Democrats will bring to the fore to win the three Assembly places in this fall's election. County Chairman Robert A. Sibbold has issued a statement which sounds the keynote of the coming campaign.

After stating that it appears as if the Republican "regulars" would win out here at the primaries he continues:

"It is certain that the insurgents recognize in Governor Wilson a man who has made good and whose work is by no means done. It is logical, therefore, to say that if the Democracy of the county makes good by nominating a good ticket, men who will give their unqualified adherence to Governor Wilson and his policies, they will have the support at the polls of a united Democracy and a large independent vote."

To further this object Mr. Sibbold has called a few representative Democrats to meet Monday night and fix a date for an "informal convention" or conference of party men from all parts of the county. This "convention" will consider candidates and indorse three. This action, however, in no way is intended to prevent any other Democrat than those indorsed from running. Chairman Sibbold says:

"It is intended to clarify the atmosphere and obtain the concensus of opinion of the men from every voting district in the county."

POPE DRIVER HELD ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Jersey City, July 22.—Lester W. Wright, of 136 Bidwell avenue, Jersey City, chauffeur for James E. Pope, was arraigned before Judge Farmer in the criminal court, Jersey City, Thursday, on a charge of manslaughter for having run down Albert Rosenast, formerly president of the Jersey City Liederkranz, on June 29 last. Rosenast died in the Jersey City Hospital last week.

Wright, until Rosenast died, had been charged with assault and battery. It is alleged Wright, after running down Rosenast, paid no attention to his victim. Pope was not in the automobile. Wright was held without bail for the grand jury.

CHILD BURNED BY BONFIRE.

Roselle Park, July 21.—While playing near a bonfire in the rear of her yard Thursday afternoon, Ermie Cameron, aged seven years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron, of Sherman avenue, Roselle Park, was severely burned about the limbs and body. Her dress caught fire. Her screams attracted her mother and neighbors and she was rolled on the ground and her clothing torn from her body.

Dr. H. M. Pierson, of Roselle, was called and dressed the child's burns. He says she will probably recover.

EMBROIDERY COLLARS.

The vogue for the separate collar is still at its height and the more you can number in your summer outfit the greater variety and resultant success will there be in your appearance. It is not difficult to attain variety if you take a little time to modify the original sailor collar idea. It can be of perfectly plain mouseline so fine that it is but a thin veil over the dress. A broad hem, an inch in width, is all that is necessary to edge it. Then there is the sailor collar of eyelet embroidery instrips or bought by the yard.

The collar of finely tucked handkerchief linen comes easily to mind, while the batiste or lawn shape hemstitched offers another hint.

Collars of net and beading are easily formed over tissue paper patterns, tearing away the paper after the strips are sewn together.

Silk and satin collars are smart and are best when made detachable. This is done by sewing buttons on the inside of a linen coat along the revers and collar. The separate collar should be made larger than the pattern, so that its edge can be folded over the coat. On the edge work buttonholes to correspond with the buttons and there you are—as many changes as you have collars, and may there be many of them.

MUTTON PUDDING.

Use the undercut from a shoulder of mutton, two onions, a pinch of allspice, pepper and salt, good stock and some light suet crust.

Cut the under part from a raw shoulder of mutton. The upper part will not be spoiled by this and can be hung till required. Cut the meat into schollops and dip them in flour seasoned with pepper and salt. Line a pudding basin with suet crust, put in the meat, season it with the minced onion and allspice and scatter a little of the seasoned flour over all. Pour a teacupful of good stock in. Cover with the paste. Boil for three hours.

She Feared the Worst.

"My dear, you and I have got to agree upon a plan of some kind whereby we shall be able to keep down our bills this month."

"But arn't you afraid if we do so that the courts will get after us for combining in restraint of trade?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

SPORTS OF TODAY

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Platt Adams, the Newark athlete who represents the N. Y. A. C., and who is regarded as one of the best all-around athletes in the country, has signed his entry for the K. of C. games at Olympic Park, Saturday, August 26. He will participate in the discus throw, sixteen-pound hammer throw, and broad jump. Adams has developed into a wonderful broad jumper, so the committee decided last night to make this event one of the additional features of the games. Two feet is the limit of the handicap. Adams is likely to toe the scratch mark in this event and efforts are now being made to sign up high class men in this line, who will do all possible to hang up a new record. With the exception of the contemplated special events the following ones are open to all registered amateur athletes, A. A. U. rules to govern: 100-yards handicap, 220-yards handicap, 440-yards handicap, 880-yards handicap, one mile handicap, 440-yards novice, discus handicap, sixteen-pound hammer handicap, pole vault, handicap. There will be a special one-mile relay between the prominent clubs of the metropolitan district. An invitation will be extended to all athletic organizations in New Jersey to participate in a special one-mile relay. Entry blanks can be secured at Knights of Columbus headquarters, 880 Broad street, Newark.

Although Mel Sheppard will go out this year to lower all the records from the quarter-mile to the mile, it is the general consensus of opinion that the record of 47 seconds flat for the quarter, held by Maxey Long, will withstand the "peerless one's" onslaught against it. In order to equal this record a runner must travel the full 440 yards at the rate of 10 3-5 seconds for each hundred, and Sheppard is not capable of this time. However, Mel has a better chance of lowering these figures than any other man on the cinder path today.

Matt McGrath, the great weight thrower of the New York Athletic Club, asked for his release from the Mercury Foot organization yesterday afternoon, but was refused. In making the request he gave no reason other than that he wished to make a change. He did not say for which club he desired to compete, but persons friendly with him say he intends to join the Irish-American A. C.

Jack Moakley, the veteran trainer of Cornell University, has consented to allow John Paul Jones, the great middle distance runner who smashed the one-mile record at Cambridge recently, to compete at the St. Agnes A. C. games at Washington Park, Brooklyn, on July 29.

M. Ritter, once champion, of Germany, in the middle-distance swims, bids fair to develop enough speed to defeat Bud Doodwin. He performed surprisingly well in the 200-yard race held recently at Sheepshead Bay.

Martin Sheridan, three times all-round champion of America, has decided to remain out of the competition for all-round title, to be held at Chicago on August 12. The explanation given by Sheridan for his withdrawal from the contest this year is that it requires too much work, and an athlete would have to put in six months of hard training if he wished to cop the title. Sheridan is desirous of making the Olympic team next year, and he is training hard with the discus.

New York A. C. was fortunate in the distribution of the swimming championships this year, being allotted two out of five events. The 440 yard swim will be held at the New York Athletic Club on August 12 and the high diving championship on September 4. The 880 yard swim will be held at the South Shore Club, Chicago, on August 5, and the ten-mile river swim at St. Louis on August 19. The mile swim will also be held at one of the New York clubs.

TROUSERS-POCKET THIEF GETS $200 AT WHIPPANY.

Whippany, July 22.—While the family of Peter Bodin were asleep early Thursday morning a thief got into the house through a rear window and went to the bedroom, where he took $220 from Mr. Bodine's trousers pocket. Then he left hurriedly.

Gold watches and a diamond necklace were on the bureau in the bedroom, but those were not even handled by the man.

The robbery was similar to that Wednesday night at Morris Plains, where a thief entered the home of Charles Clairman and took $75 from his trousers pocket.

Blinded By Yellow Jackets.

Millville, July 22.—Striking a nest of yellow jackets on the farm known as the Crow's Nest, south of Pine Grove, William Ford had a terrible experience Thursday. The insects swarmed about him and stung him so badly that his sight has been destroyed. It is feared his hearing will be permanently affected.

BETWEEN THE Y.M.C.A AND NATIONAL A.A.U

James E. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., defines the Y. M. C. A. relations to the Board of Governors, delegates-at-large, ex-presidents, ex-secretaries, secretaries and all allied bodies, chairmen of the registration committees and secretaries of the associations, and to all club members of the associations of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States as follows:

On and after July 17, A. L. N. A. registration will not be recognized by the A. A. U. of the United States, and all athletes that desire to compete from Y. M. C. A.'s in open sports must obtain registration from the registration committee of the association of the A. A. U. in whose territory they reside.

A Young Men's Christian Association branch that is not a member of your assocation cannot hold an open athletic meeting as they have heretofore unless they apply to your association for sanction and pay the regular fee.

After July 17 you must treat each Young Men's Christian Association branch as an athletic club. They can have their athletic activities among themselves, that is, each branch can have athletic contests among its own members without making them ineligible for open Amateur Athletic Union competition, unless they accept the entry in basketball, swimming, track and field or some other club sport, of an athlete that has been disqualified by the A. A. U. A disqualified athlete cannot compete in club members' games, according to the A. A. U. rules.

Should a Y. M. C. A. branch play basketball, compete in gymnastics, swimming or athletics against a college or school team or individual they must obtain from the association of the A. A. U. in whose territory they are a sanction, and each man must become registered, as such competition would be open competition.

SCHAUFFER PRESIDENT OF THE STATE BOARD

Permanent and formal organization of the New Jersey State Board of Education was effected yesterday at Newton, when Dr. William G. Schauffler, of Lakewood, was chosen president, and Professor Henry James Ford, of Princeton University, was elected vice-president.

Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, the new superintendent of education, arrived in Trenton yesterday and sat with the board at the meeting. He will be ex-officio secretary of the board under the new law.

Those at yesterday's meeting were Dr. Schauffler, Prof. Ford, John P. Murray, D. Stuart Craven, Melvin Rice and Edmund B. Osborne.

Senator Frelinghuysen was unable to get to Trenton. Until the question of his eligibility to serve as a member of the board is finally settled, the board has arranged to have five members besides Senator Frelinghuysen, at each meeting, and in this way all questions as to legality as to the board's official acts will be certain.

The board adopted a rule providing that public meetings shall be held in Trenton the last Saturday of each month. Another change in the rules reduces the number of committees to five, six of the old ones being abolished. The most important of the new committees will be known as the advisory committee.

The other committees will be known as Montclair Normal School, State Normal School at Trenton, Industrial School for Colored Youths at Bordentown, and the School for the Deaf at Trenton.

A report was made to theboard concerning the investigation at the School for the Deaf. This was presented by John P. Murray, who conducted the investigation for the old board. He showed that the school was badly managed in almost every respect and that there is need for a complete change of methods. He recommended that the new board forthwith appoint a committee to arrange new policies for the school before the opening of the next school year.

A BIT OF BY-PLAY.

The feminine end of a well-known vaudeville team is in the habit of jotting down any piece of "business" she thinks would be of value in their act. One Sunday in church the service wis neglected for a minute and an idea that had just come to mind was duly entered in the thing most handy—namely, the prayer book. And the prayer book was left behind.

The next Sunday she went back to the same church, intending to inquire for the book at the end of the service. The priest, however, anticipated this by speaking of a prayer book found the Sunday before.

"Our only means of identification," he said, "is a rather peculiar memorandum in the rear of the book: 'When the pistol goes off kick father in the face.'"

The prayer book was never claimed.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

HOW TO TEST COFFEE.

The purity of ground coffee may be tested with cold water. If pure it will not discolor the water for a long time, but if chicory has been added the water will turn brown almost immediately.

Paving the Way.

At the political meeting a very enthusiastic German made a speech beginning like this:

"My dear fellow citizens und fellow Shermans. I don't vant to say noddings about nobody, but look at dem Irish in de Tenth vard, vot have dey got? Paved streets! Und vat have we got? Mut! Mut! Now, my fellow citizens and fellow Shermans, vot I vish to say is dis: Coom, let us put our heads together und make a block pavement."—The Housekeeper.

of punishment, life imprisonment, does deter crime more effectually than capital punishment is shown by the reports of the secretaries of the following States, which have abolished the death penalty: Wisconsin, Maine, Rhode Island and Michigan. The secretary of the first mentioned State, Wisconsin, informs me that capital punishment was abolished in that State in 1853, and that capital offenses have not increased since that year; neither has there been, nor is there at the present time, any sentiment in favor of restoring it; further that all the members of the State Board of Control, who have control of the penal, reformity and charitable institutions, are of the opinion that capital punishment should not prevail, and would oppose any proposition to restore it.

"A good many years ago capital punishment was abolished in the State of Maine, and, after a few years, was re-established, to be again abolished after several years of trial. It is not believed that more murders have been committed in that State since the death penalty has been abolished than previous to its abolition. In 1853 Rhode Island, the home of Puritanism, substituted for capital punishment the more civilized method, life imprisonment. In this State it appears from the prison records, however, that the commitments for murder are fewer proportionately today than during the years immediately before and after the abolition of the death penalty. The infliction of the death penalty was abrogated in Michigan in 1864. Sixty-five years ago the citizens of that State awakened to a realization of the savage character of punishing its murderers by death and, taking the initiative, adopted life imprisonment, which is the present humane method of punishment. We thus see that over half a century ago these four States did away with the death penalty and has since then shown to us that life imprisonment does prevent the commission of crime at least as effectually as the sacrificing of the murderer's life.

"I think I have shown, by the history of these four mentioned States, that the second object of the law has been accomplished without the shedding of human blood, and, if in four States, why not in New Jersey and the forty others? Life imprisonment would not only satisfy the law in every respect but would prevent in the future the execution of innocent people. The writer recalls to mind over one hundred celebrated cases of circumstantial evidence in which that number of innocent men and women have forfeited their life for crimes committed by others; their innocence having been fully established after their execution. It is not possible for the human imagination to conceive of the horror of the State taking the life of an innocent person. Had the penalty been life imprisonment, the lives of these innocent persons would have been spared, and the guilty parties made to pay the penalty of their own crime. That the abolishment of the death penalty would be in order with the progress in legislation for the past century is noted by the fact that in England, between the Accession of George the First and the termination of the reign of George the Third, less than 200 years ago, there were 225 offences for which man was punished with death. Since that time we have become civilized to that degree in this country that in this State there is only one crime punishable with death. The history of the human race shows that as man has slowly come through the savage state the spirit of revenge has grown weaker and weaker. No longer does he in his present civilized state resort to the cruel and heartless punishment of the Mediaeval era, but, instead, is exhausting his ingenuity in devising means for a more merciful punishment. The substitution of the electric chair for the gruesome gallows in this and other States is an instance of this advancement. Notwithstanding our present so-called civilized way of execution, I doubt if there are many who believe that the murderer should be put to death who would, if called upon, act as the executioner, yet they are not opposed to the law deputizing a person to perform an act of horror from which they would revolt.

"In conclusion, I wish to state that I shall introduce in the next session of the Legislature a bill repealing the death penalty and substituting life imprisonment as the punishment. In order that any hope that the murderer might entertain of escaping the full punishment of his crime through executive clemency, I would favor the denial of the pardon except upon the production of additional evidence absolutely establishing his innocence. I trust the Legislature may see the wisdom of changing the penal code and thereby remove the last barbarous obstacle from the path of human progress."

LIGHTNING'S BOLTS

pressure was low and of no service. The building was burned. Among the goods destroyed were forty-two pianos. More than 200 sets of furniture were in the building. The loss is about $150,000; partly covered by insurance.

At Madison, N. J., a barn on the Enos Wilder farm was struck during the morning storm and was burned. It was one of the largest in that region and the loss is put at $25,000.

In Morristown, N. J., the residence of William S. Stearn, on Madison avenue, was struck and the house was partly destroyed. The damage is estimated at $25,000.

EASTERN DELEGATIONS MAY GO FOR WILSON.

Washington, July 22.—Supporters of Woodrow Wilson for the Presidency were highly gratified over the action of the Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee in endorsing Governor Wilson's candidacy.

Democratic members of the House who returned from Harrisburg said that while Speaker Clark and Governor Harmon, of Ohio, had sincere supporters in Pennsylvania, the Wilson sentiment was so strong that an endorsement of the New Jersey Governor could not have been prevented.

The Wilson supporters predicted that the endorsement of the Pennsylvania members would be followed by similar endorsements by other Eastern States, including New York, and that Governor Wilson's nomination would be assured months before the national convention.

HALT INCREASE OF THE RAILROAD RATES

The State Public Utilities Commission, meeting in Newark yesterday, set Thursday morning for a hearing at the State House, in Trenton, to determine whether an order shall be issued suspending the increased railroad rates in New Jersey. Several of the railroads have announced a new schedule of rates to become effective on August 1, and the commission has decided that they will not go into effect until their reasonableness has been inquired into by the board.

Notice has been served on each of the companies by the board. Some of the railroads have filed schedules with the board and assert that the proposed changes in the localities are made necessary in many cases so that they may not conflict with the interstate rates. Most of the changes proposed are increases.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

Somerset Politics.

It seems to be settled that Hon. W. W. Smalley will be the only candidate before the primaries for the nomination of Senator on the Somerset county Republican ticket this fall. This matter being disposed of, as far as present conditions indicate, the attention of Republicans is now naturally directed to the selection of an available candidate for Member of Assembly. Geographically, it would be good judgment to select a man from either Franklin or North Plainfield townships, and Edwin Garretson, of the former and Charles C. Wheeler, of the latter are both talked of. They are men of high character and ability and either would serve with credit to the country.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

CHOICE OF CAREER.

An English father consulted a friend as to what career he ought to select for his son, a boy of 10.

The friend thought the matter over for a bit and then advised the father as follows:

"Lock your boy in a room where there is a Bible on the table, an apple and some pieces of money. After a quarter of an hour open the door noiselessly and see what the boy is doing. If he is reading the Bible make him a clergyman; if his attention is concentrated on the apple, make him a farmer, and if he is amusing himself by counting the money it's plain that he was meant to be a financier."

The experiment was tried and when the friend inquired what the result was the father replied:

"I found him sitting on the Bible, he had pocketed the money and was eating the apple."

"Make him a member of Parliament, then," was the advice of the friend.—London Globe.

THE HUMBLE BOOK AGENT.

Napoleon Bonaparte was once a book agent; Jay Gould was a canvasser; George Washington in his youth sold over 200 copies of a subscription book; General Grant for a time earned his living as a subscription agent; Webster and Bismarck and ex-Governor Frank S. Black, of New York, paid part of their college expenses through a book agency.

It might be well to remember the next time the subscription agent calls that perhaps you are having the privilege of entertaining a future Washington, Napoleon, Bismarck or a Governor. More to the point, however,—don't forget that this agent may be giving you the one chance to make a Webster, a General Grant or a Bismarck out of your buy. When the subscription agent knocks don't bolt the door on Opportunity. —Leslie's.

Accommodating.

"So you don't want no huckleberries?"

"No, I have changed my mind, I see your cat is asleep in these huckleberries."

"That's all right, mum. I don't mind waking the cat up."—Washington Herald.

At the services at the Mt. Olive Baptist church tomorrow, each member will be requested to contribute $5 toward the building fund for the erection of the new church.

"CAP" ANSON'S

FORTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Dedicated to all my old comrades and lovers of the sport, who have made the game what it is today, and to all those who will continue to "play ball" after we old-timers have struck out for the last time.

ADRIAN C. ANSON.

(Copyright, 1911, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.)

It turned out to be one of the best exhibitions of the beauties of the game of baseball ever given in any country. The playing was of the most daring and sensational character, the fielding sharp and brilliant on the part of both teams and the batting very heavy. Baldwin and Crane, the respective pitchers, were on their best behavior, while the exhibition of base-running given by several of the boys stirred the onlookers to a pitch of enthusiasm that would have done credit to a crowd of American fans. Up to the seventh inning the score was a tie, and then the Chicagos managed to get a man across the plate as a result of Burns' three-bagger and Baldwin's single, and another in the eighth, the outcome of a single by Sullivan and a long right-field hit for three bases by myself. Very foolishly, I tried to make a home run on that, but was put out at the plate by Brown's magnificent throw from the field.

I felt that such a splendid game should go to Chicago, and it did, by a score of 6 to 3. It was a great game, and I was mighty pleased to see that even though they did not know the splendid American sport well enough to keep track of it the crowd realized that something above the ordinary was going on.

The next morning it was announced at breakfast that the president desired to meet the boys in the big reading room of the hotel on a business matter of importance. When we had repaired thither, Mr. Spalding rose and in a manner as dignified as if he was the bearer of intelligence that had never been suspected up to that moment revealed the secret that we would continue our trip around the world, returning home by way of Egypt, the Mediterranean and continental Europe. The announcement was met by a storm of applause that was rather startling for Sunday morning. Mr. Spalding then took the opportunity to spring a little health talk on the boys, not that they were in especial need of such advice, but merely to obtain their co-operation, he said.

We played our second exhibition game of baseball in Melbourne the day before Christmas in the presence of a crowd of 6,000 people. Ryan pitched for the Chicagos and Crane and Healy for the All-Americas, and all three of them were pounded good and heavy, there being a hot fusillade of base hits on both sides. The hard hitting was what the crowd wanted, and every drive to the outfield was cheered frantically. In spite of our efforts to entertain the grand stand, it was a closely contested game, the All-Americas carrying off the honors with a score of 15 to 13. Following the game, Professor Bartholomew, the aeronaut, gave his first balloon ascension and parachute descent in Australia. It was a performance entirely new in that part of the world, and as a novelty it eclipsed baseball, but in the light of progress made in aviation since that day it was rather a tame affair.

When we awoke on Christmas morning and heard the usual salutations going on it seemed like a huge joke. It was fine Fourth of July weather, but there wasn't a suggestion of Christmas in the air. It was so hot that the lightest sort of clothing was burdensome, and it was a positive comfort to think of the ice and snow that are a part of the holiday in America. That afternoon we set out for Adelaide, where we were scheduled to play three games. I say "we," but that didn't include the ladies or Ed Crane, who were left behind at Melbourne on account of the fearful heat. When we reached Adelaide next morning the weather was sweltering. That didn't prevent the citizens from giving us a rousing welcome, and that afternoon a big crowd thronged the Adelaide oval to see what American baseball was like. In spite of the intense heat we provided a game that was remarkable for heavy batting, both Tener and Healy being severely punished. That game went to the credit of the picked nine by a score of 19 to 14. When the game was over and we were driven back to the hotel, there wasn't a man among us who was half alive. That didn't prevent us from appearing at the theater that night, where we occupied the governor's box and attracted more attention than the play.

CHAPTER XXIV.

I Say Goodby to the Antipodes.

The other two games we played at Adelaide were won by the Chicago team. At the farewell game, which was called at ten o'clock in the morning, we had Sir William Robinson, governor of the colony, for a spectator during the last four innings. He came out on the grounds and shook hands with each of us, disregarding the grime with which we were covered in a truly democratic manner. He declared that he liked the game immensely, even better than cricket, which was an amazing admission for an Englishman, although, on second thought, I believe Sir William was a Scotchman.

That same afternoon we left for Ballarat, the great gold mining region of Australia. We arrived there early in the morning and found that enough had been planned for our entertainment to occupy every minute of the day up to the time set for our game. After we had climbed into the four-horse drag that was to take us up to the hotel to breakfast we discovered that Tom Daly was "non est." That didn't worry us a whole lot, for we knew Tom would wake up at some station and make his way back to Ballarat in time for the game.

After breakfast we were taken out to the gold mines, and after we had stripped and got into overalls we made the descent of 11,000 feet into the bowels of the earth. After we had reached the bottom I discovered that our little coon mascot was in the party.

"Why, how does this happen, Clarence?" I asked, knowing what a coward he was and surprised to see him so far beneath the surface.

"I jes' come down heah to see whah de gol' dollahs grow, Cap'n Ansing," he said, his teeth chattering and his black hide on the quiver.

"Well," I went on banteringly, "I suppose you've filled your pockets."

"No, Cap'n Ansing, dey ain't a single dollah in dis durn hole. And now I wants to go back to de daylight," he sniveled.

Among the 5,000 who attended the game that afternoon were 200 inmates of the Ballarat Orphan asylum, who were guests of the mayor. I shall never forget the excitement shown by those Australian youngsters over the game, which appealed to them so forcibly. It was certainly a great day for those kids, for the All-Americas had found us easy, by a score of 11 to 7. Professor Bartholomew made a balloon ascent, and when he stepped into his parachute on his return to terra firma it failed to sustain his weight and he came down with great force, striking on the corner of a building and receiving injuries that kept him in the hospital for many weeks.

When we got back to Melbourne we found that a great sport program had been prepared for Monday, the last day of the year. According to the original plan, baseball, cricket and football were all to have had an inning, but the weather spoiled all our arrangements. Two games were scheduled for New Year's day, but we were able to play only in the morning, the Chicagos winning by a score of 14 to 7, John Tener having succeeded in inventing a new twist that mystified our opponents. That afternoon we were treated to an exhibition of boomerang throwing by a tribe of bushmen brought into the city for our special benefit. I had heard so much about the boomerang that I was greatly interested in the show, and it turned out to be one of the most thrilling entertainments we had ever witnessed.

"How'd you like to be able to negotiate a curve like that?" I asked John Tener after a villainous-looking aborigine had hurled his wooden missile to some distance and it had returned almost to the spot where he stood.

John meditated a moment and then shook his head. "It wouldn't do at all," he said. "It would revolutionize the game. Only eight men on a side would be necessary. There wouldn't be anything for the catcher to do."

"Cheer up, John," chirped up Mark Baldwin. "He's got your curve stung to a whisper, but he can't get away with you at poker."

On Saturday, January 7, we played our farewell game at the Victoria capital before the largest crowd that had ever assembled in those grounds. The gate count that day showed that 11,000 people had paid their way into the inclosure. The program for the afternoon was a varied one; as a starter the Australian cricketers playing a two-inning game with the All-Americas. It didn't take the ball players long to show their superiority. Next came a football game between two local teams, and that was followed by a four-inning game between the Chicagos and the other nine, which proved to be the finest exhibition of base running and fielding ever seen in Australia. With not a fielding error on either side, my boys won by a score of 5 to 0, Pettit finally ending the game with a splendid running catch of Earle's long fly to right field, a performance that brought a round of cheers that must have been heard in America.

At three o'clock that afternoon we said goodby to our friends and took the train for Port Melbourne, and there boarded the steamer which was to sail next morning at daybreak for the coast of Ceylon. It was a fine ship, with but a single drawback—it was manned exclusively by Germans, and Fred Pfeffer was the only member of our party who could save his life in that language. But I always suspected that the article of German he put up was not of the best brand. There wasn't a steward or waiter on board who knew a word of English "as she is spoke," and so most of the conversation was done by the sign language, with an occasional aside in United States that wouldn't do to print.

Just as I had begun to congratulate myself on my seaworthiness and had shot off a number of remarks to the effect that seasickness was a matter of temperament anyhow, and all that, I turned turtle and couldn't lift my head long enough to throw a water bottle at the bedroom stewart for four days. Right here I want to do a little tardy justice to that patient, plodding Dutchman from Germany. As I lay in the upper berth of our stateroom as helpless as an infant, and a mighty sight harder to keep pacified, he would stand in the doorway—he didn't come any closer to me—and eye me compassionately, all the time keeping up a running accompaniment of soothing remarks. I couldn't hit him and I couldn't even ask him to go to the place we are all anxious to avoid in his own language. I don't mind telling you that it was one of the most helpless situations I had ever been in.

One morning when I was feeling just a little better I called myself back long enough to signify in the deaf-mute language that I was willing to try it on with a little tea and toast. Moritz—that was his name—seemed to tumble to my request, and rushed off with a glad smile all over his rather good looking face. I fell into a doze almost immediately, and when I came to life again he stood in the doorway bearing at arms' length a big platter of sauerkraut and steaming bolognas. I didn't yell—I couldn't! What I did was to get my head under the bedclothes and keep it there until I had smothered my desire to commit murder and almost smothered myself. I have always suspected Mark Baldwin to have been the instigator of that attempt to rid mankind of me, and, although many years have passed and he has probably been more successful in his career as a famous physician at helping people out of their troubles than he was with me, I have never acquired the sauerkraut and bologna habit. I suppose you thought I was going to say that I hadn't forgiven him. Well, I have—long ago. Mark isn't the kind of fellow to bear a grudge against.

CHAPTER XXV.

I Play Ball for the Cingalese.

Before we got to Ceylon the captain of the steamer told Mr. Spalding and myself that it would be risky for us to make a protracted stay in India on account of the unhealthy condition of Calcutta and other big towns, and it was arranged that the ship should be held at Colombo until we had an opportunity to make an investigation. As soon as we landed Mr. Spalding was informed by the American consul that travel in India at that time was full of danger, and we had to abandon our intention of showing the Hindoos what they were missing by not playing ball.

The captain consented, however, to remain in Colombo long enough for us to play a game. We marched out to the Colombo cricket grounds at the head of the most curious procession we had ever seen. There were no gayly decked drags and nodding plumes on this occasion, but plenty of heavy-wheeled carts drawn by humpbacked little cattle and jinrickshas worked by bare-legged Cingalese. At the grounds at least 5,000 people had assembled, a number of them English residents, but the bulk being natives.

We played only five innings, the result being a tie, three runs for each team, a very satisfactory game for all parties, the natives getting lots of sport out of the betting, but showing little or no appreciation of any of the finer points of the playing. When we returned to our hotel we were accompanied by the entire crowd that had witnessed the game, and, after having changed our clothes, we went directly to the wharf, still followed by the almost silent and admiring mob of Cingalese.

The second morning after leaving Ceylon we had an experience that I shall never forget. Day was just breaking and we were deep in the enjoyment of our beauty sleep when every one on board—except those who were not asleep—was roused suddenly by the report of a cannon that shook the steamer from stem to stern with a fearful shock. This was followed almost instantly by the most agonizing shrieks and cries of "Pirates! Pirates! The Chinese pirates are upon us, boys!"

This was succeeded by another frightful report, and then there was a scene of confusion that would have discounted the racket in a boiler shop. John Tener, who was our treasurer, grabbed all our available assets and locked himself in his stateroom. Ed Hanlon rushed into the cabin with his treasures in one hand and his Gladstone bag in the other. Mark Baldwin tumbled upon deck in his pink-striped pajamas with all his worldly possessions wrapped in a blanket. It was current afterward—long years afterward—in baseball circles that I filled my mouth with Mrs. Anson's diamonds, grabbed a baseball bat and stood in the doorway of our stateroom prepared to brain anybody who tries to enter. That statement is libellous, and I have denied it so many times that the formula I always use has become second nature, but cannot be printed with "all the news that's fit to print." I take this opportunity, once and for all, to give two reasons why I do not have faith in the allegations myself—first, Mrs. Anson owned no diamonds, and, second, I wasn't hero enough at that time to face a gang of pirates with a ball club.

Well, I don't mind owning up to the fact that we were a fussed lot of ball players when we got into that cabin, all in various degrees of undressedness. A cloud of thick smoke came rolling down the gangway and added to our terror. The stewards were flying about with wild gesticulations and all talking at once in a language that was almost as bad as the pirates to us. For a few moments the situation was critical. I don't know what would have happened if I hadn't caught sight of Fogarty galloping around the dining saloon and yelling like a Comanche brave. The minute I spied him it struck me that he was at the bottom of the whole business.

It proved to be as I had suspected. Lynch and Fogarty by some means had become wise to the fact that the steamer's guns would be fired at daybreak in honor of the German kaiser's birthday, and they had put their heads together and concocted this heroic practical joke. It was rather a risky thing to pull off, but it happened that no one was the worse for it after the excitement had worn off. The joke-smiths, however, were given a wide berth for a long time and were not taken back in full communion until we had reached America.

Only a few days afterward Mark Baldwin, who was in the habit of losing considerable sleep in inventing practical jokes to be worked off on the boys—especially on John Tener, who seemed to be without much sense of humor in those days—had an adventure with a big Cingalese monkey that the chief engineer was taking home to Hamburg. It was an experience that rattled Mark considerably at the time, although I don't suppose he realized the actual danger he was in. The monkey was a powerful beast, as ugly as ever I set eyes on. His owner usually kept him in the engine room, tied with a stout rope five or six feet long, and had given strict orders that nobody should tamper with him.

One Sunday morning Baldwin went into the engine room during the engineer's temporary absence, unfastened the rope and took the monkey on deck. The animal didn't resist Mark's treatment at first, being somewhat dazed by his strange surroundings. After the big twirler had pulled the brute about on deck for awhile—he called it exercise—he took him downstairs and treated him to beer and pretzels, and then came on deck again and attempted to continued the exercise. The monkey began to show signs of displeasure and Baldwin thought it would be prudent to bring his performance to a close. When he got back to the engine room with the monkey the creature was in such a bad temper that he flew at Mark in a great rage and tried to get at his throat. Luckily, Baldwin had his eye on the beast and was able to protect his throat, but in doing so he fell backward, the animal on top of him. Before he could save himself the monkey gave him a vicious bite on the leg, after which he bounded over to his corner and crouched, glaring at Mark, his gray whiskers standing out stiff with rage. By this time Mark was mad as a hornet and full of fight. As soon as he saw that his injuries were not vital, he went for that monk for all he was worth, but the nimble beast, realizing his danger, jumped onto the piston rod of the engine. At every revolution of the screw Mr. Monk would go down into the hold and then come up again; shaking his fist at his pursuer at every ascent and chattering wildly in monkey jargon. It was such a comical sight that Baldwin's sense of humor got the better of him and he fairly roared over the business. I shouldn't wonder a bit if the dignified Pittsburg sawbones carries the marks of his set-to with that bad-mannered simian to this very day.

On the morning of February 1 we steamed into the indigo-blue waters of the Arabian sea and early next morning the African coast was in plain sight. A further sail of 24 hours brought us to the entrance of the Red sea, and on the morning of February 7 we reached Suez. Here we left the German steamer and took the train that was to carry us into Egypt. Just at dusk we halted at a little station about 20 miles from Cairo, and here, to vary the monotony, Ryan started a panic among the natives by dressing Clarence Duval, our coon mascot, in his drum major suit of scarlet and gold lace, with a catcher's mask over his face and a rope tied around his waist, and turned him loose among the crowd that swarmed around the railroad coaches. Thus accoutred, and with a yell that must have startled the sphinx, the no-account little nigger went through with a series of contortions that soon drove the frightened natives into rapid retreat. It was a performance highly relished by its manager and his chief actor, but I doubt whether the poor Egyptian got much fun out of it.

CHAPTER XXVI.

I Apologize to the Sphinx.

Those who get their idea of Cairo from the world's fairs and the hoochee-coochee dance don't really know a great deal about it. Coney Island at night is reminiscent, but only that. Perhaps the "Arabian Nights" are more to the point, but even they seem a little weak compared with the real thing. To see the "Streets of Cairo" as they should be seen stop over for a few days on your way to Jerusalem.

As no arrangements had been made for us to play ball on the day following our arrival, Mrs. Anson and I took in the sights in large doses. We slummed around all day to our hearts' content, got lost a dozen times and bought more truck at the cheap bazars than we were likely to get home to America. We did manage to get back to the hotel in time for dinner, and although I'd had my fill, and would have been willing to spend the evening in a soft seat on one of the balconies in the society of a good cigar, Mrs. Anson declared that we must improve our opportunity and see something of the town by night. So I ordered a carriage and we went forth in search of adventures.

We didn't have to wait a great while before we went up against it. After we had driven about some and looked at the lights and sundry other street attractions, Mrs. Anson suggested that we take in some show. We didn't know a thing about the Cairo theaters and our drivers didn't know a word of English, so we had to go it blind. Finally we came to a palatial structure brilliantly illuminated, with bright red awnings extending to the sidewalk and a lot of swell-looking people going in at the grand entrance. We made up our minds that it must be a theater of the better class, and I tried my best to find out from the driver if my suspicions were correct. Although the driver and myself were not at one in our interview, I understood him to say something like the word "circus," and I thought that was enough to go on. Mrs. Anson agreed that a good circus would round up the day rather neatly, and so we alighted, passed beneath the awning and by the servants in livery who stood in the entrance, and found ourselves in a magnificent foyer—I took it to be—ablaze with electric lights, strains of soft music stealing out from within, the scent of a perfumed fountain getting in its work to beat the band.

"Strikes me this is a pretty classy sort of a circus," I observed to Mrs. Anson.

"Same here," she admitted in a subdued tone.

Through the open doors we caught glimpses of parties of ladies and gentlemen in full dress moving slowly about, but it didn't for a moment occur to either of us that a word that sounded like "circus" in Egyptian might mean something mighty different in English. I looked around for the ticket office in order to procure the necessary pasteboards, but couldn't locate it, nor could Mrs. Anson. Finally we ran up against a tall, dark-complexioned and rather distinguished looking man in full uniform—somethink like the gorgeous creatures that stand in front of quack dentists' shops in big American cities—and I asked him if he knew where tickets were on sale.

"Tickets! Tickets! What tickets?" he replied in a tone of surprise, but in very good English.

"Why, tickets to this circus," I explained, beginning to realize that it was possible we had made a mistake and feeling a little crawly.

At this a broad smile spread all over the big man's face. "My dear sir," he said—I could see that he was keeping the lid on his risibilities with a whole lot of effort—"some one had made a mistake. This is my private residence."

"Who in—" I began, but fortunately controlled myself in time to save my life.

"I am commander-in-chief of the Egyptian army," he explained very graciously, "and I am entertaining a few friends this evening. I should be delighted to have you and—and the lady—"

CHAPTER V.

ON the second day after Ches' arrival Bud had come through with the mail and before leaving drew Jim aside out of the boy's hearing.

"The little feller's yours ag'in all comers now, Jim," he said.

"What's that?" asked Jim, surprised by the meaning in the tone.

"He's yours," repeated Bud. "That sweet scented blossom that called himself the boy's dad filled his skin with red eye farther up the line and settled the fuss he had with his dame."

"Hurt her?"

"Man," said Bud slowly, "he used a knife a foot long; gave it to her a dozen times as hard as he could drive. What's your opinion?"

"Great Caesar! Did he get away? But no; of course he couldn't, being on the train."

"He didn't get away. The con. wired the news to Kimballs. What was he to do when a small army of punchers boarded the train and took the prisoner? He couldn't do nothing, and he never loved that black muzzled whelp from the time he sassed him in the depot. The punchers took our friend out and tried him."

"Tried him?"

"With a rope. In three minutes by the watch he was found wanting. Your boy now, Jim, as I was telling you. Going to say anything to him about it?"

"Why," said Jim, bewildered—"why, I don't know, Bud. Guess not just yet on general principles."

"Great little papoose, ain't he?" said Bud, turning in his saddle before his starting rush. "Makings of a man there, all right. The boys in town are dead stuck on him. I'll have to give a complete history when I get back. I must get a gait on, or I'll have Uncle Sammy on my neck again. Inspector started out with me this morning."

"The devil he did!" cried Jim indignantly, well knowing the hardships and dangers of the big rider's route.

"Oh, it's all right," replied Bud, with a wave of his hand. "Come out fine. When the lad first told me he'd been sent out to see why the mails was so late on this line I told him I'd show him right on the spot, but he said there was no use getting hot about it, as he was only doing his duty, so I quieted down.

"Two miles out of town we ran into a wild eyed gang from somewhere who was going to make us dance. We didn't dance, and I'll say for that inspector that he stood by me like a man, but he was awful sick at his stomach later on from the excitement.

"Next thing the bridge was down at Squaw creek, and we swum her. He'd have gone down the flume if I hadn't got hold of his bridle. 'Nice mail route, this,' says he as he got ashore. 'Oh, you'd like it,' says I, 'if you got used to it.' I'd begun to wonder what was next myself. Ain't many people swimming Squaw creek, as you perhaps know.

"Well, next was about ten mile along, just before you come to the old Tin Cup camp. We was passing the bluff there, and all of a sudden—rip, thump, biff!—down comes what looked like the whole side a-top of us. It weren't, though. It was only a cinnamon had lost his balance, leaning over too far to see what we was. That bear landed right agin brother inspector's horse, and brother inspector's horse tried to climb a tree. Inspector himself fell a-top of the bear. I dassent shoot, for the devil himself couldn't have told which was inspector and which bear. Finally bear shakes himself loose and telescopes himself up the canyon the worst scared animile in the country. 'If you'll ketch my horse I'll amble back again,' says the inspector. 'I've investigated this route pretty thorough and find it's just as you say. Lamposts 'll do me all right for awhile.' Come out fine, didn't it?

"Whish there! Untie yourself, you paller bone heap!" And the mail was a quarter of a mile up the trail.

Jim pondered the information concerning Ches carefully, only to adhere to his original determination. He could not see any way in which the boy would be benefited by hearing the news. Still, the miner hated anything that savored of concealment or deception.

"I wish Anne was here to help me," he thought. "She'd know what to do."

He sat long, looking down, his hands clasped about his knees, drinking with old Tantalus. But the reverie ended, as it always did, in action. There was nothing for it but the claim. Success there meant success everywhere.

It was the knowledge that Anne, the boy and all he wished to do for both depended on the pay streak which had urged him to such a fury of effort.

His carelessness of his own life that led him to slap his timbering up any way was born of that same fury. And the consequences came, like most consequences, without a moment's warning.

It was a still and beautiful noon. Ches had pulled out the last car before dinner and started for the cabin.

"GREAT LITTLE PAPOOSE, AIN'T HE?" SAID BUD.

A curious groaning and snapping from the tunnel halted him. It was the giving of the tortured timbers. On the heels of that came a dull, crushing roar. A blast of dust shot from the tunnel mouth, like smoke from a cannon, preceded by a shock that nearly threw the boy off his feet.

Then all was still again. The sun shone as brilliantly as before, blazing down upon the ghastly face of a little boy, who after one heartbroken cry of "Jim! Oh, Jim's killed!" sank down upon the ground, chewing the fingers thrust in his mouth that the pain might make the black wave keep its distance.

For Ches knew that he was alone; that there was no human being within miles to help the man caught in the hand of that mischance but himself, so frantically willing, but so impotent.

"I must git me wits tergedder, I must." And down came the teeth with all the strength of the boy's jaw. "Oh, what will I do? What will I do?" The little head waved from side to side in its agony, and a sudden sob struck him in the throat.

After that one small weakness rose Ches Felton, hero. To the mouth of the tunnel he went. Above the tumbled pile of dirt and timber ran a sort of passage between it and the roof—a way along which a boy might crawl and find out if all the frames were down, to which the silence of the tunnel gave a bitter assent, or if by some most lucky chance one or two had held and Jim be safe within.

Ches climbed to the top and thrust his head into the gloom. "Jim," he called, "Jim!" No answer.

Before him lay the ruin of his partner's work. It was over this that his path lay, as deadly dangerous a path as could be found. The slightest disturbing of the roof above might bring down a thousand tons of dirt upon the one who ventured slowly and hideously to crush his life out there in the dark, beyond sight and sound of the cheerful world without. With this knowledge before him and his inborn fear of the dark hole, as daunting as the hand of death itself, he took his soul in his gripe and wormed his way within.

Once the sharp end of a broken piece of lagging caught in his clothes, and he could go neither forward nor back. There for a second he broke down. Bracing up again, he managed somehow to get the old knife out of his pocket and cut himself free.

He could see little.

A gray spectral light filtered in here and there that defined nothing, even when his eyes grew accustomed to the darkness.

It was an endless journey. In places where the dirt closed in he would be a full minute progressing a foot and a minute of such mortal terror as seldom falls to the lot of man of peace or soldier.

But it ended.

Suddenly the boy's outstretched hand encountered only emptiness below. That frame had held. He dove into the space head first and landed on something soft and warm, the body of his partner.

He had found him. In a paroxysm of joy he flung himself upon the motionless figure and cried his heart out. This, too, he soon conquered. Jim had just so much show. Any delay might wipe it out. He searched the man's pockets until he found a match. By its light he saw the candle stuck into the post and lit it. Then he knelt beside his partner again.

Ches realized what had happened the instant before the calamity. Jim, startled by the noise of the yielding timbers, had made a rush only to be struck down by the rock, that now lay within an inch of him, yet struck into safety for all that. Had he gone a yard farther the life would have been smashed out of him instantly.

But now what? The flowing blood sent a sickening chill through the boy. Had he done this much only to be able to see his pardner die? He drove his teeth into his hand again at the thought. What was that? Was it a trick of the tunnel, his heart sounding in his own ears or a rhythmic beat from outside? Hollow and dull fell that "clatter-clum-clatter-clum."

"Bud!" screamed Ches. "T'ank God, dat's Bud!"

After half a dozen efforts he climbed the dirt pile and went back through the treacherous holes. The rider came so fast! "Oh," groaned the boy, "I'll never make it! Bud'll t'ink we're off somewheres an' pull on. Bud, Bud!" he called at the top of his lungs, but the tunnel swallowed the little voice.

Desperation made him entirely reckless. It was any way to get out before the mail man was beyond call. Glairy with sweat, he pulled, tugged, squirmed and wriggled along until a dirty, small bundle rolled down almost under the mail rider's feet.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

AT THE NECKTIE COUNTER.

The sailor collar is easily the favorite.

It must have long front ends to give that surplice effect.

The round collar ending above the rever gives an unfinished look.

In soft mull, with Val. insertion, the sailor gives an effective finish.

The eyelet embroidery on batiste is also very good.

Embroidered linen and Irish lace continue dainty.

The marquisette neck fixings are very dainty.

The touch of color should be carefully chosen and not much of it.

ONE OF THE "P.'S"

Buffalo automobile men are telling and enjoying a good story about a German who desired to purchase an automobile for family use. To a friend he said:

"Vell, I must py me one auto."

"Gude," said his friend. "Vot kind?"

"I don't know; I must think yet once."

"Get one of the P. kind."

"What kind are they?"

"Vell, der Pierce, der Peerless, der Packard."

"I do that and get that kind."

About a week later he met his friend, who asked if he had made the purchase and remembered the advice and he said he had.

"Vot kind?"

"Oh, I got one of those with a P in it; it's a Puick."

UNCLE SAM'S PROFANE AD.

"Uncle Sam," dignified and precise in all his utterances, has lapsed into naughty, naughty words. "Cuss" words are the latest.

Many of the children shuddered when they read cards issued at the United States recruiting station, 505 South street, yesterday, calling for recruits for the army, and the slang word "cuss." Their emotions of mistrust were quickened into horror when the slangy word "cuss" was followed by a real "cuss" word.

The card inviting nice young men to join the army and become real soldiers read as follows:

"Dont cuss in this place;
It sounds like h——,
If you want to fight,
Join the Army.'

—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Amateur.

Friend—Do you never indulge in the pleasures of getting out and turning up the fresh earth?

Golfer (a novice)—It's no pleasure to me. Every time I go to the club I get nothing but harsh looks for my activities in that direction.

Covered the Ground.

A man who was dunned by a bookseller for a book delivered some time before returned the bill with this written on it: "I never ordered this book. If I did you did not sent it. If I got it, I paid for it, If I didn't, I won't."—Boston Transcript.

On the Way.

"Your soldiers look fat and happy. You must have a war-chest?"

"Not exactly; but things are on a higher plane than they used to be. This revolution is being financed by a moving picture concern."

The Necessary Thing.

"That's just like them."

"What's the matter now?"

"We asked them up for a week-end at our cottage and they didn't bring up a solitary thing for us to eat."

Where to Worw It.

It's no use to tell a pretty girl she is pretty; she knew that long before you did. The place to work it in with success is where a girl isn't pretty.—New York Press.

Not Much.

"I fear we are losing our ideals in the mad rush for wealth."

"Oh, I don't know. Have you noticed the mad rush for the ball park when there is a game on?"

Very Likely.

"I wonder why the idea of marrying haunts me so?"

"Very likely because it is the ghost of a chance."—Baltimore American.

A Few Years Hence.

"Look at him! Haggard, heartbroken, alone!"

"And his wife at the bridge table."

"Yes, it's the old story. He married her to reform her."

A Wonder.

"Pretty smart boy of yours, Dobbs."

"Yep; he knows everything. Graduates this june. After that he'll know more."

Correct.

"My dear, why do they call that young man Spring? Is that his right name?"

"No, mother. I named him that because he's so backward."

Literary Speaking.

"Cassler makes mountains out of molehills."

"Yes. He is the writer of advertising circulars for a picturesque summer resort."

SHOPPING ETHICS.

Systematize your shopping.

Have a definite idea of what you want.

Ask for what you wish in a clear, comprehensive manner.

Remember that one has no right to waste other people's time.

Observe the same courtesy toward others that you would expect yourself.

"Please" and "thank you" are easily said.

Don't buy a thing because it is cheap.

If possible do your shopping alone.

Count your change and be sure to have an error corrected promptly.

If you have an account keep a daily memorandum of purchases, otherwise small sums will mount up and you will be appalled at the amount of the bill at the end of the month.

Be just about allowing the person who arrived before you to be served first, even if the saleswoman turns to your instead.

Carry home small parcels yourself.

If you are a person of leisure avoid shopping on Saturday afternoons. With many it is their only time to shop and the saleswoman should not be needlessly overworked.

Above all, try to be cheerful and unselfish and it will pay. As you treat the world so it will treat you. —Philadelphia Bulletin.

WORLD'S BIGGEST BAKERY.

The largest bakery in the world is in Essen, Prussia, the home of the great Krupp gun factory. It is a vast building in which seventy workmen divided into two shifts work night and day, the London Post states. Everything in done by machinery. A screw turns unceasingly a kneading trough, into which are poured some water and ten sacks of flour of two hundred pounds each.

This machine makes about forty thousand pounds of bread each day in the shape of twenty-five thousand small loaves and fifteen thousand large loaves, produced by 230 sacks of flour of two hundred pounds each. All the operations of bread making are performed in this colossal bakery. The wheat arrives there, is cleaned, ground and brought automatically to the kneading trough by a series of rising and descending pipes. There are thirty-six double ovens and the workmen who watch over the baking of the bread earn from eight to ten cents an hour, making an average of ninety cents a day for eleven hours on duty. They have coffee and bread free; also the use of a bathroom, for they are required to keep themselves spotlessly clean and must wash their hands eight times a day.

A BISHOP WILLIAMS STORY.

The late Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to us youngsters, says a writer in Harper's Magazine, when he came for his visit to my father's parish. His anecdotes and stories enlivened the household. Once, when he was staying with us, he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I reported to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little 4-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked up into my face and said: 'Bishop, do 'oo want to see my piggy book?'

"'Yes, indeed,' said I. So the child slid down and started to get the book. When half way across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and running back and putting one hand on my knee he looked up in my face and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering, 'Bishop, it's Sunday. We must do zis on ze sly!'"

APPLE CHARLOTTE.

Peel, core and cut into squares four medium-sized apples. Put them into a saucepan with two tablespoonsful of fresh butter and four ounces of powdered sugar. Place over a moderate fire and toss them about until the butter has melted and mingled with the sugar. Moisten with a wineglass of white wine or sherry and grate in the peel of half a lemon. Cook for ten minutes until the liquid is almost entirely absorbed by the apples. Remove from the fire and put aside to cool. Line a three-pint mold with thin slices of bread dipped on one side with melted butter and sprinkle with powered sugar. When the mould is lined with the bread fill in with the apples and cover with bread. Lay the mold in a baking pan and place in a hot oven for forty-five minutes. Turn the charlotte out upon a hot dish and serve with hard sauce seasoned with wine.

That Reminded Him.

Jones—I say, I heard an awfully funny thing the other day. (Proceeds to relate mild and mildewed chestnut at great length).

Jim—A ! That reminds me of a man I once met in Nyasaland.

Jones (without interest)—What about him?

Jim—Oh, nothing; only he'd never heard that story of yours before.—Punch.

The Game's the Thing.

Infuriated Farmer (to golfer who has driven out of bounds, and is vigorously searching for his ball among the growing crops)—Now, then, you've no business to be there.

BASEBALL.

Rain, rain, go away, don't you know 'tis baseball day?

Quick, Watson, the baseball bat!

Report has it that Scotch Plains was flooded last night. Let us hope it didn't wash away any ability to play baseball.

The games in the Central League will be played today provided there is no rain between now and play ball time.

"Red" Waller never did love Scotch Plains and it's a ten to one shot that he will do his very best against the sluggers from that vicinity this afternoon.

Lew Wiltse will do the pitching for the Bound Brook club for the remainder of the season now that George Ortlieb has quit. The old vet still has the goods, which he clearly demonstrated Saturday against the local bunch. Lew's arm is working in great shape and his control is almost as good as it was in the good old days.

There is a possibility that George Ortlieb, who recently quit the Bound Brook tailenders, will don a Westfield uniform. The old Bound Brook standby has received an offer from High Bridge but he has not acepted it as yet. Ortlieb is a good twirler and with the proper team behind him he would have proved one of the star box artists of the Central organization.

OHIOANS WANT WILSON.

Columbus, O., July 22.—Governor Harmon and Governor Woodrow Wilson will not meet on the occasion of the Jefferson Club's picnic at a local park on August 14.

Governor Harmon will return from Michigan August 1 for a week during which he will speak at Cincinnati. He will then return to Charlevoix and is not expected to attend the Jefferson Club outing.

Guy H. Woodrow, a cousin of Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, and Dr. Henry W. Miller have gone to Trenton, on behalf of the Jefferson Club, to try to induce Governor Wilson to make a speech in Columbus at any time convenient to him. He has told the club he could not came to the barbecue.

Mrs. Clifford D. Manning, of Myrtle avenue, is entertaining Miss Mary Bass, of Kansas and Miss Olive Sankey, of Pittsburg, Pa.

Rev. John A. MacIntosh, of Malone, N. Y., who will preach at the Congregational church tomorrow morning, is visiting Thomas West, of Norwood avenue.

SEEK MURDERER'S PARDON.

Claimed Ackerman was Insane When He Killed Wife.

An effort is being made in Paterson to secure a pardon for Daniel Ackerman, who is serving a life sentence in State's prison for wife murder. A petition will be presented to the Court of Pardons at the next term.

Ackerman has been in prison seventeen years. He was sentenced to be hanged in August, 1894, by the late Justice Dixon, following his conviction of first degree murder. An appeal was taken and the Court of Pardons, after the Errors Court had refused to consider clemency, commuted this sentence to life imprisonment.

Ackerman killed his wife at Bloomfield, Passaic county, during a jealous rage. He cut her throat with a knife. At the trial it was claimed that he had not partaken of food for two days prior to the commission of the crime and that he was insane at the time.

Miss Mabel Garcia, of Brooklyn, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Henry Phillips, of Duer street.

Miss Lee Bogart, of New York, who has been visiting Miss Stella Swain, of Craig place, returned home today.

REASON FOR Y.M.C.A BREAKING WITH A.A.U

The break which occurred between the Athletic League of North America and the Amateur Athletic Union will seriously affect local athletes as all members of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, who are competitors in open meets, will hereafter be ignored by the A. A. U. Heretofore the A. L. N. A. has been recognized by the A. A. U. and was a member of that organization. But the A. L. N. A., which is the governing body of all Y. M. C. A. athletics, has severed its connections with the amateur union and it will be necessary in the future for all Y. M. C. A. athletes to hold separate registration cards in the A. A. U. before they can compete in open games or championships, the A. L. N. A. membership not being sufficient.

The reasons for the severing of connections by the A. L. N. A. are based on the differences of the purposes of the two organizations, and their methods of administration. The Y. M. C. A. seeks to provide play of a mildly competitive nature and to discourage prize winning and overstraining. It endeavors to recognize all amateur athletics upon a sporting basis and affiliates with high school, college and church athletic associations in furthering their work. The A. A. U. on the other hand tends to restrict competition and protect the big athletes rather than to encourage a large number of men to enter clean healthy sport.

Although the relations between the two organizations have been broken off, the A. L. N. A. will still endeavor to co-operate with the A. A. U. in promoting organized amateur athletics. The termination of the alliance is therefore simply in the interest of greater democracy in administration of local responsibility for the control of sports, of advance in decentralization of management, of less detail in method and of more elasticity in meeting the athletic needs of smaller and isolated communities.

WILL PRESENT FORT WITH OFFICE DESK.

Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill and State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees are arranging to make the presentation of the chair and desk which former Governor John Franklin Fort used when he occupied the office of the executive of the state at Trenton, to the former Governor when he returns from his trip around the world.

Former Governor Fort is expected to arrive home on August 1, but the exact date of the presentation has not been announced. An engrossed copy of the concurrent resolution passed by the Legislature presenting the desk and chair to Governor Fort has been made and will be placed on the top of the desk under a glass slab. Governor Fort has been away for over six months and has made an extended tour of the world.

ITEMS OF INTEREST AT OCEAN GROVE

The Ocean Grove Camp-meeting Association has been springing surprise after surprise on the people this season, but none caused as much comment as the announcement of the fact that a circus would be permitted to come there August 2. It had never been clearly established that the association was opposed to this form of entertainment, but it was generally believed that no circus was classed among the forbidden things. The people are now wondering whether the short change artist will be allowed to operate and whether the "three-card monte" man will be admitted to the camp.

The next important event planned by the musical department of Ocean Grove is the children's festival, which will be celebrated Sunday. The Fairyland chorus will be composed of about 700 children, under the direction of Tali Esen Morgan. The auditorium stage is being enlarged for the purpose by the addition of a wing on each side. The decorations will be of white flowers, shubbery, many electric lights and white muslin. A gigantic star is being erected by Walter Franklin, the chief electrician of the association, which will be made of a number of small electric lights, in the centre of which will be shown stereopticon pictures.

The "Storm" is continuing to attract large audiences, as are also the other concerts given in the auditorium. College Day will be observed tomorrow. "The Messiah" has been announced for August 5. Miss Anna Case, of Plainfield a soprano from the Metropolitan Opera House, was the attraction Thursday night. She was assisted by Miss Florence Austin, the violinist.

On Sunday the Rev. Dr. Robert F. Y. Pierce will give an illustrated talk to children.

Despite the fact that only one oratorio is booked for the season a large number of favorite songbirds have been engaged and will come from time to time. Morrelli will be here tomorrow night.

Neither Dr. Ballard nor any other member of the association is willing to say what stand they will take before the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners, who have been asked by Asbury Park to arrange for the stopping of trains at the main station on Sunday. Although the members of the association will not commit themselves it seems certain that they will not oppose this much-needed improvement, but that they may ask the railroad company to give them a fair price for the freight yard, which they bought at a small cost, with the condition that trains not stop in Asbury Park.

The State Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet her next Tuesday. They will hold their sessions in the Young People's Temple.

The Cars That Are Built to a Splendid Specification

And the Cars That Check up to Their Specification

SOMEONE SOMEWHERE SOMETIME may duplicate this car and price, but NO ONE NOWHERE NOW is offering such remarkable value in a car. Here are a few of the details:
A 36 h.p. four cylinder unit power plant with multiple disc clutch and selective transmission giving three speeds and reverse. Semi-floating rear axle, ball bearing throughout. Wheel base 115 inches and wheels 34 inches by 3½ inch.
Chrome Vanadium steel and other high priced steels used wherever they can be of any possible advantage.

The DeTamble is elegant in appearance, refined in finish, correct in design, staunch and sound in construction. In other words, there is more dependable quality to the square inch in this car than in any other that has ever been put on the market for anywhere near the price.

"GLORY IN CROSS"

Subject of Sermon by Rev. J.Y. Broek at Union Service Last Night.

AT 1st PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Presides and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson Offers Prayer—Interesting Talk On Paul's Words.

A large congregation attended the union services of the Trinity Reformed, First Presbyterian, First Methodist and First Baptist churches in the First Presbyterian church last night. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, presided, and Rev. John Y. Broek, of the Trinity Reformed church, preached the sermon. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist church. An offertory selection was well rendered by the quartet of the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. Mr. Broek took his text from Galatians 6-14, "God forbid that I should glory except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ by whom the world is crucified unto me and I unto the world." The sermon was in part as follows:

"Paul always refers to the sacrifice of Christ in his writings for this was the very heart of his gospel. Christ was the impulse of the apostle's life and we can never think too much of the Christ and the cross, which is the greatest inspiration of all Christian life and thought. It is the great incentive to all growth in religious life.

"It has been said that it is not so essential what we believe if we are sincere in what we believe. Such a statement is erroneous upon the face of it for if we sincerely believed that the earth were flat, we would be laboring under a false apprehension, which might lead to disastrous results. Because other creeds than the true belief have won converts, is it any proof that sincere believers in these faiths are following the truth?

"The Galatians tried to save their souls by being good and leading upright lives. Some claim that this is the true path for salvation but what can we use as a standard for such lives? There can be no such a standard of salvation. Paul said that our salvation is not of ourselves but of the precious blood of Jesus Christ.

"Paul said that he did not want to glory in anything except the cross of Calvary. The apostle was a well educated man, having studied under the greatest teacher of the day and on account of his superior knowledge, he might have gloried in this fact. And then again he might have gloried in the height of his social position for by keeping the strict observation of Jewish ceremonies before he was converted, Paul had risen to a high position with the people and the king of his country. Nor would Paul glory in the fact that his life had been one of world-wide influence and one which had been exceedingly useful to God. We often forget that what we have comes through the Heavenly Father and so we are likely to glory in our own powers. Paul would not even glory that he was caught up in the third heaven, an honor far above that given to any of his fellow-men for in the words of this great preacher, all such gloryings would be foolish. He would glory, however, in the cross of Christ, which was not the cross of shame or infamy but the cross of Christ, annointed prophet, priest and king.

"The reasons for glorying in the cross are certainly substantial ones. In the first place, the great revelation of sin looms up through the distance as we look at the cross. We see in that emblem the mirror through which we can look at ourselves and find out what it is within us, which helped to crucify the Lord Jesus.

"And then the great pardon for all sin is revealed through the sign of Calvary. As the tide washes away the sand on the seashore, so Christ's blood clenses us from all sin. Through the cross we can also understand the Atonement and Reconciliation for the Atonement is simply the At-onement of the sinner's hand and the hand of God united through the mediator, Jesus Christ by whom man and God are reconciled.

"The real victory of the life of Christ is shown through Calvary's tree for the life of our Saviour was not a tragedy since life everlasting was won through His sacrifice. The cross is the revelation of the stupendous love of God for a world of sin.

"It is necessary for us to follow the cross of Christ through the Gethsemane of life where our all will be crucified and laid upon the altar of service. Then we can say, 'God forbid that I should glory except in the cross of Christ.'"

MISSED FIANCE

Steamer Arrived Ahead of Time and Prof. Henry Von Hote Was Not There.

THEY WERE MARRIED TODAY.

The Bride Was Miss Clara Lindemann, of Berlin, a Former Pupil of Prof. Von Hofe—The Couple Will Reside Here.

On account of the early arrival of the steamship President Lincoln, of the Hamburg-American line, Professor Henry von Hofe, of Watchung avenue, missed his fiancee, Miss Clara Lindemann, of Berlin, Germany, whom he was to have met at the pier when the steamer docked this morning. The couple were to go from the pier to a German Lutheran church in New York city and be married but their plans were frustrated when the boat arrived and the professor was not at the pier.

Professor von Hofe had been informed by the officials of the Hamburg-American line that the President Lincoln would dock early this morning and so he had formed his plans accordingly. The steamer made a quick trip across the ocean and came in a day ahead of scheduled time. The professor was sitting in his home at Watchung avenue when he received a telegram from Miss Lindemann stating that she was in New York city and would stay at a hotel over night.

Yesterday morning Mr. VonHofe went to New York and met his fiancee, whom he brought to this city to see her new home. Last night the couple returned to New York, where they were married this morning, the delay having been necessitated on account of the inability to procure a marriage license on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. VonHofe returned to this city this afternoon and will take up their residence on Watchung avenue, near Pearl street, where the bridegroom conducts a musical studio. The marriage was the culmination of a romance begun in Germany. Miss Lindemann, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franz Lindemann, of Berlin, was a playmate of Mr. Von Hofe when the two were children. In later years she became his music pupil, he having been a teacher of the piano in that city. A year and a half ago the professor came to this country and recently took up his residence in this city. The wedding was a very plain one, being attended by only a few of Mr. VonHofe's friends in New York musical circles.

She is survived by three daughters; Mrs. Brown, of Staten Island and the Misses Julia and Margaret Carman, who have been residing with her. The body will be brought to this city for interment and announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Novel Speed Trap Disclosed.

A general notice to all automobilists was sent out this week by Secretary Holgate, of the Newark Motor Club, warning them against a new and very ingenious speed trap, which is being operated on Staten Island. The rural police on the island have arranged a plan for taking the time of a motorist when he arrives on the ferry at either St. George or Tottenville and again when he leaves the island. If the motorist's time exceeds eight miles an hour, which is the speed limit, they promptly issue a warrant for his arrest. This has been worked on a number of motorists lately, much to their annoyance, and the notice is sent out so that New Jersey motorists will not fall into the trap.

Runaway Horse In Collision.

A horse belonging to Benjamin Epstein, of West Third street, took fright while in front of its owner's place of business Saturday afternoon and ran away. It made its way to South Second street and collided with one of the Eastern Bottling Company's wagons. The force of the impact broke the pole of the Eastern Bottling wagon, spilled the wet goods in the street and slightly injured the two horses of the team. The Epstein horse was also injured and was easily caught.

George W. Neff, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Philadelphia, has returned home after spending several days visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ewart of Fairview avenue.

OLD SOLDIER DEAD

William H. Williams Passes Away Suddenly in Mulford Estil's Store.

CONVERSING WITH HIS SON.

Was a Veteran of Civil War and One of Oldest Newsdealers in City—Leaves Wife and Four Children.

While conversing with his son in Mulford Estil's store on Park avenue, this morning, William H. Williams, the parcel expressman, dropped dead. He was 72 years old and had been a resident of this city practically all his life. Heart failure was assigned as the cause of death.

As was his daily custon he was visiting the different merchants for whom he brought packages from New York, and had reached Estil's store. In a few minutes he was to take his regular train to New York. He had just completed getting the order from his son, Will F. Williams and they were conversing about a personal matter when he collapsed on the floor. His son was behind the counter and ran to his father, at the same time calling to one of the other clerks to get a doctor. When Dr. Pittis arrived in response to the call, he announced that death had been instantaneous. Dr. Westcott, the county physician was notified and ordered the body removed to George Cole's undertaking parlors, where he later viewed it and issued a burial permit.

Mr. Williams is survived by his widow and the following children; Mrs. Fred R. Smaller, Mrs. Irving Niles and Miss Clara Williams, all of West Fourth street and Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue; also a sister, Mrs. Stanton Clark, of Westerly, R.I., and two brothers, John Williams and Charles Williams, both of this city.

At the beginning of the Civil War Mr. Williams enlisted in Co. K Thirteenth New Jersey Volunteers, and was made a commissary sergeant. In the second day's battle at Bull Runn he served the rations tnd took a deep interest in the celebration last week of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle. After serving his term of enlistment he came back to Plainfield and opened a newsstand in connection with the stationary business conducted by Mr. Estil. This business he conducted successfully until about ten years ago when E. A. Laing took charge. Since that time Mr. Williams has been operating a parcel express business between here and New York.

He was a regular attendant at the First Methodist church and for many years served as librarian for the Sunday-school. His sudden death was a severe shock to his numerous friends.

BASEBALL TEAMS TO PLAY FOR BABY CAMP

The Monroe Avenue M. E. team of the Sunday-school Baseball League at a recent meeting, decided to donate the entire proceeds of the game on Crescent Oval, August 5, between that team and the Park Avenue Baptists, the two leaders in the race, to the King's Daughters Baby Camp on the mountains. The game promises to be one of the best of the season in this league. The teams have only met once this summer, and on that occasion the Methodist boys won out by a score of 4 to 3, ten innings.

It is also proposed to sell ice cream, lemonade, peanuts, etc., at the game as a means of swelling the funds. The admission to the field will be ten cents and fifteen cents to the grandstand. Members of the teams will have tickets out in a few days and in this way it is hoped that a considerable sum will be collected for the baby camp.

FEW CARDS RETURNED AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Although the day was ideal for the game, there was not a very large field out at the Park Golf Club, Saturday. The only event was the weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups, and a half-dozen scores were returned. The points for the President's cup were won by A. M. Morrel, Charles B. Morse and H. L. Moodey, while the same trio took the points for the scratch cup. These cards were posted:

A. M. Morrel, 100, 17-83; Charles B. Morse, 103, 19-84; H. L. Moodey, 112, 26-86; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 100, 7-93; R. V. Carpenter, 106, 13-93; Peter C. Sweeny, 116, 15-101.

CO. K. IN CAMP

Soldier Boys Erect Tents and Prepare For Housekeeping.

INTERESTING SUNDAY SERVICES

Many Plainfielders Visit Camp and Are Given a Cordial Reception—Ready for Drills.

(From Special Correspondent.)

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, N. J., Sunday.—Co. K arrived Saturday afternoon at 3:25 and after assembling and marching to camp, Corp. Hahn's squad was set to work raising tents which was done in plenty of time to give the boys a chance to rest and clean up before the first meal in camp. Prior to this year the soldier boys found their camps all laid out for them so that all that was necessary to do was to erect tents, build fires in the stoves and start" keeping house." This year the only tent floors in place were those for the officers, so the whole camp had to be laid out, tents erected, and the cooks had to go to the commissary for their supplies as is done in the regular army.

There was little for the boys to do after supper and today. At 11 o'clock the call for church was sounded and the command was pleased to see that so many Co. K boys attended the service. This service consisted of music by the brigade band; invocation by the regiment chaplain; hymn, "Come Thou Almighty King," and responsive reading. This was followed by a solo by Donald Chambers and Captain Dubell, of the Third Reg., offered prayer. "Onward Christian Soldiers" followed the prayer and then Catp. Handley, of the Second Regiment preached the sermon. Another solo by Mr. Chambers and the service closed with a benediction. The band played a recessional as the troops marched out.

One feature of the camp this year is greatly appreciated by the boys and during the heavy rains was indeed a boon to them in the preparation of their meals. The kitchens, instead of being constructed on the old lines are this year built in regular army style, being of frame construction of timber and covered with wire netting to keep out flies and mosquitoes, a concrete floor and ice boxes being built in the ground.

Co. K has a shower bath that is used by all the men after drills and at any other time they are at liberty to make use of it if they choose.

Among the visitors at camp today were the following from Plainfield: W. A. Coddington, Herbert Buxton, H. A. Todd, Mr. and Mrs. William Hudson, Harold Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker, Harold Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Green, George Cole and William Smalley.

Sergt. George Apgar, as first sergeant and Sergt. Dow, in charge of the mess, are making good men in these positions and what the boys term, "on the job."

REV. DR. HERRING TALKS ON PALESTINE

The services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home yesterday afternoon was largely attended and full of interest. The feature was the singing of a choir of mixed voices from the Home, under the leadership of Clifford A. Braider. The choir from Trinity Reformed church also rendered a number of selections, which added great interest to the service.

James F. Parker, of the borough, was in charge of the meeting, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, was the speaker, taking for his subject, "The Blue Beads of Palestine," from which he gave an excellent talk.

Meetings will be held at the Home hereafter, every evening except Wednesday and Saturday. Wednesday evening, Mrs. Frank Houston Bogle, of Truell Hall, will give an entertainment of impersonations and F. C. Iglehart, Jr., former baritone of the First Presbyterian church choir, will sing. The public is invited to any and all of these services.

Middlekauff by George Wyckoff, of Clinton, was postponed until August 24, in the District court this morning owing to the inability of Jasper Cadmus, a material witness, to be present. The jury was called before it was learned that Mr. Cadmus was out of town and was excused ed until the new date of the trial.

EXCITING HOLD-UP

Mrs. J. D. Moore, of Putnam Ave., Attacked Near Her Home Saturday Night.

THE HIGHWAYMAN ESCAPED.

Two Young Women Were Accompanying Mrs. Moore When Assailant Overtook Them—Frightened By Their Screams.

A bold attempt at highway robbery was committed at 10 o'clock Saturday night, when Mrs. James D. Moore, of 914 Putnam avenue, was attacked in front of her home while in company with two young women, by an Italian, who was frightened away by their screams and made good his escape. The bold foreigner grabbed Mrs. Moore by the throat and shaking her violently felt for her pocketbook which he supposed she carried. The would-be thief was disappointed in his search for Mrs. Moore did not carry her purse with her that night, and he then beat a hasty retreat through the backyards of the houses in that vicinity.

The entire neighborhood of Putnam avenue and Franklin place was aroused by the screams of the women and within five minutes a crowd of one hundred men and women and three policemen had congregated at the scene of the holdup. A thorough search of the premises was made by the policemen and several men living in the neighborhood for the highwayman but he had gained too much of a lead to be caught.

Mrs. Moore was on her way home from town being in company with the Misses Agnes Weed, of Tampa, Florida, and Lucy Davis, of Petersburg, Virginia, who are visiting her this summer. At East Seventh and Washington streets, Miss Weed heard footsteps in back of them and glancing around saw a rough looking man following closely. The three women pretended not to have noticed their pursuer and kept on their way, quickening their steps all the while. As fast as the women increased their speed, the man increased his.

When the women reached the border of the lawn of Mr. Moore's residence, directly under an electric street lamp, the man ran up and seized Mrs. Moore who was walking on the inside of her two young friends. All three began to scream and as soon as the Italian found that Mrs. Moore did not have a purse with her, he ran away between the houses at that place. Mrs. Moore's husband and several of the men of the neighborhood, who had heard the screams, started in pursuit of the highwayman with drawn revolvers but were unable to catch him.

Mrs. Moore telephoned to police headquarters herself and three policemen were hurried to the scene in the patrol wagon. A futile search of the neighborhood was then made, but a sharp lookout is being kept for the would-be thief. Mrs. Moore described her assailant as being of a stocky build, about five feet two inches tall. He was roughly shaven and wore a slouch felt hat and ragged clothes, and appeared to be a foreigner, probably an Italian.

The strange fact of the holdup is that both Miss Weed and Miss Davis carried pocketbooks in their hands but it is believed that the Italian supposed the eldest of the three carried the money. Both of these young women are graduates of the Southern Female College, of Petersburg, Virginia and are spending the summer with Mrs. Moore. All three are suffering from nervous shocks but Mrs. Moore was not injured by the highwayman's attack.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE BUT NO ONE INJURED.

Automobiles owned and driven by W. R. Hinsdale, of Orange and W. C. Bocker, of Newark, collided at Park avenue and Front street, yesterday afternoon. One car was turning into Front street and the other from Front street into Park avenue. The rear wheels locked and the wheel on Mr. Bocker's car gave way.

The occupants of nether car were unseated and aside from a scare were uninjured. The owners got together and Mr. Hinsdale agreed to settle the bill for repairs. As there was no speed violation, no arrests were made.

Month's Rainfall.

ATTEMPTS HOLD-UP

John Kline Escapes Highwayman by Driving Through Barricade.

HARRY VAN NEST IS SHOT.

Police Make Search for Robber, Who Escapes On Victim's Bicycle—VanNest's Injuries Not Considered Serious.

While returning from Keyport at 1 o'clock this morning, where he had been called at repair an automobile which had been ditched, John Kline, foreman at the Martin garage, ran into a barricade of fence rails on Park avenues, near the Lehigh Valley bridge, which had been thrown up by some unknown man for the purpose of aiding him in an effort to hold up and rob automobilists. Kline's automobile knocked the barricade down, slightly damaging the machine and just when he was about to stop he noticed a man at the roadside. Instead of stopping he put on speed and came to this city, notifying the police upon his arrival.

Roundsman Higgins and Patrolman Saffron were sent to the scene but before they arrived, Harry VanNest, of Dog Corners, riding a bicycle on his way home from Menlo Park, ran into the heap of rails, which he saw too late to avoid hitting. At the same time he saw the rails he noticed the man by the roadside and drew his revolver. In falling the revolver was discharged. As VanNest lay in the road the highwayman stood over him with drawn revolver and fired two shots, one of which lodged in VanNest's leg, after which he took the bicycle and rode away.

VanNest managed to make his way to the gateman's house at the railroad crossing and while telling the gateman about the attempted holdup, Richard Randolph, of West Eighth street, came along in his automobile. He stopped to tell the gateman about the rails across the road, and took VanNest home. Dr. Hedges was called to attend the young man, whose injury, while painful, is not serious although it will lay him up for some time.

A few moments after Mr. Randolph had departed, the police arrived and upon learning VanNest's story from the gateman continued on towards Metuchen, the direction the highwayman had fled. They removed the rails from the road to prevent any further trouble and although a thorough search was made of all the roads to Metuchen, no trace of the hold-up man was found and the police of Metuchen had not noticed a man on a bicycle riding into town. It is thought that he abandoned it on the outskirts of town to avoid detection.

It was very dark at the time and the nearest light, at the tower house, made it impossible tto get a good description of the man. He is said to be of medium height and rather stocky built. He wore a slouch hat and spoke in a gruff voice with a foreign accent.

The automobile Mr. Kline was called to repair belong to Frank Conley, of Jersey City. In order to avoid hitting another car he ran off the road into a ditch near Keyport. There were five passengers in the car, which turned over, breaking a wheel. None of the passengers were injured and were able to continue home after the repair was made.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside in Norfolk, where the groom is foreman in a large manufacturing plant.

The bride has been a resident of this city since last December, and during her stay here has been popular in the younger set of the Netherwood district. Mr. Gerow also has a large circle of friends in Norfolk.

TWO DISTINGUISHED DRIVERS.

We take pleasure in presenting the portraits of two celebrated coach drivers. A. G. Vanderbilt, whose coach The Venture, leaves London every other morning for Brighton with a load of human freight, returning for town next morning and Reddy Brown, whose coach The Bugtrap, can be found any old hour of the day or night down at the depot. As a matter of fact young Alf has to hand it to Reddy as a driver but it's 8 to one that Alf worries the most over his job. We can recommend both.

Park Avenue	3	1	.750
First Baptist	1	3	.250

Monroe Avenue continued its winning streak Saturday afternoon by taking the second game from Trinity by a score of 8-1. Park Avenue Baptists kept agoing in the city Sunday-school League by overwhelming the First Baptist team easily. Both games were hard fought and the Park Avenue-First Baptist match was rather a scrappy contest. The need of regular good umpires was clearly manifested in this game, the majority of the arguments occuring over poor decisions.

Monroes Hit Hard.

In the game marked by great hitting the Monroe Avenues, the leaders in the Sunday-school League, were the victors over the team from the Trinity Reformed church on the latter's grounds, Saturday afternoon.

VanZandt, pitching for the Reformers, and VanArsdale for the Monroeites, were hit freely but the latter had the better of the argument. His team landing on the horsehide when it meant runs.

The lineup for Trinity was Schenck, ss; Haberle, lf; Vail, 2b; Ford, 1b; Harriman, 3b-c; Doeringer, 3b-c; Fritts, rf; VanZandt, p; Kirch, cf. Monroe Avenue aggregation was composed of Gunselman, lf; Doranan, c; Hess, c; Beckman, 3b; Hendry, 1b; Brown, cf; VanArsdale, p; Warrick, 2b; Mulford, rf.

The game by innings is as follows:
Monroe Ave. ....0 0 3 0 2 0 0 4 0—9

Baptists Defeat Baptists.

The Park Avenue Baptist Baseball team easily defeated the First Baptist church team Saturday afternoon by the score of 18 to 8. Ragged playing on bothe sides marred the game. Carlton Smith, pitching for the First Baptist team was not accorded the support his work in the box deserved.

JUSTIN LINDSEY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

The local police received a message yesterday afternoon from the Elizabeth police that Justin Lindsey, of Grant avenue, had attempted suicide in the Central Railroad station in that city and was at that time in a precarious condition in the Elizabeth General Hospital, where he had been removed in an automobile, hired by several companions who were with him. The young man had taken strychnine after going unaccompanied to the men's retiring room. His long absence aroused the suspicion of his companions and a search revealed him almost unconscious and suffering intensely.

He was able to gasp what he had done and the automobile was speedily obtained from a nearby garage. The police here notified his parents. His condition today is said to be serious, but it is thought that the heroic measures which were resorted to after his arrival at the hospital will save his life.

Young Lindsey was until some time ago employed by the P. S. C. in the engineering department at the Newark office. His health broke down some months ago and since that time he has been in a sanatorium in New York, where he was still a patient. He was allowed to come to his home in this city to visit his parents. It is thought that owing to his slow recovery he was prompted to commit the rash deed, there being no other reason known.

TALKED SECRETLY OVER PASTOR'S RESIGNATION.

Rahway, July 24.—Methodist ministers gathered in the First Methodist church here Friday night, locked the doors to reporters and the world at large and then sat down to talk over the resignation of Rev. Robert A. Brown, who has left the denomination and gone over to the Episcopal church. Before the meeting was adjourned a committee was appointed to look after the appointment of another pastor to take Mr. Brown's place.

According to an explanation of Mr. Brown, he left the church because of a dissatisfaction in his appointment to Rahway, where, he said the people had asked for a young man without a family.

JUDGE DE MEZA HOLDS BUSY COURT SESSION

There was a large list of offenders in the city court this morning, on whom Judge William G. DeMeza passed sentence as follows: On Louis Davis, colored, who started a disturbance Saturday night in Peter Simmon's poolroom, on Madison avenue, a fine of $50 or 90 days. Edward Condict, colored, who was in charge of the place, came in for a lecture on taking the law into his own hands and ejecting Davis instead of calling the police.

Henry Hager, of West Third street arrested on complaint of non-support preferred by his wife was allowed to go under a suspended sentence and a promise to take the pledge for a year and leave his wages each Saturday with Overseer-of-the-Poor Alex. Ayers. Simon Roth, arrested on complaint of Chief T. O. Doane, for a violation of the building laws, will be given a hearing tomorrow morning.

Lawrence Wallace, of Cottage place was allowed to go under a suspended sentence after promising to take the pledge for a year. He will have it drawn today and will leave it with Judge DeMeza tomorrow morning. Thomas Kennedy, who interferred with Officer Flatley, when the latter was arresting Wallace, was told to attend to his own affairs in the future and was allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

Mary and George Becker, of South Plainfield, who were arersted on West Front street, Saturday night by Patrolman Kelley, for fighting, will be given a hearing tomorrow morning. The woman attacked Becker with an umbrella and the noise of their quarrel attracted a large crowd. The fight was occasioned by family matters.

William Gray, colored, of Plainfield avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Flatley, Saturday night, after a struggle. He has given the police of the city and borough trouble at different times and in view of his past record he was fined $20 with the alternative of 60 days in jail.

Tony Senga, of Cottage place, came home drunk Saturday night. He had some meat and wanted it cut. His wife was afraid he would cut his fingers and in trying to take the knife from him they got into a fight. The police were called and arrested both. This morning the matter was patched up between them and they departed together.

FAVORS THOMPSON

Westfied Standard Tells Why He Should be Nominated For State Senate.

HIS RECORD IS REVIEWED.

What Westfielder Has Accomplished as an Assemblyman Pointed Out —Political Wisdom and popular Demand Call for Him.

The Westfield Standard comes out for Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of that place, for the Republican State senatorial nomination and in the following words tells why Mr. Thompson should receive the party nomination:

To those who have watched the career of Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson for the past ten years, during which he has filled one position after another with conspicuous ability and success, it is not surprising that he is now the candidate most seriously considered in the Republican party of Union county for State Senator. The Assemblyman is not a shouter, but a quiet, painstaking and thorough worker, with marked intellectual ability and recognized integrity. Evidence of the confidence he has continually inspired in the minds of the people of our town and in the county has been given repeatedly. When Mr. Thompson was first elected town clerk of eWstfield he won over his Democratic opponent. After three years of service the Democrats of Westfield would run no one against him, and he was re-elected without opposition. Serving another term of three years the same conditions prevailed, his record being such that no one would contest the office with him, and he was again practically unanimously re-elected. He was then nominated for the legislature and received the highest vote of the assembly candidates at election. In the Assembly he was at once recognized as an excellent legislator, gaining such a reputation that the following year he was the only candidate on the Republican ticket who survived the Wilson landslide that swept the Democrats into power.

Though entering a House of Assembly this year whose majority was not of his political faith Assemblyman Thompson again demonstrated his ability to command the respect and consideration of all parties. He was chosen by the Speaker as the minority member of the Assembly Committee to investigate the alleged frauds committed by Republican election officials in Atlantic county. Actuated by motives entirely non-partisan, conscientiously desiring to get at the truth, no matter whom it hurt, Mr. Thompson at once assumed a leading part in the investigation, devoted almost his entire time during the recesses of the session to the work of the investigation, and was one of those who finally drafted a complete report to the House of Assembly setting forth the extent of the evils discovered after taking 1,400 pages of testimony on which the Special Grand Jury is now finding indictments. For his fairness, independence and thoroughness in this work Mr. Thompson was complimented by the newspapers on all sides.

Later, when one of the big measures of the session was in danger of failure because of the deadlock on it between the two Houses at midnight of the last day of the session, Mr. Thompson was again chosen from the minority side by the Speaker as a member of the Conference Committee of the Senate and Assembly to try to bring about a compromise that would insure the passage of the bill, and the effort was successful. Called to occupy the Speaker's chair on several occasions, the Union Assemblyman won the admiration of the entire House by the facility with which he presided over the deliberations of the Assembly,guiding legislation through the mill with a cool head and a thorough knowledge of parliamentary procedure. Beingfi the only Republican member from Union county in the Assembly the work of handling all of Senator Ackerman's bills there after they had passed the Senate, work which ordinarily would be divided among the three assemblymen, devolved entirely upon him and was successfully managed by him throughout the session. A bill to abolish the office of Registrar in Union county was introduced by one of the Democratic members. Mr. Thompson could find no one in the county who favored the bill, but was on the contrary deluged with letters from people of both parties against the measure. In obedience to what appeared to be the sentiment of his constituents Mr. Thompson set out to defeat the measure. Such was the force of his argument in the debate on the bill, and his standing and reputation among the members, that although the bill was a political measure, strenuously advocated by a member of the party that controlled the House of Assembly, Mr. Thompson was able to defeat it on the floor.

The various city attorneys of Union county were in Trenton during the session, in the interest of their respective municipalities, know that they found in the Union Assemblyman one ever on the alert to procure the enactment of legislation desired b yUnion county communities and to defeat that opposed to their interests, and he was uniformly successful.

Mr. Thompson has not been a man of one idea, nor sought prominence by espousing some special measure likely to gain the public eye at the expense of his general duties as a legislator. He has carefully studied the provisions of all measures, made himself familiar with what was good and bad among the thousand bills introduced, and has shown his ability to discuss on their merits all of the measures as they come up for passage. He has so repeatedly had bills re-committed or withdrawn because of defects discovered and pointed out by him that his alertness in this respect has been a matter of comment. In committee he has redrafted numerous bills, meritorious in substance but faultily drawn. The long desired law to compel the slaughter houses to operate under the supervision of the State Board of Health, in the interest of the public health, was introduced by Mr. Thompson and is now a law. His amendments to the Geran election bill were all adopted before that bill became a law. He was known among his colleagues as a cool, careful, independent and conscious worker in the Assembly to whom could safely be entrusted any work that falls to the lot of a legislator in the interest of the people. His advancement to the Senate would meet with widespread approval as a meritorious promotion of a capable man; it would also reflect credit upon the county and continue the high standards it has heretofore adopted in the selection of its Senators.

As a vote-getter he is the strongest man in the party, and will poll more Democratic votes as the head of the ticket running for Senator than any one else that could be named, while retaining all the Republican support, and this without and reflection upon any other candidates. Because of his capability and availability, both of which are imperative this year, the Republican party ought to nominate Assemblyman Thompson for Senator. Both political wisdom and popular demand unite to make him the man to nominate.—Union County Standard.

LAMBERT RELEASED MUST SUPPORT FAMILY

A settlement out of court was made in the case between Isaac Lambert and his wife this morning. Lambert was arrested after a nine months' search by Marshal L. A. Pope, of the borough, at Westfield, Friday night. Judge Wm. G. DeMeza appeared for Mrs. Lambert while S. S. Swackhamer represented the prisoner. It was agreed that Lambert should give to Benjamin F. Mundy, the overseer of Raritan township, the sum of $3 per week for the support of his two children. Mrs. Elizabeth DeForest, of West Second street, went the $500 bond for Lambert's release.

Mrs. Lambert, the mother of the prisoner, stated this morning that her boy had always been a respectable man and had good references from all of his former employers. The case was to have been tried before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape but the settlement was made.

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF GIRL WHO DIED IN 1886.

Flanders, July 23.—The birthday anniversary of Miss Eliza Platt Stoddard, or "Linnet," as she was known, daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Elijah W. Stoddard, of Succassunna, was observed Friday afternoon with exercises in the Presbyterian church, of which Dr. Stoddard is pastor. Miss Stoddard, not quite seventeen years old, died May 19, 1886, and each year since her birthday has been observed. The exercises consisted of "The Pageant" that has been presented in New York city. Some fifteen or twenty nations were represented by young men, young women and children in native costumes.

After the services refreshments were served in the Memorial chapel and on the church grounds. The souvenirs were orange-colored baskets of bonbons, on the top of which were sprays of forget-me-nots.

Women Helped Fight Fire.

Roselle, July 24—Mrs. Charles W. MacQuoid, wife of Mayor MacQuoid, of this place, and prominent among New Jersey club women, was prompt in answering an alarm of fire Friday afternoon and with her automobile drew one of the hose wagons to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rule, of 133 Fourth avenue. Mrs. MacQuoid has distinguished herself on several occasions in assisting the local fire department in going to fires and in extinguishing them. The fire was discovered by Walter, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rule, who saw smoke coming out of a rear window. Mrs. Rule, after turning in an alarm, fought the blaze with a garden hose. She was assisted by neighbors who had the fire well under control when the firemen, who answered promptly, appeared. The fire did very little damage. It started in some rubbish in the cellar.

The Misses Laura and Marie Gavin, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Nyack, N. Y., are visiting at the home of their aunt, Miss Elizabeth Gavin, of Columbia avenue.

DOWNING STREET, LONDON.

It Bears the Name of a Clever Man From Massachusetts.

Downing street, London, where are the British colonial and foreign offices and the official residence of the first lord of the treasury and where cabinet councils are held, perpetuates the name of a clever man from Massachusetts. Those were the days before the Fourth of July had any significance in American annals, and George Downing, the first scholar in the first public school in Massachusetts and the first graduate sent out by Harvard college, came to England and became a chaplain in Cromwell's army.

By a remarkable stroke of fortune he was sent to represent England at The Hague when Europe was trembling before Oliver, and during three distinct eras in England's history he held the office of British ambassador at the Dutch court. He was as popular or as clever under the Merry Monarch as under the protector and the commonwealth, and it came to pass in the reign of Charles II. that the man from Massachusetts was granted a great tract of land at Westminster, where he built huge mansions and laid out Downing street.

To this day Downing's street is Downing street still, and, though George Downing is forgotten, there is no name in the British empire which is more familiar to us than his.—St. James' Gazette.

GREEN TURTLES.

The Youngsters Have a Perilous Time After Being Hatched.

Concerning the great turtles of the southwest Indian ocean a traveler says: "The chelonian, or green turtle (Chelone mydas), is an animal of considerable economic importance to the atoll, for it still occurs in the vast hordes which are so often described by early voyagers in the tropics. There appear to be two distinct groups—one resident and small in numbers, the other migratory and visiting the atoll to breed in numbers impossible to estimate.

"The latter arrives in December, and from then to April the sea seems alive with turtles. The females seek the small sand beaches and then ascend them with the rising tide, pushing themselves laboriously above high tide mark. Holes are then dug in the sand by means of the fore flippers until a satisfactory one is obtained, and the eggs, 200 in number, are buried, the turtle returning to sea immediately.

"After forty days the eggs batch almost simultaneously, and the young turtles dig their way up out of the sand and go down to the sea in a long procession, in the course of which they offer an easy prey to their enemies, the frigate birds and herons. Once in the sea, sharks and other large fish eat them, and only 10 per cent reach maturity."—Chicago News.

A Strong Recommendation.

"We are not taking on any new traveling men just now," the safe manufacturer said. "Business is rather dull in our line."

"Well, if you need one let me know," said the applicant for a job. "I'd rather sell your safe than any there is in the market. It's the best."

"Are you an expert?"

"Yes, sir. I know all there is to be known about safes."

"Ever deal in them?"

"No, sir."

"Ever work in a factory?"

"No, sir."

"How do you know ours is the best?"

"Because it takes longest to break into it."

"How do you know that?"

"I'm a reformed burglar."

He got the job.—Chicago Tribune.

An Immense Flower.

The largest of all the flowers of the world is said to be the rafflesia, a native of Sumatra, so called after Sir Stamford Raffles. This immense flower is composed of five round petals of a brickish color, each measuring a foot across. These are covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens. The cup of the rafflesia is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is covered with projections like miniature cows' horns. The cup when free from its contents will hold about twelve pints. The flower weighs about fifteen pounds and is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch.—Scientific American.

Rhinoceros Horns.

The horns of the African rhinoceros sometimes grow to the length of four feet. In olden times rhinoceros horns were employed for drinking cups by royal personages, the notion being that poison put into them would show itself by bubbling. There may have been some truth in the idea, inasmuch as many of the ancient poisons were acids, and these acids would decompose the horny material very quickly.—London Telegraph.

Adaptable.

Client—Before we decide on the house my husband asked me to inquire if the district is at all unhealthy. House Agent—Er—what is your husband's profession, madam? Client—He is a physician. House Agent—Hum—er—well, I'm afraid truth compels me to admit that the district is not too healthy.—London Opinion.

An Endurance Test.

"Here is an account of a remarkable endurance test."

"Umph! Some couple been married for fifty years?"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Way of a Woman.

"She passed me on the street yesterday without speaking."

"She did?"

"Yes, the stuck up thing."

"I wouldn't say that. Perhaps she didn't mean to snub you."

"Of course she meant to snub me. You see, I had on my old hat."

"That wouldn't make any difference to her."

"Oh, wouldn't it? Once before when I happened to have on an old dress she didn't speak to me, either. Now I'm through with her. If she doesn't care enough for me to speak when I'm in my old clothes she needn't speak at all. I won't speak to her when I'm dressed up. That's all there is to it."

"Did you speak to her?"

"I should say not. It's her place to speak first. Do you suppose I'm going to attract attention by yelling my lungs out for the like of her? I guess not."

"Perhaps she didn't see you."

"See me? Of course she did. I saw her, didn't I? Then why didn't she see me?"—Detroit Free Press.

When the Shoe Pinches.

"My own common sense and the shoe clerk permitting, I shall never wear another pair of tight shoes," said a woman, "but if I should be inveigled into making myself uncomfortable I know what I shall do to allay the pain. The ministrations to the aching feet of a man who called on my Italian cobbler for relief showed me a remedy. The man's shoes pinched in three different places. Having located the painful spots Rafael dipped a long strip of canton flannel into boiling water and held the cloth stretched tightly across the man's shoes. When the water began to evaporate he dampened the cloth again and repeated the process several times.

"'Now,' said he at last, 'your shoes are set to your feet. No more hurt.'

"The man gave him a quarter, which I thought a small price to pay for relief from a pinching shoe."—New York Sun.

A Witty Reply.

On one occasion an important dress rehearsal at His Majesty's theater was prolonged until the small hours of the morning. The company grew very weary, particularly a gentleman who had been with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in a good many productions, but who had never attained to more than a very tiny part. When the time came to rehearse his few lines he was so tired that his voice was anything but distinct.

"What's the matter, Mr. Z.?" asked Sir Herbert in his most sarcastic tones. "Are you saving your voice for the rehearsal?"

"No, Sir Herbert," was the retort. "I've never been able to save anything under your management."

Sir Herbert, an exceedingly witty man himself, was so pleased with the retort that the salary of the small part man was raised.—London M. A. P.

An English King's Death.

William Rufus was killed by an arrow, either accidental or with murderous intent. He died in the New forest. His body was stripped by tramps and the next day was found by a charcoal burner, who placed the naked corpse on his cart, hoping to receive a reward. On the way to Winchester the cart was upset, and the king's body fell in the mire. Covered with filth and black with charcoal, it arrived in Winchester, where it was buried in the cathedral. A few years later the tower fell and crushed the tomb, and 600 years after the Puritans rifled the grave and played football with the king's skull.

The Best She Could Do.

"There is only one reason," he said, "why I have never asked you to be my wife."

"What is that?" she asked.

"I have always been half afraid you might refuse."

"Well," she whispered after a long silence, "I should think you'd have curiosity enough to want to find out whether your suspicion was well founded or not."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Damascus Swords.

It is seldom that a really good specimen of a Damascus sword can be obtained, for the art of working and engraving the kind of steel of which they are made is lost. These famous swords were made of alternate layers of iron and steel so finely tempered that the blade would bend to the hilt without breaking.

She Needed Them All.

There are over 200,000 words in the English language, and most of them were used last Sunday by a lady who discovered after coming out of church that her stunning new hat was adorned with a price tag on which was written, "Reduced to $2.75."—Norborne (Mo.) Leader.

His Idea of the Show.

"What do you think of the plot?" asked the theater manager.

"That isn't a plot," replied the man who had paid $2 to see the show. "That's a conspiracy."—Washington Star.

Another Quibble.

"Don't you hate to sleep in an upper berth?"

"No; I like to sleep when I have to take an upper berth."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Appropriate.

"Here's a hairpin in the soup, waiter," said the mad diner.

"Yes, sir. It's all right. It's bare soup, sir."—Yonkers Statesman.

SEEING A JOKE.

It Depends on the Brand of Humor to Which One Is Accustomed.

Foreigners, as a rule, do not understand our wit and humor. Sir Alfred Harmsworth once remarked to me, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that American humor was coarse and sometimes brutal. Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne are the only American humorists who are accepted by Englishmen. On the other hand, we do not appreciate the humor of Punch, the Englishman's delight.

I have seen an Englishman laugh heartily over a joke in Punch that I couldn't see any point to until it was explained to me, and no doubt that gentleman considered me as dense as we consider them when we tell them a funny story and get a sort of pained look, rather mystifying to be sure, instead of the laugh which was expected.

It is the local application of the joke that counts the world over. The funniest thing I ever saw was the charge a yearling Hereford bull made at a barbed wire fence in the Texas Panhandle. He struck the fence full tilt, and the rebound caused him to turn a complete back somersault. He landed on his hoofs all right, and there he stood all straddled out with a look of astonishment on his face that was almost human. It was so ludicrous that I lay down in the mesquite grass and rolled over in spasms of mirth. Then he began to bawl like a whipped child, turned tail and ran as from a banshee.

I was at dinner in a Bradford club and told about it, expecting to get a laugh, but all I got was this from Hon. Smith Feather, mayor of that Yorkshire city:

"By Jove, I didn't know those wire fences were so strong. It's a jolly good thing the poor brute wasn't injured."

WATERSPOUTS.

Old Time Mariners Fought Them With Noise and Cannon.

In the waterspout the medieval mariner saw a malevolent living monster—a sea dragon. There were various means of combating them. Once all sailors carried black handled knives, which the monster was believed to hold in special abhorrence.

When a spout made its appearance these knives were produced and pointed in its direction, waved in the air so as to make the sign of the cross or, according to the recommendation of certain contemporary authorities, driven several times into the side of the ship. Certain passages from the gospel of St. John were recited as charms against waterspouts.

A loud noise of any kind was also believed to be efficacious against them—shouts, the clash of swords, the beating of drums and gongs, etc. The custom of firing cannon against waterspouts, says the Scientific American, dates back at least as far as the sixteenth century. The original idea appears to have been to frighten them away by the noise of the report, but in the later times it was believed that the watery column could be cut in twain by the cannon ball and the spout thus dissipated. It would be interesting to know whether the cannonading of waterspouts is still sometimes practiced. It was certainly common much less than a century ago. It is hardly necessary to say that it is entirely futile.

The Bawbee.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Pearson's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a commiseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mixed Metaphors.

A well known bishop, speaking in the upper house of Canterbury convocation on prayer book revision, rather startled some of his Episcopal brethren by declaring, according to the Church Family Newspaper, "We are not writing on a clean slate; there is a good deal of grit under the door."

No Wonder.

"My husband has never spoken a cross word to me."

"You lucky woman! How long have you been married?"

"Nearly two weeks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Gallantry.

She—It seems to me as though we had met somewhere before. He—Impossible, fraulein, else I should have fallen in love with you before!—Fliegende Blatter.

Do not accustom yourself to consider debt only an inconvenience. You will find it a calamity.—Johnson.

The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch

By HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

"Whoa!" shouted Bud, with an astonished oath. "What's the—why, boy, what's the matter? Dash it, how you scart me!"

"Der tunnel's fell in, Bud. Jim's in dere where der frame's held. He's livin' yet, but he's got a tur'ble cut in his head."

"How far back?" he asked.

"Tree frames was held. Dere was seven, ten foot apart. How much is dat?"

"Forty feet—ten foot apart! No wonder! Oh, Jim! How could you have been so careless?"

The boy's shoulders shook once. "He worked like er horse. Now it's all gone, an' he's in dere." The face contorted out of all humanity, but he held the tears back.

Bud leaped from his horse. "Never you mind, Chessy, lad," he cried, hugging up the little figure. "We'll get him out of that. Could we haul him out the way you went?"

"No; dere ain't room, and if you touch dat roof hard"— he shuddered.

Bud sucked in his breath. "If you weren't the sandy little man to try it!" he said. He stood a moment in silence going over it all.

"Ches," he said, "there ain't any time to lose. If Jim's cut like that he may bleed to death in there when we could save him all right if we had him outside.

"There's a party of miners down the road eight mile. They was having their grub as I went by. Chances are they'll be there yet. They've got four men and a team. I could ride back, but I ought to be here working. Do you think you could stick on old Buck and ride there?"

Ches caught his hand. "I kin make it, Bud," he pleaded. "I cuddent do nothin' if I stayed here, an' you could do a heap. Put me up and let me try."

"All right," said Bud. "The good Lord kept you from getting hurt in the tunnel. Perhaps he'll see you through again. Shut your eyes and hold on tight when you strike the high places and don't touch a rein. Leave it all to old Buck."

He stepped forward and caught the horse by the bit.

"Buck," he said, as though talking to a human being, "you and me have been through a heap together. Don't fall down on me now. Take the kid safe, old boy." He caught Ches up and threw him across the saddle. "You'll only have to tell 'em what's happened. The Lord send nothing happens to you. Goodby, you brave little devil. We'll win out yet. Go it, Buck!"

CHAPTER VI.

AND while one of Jim's friends plied pick and shovel like a mad man the other was swaying on top of a galloping horse, gripping the pommel of the saddle with all the strength he had and shutting his eyes when he came to the high places.

Captain Hanrahan's party were miners of substance. They were working their way out to a new country to suit their inclinations. It had just been suggested that it was perhaps time to hit the trail again when the captain saw a figure on a horse flying athwart the mountain side.

"Huh," said the captain, "that man's drunk or crazy."

"Holy sufferin'," gasped the man next him as the yellow horse slipped on a turn and sent a shower of gravel a thousand feet below, "that was a near touch!" as the horse caught himself and swept on.

"Looks to me like a case of trouble, cap," said a third speaker. "That ain't no man anyhow. It's only a boy."

"Horse running away with him probably. His folks ought to be clubbed for letting him out on such an animal. Well, spread out, boys, and we'll catch him."

But Buck stopped in two jumps at Ches' command of "Whoa!"

"Fr'en's," cried the boy, "me pardner's caught in a tunnel dat caved in on him. Kin yer help us out? Three mile above Jones' hill."

He had not finished the sentence before two men sprang for the horses. The rest grabbed picks and shovels and hurled them into the wagon.

"We'll be there, a-whooping," said Captain Hanrahan.

"T'anks," replied Ches weakly, and then the world went out. The captain caught him as he fell.

"Poor little cuss! He rid hard to help his pardner," said the captain. "Humph yourselves, boys! All ready! Got the whisky, Pete? Picks enough? Stick the axes where they won't jump loose and cut a leg off some of us. Tie the horse behind. Good animal, that. All right, let 'em go!"

They went over stones and gulleys, the tools clanging and banging fit to leap from the wagon, the men clinging to the sideboards for dear life; down hillsides like the slant of a roof, the horses keeping out of the way of the wagon; up the other side with the reeking animals straining every fiber; over bridges that bent fearfully beneath the shock of their onset; swaying around curves with the wheels slewing and sparks flying and over the level as though the devil himself were behind them.

It was the record trip for eight miles in a wagon in that country. The driver stood up, a foot braced on either side, the reins thrown loose, the whip plied hard and every urging that voice could give shrieked out by his powerful lungs.

It was like the rush of a fire engine plus twice the speed and twenty times the danger. Above the pounding of hoofs, the din of rattling metal, the crash, smash and roar of the wheels and the yells of the driver could be heard the man Pete, ex-cowpuncher, cheerfully singing:

"Roll your tails, and roll 'em high.
We'll all be angels by and by."

Braced in the back corner sat Captain Hanrahan, his leg keeping some of the tools from going overboard, holding Ches in his arms.

"Curse it all, Billy," he screamed to the driver, "miss some of them bumps, will you? I've got on a new pair of pants."

"I'll take 'em clean off you the next time, cap!" retorted the driver.

They joked, which may seem heartless, but they risked their necks a hundred times, and that isn't very heartless.

"That's the place, I reckon, cap," said the driver, pointing. "Somebody working there now."

"Give 'em a hoot," replied the captain.

Bud stepped out and held up his hand in answer to the yell. The wave of thanksgiving at the sight of this most efficient help took all the stiffness out of the knees of the mail rider. The tears rolled down his face unnoticed.

"You're welcome, boys," he cried as the driver sawed the frenzied team to a standstill and the men sprang out.

"Reckon we are," said the captain. "Now, what's up?"

"Is the boy hurt? He ain't hurt himself, has he?"

"Naw. Pore little cuss is used up, that's all. He'll be around all right in a minute. Now, tell me what's loose."

Bud answered briefly, but completely.

"Pete and Billy, get to cutting wood. The rest of you come here," commanded the captain.

"You ain't going to stop to timber, are you?" asked Bud in an agony of haste.

"I sure am," replied the captain. "All this trouble's come of carelessness. Now, you just keep your clothes on and let me run this thing.

"We'll have your friend out in no time, and there won't be no more men stuck in there with a hill a-top of 'em in the doing of it. What you've done there is a help all right, but it might easy have meant that we'd had two men instead of one to hunt for."

"You're dead right," said Bud. "Tell me what I'm to do."

The captain took hold as only a man can who has the genius for it. He knew by long practice what size of a relief tunnel meant real speed of progress—the least dirt to be removed to make it possible that men could work to advantage. And his tunnel, safely rough ceiled, went in at the rate of a foot a minute.

CAPTAIN HANRAHAN.

When at last they pulled the insensible man out into the light of day and found that while his wound, though severe and if neglected mortal, was not likely to be dangerous with good attention, the captain said that he must be getting about his business.

"Oh, stay a little longer, fellers, till he comes to," remonstrated Bud. "He'd like to have a chance to say 'Thank you.'"

"Bugs!" replied the captain. "You tell him he owes us a drink and as a particular favor to me please not to put his frames over four foot apart in that ground."

"Well, boys, I can thank you, and I'm going to," said Bud. "That man is my friend, and if you hadn't come as you did"—

"Say, let go," interrupted the captain. "You'd have done the same thing if you'd been us, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," admitted Bud reluctantly.

"And you wouldn't want to be thanked for it a white chip more'n we do," concluded the captain. "If there's any thanks coming it is to that little two foot chunk of man yonder. Snaking over that fall was a thing to put a crimp in anybody. You was bound to help your pardner, wasn't you, son?"

The boy looked up into the captain's eagle face. "I'd er got to Jim," he answered simply, "if I had ter chew me way in like a rat."

The captain stepped back and looked at him.

"By thunder," he said s'owly, "I believe you would!" A change came over the thin, arrogant face. He stooped suddenly, raised the boy and kissed him. "Now, get out o' this!"

Electricity for Heavy Work

Central Station Electric Power is more economical than steam in the large plant as it is in the smaller one.

This is the testimony of those who have tried both kinds of drive.

Public Service has various concerns on its lines whose requirememts call for upward of 200 H. P. each. In most cases the Central Station Power has taken the place of steam plants.

In all cases the electric drive is giving entire satisfaction. It is more flexible than steam. It is more convenient than steam. It entails no wasted energy. When power is not being used a turn of a switch stops the expense. We pay the coal bills.

Our engineers will gladly study your pn its lines whose requirements call for show you what electric drive would do in your plant.

A word from you will bring the inf formation.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

ne roared at the driver as he leaped into the wagon.

"Pretty good folks when you're in trouble, ain't they, Ches?" said Bud.

"What 'ud we have done if dey hadn't come? Ain't it 'mos' time Jim was moving, Bud?"

"I'll give him another spoonful of whisky, but you can't expect him to start right up and hop around. He got an awful crack, boy."

For all that as the dose of strong liquor went down Jim's throat he opened his eyes.

"Hello, Bud! Hello, Ches!" he said wonderingly. "Have I been asleep? Why, what the devil's the matter with my head?" He raised his hand to the spruce gum bandage. "Phew, but I feel weak!" he sighed as his hand dropped. "Something's happened. What is it?"

There, with a friend on each side holding a hand, they told him the story. It was a sacred reunion.

The gratitude of the man saved and the protestations of the others that they would have done all they did a thousand times again would only seem childish in repetition. They cried, too, which is excusable in a child, but not in two big men. Men don't cry. It is the monopoly of women. Nevertheless Bud and Jim and Ches cried and swore and shook hands and cried again until it was a pitiful thing to see.

"Well," said Bud at last, "this makes you feel better, but it won't get the work done. I've got to go out and fix old Buck and get in some firewood."

"Oh, I'll do that!" cried Jim, raising himself on his elbow.

"You!" jeered Bud. "You look like it! Now, you lie right down there and get well. That's your play. It would make us feel as if we'd wasted our time if we had to turn to and bury you after all the trouble we've had. You're good for two weeks in that bunk, old horse."

"Two weeks! I can't Bud; I can't! I must get up before that!"

"You lie down there. Hear me?"

"But I'll have to see to things around. You can't stay."

"I stay right here till you're well."

"But the mail?"

"The devil take the mail or anybody else that wants the job. Uncle Sammy won't hop on to my collar button because of the fine sendoff my friend the inspector 'll give. And somebody will get orry eyed up in town and come down to find what's loose. He'll take the bags then. It's all settled."

"But there are other things"—

"Let 'em rest. Now I'm off to do the chores. Oh, say, speaking of mail, here's a letter for you. I forgot all about in the excitement. Here you go. Come along, Ches, and help me carry wood."

The miner looked at the letter in his hand, and a tinge of blood crept into his white cheeks, then ebbed, leaving them whiter than before.

Suppose there were other men who wanted her, men with money, learning, wit and influence! Was this bitterest of blows to fall upon him when he was already down? He looked at his hands, green from loss of blood. "I tried," he muttered; "I tried."

Still the very touch of the paper seemed to have something warm and heartening in it. It was from her, anyhow. With sudden strength he tore it open and read:

Dearest, Dearest Jim—I yield the whole case. You are right.

It is to my shame that clear sightedness came from no source within me, but from a brave example set.

My little cousin married the man she loved last week, and of course Miss Anne was a high functionary.

Oh, what a stirring there was in me, Jim, watching them and thinking of you! They will be as poor as church mice, but they do not care, and theirs is the wise economy.

Life is too short to waste, Jim. I see it now. I put it all in your hands, dearest. If you cannot come to me I shall come to you.

I believe I'm only lukewarm by habit, not by nature.

I wish I could tell you how sorry I am for the time I have squandered.

I'll show you. That will be better.

Any time or any place and no conditions now, Jim. That's all, my dear, brave lover. Good night!

Your own, ANNE.

He was sitting bolt upright. Once more he devoured the letter. Then he sank back and closed his eyes.

"Thank you, my darling. I can rest now," he said.

The golden sunset light played in riotous joyousness on the cabin walls; the little creek laughed out loud; so did Ches and Bud approaching the cabin. It was a beautiful and happy world.

THE SILVER BOWL.

It Was Full of Water, and It Puzzled the Week End Guest.

A rising young politician in New York tells this story on himself. He was invited recently to spend a week end at a country house where things were done a notch or two more elaborately than he was accustomed to, and he stood in not a little awe of the solemn person who was assigned to act as temporary valet to him. The climax came when this functionary tapped at his door on Sunday morning and told him it was 8 o'clock.

"All right, I'll get up," said the visitor, and the solemn man disappeared into the bathroom, from which presently the noise of water running into the bathtub was audible. In half a minute more the solemn person emerged, holding a large silver bowl full of water, with which he approached the bed.

"He must have seen the astonishment in my face," said the New Yorker. "I couldn't conceal it. It was a wholly new game to me, and I didn't know whether I was expected to dip my head in it or to drink it. It was an awful moment, but that man was a diplomat. He realized my embarrassment, and he just let drop in a cold and aloof tone, as if he had outsiders to deal with every day, the simple explanation:

"'The temperature of your bawth, sir.'"—New York Sun.

THEATER SEATS.

Very Annoying Indeed It Was Before They Were Numbered.

People who nowadays book their seats beforehand for the play cannot conceive of the discomfort of other days, an instance of which is given by John Fyvie in "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era."

"One of Charles Matthews' newspaper cuttings," he says, "contains a letter from a disgusted playgoer dated January, 1776, protesting against this custom of 'permitting a footman to sit for an act or two of a play next to a woman of the first quality by way of securing a place for his absent master.'

"The indecency of the practice is said to be aggravated by the usual choice of the dirtiest servant of the family for this duty, 'for the men of parade and figure are to prance before the lady's chair with lighted flambeaux or hang like a rope of onions behind her coach.'

"As a remedy for this nuisance the writer of this letter made the revolutionary suggestion that the sittings in the boxes should be numbered, a plan which does not seem to have occurred to any one previously and which was not adopted till long afterward."—London Gentlewoman.

Women In Tibet.

Concerning the manners of Tibetans a traveler writes: "The male part of the Amdo population is fond of meeting together for frivolous conversation on all suitable and unsuitable occasions. The most the men do is to go hunting and robbing. The domestic work, such as tending the cattle, collecting fuel, drawing water and, in short, everything, falls on the women. While the wife is working incessantly all day long the husband grows weary with idleness and does not go to her assistance unless she is physically incapable of doing any work at all. On horseback the women are as dexterous as the men. To catch any horse she likes out of the troop, lay her hand on its mane and quickly spring on to the back of the barebacked steed and ride off in any direction she wishes is an ordinary feat for any young Amdo woman."—Chicago News.

The Oil Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "oil bird," or guacharo. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A Word of Wrath.

The word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition the speaker would stand a fair chance of being hurled overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."—London Chronicle.

Pa's Hard Job.

"He's trying to be, sir," said Johnny, "but you know, Mr. Squiggs, ma's mother's here."—Harper's Weekly.

The Pets made it eight straight Saturday afternoon in the Central League race by taking Scotch Plains into camp 4-2. Bound Brook sprang a decided surprise to Central fans by winning its second game in the league race, defeating High Bridge with Cliff Randolph in the box. Lew Wiltse was on the mound again for the tail enders and pitched great ball. Somerville had little trouble in downing Westfield in a loose game.

The increased interest in the league was manifested by the large crowds at all the games Saturday. The teams maintained about the same lineups, none of them being padded to any extent. Manager Joe Alberts flatly denied the rumor that Scotch Plains had been given $500 by a benevolent fan for the purpose of beating out the Plainfield team for the pennant. The 'Plains had their same quota of players with Warry MacLaughlin on the mound. Frederickson, the Netherwood youngster, was held on the bench by the Scotch Plains manager for an emergency.

Scotch Plains Defeated.

A wonderful team from Scotch Plains proved to be only a dream at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon and the fans who had placed their money on that aggregation found that they had been riding a balky right mare for Plainfield was a reality as usual and trimmed the 'Plainers for the first time in the Central New Jersey League with the account 4-2, the locals being on the winning end. "Warry" MacLaughlin was in good form but "Red" Waller was in better trim and the visitors could only manage to get two clean swats from his delivery. Dorflinger's Dandies, on the other hand, clouted safely six times and never gave defeat a thought for Scotch Plains was never dangerous.

Both pitchers were apparently wild, each giving five passes but from all indications there was something wrong with Mr. Degnan's eyes for his Umps was severely criticised by both sides. Neither team was favored in the poor decisions on balls and strikes and so there were no lives lost nor any injuries received. It is doubtful if Scotch Plains would have scored at all, had it not been for some wierd decisions on strikes, which filled the bases in the fifth round when two men were out.

The visitors had their same old lineup, which greatly surprised the local fans, who were given to believe through unfounded rumors that anything from Christie Mathewson to Rube Marquard would be on the slab for the Scotchers. Gillo and Walsh appeared on second and short respectively but neither made the fans sit up and take notice.

Plainfield started its championship stride in the second inning when Billy Stallings landed on first after Foley had missed his long fly into right field. The ball was caught in a stiff breeze up in the aeroplane district and carried out of the gardener's fly shovel as cowslips out of the meadow in spring.

Brit Martin followed up with a sacrifice to MacLaughlin and Tommy Mullin took the initial sack on a four ball trick. Nelson worked the same trick (or rather it worked on him) and the bases were filled as the sparking, high tension, "ever-Redy" Waller stepped to the plate. He caught one of Warry's beauties on the nose and sent is sailing into left field for a clean single and a brace of runs for both Stallings and Mullin came home on the swat. Nelson came in from third when George laid down a neat sacrifice along the first base line and Waller reached third. But the scoring ended when Driscoll made the third out on a fly to deep center.

The fourth run came in the next round, Billy Stallings being the actor again. With two down, Billy sent a hot one to short stop and got a berth when Walsh made a poor throw to first. The limber third baseman then purloined the keystone sack and Brit came forward into the limelight with a hard two bagger between left and center, scoring Stallings. Mullen then fanned and Plainfield's total tally was thoroughly cooked.

Scotch Plains had their look-in in the fifth and that was all for them. Goodwill sent a line drive into center field, which Harter nabbed in in great style and Foley struck out. Warry then showed that "they can come back" by pasting the pill for two sacks far above Eddie Stallings head. A quick return prevented the pitcher from scoring a home run. Degnan then had a balloon ascension and two Scotch Plainers, Joe Alberts and Gray, went to first on the gift road. The unexpected then happened for Frentz, who had been an easy out both times before, hit the horsehide for a double into left field and MacLaughlin and Joe Alberts scurried across the pan. Gray tried to stretch it out for a run off the third stretch it out for a run but a beautiful throw to the plate by Eddie Stallings cut off the third tally in the nick of time.

Plainfield worked together like a clock although three errors were chalked up against the local boys yet none was costly. George was ace kid on short handling the hot liners with ease. His throwing to first was deadly to any runner and although he accepted six chances. One error was charged against him but this was the result of a collision with a runner. Joe Harter, who is suffering from an injured leg, was not up to form with the stick although his fielding was A1. Henry Alberts steadied Warry's wildness in great shape, hauling down many of the southpaw's Scotch Plains highballs.

Somerville Wins.

It was a very happy crowd of Westfield rooters that made their way to Recreation Park Saturday afternoon to witness the contest with Somerville. The crowd was not only happy, but filled with keen anticipation and in hopes of wresting the game from their rivals up the road. Two hours later, as the sun was being enveloped in the ruddy pool of the west, that self-same crowd could be seen wending its way homeward. But the feelings of good cheer had disappeared, and now they were a disheartened, dismayed and an almost disgusted crowd of fans. In a game filled with errors, Somerville took the honors for the day; the final result being 9 to 5.

Clinton was on the mound for the victors and pitched steady, consistent ball. For the vanquished, Hope performed in the capacity of twirler, and his work was splendid, but his team-mates gave wretched support, allowing the pill to elude them when it meant runs. The game all the way through was one bubbling with errors and not of the most interesting character.

Swanson lead off for Somerville with a neat bingle, reached second on Hope's error, neatly purloined third, and caused the Somerville fans to enthuse, by scoring on Wolfe's single.

The Somerset county boys again scored in the second. Grimes swatted the spheroid into the left garden for a safety. By the stealing act he acquired second; scurried to third on McCarthy's impact with the ball; and shortly glided home on a pass ball. McCarthy meanwhile stole second; and errors allowed the Somerville backstop and Swanson to score.

The Mt. Ararat aggregation inaugurated their tallies in the third. Westfield's Hope was strengthened when he was given a walk to the initial sack. Craig's swat with the willow disconcerted the Somerville short-stop so much that it caused him to allow the leather to go through his fingers, the disastrous part of which was to allow Hope and Knego to make more work for the scoreboard man. Craig shortly followed them across.

The fourth inning was devoid of any tallies. The fifth saw more hostilities on the part of Somerville. Swanson aided and abetted by the short-stop went to first; Gordon followed with a single. Then on Craig's miscue both Swanson and Gordon raced merrily across the rubber. The seventh found two more runs to the Somerset boys' credit.

The future of the locals looked promising in the eighth. Cogan drove the ball to deep center for a beautiful single. Keene followed with the same performance. Cogan, through remarkable speed, covered the circuit from the first sack to the haven of rest.

Somerville couped one in the ninth and rested easily on their oars. Westfield then came up with determination. Wilbur singled and with the aid of "Miss Errors" and clever base running crossed the isle of "Desire." The Somervilleites, however, showed them they were made of sterner stuff and retired the side in short order.

Wiltse In Form.

Lew Wiltste, pitching for Bound Brook, Saturday, against "Cliff" Randolph, for High Bridge, put one over for the tailenders in the Central New Jersey Baseball League. The score was 5 to 3. The old vet had everything in his assortment and perfect control. He fanned eleven and allowed only five hits. Up to the eighth he had equalled his brother George's record of the day before, when pitching for the Giants against St. Louis, and, it was hoped by his many friends that he could duplicate George's performance. The eighth was unlucky for him, however, and smashed the hopes of his friends. In that inning he was touched for three bingles, which, coupled with an error, netted three runs. This was the only scoring by the Hunterdon county lads.

Randolph was rather wild and lacked control. His speed was blinding, but a bump that tore the middle finger of his business hand, early in the game, made his bends at times easy. The game was featured by three double plays, sensational catches and sharp fielding by both teams. In the second and third E. Walton smothered drives that were the long end of two of the doubles. The other was pulled by Wiltse, McLoughlin and Meehan. The catch made by E. Walton in the third was handsome and most surprising to Walton, his team-mates, the spectators and Jack Toole, who was caught off third, running for Wiltse. It stopped two runs, for a moment later Bob Adler laced to left, scoring Bollinger. Poole and McLoughlin, who turned a handspring after Walton, one handed, had smothered his drive, could have romped across easily on Bob's smack. In the next a pass to Poole, a double to right by Roberson and a single to the same garden by Worthley, brought in two runs. In the fifth Bound Brook gathered two more. McLoughlin singled and stole. Adler was thrown out by C. Walton. Meehan singled and stole, Mack having advanced on Adler's out and scoring on the single. Nolan was out on a dribble to Randolph. Poole singled through short and Meehan scored. "Cliff" walked Roberson and fanned Worthley.

Leid, first up in the eighth, singled to centre. Boyd took three swings. Randolph singled, scoring Leid. J. Walton flew out to Roberson, who made a splendid and difficult catch. Worthley fumbled C. Walton's poke and Randolph scored. E. Walton doubled to right, scoring his brother. In the next Wiltse retired the side via the whiff route. Dalley's umpiring gave universal satisfaction to both teams. Objection to decisions, recently becoming noticeable at league games, was only notfceable by absence.

C.R.R. OF N. J. NINE DEFEATS DUNELLEN 6-1

Dunellen was minus the services of four of its regular players Saturday afternoon and the team from the Central Railroad of New Jersey walked away with a 6-1 victory. Nonemaker, Barnes, Hand and Dodwell were the absentees and their efficient work was greatly missed as the Dunellenites played loosely at critical moments.

Frolic was hit hard in the pinches while the Dunellen players could do nothing with Pender, the new twirler on the Central nine. His speed and quick breaking curves were too much for the Dunellen batsmen. Harry Giddes, the former Dunellen short-stop, received a great hand from the Dunellen fans for his fast work on the third sack for the visiting team and at the bat, Harry was there as usual, clouting out two neat safeties.

Adam Schott put up a great game in left field, catching two difficult flies that had the hit label upon them and nabbing two men at third by quick throws. "Strike-out" Slocum, of this city, was on the second sack for Dunellen while Teston, of the Bound Brook high school, held down the back-stop work.

The score:

A HAPPY HEINRICH

Herr Von Hofe und Seine Frau Arrive in This City After Being Married.

THE FIANCEE WAS WORRIED.

Thought She Was Left at the Church When Professor Failed to Appear—They Like Plainfield.

Herr Professor Heinrich vonHofe and his frau arrived in this city last night, going to their new home at Watchung avenue and Pearl street, after a busy day eluding the newspaper men in New York city. This morning the professor was all smiles when a Daily Press reporter called at his home and asked "Wie geht's?" Needless to say Herr vonHofe had a reason to be happy for despite the ruling of "Fate," he and Miss Clara Lindeman were married yesterday morning.

The professor sat calmly smoking a cigarette in his studio when the reporter entered and his first words were, "We are married at last." He then went on to tell the feelings of Miss Lindeman, who found herself alone in a new country when the President Lincoln, of the Hamburg-American line, docked Saturday night and her Herr Professor was among the missing on the pier. Miss Lindemann was greatly surprised when she thought of herself being left at the church for the couple were to have been married on the steamer as soon as the boat was docked Sunday morning. She wandered about the pier for a half hour, being able to speak but a few words of broken English, searching all the while for Professor vonHofe.

At last she heard a man's voice in German ask if she were Miss Lindemann and he then introduced himself as a representative from the German Lutheran Pilger Haus. Within a few minutes the mystery of her fiance's absence was cleared away for the German friend explained that the professor thought that the President Lincoln would dock Sunday instead of Saturday night, and that he was then in Plainfield awaiting the arrival of the steamer and his sweetheart.

Yesterday morning the professor and Miss Lindemann went to the City Hall in New York city bright and early and were the second couple to procure a marriage license. Herr vonHofe said that he was not going to be delayed any longer in marrying the girl who had come all the way from Berlin to become his frau and so he thought that the best way to save time was to get to the Marriage License Bureau as soon as possible.

After getting the license, the couple went to the German Pilger Haus, where Rev. Otto H. Restin was awaiting them. Without any elaborate ceremony, Herr vonHofe and Fraulein Lindemann were man and wife at last, the witnesses of the affair being a few of the members of the Harlem Mannerchor, of which the professor is the leader. The couple remained in New York during the day visiting some of their German friends and came to Plainfield last night.

Mrs. vonHofe said this morning that she was delighted with this country and especially with this city. "It was well worth all the trouble in getting here," she said in German, "but I must admit that I was rather worried when I failed to find Heinrich at the pier. But we have put away worriment now and are going to enter into the spirit of Plainfield."

Professor vonHofe has opened his studio on Watchung avenue but will continue his musical work in New York city, where he is held in high esteem by the best German pianists. He is also the leader of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein.

Dog Bit Small Boy.

Neil Scott, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, of West Fourth street, was bitten on the hand by a dog in Bound Brook, yesterday. The canine belonged to George Hoagland, a neighbor of Mrs. Andrew Smyth, the child's grandmother, whom he was visiting. The boy was attended immediately after the dog bit him by Dr. Leahy, of Bound Brook, who cauterized the wound. No serious results are feared as the animal inflicted the bite while in a playful mood. The young boy came to this city today in company with his mother.

Funeral of W. H. Williams.

The funeral of William H. Williams, who dropped dead in Mulford Estil's store yesterday morning while talking with his son, Will F. Williams, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the residence of his son, on Westervelt avenue, and will be strictly private. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will conduct the services and interment will be made in Evergreen cemetery.

CHARGED VIOLATION OF BUILDING CODE

Simon Roth, the contractor, was arraigned in the city court this morning before Judge William G. DeMeza on complaint of Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department and building inspector, for a violation of that section of the city building ordinance which allows a builder one-third of the road upon which to place building material for new buildings. Chief Doane testified that on Saturday night he was at Watchung avenue and East Fourth street, where Roth is constructing a building, and that he found the brick and lumber piled up beyond the one-third space allowed.

Sand was piled alongside of the lumber and bricks and was, in Chief Doane's opinion, much more of a menace to drivers than the lumber which can easily be distinguished, even in the dark. The sand heap covered two-thirds of the road used by the contractor. In his defense, Mr. Roth said that his men stopped work at noon Saturday and that when the driver of the sand wagon came along he was not told where to put the sand and dumped it at the most convenient place for himself.

Mr. Roth's attention was called to the blocked condition of the road and he had the sand shoveled back towards the curb line and warning lights placed there. Judge DeMeza suspended a fine of $10 or 20 days in jail against any further violation of this nature.

GEO. SCHERNBERGER'S ACT PROVES FATAL

George Schernberger, aged twenty-seven years, who was employed in a wrecking crew by the New Jersey Central, and who was injured at the North Avenue station on Saturday, July 1, being struck by an express train, sustaining a fracture of the skull, died Sunday night in Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, where he was admitted the previous Wednesday. Schernberger was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital immediately following the accident and remained there until July 11, when he insisted on leaving the institution against the advice of the physicians. Schernberger's wife also insisted on her husband returning with her to Elizabeth.

Returning to Plainfield on July 17, Schernberger walked from the railroad station to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he wanted to get something he had left there. He complained about pains in his head, but informed the nurses that he was feeling very well. On Wednesday he experienced so much trouble with his head that he was obliged to go to the Elizabeth hospital. The physicians there decided that there was no hope for recovery.

Schernberger had been in the employ of the New Jersey Central for several years. He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, and the Fraternal Order of Eagles, of Elizabeth; also the Kranken Untersteutzungs Verein, of Brooklyn. He is survived by a widow and one child. The funeral will be held at the late home, 233 Pine street, Elizabeth, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Christian G. Fischer, pastor of the German Lutheran church, Elizabeth, will officiate.

Plainfield Democrats Decide Not to Endorse Any Candidates Before Primaries.

FAVOR COMMISSION PLAN.

Resolutions by Assemblyman Brodhead and J. E. Prindle Adopted After Lively Debate.

The Plainfield Democratic Club, at its meeting, last night, went on record as favoring the adoption of the commission form of government for Plainfield, through resolutions offered by Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead, and it also went on record as opposed to the endorsement of any candidates for the nominating primaries, in accordance with resolutions offered by J. E. Prindle. Both questions were discussed in lively fashion by the number of Democrats present.

The resolutions offered by Mr. Prindle were in effect that owing to the fact that the present primary laws are based on the theory that the right of nominating candidates belongs to the people at large, and that party nominations should represent as much as possible the free and unhampered choice of the rank and file of the party, and that in view of this the club refuse to endorse any candidate for the nominating primaries or do any other thing in its official capacity to influence the nomination of any candidate.

The above resolution was discussed at length and it was finally agreed that it would be best for the party to adopt the same, allowing the party to be free in its choice of candidates at the fall primaries.

The resolutions presented by Assemblyman Brodhead favoring the commission form of government for Plainfield, which were unanimously adopted, follow:

"Resolved, That we favor the adoption by the city of Plainfield of the commission form of government as provided for in the act, passed by the last Legislature, entitled 'An act relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities, towns, boroughs, and other municipalities in this State,' approved April 25, 1911. We favor its adoption by the city of Plainfield not because of the short-comings of the present or past administrations of the city, but for the following reasons:

"The commission form of government is a great advance in the science of government, being based on the experience of cities all over the world, and having the approval of the foremost experts on government in this and in foreign countries. It simplifies the administration of the city's affairs. It provides a business administration instead of a political administration. It divorces National and State politics from the city's affairs. It abolishes ward politics and the old division of city offices as plums for party service. It provides for the initiative and referendum, thus compelling prompt responsiveness to the wishes of the people in matters of legislation. It provides for the recall a constant check on wrong-doing, and 'the insolence of office,' making honesty and efficiency of its officers the price of remaining in office. It makes the city government responsive to public opinion and efficient in administration. It makes the people supreme in their city government after election as well as before election. It does away with autocracy and machine politics, and puts the city government literally in the hands of the people.

"It enlarges the field of opportunity for all worthy men, making it practicable for any one to run for any of the city's elective offices without regard to any political organization or boss, and puts the poor man on equality with the rich man in seeking a nomination. It makes it impossible for any contract to be made or ordinance to be passed, or any scheme of taxation to be put into effect which the people do not want. It is the most truly democratic and representative form of government yet contrived for separate self-governing communities. Its adoption by the citizens of Plainfield would be simply in line with the spirit of progress and intelligent striving for better things which has always characterized them.

"Therefore, be it further Resolved, That as soon as practicable after the fall elections this club circulate petitions calling for an election to determine whether the citizens of Plainfield desire to adopt this form of government, and that a committee be appointed to arrange a series of public discussions on the subject after securing the money necessary to defray the expenses of these meetings, so that all citizens may have an opportunity to be thoroughly informed before the election is held."

Thomas Allen Asks Friends to Secure His Release From State Prison.

COMMITTED FOR BURGLARY.

Has Served Three of Seven Years' Sentence and Says Punishment is Unjust and Undeserved.

E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, this morning received a letter from Thomas Allen, colored, who was sentenced to serve seven years in State prison for burglary, asking Mr. Maynard to circulate a petition to be presented to the Board of Pardons. Allen has served about three years and is anxious to have the balance of his sentence remitted. His letter to Mr. Maynard indicates that the prison term is unjust and undeserved and that the police of this city were over zealous in gathering evidence.

According to the record Allen was arrested by Roundsman Higgins, and when searched was armed with a revolver and an amonia squirt gun connected with a large rubber bulb. At the time of his arrest there had been several early evening burglaries and in order to break up the gang several policemen in plain clothes patroled the streets in the vicinity where the burglaries occurred at about the time they had been committed. Allen at the time was employed as a coachman by a prominent family on West Eighth street and was noticed by Higgins loitering in the vicinity of Central avenue and West Seventh street early one evening. The officer trailed him and knowing that he was followed, Allen tried to make his escape on a trolley. Just as he was boarding the car he was placed under arrest. . . .

When taken to police headquarters, Allen was recognized by Chief Kiely, who had seen him in the Trenton prison some time before. At that time Allen was serving a seven year sentence for burglary committed in Princeton. He was captured by a number of students who surrounded the house he had entered.

After the capture the students took Allen to police headquarters and all appeared against him at the trial. After being discharged from State Prison, Allen came to this city and hired out as a coachman, but, it is said, in reality was committing petty burglaries and made as much by this practice as he did by working. After the arrest the burglaries stopped and there has been no annoyance of the kind since.

ARTISTIC DESIGN FOR TRUST COMPANY

Taking advantage of the summer months, The Plainfield Trust Company has begun the work of tinting the interior walls of its building which, up to the present time, have not been decorated.

The color scheme has been developed by an artist and when the improvements are completed, the Trust Company will undoubtedly have one of the most artistic banking rooms in the State.

The work will probably occupy a month or more but will in no way interfere with the business of the company which will be conducted as usual.

Acquires Valuable Tract.

Albert Lederer, the real estate broker, today closed a deal whereby William J. Tallamy, of Arlington avenue, becomes the owner of the valuable tract of land on East Sixth street, adjoining that of Grace church, and in the rear of the home of Dr. T. S. Davis. The tract, which was owned by Dr. Davis, has a frontage of one hundred feet on Sixth street, and Mr. Tallamy will erect two fine dwellings there, one of which he will occupy himself.

Gives Employes One Day a Week.

Through an error in makeup Tepper's advertisement in The Daily Press of yesterday announced that the store would close at certain hours for the summer months. The announcement belonged in the advertisement of L. S. Plaut & Co., of Newark. During August and half of September Tepper's store will close every Thursday all day to give the employes a full holiday.

Jersey Club Wants Law Enforced.

The New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club has gone on record as favoring the enforcement of the light law, enacted last winter, and has communicated its insistance that this law shall not be overlooked to the Board of Police Commissioners of Newark and to the police authorities of every city and town of the State.

STORM IN CAMP

Wind and Rain Play Havoc With Soldier Boys at Sea Girt.

CO. K JOINS IN THE RESCUE.

Lieutenant Peterson and Hort Have Narrow Escape — Plainfield Boys All Well and Having a Fine Time.

(From Special Correspondent).

Sea Girt, Monday.—Our soldier boys at Sea Girt experienced a terrific storm about 7:30 last evening. The rain not only poured its vengance upon them but the wind travelled through the camp at the rate of seventy miles an hour, taking along with it the hospital tent, all the mess tents and some of the officers' quarters. The quarters of Lieutenants Peterson and Hort were badly wrecked, but the officers were never touched. Old guard men say it was the worst storm that ever struck the camp in twenty-five years. Crowds of people who had come to hear the band concert and to go through the camp were storm struck and had to take refuge with the men.

The health of the men is excellent, not one case of sickness being reported. The first battalion of the Third regiment and the second battalion of the Second regiment opened the season in class qualification practice today. In the evening parade one battalion of the Third regiment and two battalions of the Second regiment participated. Today the officers and the non-commissioned officers received the first of a course of lectures by Major Johnson, U. S A., and the war game problems commence tomorrow.

Lieutenant Hort is unquestionably the busiest man in camp, not having one minute to spare. A rumor is spread about the camp that Lieutenant Peterson is to be presented with a morocco bound drill regulations, having gold leaf finish, and that Major Martin has been selected to make the presentation.

Without doubt the happiest man in camp is Lieutenant Davis, the cause of his joy being the receiving by him of his commission in Company M, of Somerville.

Governor Wilson spent the morning in his office, with Secretary Tumulty and a stenographer, trying to lessen the heap of mail which continues heavy. Mr. Tumulty said yesterday that there seemed to be no let up in the correspondence. The executive will not leave Sea Girt, except on Tuesdays from now until the camp closes, unless something urgent calls him away. He has declined a number of invitations to neighboring resorts and other places in and out of the State, feeling that he should devote all of the time that he can to the duties here.

Most of the time yesterday was given to the entertainment of hundreds of visitors who flocked to the grounds. The trains and trolleys from nearby resorts brought their full quota and by evening parade time there were about 5,000 persons on hand. Many of them came in automobiles and carriages.

The hospital is under brigade supervision, instead of being directed by the chief surgeon of each regiment. The government sent a full brigade hospital equipment here to be used for the purpose. Up to the present time there has been little use for it.

Upon the arrival of the troops Governor Wilson, accompanied by his persoonal aid, Colonel Archibald Alexander, indulged in a horseback ride over the roads adjacent to the encampment. It was the Governor's first appearance in New Jersey in the saddle, but, being a native Virginian, he proved to be a better horseman than some of his predecessors. The Governor will give an al fresco luncheon for the State officials, political leaders and prominent Jerseymen on Thursday at noon. This will be followed by a full-dress parade and review of the brigade in camp.

Planning for Swimming Pool.

Efforts are being made to get a swimming pool at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, and subscriptions of any amount for that purpose or for the general needs of the Home will be gratefully received. The plan is to convert the pond at the brick yard into a safe and modern swimming pool, using concrete for the bottom and sides and making it of different depths to accomodate the children of various ages at the Home. As soon as a sufficient sum is received to insure the success of the improvement, work will be started.

WIFE THE AGGRESSOR; HUSBAND DISMISSED

George Becker and his wife, were arraigned in the city court this morning charged with fighting on West Front street Saturday night. The quarrel grew out of family troubles of several years standing. Becker and his wife have not been living together for some time and when they met Saturday night he was accompanied by the little daughter of his present housekeeper. Becker alleged that his wife first attacked the child and when he tried to shield the little girl from the blows being dealt with an umbrella, Mrs. Becker beat him with it until he wrested it from her grasp and threw it to the middle of the street.

Mrs. Becker went after it and when she came back to renew the attack he had lifted the child into the carriage in which he had come to town, and as his wife poked him in the face with the end of the steel rod in the umbrella, he struck her with the whip.

A crowd of 500 had gathered by this time and men held the horse and wheels of the wagon so that Becker could not drive away. Others tried to haul him from the wagon. This was the condition of affairs when Patrolman Kelley placed both Becker and his wife under arrest. The complaint against Becker was dismissed and sentence was suspended on his wife, J. Henry Crane was counsel for Becker and Robert Newton Crane was assigned by Judge DeMeza to defend Mrs. Becker.

ANOTHER HOLD-UP GIVE POLICE A CLUE

The highwayman who is believed to be the same one that shot Harry VanNess, of Alton on Park avenue, Sunday morning at 1 o'clock, and escaped on the victim's bicycle, held up and robbed an Italian, whose name is withheld by the police, near the Woodbrook farm about an hour after shooting VanNess. The highwayman, a colored man, was about 5 feet, 7 inches tall and wore a white and black striped sweater and slouch hat. He was riding a bicycle and jumped off when within a few feet of his victim.

Being ordered to do as he was told and he would not get hurt, the Italian took off his double breasted blue serge coat, which the highwayman put on and then asked for money and valuables. These consisted of $10 in cash and a nickle watch. After searching his victim to see if everything of value had been turned over and to see if he had a revolver, the colored man mounted the wheel and rode off in the darkness. The Italian, badly frightened but glad to be alive, went to his home, which is in that vicinity, and to which he was returning from this city when held up. Yesterday he reported the matter to the Metuchen and Plainfield police and furnished them with the description which VanNess was unable to obtain.

VanNess was unable to get a good look at the man who shot him as he was lying in the roadway, where he had fallen after colliding with a barricade thrown across the road to aid the highwayman in stopping his intended victims, when shot. The highwayman did not make any attempt to seach the young man, but after firing two shots as VanNess lay on the ground, partly stunned from the collision, pulled the wheel to one side, mounted it and rode off towards Metuchen. Two passing automobiles also noticed the barricade and reported the matter to the police.

The Woodbrook farm is some distance from the main road and instead of going to Metuchen it is thought that he turned off into the road leading to the farm.

Now that a description of the man has been secured the police have something to work on and an early arrest is expected. VanNess is improving from his injuries.

DECLINES TO RUN

Assemblyman Gives Reasons For Not Entering Senatorial Race This Year.

CANNOT SACRIFICE BUSINESS.

Believes Democrats Have Exceptional Opportunity to Elect Ticket—Candidates Must Be of Highest Type.

Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead, of this city, has declined to become a candidate for the State Senatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket, and clearly defined his position in a statement to the Plainfield Democratic Club at its meeting last night. Mr. Brodhead's chief reason for refusing to enter the race is that he cannot afford to sacrifice business interests, stating that the higher office is a far bigger job than the Assembly and consequently the demands are greater.

Mr. Brodhead's decision is a disappointment to the Democrats, who had hoped that he would consent to allow his name to be used, but his statement was accepted as final, and the party will now look to some one else to make the fight to succeed Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in the upper branch of the State Legislature. Assemblyman Brodhead's statement is as follows:

"I have given a great deal of thought and consideration to your suggestion that I enter the race for the Senatorial nomination. The many assurances of support that I have received from you and from other sections of the county have been most flattering and led me to believe that there was a genuine feeling on the part of a great many Democrats that I should become a candidate. Under other circumstances I would not have considered the matter. It is therefore a source of deep regret to me to say to you that I am compelled to decline the honor. The chances of winning have never been brighter in my judgment and it would please me greatly to go back to the Legislature again, but I simply cannot afford to make the sacrifice that it entails.

From my brief experience in the Assembly I know that the duties are arduous and require practically all your time during the session, to say nothing of the campaign. The Senatorship is a far bigger job than the Assembly and the demands on you are very much greater. I am convinced that I could not faithfully fulfill the duties of the office in the event of my election without practically giving up business during the sessions. I regret that I cannot do this in justice to my family.

"We have a number of men in Union county who are available and who would be of great strength to the ticket and I do not desire that my candidacy should stand in their way any longer. I will do everything in my power to help elect the ticket. I believe we will win if we nominate strong men. Under the operation of the Geran law you are going to find a very discriminating vote in Union county this fall. No man can hope to be elected without coming up to certain specifications in regard to character and fitness for the office for which he may be selected."

PLAINFIELD YOUNG MEN LEAVE FOR PACIFIC COAST.

Elmar Ackor, of Westervelt avenue, a student at Renssalaer Institute, Troy, N. Y., and Edison B. Vail, brother of Mrs. W. E. McClymont, who resides on Hillside avenue, left today for Pasco, Washington, where Mr. Ackor will take a temporary position with the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the engineering department. It is likely that Mr. Vail will also take a similar position.

Mr. Vail was formerly employed by H. C. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, and more recently has been doing some work in the city department under the direction of Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett. Both young men have had considerable experience in civil engineering. Mr. Ackor plans to return to college later. On their way out the young men will visit at St. Paul, Minn.

Royal Arcanum to Meet.

Christian has a treat in store for the members and the semi-annual report of officers will be read and handed to the deputy.

TRAGIC END TO OUTING PARTY.

Phillipsburg, July 25.—There were just thirteen in the picnic party which Christopher Smith took to the banks of the Delaware River, near Rocksburg, Sunday. One of them said that the number was unlucky and would cost a life within a year. In less than a half hour John Loudenberger, one of the party, was at the bottom of the river drowned.

Soon after they reached the picnic grounds a swim in the river was proposed. Loudenberger, who was eighteen years old, was among the first to dive into the water and started to swim across the river. While in the middle of the stream, he suddenly threw up his hands and sank.

Boats along the banks were manned and soon several were on their way to the spot. Men dived for the body, but could not find it. Coroner Kenny was called and superintended further effort to get Loudenberger.

It is believed the young man was attacked with cramps. He was a good swimmer. Two sisters and one brother survive.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

With Martin Sheridan, Platt Adams and Jack Gillies out of the running, Thompson, last year's winner, should again capture the all-around title, which will be contested for on August 12, at Chicago. Johnny patrick will be back from England in considered to be Thompson's closest rival, but it is doubtful whether Kilpatrick will be back from ngland in time to compete. If he doesn't arrive it will be a shame, for the championships were postponed from July 4 to the present date on his account.

Gish, the Seattle A. C. all-round athlete, who is now visiting New York, may take a crack at the all-around championship on August 12.

Ira Davenport, who was considered a likely candidate for next year's Olympic team, has accepted an offer to coach the two sons of a prominent business man of the West, and has thus made himself a professional and ineligible to compete with amateurs. Davenport's departure from amateur athletics will not only be felt by the Olympic team, but also by Chicago University, which institution he attends. Davenport is credited with 48 4-5 seconds for the quarter and 9 4-5 seconds for the "hundred."

John Mara, the old "hundred" man Entre Nous, has joined the ranks of the Belleville Catholic Club and will represent that organization in the broad jump at the D. U. games.

KRAMER OUTRIDES HIS RIVAL IN CLOSE RACE

Frank Kramer won from Jackie Clarke in their match race at the Velodrome cycle meet Sunday afternoon, and while it is pretty conclusive that the American champion is the master of the Australian at match racing, Clarke spoiled his own chances of a victory in the second heat by some foul racing, which did more injury to himself than to Kramer. The match was decided in straight heats, and with Kramer in the lead sprinting the first heat furnished an excellent race.

The second heat was to Clarke's advantage in the early stages. With a pacemaker who cut out a good clip it was to the Australian's liking. When the men pulled away from the race Clarke went to the front under good headway and he had a lap and a half to go. Instead of attending to this business of racing, he began to watch Kramer. He tried it first on the west turn, but Kramer was too far back for it to affect him and Clarke only zig-zagged over the track. Then after opening a length on Kramer in the back stretch he stalled on the last turn and there switched the champion good and hard. His stride was broken, Kramer wasn't affected much and in the dash to the tape Kramer caught him by the smallest of fractions. Referee Bardgett declared afterward that Clarke would have been disqualified had he won the heat.

BALTIMORE TO REMAIN IN EASTERN LEAGUE.

Baltimore, July 25.—President Ban Johnson, of the American League, and five owners of major league clubs have expressed their opposition to any change at this time in Baltimore's baseball status, and this city will remain in the Eastern League for at least another year regardless of the outcome of Edward Hanlon's negotiations for the purchase of the Boston National League Club.

This was made known last night, when Mayor Preston announced that he had received six unfavorable replies to his letter asking for a conference of National and American club owners with a citizens' committee to consider the question of a big league team for this city.

Russell Controls Boston Club.

Boston, July 25.—The control of the Boston National League Baseball Club passed into the hands of President William Hepburn Russell yesterday. The announcement that the club would not be sold to "Ned" Hanlon, of Baltimore, nor to any one else followed the transfer of the stock. The control of the organization was perfected when Vice President L. C. Page was given a certified check for $28,650 in exchange for 191 shares held by Mr. Page and his brother, George A. Page.

CARLTON SMITH NOW CAPTAIN OF BAPTISTS

At the meeting of the Probasco Bible class Sunday, it was decided to reorganize the baseball team which is representing the First Baptist Sunday-school in the city league. Captain Bert Trotter resigned the leadership of the team stating that he thought perhaps someone else might have better luck with the nine and Carlton Smith was elected to take his place.

Smith has twirled on the team for the first few games and has proved a great player. He was formerly the box artist for the North Plainfield High School nine on which he was the mainstay of the school's reputation. He pitched the boroughites to victory over the City High School during his career and in the church league has been very effective. It is expected that he will establish a regular lineup and not change his players several times during each game for ragged, loose playing has characterized the First Baptists since the league was started.

Magee Wants a Hearing.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Sherwood Magee, the outfielder of the Philadelphia National League Club who was recently suspended for the balance of the 1911 baseball season by President Lynch for his attack on Umpire Finneran, yesterday, forwarded a request to the five directors of the National League, asking that he be given a hearing. Magee and the officials of the Philadelphia Club declare that Mr. Lynch acted hastily in suspending and fining Magee $200. It is asserted that the head of the league only heard the testimony of the umpires that acted during the game in which the row occurred, and in order that Magee might give his version of the affair a special meeting of the board was demanded.

Pirates After Catcher Kelly.

Pittsburg, July 25.—President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburg Baseball Club, has returned from St. Paul, where he purchased Pitcher Martin O'Toole, who will report to the Pirates on or before September 1. Reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Dreyfuss did not give a Pittsburg player in exchange for O'Toole in addition to the $22,500 paid for O'Toole's release. Dreyfuss is also negotiating for Catcher Kelly, O'Toole's battery mate, and it is stated has offered $10,000 for him. The outcome of the deal will be known before the week is over.

Easy Win for Raritan.

Whitehouse, July 25.—The North Branch baseball team received the worst beating in its history at North Branch Saturday afternoon, when Raritan won by a score of 15 to 2. Whelan was batted out of the box and Haver was substituted. Kraft twirled gilt-edged ball for Raritan. The teams are now even up in the series.

DENTISTS MAY GO INTO COURT

Asbury Park, July 25.—As a sequel to the refusal of the "old guard" of the New Jersey State Dental Society to surrender to the "insurgents" any of the books, seal or anything else belonging to the society, the fractional differences in that body which led to the election of two sets of officers here, will be taken into the courts. The "insurgents," taking the initiative, have, according to advices received here from Sea Girt, retained Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary of Governor Wilson, to institute proceedings against the "old guard."

Mr. Tumulty is at Sea Girt because of the opening of Camp Wilson there. He was directed to proceed as soon as possible against the older members of the society with a view of having them compelled to give up the books and other property of the organization. The "old guard" has been given until today to surrender the books.

The split in the ranks of the society, which occurred here Friday afternoon, assumed such serious proportions that it became plain that an appeal would be made to the courts. It was the "old guard" or "regulars," as some have been pleased to call them, who broke away from the meeting after it had been demonstrated that the "insurgents" were in a large majority and had elected their slate.

These "regulars" will not give up the books and papers without a fight. In fact, they say that they are the original New Jersey State Dental Society, claiming that when President Wallace F. Naylor, of Somerville, refused to recognize them they were justified in quitting the meeting of the society.

Late Friday afternoon the "regulars" got together and decided on a plan of action. They said that there was no use of trying to have a voice in the proceedings of the society because they would not be recognized. They pointed to the fact that when Dr. S. C. G. Watkins, of Montclair, offered a motion to adjourn in the closing few minutes of the session Friday morning President Naylor refused to put the question.

ASBURY PARK POLICE DON'T HEAR THE CUT-OUTS.

Asbury Park, July 25.—The patrolmen were instructed again Sunday to arrest all autoists who violate the city ordinance by cutting out the mufflers of their machines. The violators during the day were unusually large, but not an arrest was made. Mayor Appleby met several officers and told them in plain language that they must see that the law was enforced. They were told that they were supposed to do their duty, and if they did not then they must expect the consequences. The chief of police was also given to understand that he must see that the officers arrest all offenders, under penalty of removal.

Only a few days ago the Mayor issued a proclamation that the law in relation to the cutting out of mufflers would be enforced to the letter. He had received many complaints, he said, from those who had come here for rest, and it was not fair that their quietude should be disturbed. The Mayor promised that relief should come, hence the proclamation.

He said that he believed it was unnecessary for automobiles to cut out the mufflers, and he added that his own rest had been disturbed Saturday night by the noise made by the machines.

BETWEEN TWO TRAINS, WOMAN ESCAPES DEATH.

Flemington, July 25.—Caught between two trains, Miss Edith Cook, daughter of Leonard Cook, of Three Bridges, narrowly escaped a frightful death while attempting to cross the Lehigh Valley Railroad bridge over the South Branch River, near Flemington Junction, Sunday. Miss Cook, accompanied by another young woman, was walking to the station to catch the westbound passenger train to Bellwood Park. She was walking upon the planks between the two tracks, when the passenger train overtook her. An eastbound freight train came around the curve, and Miss Cook was whirled about between the two trains.

She was hit by one of the cars and thrown violently upon the planks. She did not lose her senses, and remained quiet until both trains were past. Her companion saw the trains in time to escape from the bridge, and was uninjured. Miss Cook's arm was broken and the flesh about her hip badly torn.

FIND OF HUMAN HAND CREATES STIR IN TOWN.

Morristown, July 25.—A gruesome discovery was made on Saturday afternoon by Harry Smith, of this place, who is working on a building being erected in Morris Plains, when in dumping a barrel of plaster of paris he found a human hand severed at the wrist sticking from the contents of the barrel.

The hand was turned over to Chief of Police Frank Holloway, who placed the matter in turn in the care of Dr. George L. Johnson, the coroner.

On examination, it was found that the hand was a man's right hand, and from the appearances it had been probably severed from the arm by a saw.

Dr. Johnson will investigate the matter and by finding where the lime came from, try to solve the mystery. He is unable to tell how long the hand was in the plaster. According to Dr. Johnson, the fact that the hand was embedded in builder's plaster, it could be there for a long time without decay.

WIFE SEES HUSBAND KILLED AT POLE TOP.

Point Pleasant, July 25.—Frederick Wilson, thirty-five years old, a New York Telephone Company lineman, was killed while repairing a wire at the top of a pole here Sunday. Wilson's young wife, who was seated in a wagon nearby, witnessed his tragic death. The lineman received a shock by coming in contact with a live wire and fell lifeless to the ground.

When she realized what had happened, Mrs. Wilson became frantic with grief. The body was taken to the man's home.

Westfield's Sewage Problem.

Town Engineer A. W. Vars, of Westfield, asserts that the present sewer filteration beds are too small properly to take care of the town sewage and that something must be done at once to relieve the situation. The flow is so great that the beds do not have the time necessary for absorption and "rest." He has asked the council to employ a consulting engineer to work with him on the problem of disposing o fthe sewage and advise if it is practicable to add more beds at the sewer farm or install a different system. Neighbors of the sewer farm, where the beds are at present located, will object to having the area of the beds increased, claiming that the odors from the beds are a nuisance and in consequence the value of their property is decreased.

DOVER AFTER CHEAPER WATER AND LIGHTING.

Dover, July 25.—There is a growing sentiment in Dover that the town should own its electric lighting plant. While this sentiment has not as yet assumed the proportions of an organized movement, it has been given considerable impetus since the Board of Water Commissioners have demonstrated that with a business management the municipal water works are earning a surplus with which to retire the bonds which were issued for its establishment.

When the Dover water works were owned by a private corporation the town paid $30 each a year for hydrant rental, which at present would call for an annual expenditure for fire protection of $4,710. As it is, this amount is saved to the town, as there is nothing paid to the water commission for this purpose from the town's cash box and nothing is raised by taxation for the support of the water plant.

Dover is now paying $6,750 a year to the Eastern Pennsylvania Power Company for street lights. It is argued by those favoring a municipally owned lighting system that the greater part of this amount could also be saved to the town if the municipality acquired the plant and gave to it the same management that prevails in the water system. It is also urged that a cheaper rate per kilowat could be named to private consumers in the not distant future.

SUMMER EVENING WRAPS.

Evening wraps are unusually novel this season, the great vogue for sheer materials finding a happy expression in these more elaborate garments. Marquisette wraps are the latest novelties, and while exorbitant prices are asked for them in the smart shops, there is no reason why any woman could not fashion one herself, or at least plant one and have it made at very little expense.

Black, white, Alice blue, gray, gold color and king's blue are good colors for these little wraps. Many of them are cut on extremely simple lines, with the kimono sleeve and plain back and front. These seems to be no attempt to fasten these garments. They are cut so that the fronts just meet and are apparently designed o hang free.—Harper's Bazar.

Goldfish.

It is not generally known that if a sick goldfish be put for a minute or two in salt water it will recover health and animation—that is, if it be simply "droopy" and not affected by a serious disease. Never, however, put a fish that is well in anything but fresh water, for salt water will surely kill it.

Just now sashes and belts are important features and worn as they often are with simple tailor dresses, transform the latter by their amusing note of originality into chic little toilettes.

TROLLEY KILLS BOY.

Victim Playing in Street When Run Down.

Elizabeth, July 25.—Fatally injured by being run over by a trolley car, Francis Munger, 7 years old, of 67 West Jersey street, died yesterday morning in the Elizabeth General Hospital. The victim was playing at Sterling place and West Jersey street Sunday evening, when he was run down by a Newark-Plainfield main line car.

The boy was quickly extricated and rushed to the hospital, where he remained unconscious until he died. His skull was fractured.

The motorman declared the accident to be unavoidable, as he was unable to stop the car before it was upon the boy.

THE GIRL WHO VISITS.

A girl's first flitting from home surroundings and restraint is a pretty good test of her manners and true character. She often develops traits that she herself was never before aware of. How often to attract attention and court popularity to some summer resort the quiet, sedate maid suddenly becomes conspicuous and "sporty" or strangers may have the effect of making her self-conscious and rude. She does not mean to be so, but she often loses her perspective for the true fitness of things and a new environment breeds all manner of unsuspected qualities.

If she would only realize he wealth of wisdom and the breadth of experience that a well-bred girl may glean from traveling and meeting interesting people.

She should never be cold and forbidding to strangers, but she should also avoid the fatal mistake of rushing into intimacies which she will too often regret.

A gracious manner and good temper are charms which attract invariably and the natural sweetness of girlhood is greater than any pose which she may try to assume.

When visiting friends and relatives a guest should adapt herself as well as possible to her new environment and bring no jarring note or undue distrubance into the family circle. There are so many little attentions that can bring comfort and joy into a household! If a hostess feels that her guest needs constant entertaining and amusement and special service, she will not wish to repeat her invitation so soon again.

Never be late for meals, be pleasant to servants, observe the pre-vading habits of your host and hostess, be thoughtful and considerate so that when your visit is ended there will be regret and there will be a genuine ring in your hostess' voice when she says, "Be sure and come soon again."

This Sigh For Leisure.

Lives ther the man who has not sighed for leisure? And lives there the man who, in his more sober moments, has not been honestly glad that he must work? Human nature, which sweetens under toil, sour in leisure. And it is by no means sure that the fall from innocence which first brought work into the world "and all our woe" was not bringing salvation disguised as labor. Faithfulness will dignify and beautify even drudgery; no matter what the work is provided it is honest, if it is done well, it commands our instinctive respect. Besides, if we did not all have to work so hard to keep alive the jails would have standing room only.—Boston Transcript.

SEEKS FINAL DECREE.

Edna Goodrich Would Be Freed from Nat Goodwin.

New York, July 25.—Edna Goodrich Goodwin, wife of Nat Goodwin, applied to Supreme Court Justice Bischoff in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon for a final decree of divorce from her husband.

In March Referee J. Campbell Thompson recommended that Mrs. Goodwin, who is the fourth wife of the actor, be given an absolute divorce and at that time Justice Giegerich granted her an interlocutory decree.

Justice Bischoff took the papers submitted for examination, and may announce his decision in a few days. The interlocutory decree made no provisions in the way of alimony and permits Mrs. Goodwin to remarry after the signing by a Supreme Court justice of the final decree, and it also forbids the actor to marry during the life of the plaintiff.

Goodwin, however, can marry his fourth wife again if he overcomes any obstacles that may be in the way.

POLICE ARREST GIRL CHARGED WITH THEFT

On complaint of her mother, Ida May Anthony, colored, of Westfield, was arrested on West Third street, this city, yesterday, by Detective Sergeant Flynn and turned over to the Westfield police. This morning she was arraigned before Justice Toucey and held under $200 bonds for the action of the Union County Grand Jury. The girl, who is eighteen years old, is charged by her mother with larceny and the complaint alleges that one day about three weeks ago, during her mother's absence, the girl broke open a trunk and stole $65, a part of which belonged to one of the colored churches of Westfield, of which the girl's mother is treasurer.

After taking the money the girl decamped and it was learned that she was spending her time between Newark and Plainfield. The local police were asked to be on the lookout and by some clever sleuthing the girl was traced from one place to another and finally located in a boarding house in this city by Sergeant Flynn. She had spent nearly all of the money buying clothing and jewelry.

The latter consisted of a ring, for which she paid $15 and a pair of cuff buttons, which she gave to a male friend in Westfield. Chief O'Neill, of the Westfield police, secured the cuff buttons but the ring the girl had pawned in Newark for $1.75. The clothing was also recovered.

While only eighteen years old the girl has a child three years old and just recently finished serving a sentence in the New York Hudson Reformity, for waywardness.

TO BE LARGEST VESSEL.

Asquitania to Be 900 Feet Long and Carry 4,000 Passengers.

London, July 25.—The plans for the new steamship Aquitania, which the Cunard Company is building at Clydebank, have been modified to make the vessel the largest in the world.

Her length will exceed 900 feet, and be ten feet greater than the length o fthe 50,000 ton steamship Imperator, which the Hamburg-American line will put into service in the spring of 1913. It is also stated that the Aquitania will be one knot faster than her German rival. The original specifications called for a length of 885 feet and a speed of 23 knots an hour. She will accommodate 4,000 passengers.

To Exact.

A maiden lady, Miss Cocker by name, and her niece, who bears the same cognomen, went one evening to a reception at the house of a friend.

"What name, please?" inquired the footman.

"Miss Cocker," answered the elder lady.

"Miss Cocker, too," joined in the niece, hurriedly.

Whereupon the man with plush and buttons opened the drawing-room door and, with all the dignity of his profession, ushered them into the midst of the company with the convulsing announcement:

"Miss Cocker and Mrs. Cockatoo!"—Tit-Bits.

Justin Lindsey Improving.

Justin Lindsey, of Grant avenue, who is being treated as a private patient at the Elizabeth General Hospital, where he was removed from the Central Railroad Station, in that city, after taking an overdose of strychnine, Sunday afternoon, is reported today as recovering rapidly and practically out of danger. Unless there are some unlooked for developments he will be discharged in a few days.

Had Fingers Crushed.

P. S. Dayton, of Rockview avenue, had two fingers of his right hand badly crushed this morning while he was working in his mill on Somerset street. His right hand was caught in one of the machines and before he could draw it out, two of the fingers were severely crushed and lacerated. He was taken to a doctor and the wounds were dressed.

WILLIAM T. KIRK SHRIEVALTY NOMINEE?

Former Sheriff William Kirk, of this city, is being mentioned as another aspirant for shirievalty honors at the hands of the Republican party this fall. An effort was made today to verify the rumor that reached this city that his friends in Elizabeth were booming him for the office but Mr. Kirk was out of town. They insist that he would not be aversed to accepting the nomination. Several of his friends here have expressed pleasure at the prospect of having a chance to vote for him and said that they felt sure he would poll a big vote both here and throughout the county where he is well known.

Mr. Kirk succeeded Robert Houston and when he left the office it was with a good record and while his friends admit that he has not made a formal statement setting forth his candidacy they declare that he will be a strong contender for the nomination. His entry adds interest to the situation in this county as there are already three candidates in the field, Joseph H. Neill, George Stewart, of Elizabeth and William H. Wright, of Rahway.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and closed heavy in New York yesterday.

Earthquake shocks were reported from Guatemala city and Curacao.

President Taft returned to Washington after spending Sunday at his summer home at Beverly.

The fire in Stamboul devastated an aera two miles square and destroyed about five thousand houses.

Reports indicate that the anti-prohibitionists won in Texas elections by a small majority in a large poll.

The last of the diamonds stolen in the Chapin robbery, at Rochester, in December last, was recovered in a Rock Island, Ill., pawnshop.

The Bellevue orderly who attended the sailor who developed Asiatic cholera there showed symptoms of the disease and was isolated.

Fadlo Mallak, the Syrian, who on Saturday shot and killed two persons and wounded five others, was held in court at Adams, Mass.

A chauffeur was killed and two women and another chauffeur were injured when a Long Island train hit two automobiles at a crossing.

It was said at Lake George, N. Y., that Governor and Mrs. Dix were negotiating for a cottage on the lake for August and possibly September.

No fear was expressed in the Navy Department for the safety of two missing midshipmen, who are believed to be lost in Norway mountains.

Inspection of subway plans by employes of the Interborough company indicated that that company had not quit the subway field in New York.

Ex-King Manuel, at the head of ten thousand men, was said to be personally directing a campaign for his restoration to the throne of Portugal.

Martial law was proclaimed at Teheran; the Persian national council accused Sipahdar, the new Premier, of disloyalty and demanded his resignation.

It was announced at Albany that public hearing on the bill proposing a new charter for New York city would begin at the City Hall on August 21, and continue until September 6.

Congress. — Senate: Democrats and insurgents considered coalition on wool bill, but took no action; the fur seal treaty was ratified without question. The House was not in session.

Mayor Gaynor, of New York, in a letter to the Chief City Magistrate, asked that the conduct of Magistrate Kernochan in refusing warrants on gambling charges backed by the affidavits of three policemen be "thoroughly investigated."

A "paper blockade" of Fort Liberte, Gonaives and St. Marc was declared by the Haytian government; the American Minister informed the Haytian President that the ports must be actually blockaded for the decree to be recognized.

The Prime Minister, in one of the stormiest sessions in the history of the British Parliament, attempted to announce the government's intentions regarding the veto bill, but was howled down by the extreme Tory faction; the session was finally adjourned, and Mr. Asquith communicated to the newspapers what he was not permitted to say from his place in Parliament, i. e., that the royal prerogative to create new peers would be invoked if the peers refused to pass the veto bill unamended.

REAL D. A. R. IS 111.

Mrs. Mary Trawick Proctor, aged 111 years, a real daughter of the American Revolution, has been discovered in a humble one-room cabin in Bartow county, Georgia. Her only companions are her daughter, Miss Mary Proctor, aged ninety, and two great-grandchildren, descendants of another daughter.

Mrs. Proctor was born in Wake county, North Carolina, in 1800. At the age of nineteen she married Hiram Proctor, a veteran of the Revolution and the War of 1812. She has lived under the administration of twenty-five Presidents.

On a bedding of straw, consisting of a mattress so thin that the rough plank slats can be seen, this daughter of the Revolution lies, her form emaciated, skin wrinkled and almost a skeleton.

Her aged daughter ministers to the wants of the little household and sometimes tills the soil in a small corn and garden patch nearby. The meager profits derived from the labor she adds to the $12 a month pension Mrs. Proctor receives for the services her husband rendered in the War of 1812.

A movement has been started in Atlanta to raise funds sufficient to provide for the two aged women the rest of their lives.

Qualify for Inspector.

Trenton, July 25.—The results of the examinations for the position of the chief inspector of tuberculosis in cattle were announced at the offices of the Civil Service Commission Saturday. Charles McNabb, of Bound Brook, headed the eligible list. The others who passed were: William H. Lowe, of Paterson; Henry H. Bair, of Frenchtown, and Lester H. Stryker, of Red Bank.

A CURIOUS DREAM.

Warning That Came to a Granddaughter of Sir Walter Scott.

An instance in which a dream was useful in preventing an impending catastrophe is recorded of a daughter of Mrs. Rutherford at Ederton, the granddaughter of Sir Walter Scott. This lady dreamed more than once that her mother had been murdered by a black servant. She was so much upset by this that she returned home, and, to her great astonishment and not a little to her dismay, she met on entering the house the very black servant she had met in her dream. He had been engaged in her absence. She prevailed upon a gentleman to watch in an adjoining room during the following night.

About 3 o'clock in the morning the gentleman heard footsteps on the stairs, came out and met the servant carrying some coals. Being questioned as to where he was going, he answered confusedly that he was going to mend the mistress' fire, which at 3 o'clock in the morning in the middle of summer was evidently impossible. On further investigation a strong knife was found hidden in the coals. The lady escaped, but the man was subsequently hanged for murder, and before his execution he confessed that he intended to assassinate Mrs. Rutherford.—London Standard.

GRAND CANYON.

An Ideal Place in Which to Realize the Insignificance of Man.

There is one place in this country where a man can step back not by hundreds but by thousands of years, back to the time when the continent was in the making. This place is the Grand Canyon of Arizona. There the visitor sees a panorama in a million colors as the mists gather about the rugged peaks and the sunlight glistens on the metallic deposits of the cliffs. A whole chaotic world discloses itself. Rock forms of uncanny beauty stand out on those unrivaled cliffs, and far down runs the river channel.

Stand on some ledge and realize the insignificance of man when compared with the handicraft of nature, watch a party of travelers threading their way down some winding trail that clings to the great wall and see them grow smaller and smaller until they become mere specks in the great rift, then some idea is gained of this wonderful place. Yet the canyon is so symmetrical and so unlike anything else that it is with difficulty that one can acquire any notion of its immensity. Niagara poured in would hardly have the dignity of a mountain stream. —New York Sun.

Humors of "Hamlet."

William Davidge related in his "Footlight Flashes" that during his strolling days in England, when companies were small, he had on the same evening done duty for Polonius, the ghost; Ostric and the first gravedigger, and Edwin Booth remembered Thomas Ward dying in sight of the audience as the player king and being dragged from the mimic stage by the heels to enter immediately at another wing as Polonius, crying "Lights, lights, lights!" Hamlet in a one night town, swearing he loved Ophelia better than forty thousand brothers, has watched her through an open grave packing her trunk in the place beneath, while the ghost, her husband, waited to strap it up. There are more things in Hamlet's existence behind the scenes than are dreamed of in the philosophy of all his commentators and all his critics.—From the Green Book.

Corn and Water.

To those engaged in the handling of grain the natural shrinkage of shelled corn while in storage and in transit is a matter of prime importance and often a source of dispute because of shortage reported at time of receipt at warehouse and a further loss at date of final sale. In order to determine the amount of shrinkage or loss of weight occurring in corn the department of agriculture has conducted an experiment with 500 bushels of shelled corn. At the time of storage the moisture content was 18.8 per cent and at close of the test 12.7 per cent, or a loss of 4.1 per cent. The weight per bushel had decreased from 54.7 pounds to 50 pounds, and the total loss of weight was 1,970 pounds, or slightly more than 7 per cent.

Sir Roger de Coverley.

Sir Roger de Coverley was the name of a member of the imaginary club of twelve under whose direction Addison's Spectator was professedly published. He was an old school, bluff, good hearted English gentleman. The dance named after him is an English dance corresponding somewhat to the Virginia reel.

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES.

Chautauqua Seems to Have a Wide Variety of Meanings.

United States geological survey records present these notes on geographical names and their origin and meaning:

Brooklyn: part of New York city; a corruption of the Dutch name Breuckelen, from a village in the province of Utrecht, Holland. The name signifies "broken up land" or "marshy land."

Burleson: county and village in Johnson county, Tex., named for Edward Burleson, Indian fighter, and vice president of the republic of Texas under President Houston, 1841.

Chautauqua: county in Kansas; county, lake and town in same county in New York. An Indian word which has been the subject of much controversy. Webster says it is a corruption of a word which means "foggy place." Another derivation gives the meaning as "bag tied in the middle," referring to the shape of the lake. It is also said to mean "place where a child was washed away." Dr. Peter Wilson, an educated Seneca, says it is literally "where the fish was taken out." Other meanings given are "place of easy death" and "place where one was lost."

Chicago: city and river in Illinois. The Ojibwa Indian form, she-kag-ong, signifies "wild onion place," from a root form implying a "bad smell."

HOLLAND'S RAILROADS.

They Are Operated at a Loss to Aid the Canal Traffic.

In contrast with the history of Belgium, Germany, France and Austria, Holland alone of all European countries presents a situation where the railroads require protection from the competition of the canals.

Holland thus reverses the general rules which apply in all other countries. Railroad development was remarkably slow in Holland. The first Dutch railroads were short local lines, while the waterway system was extensive and strongly intrenched.

At length, convinced that she could not keep pace with other European countries by her waterway system alone, the Dutch government constructed an ambitious line of railroads connecting with the international lines of Europe.

The railroads were built not with any expectation that they would be profitable as investments, but because they were considered absolutely necessary to save the country from industrial decadence. Holland is the only country in the world in which the state has provided both rail and water highways substantially free of capital charge. The railroads are now operated at a loss to supplement the waterways, which carry 90 per cent of the traffic of Holland.—American Review of Reviews.

London's Crystal Palace.

The Crystal palace was a great producer of superlatives in its early days, says the London Chronicle. When Queen Victoria wrote of May day, 1851, as "the greatest day in our history, the most beautiful and imposing and touching spectacle ever seen," she was referring to the whole idea and effect of the exhibition, but "the beauty of the building and the vastness of it all" were important factors in the marvel which she relied upon to astound her uncle Leopold. When the palace moved to the new site Herbert Spencer wrote: "I have been once at Sydenham. It surpasses even my expectations, though I had seen it in progress. It is a fairyland and a wonder surpassing all others." Ruskin said that Mr. Dickens has said that there was nothing like it in fairyland and added bitterly that Mr. Dickens was right.

What America Has Proved.

America has proved that it is practicable to elevate the mass of mankind—that portion which in Europe is called the laboring or lower class—to raise them to self respect, to make them competent to act a part in the great right and great duty of self government, and she has proved that this may be done by education and the diffusion of knowledge. She holds out an example a thousand times more encouraging than ever was presented before to those nine-tenths of the human race who are born without hereditary fortune or hereditary rank.—Daniel Webster.

Modern Improvements.

Patient — Doctor, I'm having an awful lot of trouble with the gas in my stomach. Doctor — Yes, yes; I know. Those old fashioned fixtures are giving people a lot of unnecessary trouble these days. Just step into the next room, and I'll have my engineer wire you for electric lights.—Puck.

Worldly Wisdom.

"Now that my engagement to Edgar is broken off I wonder if he will ask me to return the jewels that he gave me."

"If he doesn't ask for them I'd send them back at once, for in that case they're not genuine!"—Fliegende Blatter.

A Dear Place.

Batchman—Who was it said "Home is the dearest place on earth?" Phamlee—Some married man who had just received his coal and grocery bills, no doubt.—Boston Transcript.

Difference of Opinion.

It were not best that we should all think alike; it is difference of opinion that makes horse races possible.—Mark Twain.

TESTING AN OCTOPUS.

The Power of This Repulsive Creature Much Overrated.

There have been made abroad experiments with an octopus, in a specially devised tank of sea water, in order to test the truth of the many stories told of monster cephalopods dragging human victims to the sea bottom, says Harper's Weekly.

In the tank with the octopus there was placed a "dummy" of the same specific gravity as a man, and this was baited with a crab. Attracted by this tempting morsel, the octopus made for the figure, seized it in its powerful arms and tried to drag it under water without success. It then urged its body toward the edge of the tank, and, holding the glass with some of its arms, it dragged its prey beneath the surface and crushed the crab shell with its powerful jaws.

It is believed that these experiments afford proof that the octopus can only drag its victims far below the water near rocks to which it can attach its suckers. There is one spot in the bay of Naples where these creatures attain a large size, and now and then a fisherman is reported missing. It is thought that such disappearances are due to the unfortunate man being caught by the leg by a concealed octopus and dragged under water. In the case of such a repulsive and powerful creature as the octopus it is difficult to separate fact from fiction.

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted.

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again.

"When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court and, advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the carapace or shell on the back of the tortoise. The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed the reptile relaxes a muscle and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

When Israel Zangwill was an obscure youth teaching in a Jewish school in London he sent a short poem to a leading American monthly. It came back by an early post. He kept it, and after he had achieved fame as a writer he sent the same poem to the same magazine. This time he received a cable from the editor offering to buy the "world rights" for a large sum. The poem was the same, word for word.

Different.

"Why, a year ago you told me this place was easily worth $15,000. Now you estimate its value at less than $10,000."

"You must remember that I was trying to sell it to you then. Now you want me to sell it for you."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Adam Was Grouchy.

The Serpent—What's Adam so grouchy about today? The Ape—Oh, he says that the arrival of woman means that all his plans for universal peace have been knocked in the head for good.—Puck.

Whatever demands the deepest courage and endurance of soul of course must unveil most perfectly its hidden strength.—George W. Briggs.

FOUR SOLID CARLOADS AT JUST HALF PRICE

Newark has not known in all its history such a sale of refrigerators as this one, for every refrigerator involved is a dependable make such as we have made our reputation on, is strictly new and absolutely perfect.

The maker asked us to make an offer on all his square corner refrigerators in stock, and having disposed of our big allotment of Pocono and Governor Refrigerators for this season we were prepared to take over the stock, and made an offer which was accepted. The price enables us to sell to you four full carloads, just unloaded at the Pennsylvania R. R. station at just half the regular selling prices as noted below.

GERMAN LATCHKEYS.

Big Enough to Be Used as Weapons of Attack or Defense.

Locksmithing in Germany is today as important a trade as plumbing, blacksmithing or the vocation of the barber, says our consul at Hanover in a recent report. The first lock and key were introduced into Prussia in the fourteenth century and caused a considerable sensation at the palace of the elector of Brandenburg. He found that by these devices he could do away with the guard at his private doors and thus materially reduce his household expenses. Since that day the schlosser, or locksmith, has been an essential factor in German life.

The present German house key could be used as a weapon of attack and defense, besides serving its original purpose. It weighs on an average about one-eighth of a pound, and as each person entitled to carry a house and corridor key has nearly a quarter of a pound of soft iron in his pocket it is conservatively estimated that the amount of iron in circulation in Germany in the pockets of the men and in the hand bags of women amounts to 2,695 tons, besides an additional 2,500 tons for the keys to the interior of German homes. Thus something over 5,000 tons of iron are put into keys of a size to be found nowhere in America. However large the house or numerous the apartments, the outer door is locked promptly at 10 o'clock, and as the German spends many of his evenings out every person carries at least one of these massive keys to effect an entrance.

ANSWERED THE SIGNAL.

The King Sent the Reply, and the Captain Kicked Himself.

Rear Admiral Sir Colin Keppel was given the command of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert by King Edward, and on one occasion when the late king was on board his majesty thought he would like to steer the yacht for a little way.

Admiral Keppel took him to the wheel, and, having ascertained the proper course to steer, his majesty tried to keep the yacht in it, with rather poor success.

The vessel was being escorted by a squadron of cruisers, and the captain of one of these vessels, noticing the wabbly course of the Victoria and Albert, thought he would "rag" Admiral Keppel on his bad steering.

He signaled a sarcastic inquiry as to the erratic course of the yacht, and King Edward, seeing the string of flags go up, inquired their meaning.

Admiral Keppel went all the colors of the rainbow and tried to escape the question, but the king insisted. When at last he understood the meaning of the signal his majesty went off into peals of laughter, and after he had recovered a little he ordered a reply to be signaled.

A few minutes later the captain of the cruiser read this message: "Pray accept apologies, but am a bit out of practice.—Edward."

Then the captain retired to his cabin and kicked himself.—Pearson's Weekly.

Canes and Swords in Porto Rico.

Of all people perhaps none are more fond of canes or more skilled in their use than our fellow citizens of Porto Rico. The walking stick in that island would seem to mark social distinctions among men as fans do among women. Every Spaniard has a cane, the well to do own several, and the gilded youth often have a small arsenal of walking sticks. The term "arsenal" is used advisedly, as the Porto Ricans, like the Spaniards, have quite a fondness for sword canes and dagger canes, and they make these with remarkable skill. The blades of the finer specimens come from famous smiths in Toledo and other Spanish cities and are forged from the finest steel. Some are damascened, and others are inlaid with silver and gold; some have worked upon them the name of the owner and others the name of a patron saint.—Philadelphia Record.

All In Good Time.

Champ Clark at a dinner in Washington pleaded indulgence for a somewhat rambling speaker.

"He'll arrive," he said, "if you'll give him time. He is like Dr. Thirdly.

"Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into appropriate heads one Sunday morning when a member of the congregation shouted irascibly:

"'Meat, man! Give us meat!'

"'Well,' said Dr. Thirdly promptly, 'hold on, then, till I'm done carving.'"—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A Steady Watch.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gloonip at dinner, looking down at her watch, but speaking to Mr. Gloonip on the other side of the table, "my watch hasn't varied a second in a week."

"Remarkable!" said Mr. Gloonip. "How did you get it to vary so little?"

"I broke the mainspring."

Politeness.

True politeness is that which when a man is lying to you and you know he is lying impels you to listen to him as though you believed him and impels him to go on lying as though he believes you believe him.—Chicago Post.

A Left Handed One.

He—A handsome woman smiled at me yesterday. She—Well, it is possible for even a handsome woman to have a sense of the ridiculous.—Scranton Tribune-Republican.

A beautiful eye makes silence eloquent; a kind eye makes contradiction an assent; an enraged eye makes beauty deformed.—Addison.

POWER OF AN AUDIENCE.

Influence It Exerts Over an Actor or a Speaker.

No orator living was ever great enough to give out the same power and force and magnetism to an empty hall, to empty seats, that he could give to an audience capable of being fired by his theme.

In the presence of the audience lies a fascination, an indefinable magnetism, that stimulates all the mental faculties and acts as a tonic and vitalizer. An orator can say before an audience what he could not possibly have said previous to going on the platform, just as we can often say to a friend in animated conversation things which we could not possibly say when alone. As when two chemicals are united a new substance is formed from the combination which did not exist in either alone, the speaker feels surging through his brain the combined force of his audience, which he calls inspiration, a mighty power which did not exist in his own personality before he rose to his feet. No public speaker ever forgets that first surprising feeling of confidence.

Actors tell us that there is an indescribable inspiration which comes from the orchestra, the footlights, the audience, which it is impossible to feel at a cold mechanical rehearsal. There is something in a great sea of expectant faces which awakens the ambition and arouses the reserve of power which can never be felt except before an audience. The power was there just the same before, but it was not aroused.—Success Magazine.

A SOLEMN MOMENT.

When the Great Mail Steamer Was Stopped in Midocean.

The great steamship wavered; the screw revolved more slowly and gradually ceased to turn. There is something uncannily disquieting about an unmoving ship in the middle of the ocean, and for a few moments there were fearsome rumors among the second and third cabin passengers. The steerage, being nearer to the heart of things, understood what was going on.

The deck stewards went about explaining, and as they explained the passengers moved to points of vantage. Then all was very quiet—quiet even for the sea.

A man whom the first cabin passengers knew to be a famous bishop stepped down from among them. A heavy, clumsy, grewsome bundle was brought up. Over it the bishop, with bared and reverent head, intoned the service for those who are buried at sea. As the bishop spoke the words of committal, "We therefore commit his body to the deep, to be turned into corruption, looking for the resurrection of the body, when the sea shall give up its dead," a door in the bulwarks was lifted for the bundle and let down again, the ship began to move, sluggishly at first, then smoothly as was its wont, and the passengers went back to their games, their books and their lovemaking.

The greatest event in the dead stoker's career was over. He had stopped his majesty's mail.—Exchange.

The Eskimos and the Bible.

Frank Cross, a missionary among the Eskimos, has found considerable difficulty in using the illustration of the Bible in arctic regions. He gives two amusing anecdotes to bear out his statements. First, how his Eskimo interpreter translated a well known text into the following: "Every log that bringeth not up good 'applk' is cut up and used for firewood," "applk" being the Eskimo for dried apples and the nearest thing to fruit that they know. Again, of law, justice and government they have not the remotest notion. Mr. Cross' nearest neighbor had hundreds of dollars' worth of furs deposited in a cache. Wishing to preach on "Where Thieves Break Through and Steal," the interpreter gave up his attempt at translation, for he said such a thing was impossible among them.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Disqualified.

One west side woman who thought herself an ardent suffragist was surprised to learn that other members of the sisterhood did not share her opinion.

"Why do you doubt my devotion to the cause?" she asked. "What have I done to make you think me less earnest than the rest of you women?"

Their answer was a letter which she had written to headquarters the day before.

"You wrote on your husband's stationery," they said. "No suffragist who is worth her salt will write a personal letter under her husband's letterheads."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Catastrophe.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?"

"No. What happened?"

"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the crib and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No; the bottle."

Not Just What She Meant.

A little community of colored people had raised the money to build a new church, and the dedication was to take place the next day. "Where are you going tomorrow?" the schoolteacher asked one young girl. Smiling radiantly, she answered, "I's going to the degradation of our church!"

Mamma's Joke.

"Oh, mamma, the hen is sitting on the vacuum cleaner!"

"Perhaps she's only trying to lay the dust, dear."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Cars That Look to Cost Twice Their Price

Other Models
$1,150 to $1,675

And the Cars That Are as Good as They Look

A few makers of automobiles are putting out at this time, what purports to be a 1912 model. In their efforts to be forehanded, however, they have "flashed in the pan," in other words, mis-fired. At the lowest estimate, it takes more than six months to get out the drawings, make patterns, jigs, dies and special tools necessary for the manufacture of a new model. Add to this the time taken in making up the agents' samples and you will have eight or nine months from conception of the design to the completion of the first lot of cars. Figuring this way the conclusion is unavoidable, that so-called 1912 cars now being offered for sale must have of necessity been designed in 1910, the maker's efforts being the result of experience gathered in the season then just passed. The resulting product cannot in truth or justice bear any other than a 1911 date. If you purchase one of these cars next spring you will still have only a 1911 car. What is the answer?

SIX MONTHS AHEAD, OR SIX MONTHS BEHIND?

The designers of the DeTamble Motors Co. are only now just commencing work on next year's cars, having at their command all the necessary data in regard to the performance of their 1911 cars in the hands of the public for more than half the present season.

A 1912 DeTamble will contain all the refinements known to the art at the present moment, and will prove an even greater surprise to motorists than the 1911 car has been. These cars will be out the first of January, 1912, and from our present knowledge of their specifications, will be worth waiting for before deciding on a car for next year.

BASEBALL.

And Scotch Plains didn't do it!

Now as we gallop to press we wonder again. This time the question becomes localized and we ask, "Who can stop them Pets?"

Westfield will take another chance at Plainfield Saturday afternoon on the oval but indications point to the usual result. By the way, why not get this put on a rubber stamp—"Pets Win Again' and save time and trouble.

"Pop" Mallon was on the Plainfield bench in a uniform Saturday afternoon with his usual sparkling good nature. He was much pleased with "Warry's" playing and when the "vet" swatted out that two-bagger, the first hit for Scotch Plains in the game, "Pop" remarked as the southpaw returned from second—"I guess the old boy can hit some yet, eh!"

Otto Frederickson is making good with the Scotch Plains nine and will soon blossom forth in the Central League. "Freddie" pitched great ball for the 'Plains aggregation against Schenectady Sunday afternoon, holding the visitors down to four hits. He fanned eleven men with ease. Keep it up Otto, the Central League needs some more good pitchers.

"Cliff" Randolph had hard luck at Bound Brook Saturday afternoon and he deserved to win the game but fate said, "No." The local boy had plenty of speed and a large assortment of twisters. His control was good and the support was fast but Bound Brook bunched their seven little hits and five runs resulted.

The way Eddie Stallings pilfered second and third and then tried for home in the eighth inning Saturday reminded the knowing ones of Ty Cobb. Eddie was all in when he rounded the third station and his attempt at the longed-for rubber was a daring piece of work. His speed slackened as he started down the aisle of desire and the ball beat him to the plate by inches.

Johnny McGraw, of the New York Giants, says that he has first claim on Pitcher O'Toole, of the St. Paul Club, for $15,000, but Barney Dreyfuss says that he has him for $22,500. Evidently McGraw believes in paying high prices for pitchers but it took a long time for the money to come back on Marquard, the $11,000 beauty.

Bescher leads the National League in stolen bases with 33 to his credit, while "Red" Murray is second with 30. Ty Cobb heads the Americans with 46 pilfered sacks and Harry Lord is next to the Georgia Peach with 30.

George is making a great hit with local fans by his brilliant work on short. He is a clean player and has lots of "pep." His throwing is first class and his fielding is as sure as Louis Hatman's and that you know is going some. With the stick, George is reliable, his batting for Saturday being at a .500 clip.

Colored Giants Won Two.

The Arlington Avenue Colored Giants defeated the Richmond Juniors yesterday afternoon in a double header on the former's grounds. The first game was one sided, the Giants winning easily by a score of 10-1. The second was a hard, fought contest, resulting in a 2-1 victory for the Arlington Avenue crowd. The batteries were, Giants—Roland McCray, Fred Varned and Edward Venerable, Juniors—Frank Force, John Paroitt and Peter Robinson.

PLAINFIELDER LEADS SEARCHING IN NORWAY

Lieutenant Frederick C. Van Auken, U. S. A., formerly of this city and a graduate of the Plainfield High School in 1903, is some where in the wilderness of Norway in command of a searching party for two lost midshipmen. The Plainfield young man was detached by Commander Robert E. Contz, of the U. S. fleet, which was lying at anchor off the Norwegian coast, to lead a party of 125 midshipmen and five native guides in the search for Midshipmen Charles L. Clifford, of Boston, and Gaston L. Holmes, of Pontoco, Miss., who had failed to report to the squadron after their first shore leave.

It is expected that the two midshipmen are lost somewhere near Finses, a picturesque spot in the mountains, to which a battalion of 600 midshipmen took a hike several days ago. When the four companies returned at night, Clifford and Holmes were among the missing. Lieutenant Van Auken was immediately detailed with a searching party but was unable to locate the men. The squadron sailed from the Norwegian coast yesterday afternoon leaving Lieutenant Van Auken behind with the detachment to find the missing man. Reports from natives say that the men were seen going toward Christiana and so the searchers are now in that vicinity.

Lieutenant Van Auken is well known in this city, having lived here on East Sixth street for more than eighteen years. While in the Plainfield High School he was a remarkable athlete, being one of the best scholastic pitchers in the State. Upon entering the Naval Academy, Mr. Van Auken came into prominence through his baseball ability and he was the mainstay of the Middy team for two years. In his last year at the institution, he was elected captain of the baseball nine. Since his graduation from the Academy in 1908, Mr. Van Auken has risen raddidly in the line of officers and is now a first lieutenant.

BOAT RACES ATTRACT AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Lake Hopatcong, July 25.—Boat racing was a stellar attraction at the resort Saturday. The special race race for crafts of the auto motor boat design drew hundreds to the shore of the lake in the morning, while in the afternoon the season's regular aquatic sports were inaugurated with spirited contests. The morning race was captured by Grace W., and the May B. finished second.

The weather was all that could be desired for the afternoon events. They brought out many new boats Peter Pan, Soul Kiss and Fret were the wineners in their respective classes. A buoy at one of the turning points broke from its fastening during the race. The accident is believed to have lessened the chance of the Gopher, handled by Miss Sergeant, from landing a first prize. Miss Sergeant, in trying to get her bearings by means of the buoy, made a wide detour and lost time hunting for the stray buoy.

AFTER FOURTH HUSBAND.

Princess De Chimay Will Wed Again, It is Said.

Paris, July 25.—The courts have granted a decree of separation to the Princess de Chimay, formerly Clara Ward, daughter of the late Commodore Ward, of Detroit, from her husband, Ricciardi, an employee of the Vesuvius Funicular Railway.

She married Ricciardi, an Italian, in 1904 and it is said that Clara Ward, now that she has obtained her separation, contemplates another marriage, this time again with an Italian.

The princess was married to her first husband the Prince de Chimay, for twenty years, and divorced him to wed Rigo, the violinist, who in his turn lost the princess. Rigo has remarried. Ricciardi was the third to go. To all these former husbands the former Clara Ward had to give a portion of her fortune.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by ev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

DOCTORS TO DEBATE AS TO "WHOLESALE RATES."

New Brunswick, July 25.—Members of corporations and lodges throughout Middlesex county are interested in the result of the vote to be taken by the members of the Middlesex County Medical Society at their next meeting upon reconsideration of a resolution passed January 1, 1906, providing for stringent measures of any member that is found guilty of giving his services to any corporation, lodge or other organization at a lower rate than he charges an individual for such services. The rule, it is said, has been a dead letter.

There is said to be a division in the ranks of the society as to the advisability of enforcing the resolution. Local doctors are said to be in favor of carrying out the provisions, while the doctors at Perth Amboy are said to oppose it. In Perth Amboy are numerous large industries and the doctors have considerable business there. A committee of three of which Dr. A. L. Smith is chairman, was appointed some time ago to make a report to the society upon the matter. The report was submitted at the quarterly meeting held last week at Trenton, when the doctors were the guests of Dr. Cotton, medical director of the State hospital and laid upon the table for action at the October meeting. What the report favored has not been made public by the doctors.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Waiting for One to Pass, Drives in Front of Freight.

Red Bank, July 25.—After holding back for a newspaper train, John J. Sloane, aged 26, drove a milk wagon in front of a northbound freight engine over the New York and Long Branch Railroad track at Little Silver yesterday and was instantly killed. The horse was carried five hundred yards on the cowcatcher and the wagon was wrecked. Coroner Sickes viewed the body and scene of the accident and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Sloane worked for F. W. Gramman, a Little Silver dairyman.

CHILDREN FIND DYNAMITE.

Carrying High Explosives to Homes When Interrupted.

Perth Amboy, July 25.—Several children playing in the vicinity of Gypseytown, a populated district of this city, found four large boxes of dynamite on the tract of land recently sold by the Lehigh Valley Railroad to the Massapoust Company, of this city.

The children took several sticks of the explosive and proceeded toward their homes in Maurer. They were met by Joseph Molmar, who forced the children to lay the material in the field carfully while he went to his place of business in Keen street and called for the police. Molmar made further investigation and found the four boxes, which the police upon their arrival learned to be the property of J. Gluck, who was using it in removing stumps of trees from his property. The dynamite was turned over to Massapoust Brothers.

COLORED Y.M.C.A.

Branches of Men's Association and of Y.W.C.A. to be Formed in This City.

ROOMS IN MT. OLIVE CHURCH.

Restaurant a Feature of Work—Bible Study and Educational Classes to Be Started.

Through the efforts of Rev. M. W. Vaughan, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association for colored men and women will be organized in this city within the next two weeks. The plans for the new colored societies have been practically completed and the movement is being backed by the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church and several prominent white people in this city.

The new branches of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will be located in the addition, which is being made to the Mt. Olive Baptist church at Liberty and West Third streets. Commodious rooms in this new structure will be given over to the exclusive use of the young colored men and women of the city, the branches for the two sexes being located in separate apartments.

It is expected by Mr. Vaughan that competent leaders for the association work will be engaged as soon as the building is ready. The organization and election of officers for the two associations will be held in the near future and until then the work is being pushed by a committee of the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church.

A feature of the work of the associations will be that of a dining room and kitchen to be run by both societies. Meals will be provided for the young colored men and women of the city at a very moderate cost. This restaurant will be located in the new addition, being next to the association rooms. The eating department will be carried on for the convenience of the members of the societies although it is expected that homeless outsiders will be allowed the privileges of the restaurant.

Rooms for the two associations are being built in the concrete addition to the church. The entrances to these will be made from the West Third street side, separate doors leading into the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Each association will have a well-lighted reading room, where the leading periodical newspapers and magazines will be provided for the use of any who may care to spend their spare time in this manner. A parlor will be built in back of these reading rooms, where the young men and women may meet and where a piano and recreative games will be installed.

The regular work of the National Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will be carried on among the colored people by these two associations. Bible classes will be held three times a week, under the leadership of Mr. Vaughan and several other volunteers, including several white people. Religious meetings will be held on Sundays in addition to the regular church services. Social times will be enjoyed and several clubs will be organized. The educational side of the work will not be neglected and it is expected that in time the associations will be able to provide opportunities for the intellectual uplift of the colored people in this city, who are obliged to work during the day. Classes in domestic science and dressmaking will also be started for the young women. It is the intention of the associations to organize athletic sports among the colored population of this city and a fast baseball team from the Y. M. C. A. is anticipated.

The church building is now being remodelled, only the roof and middle floor of the old structure being used in the new edifice. The work will cost $9,000, of which $2,000 has already been secured. It is estimated that the equipment of the new associations will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000.

The idea of a Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. for the young colored people in Plainfield was first forwarded by some of the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. This city has the largest comparative negro population of any city in the State. At present there are no places where the young colored men and women of this city may go and spend their leisure time and the result of this condition has been that many have been thrown on the streets. Realizing this fact, the Mt. Olive people have started this movement for the organization of the young colored spiritually, physically and mentally.

WAND'S DIRECTORY IS BETTER THAN EVER

Wand's 1911 directory of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Westfield, Mountainside, Dunellen, Fanwood and Scotch Plains, has just come from the press and is now being delivered in this city. J. R. Wand is the publisher of this directory, which has now become a household necessity and indispensable to the business man of not only Plainfield, but all the other towns included.

This is the fifteenth directory issued by Mr. Wand and by far the best. After great care in compilation, he has succeeded in reducing the errors to a minimum, and he believes that his work will be appreciated by subscribers. The directory is printed in a clear type and is a credit to Mr. Wand.

OUTLINES PLANS FOR RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT

Herbert Parker, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. has received a letter from Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, who is attending the Men and Religion Conference being held at Silver Bay, Lake George. Mr. Mathiews is a representative of the local association and in his letter states that the work is progressing favorably.

The first of the course of lectures was given a few days ago. Charles Stelzlie, superintendent of the Bureau of Church and Labor of the Presbyterian church, who has just been appointed social secretary of the Men and Religion movement, was the speaker on that occasion. In this lecture he outlined a movement for a nation-wide survey of religious and sociological conditions that is to be made one feature of the national campaign which will embrace 1,350 cities of this country.

The survey of the religious conditions will show among other things, the growth of churches during the last ten years and the percentage of men and women joining each year. It will delve into the character of the Sunday night meetings in the various churches; also in the matter of the churches having organized movements to greet strangers in the different cities, and the percentage of churches having organized personal work.

This work will not only deal with women and men on these subjects but will also make a thorough study of conditions among the boys. It will show the number of boys enrolled in the graded schools, high schools and colleges. The percentage of different nationalities graduating from the eighth grades, from high schools and the colleges. Again they will find out the numbers of boys employed under the age of 18, in the different stores and factories and as messenger boys.

The survey will further show the number of amusement places being patronized by the boys and also the number of boys tried in the juvenile courts. It will tell the number of boys in the cities between the ages of 12 and 20; and the percentage of boys in the Protestant and Roman Catholic Sunday-schools. This social survey will also take under consideration the Labor union statistics, the saloon statistics, crimes and arrests, municipal relief, and the political life. Other conditions to be dealt with are Bible study and missions.

BUSY DAY IN CAMP

Recent Storms Give Members of Co. K. Plenty of Extra Work.

GETTING DOWN TO DRILLS.

Notwithstanding Their Many Duties Plainfield Boys Find Lots of Time For Fun.

(From Special Correspondent).

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, Tuesday.—Owing to the inclement weather Monday and the terrific storm that swept the camp that night, today was a day of hustle and bustle on the part of the citizen soldiery, cleaning up the havoc wrought by the storm, tightening ropes that had been loosened by the straining of the tents that held in the gale and in other ways making ship-shape their quarters, in addition to answering the various calls of camp duties, drills, guard mount, etc. Tent walls were rolled this morning and the company streets reseembled the back yard of city tenement property, for everything that was movable was pulled out to take advantage of the sun's rays.

Never before in the history of the guard has the camp been conducted along the lines adopted this year. Not only here, but in every State in the Union, under the provisions of the Dick act, the guard is now practically under the control of the regular army officers detailed to the State.

The program for this morning called for company exercises in advance, rear and flank guards and patrols, under supervision of the battalion commanders, for the First and Third battalions in each regiment, while the members of the other two battalions were on the rifle range for their annual practise. Immediately following the drill, the officers and non-commissioned officers returned to camp for school, and the men of the regiments were allowed to go bathing.

By an order issued yesterday afternoon, Colonel Robert L. Patterson, assistant inspector-general, has been detailed to make the annual inspection of all commands of the guard in the State while they are in camp, with the exception of the First regiment of Newark and Troop B of Red Bank, which have been inspected in the armories. One battalion is being put through each night this week after retreat, and this method will be adopted throughout the camp. Colonel Patterson has had Major James H. Hayes, inspector-general of the Second Brigade, detailed to assist him with the work. The full strength of the regiments in camp is Second regiment, 617, and Third regiment, 668.

The boys have a drill of two hours or two and a half in the mornings, in which every one takes part. After that the officers attend school, and for each afternoon this week, and during the rest of the encampment, they will have tactical walks and rides, all carrying instruction which would be of value in handling a large body of troops.

Notwithstanding the unpleasantness of the weather and the extra work the boys have been called upon to perform by reason of it, they find ample time to enjoy themselves. These enjoyments are of the usual kind indulged in by husky, healthy young men free from restraint and the customary environment where other's feelings are considered. Here they are all of the same class and conditions. What one cannot think of in the way of pranks, another can, so that when opportunity presents mirth reigns supreme.

The boys have naturally formed themselves into groups or sets and there is a good natured rivalry between several of them.

PRIVATE FUNERAL SERVICES FOR WILLIAM H. WILLIAMS.

The funeral services of William H. Williams, whose death occurred suddenly Monday morning, was held privately this afternoon at the residence of his son, Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, conducted a short service.

A detail from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, represented the G. A. R., and the following from the detachment acted as bearers; I. L. McVoy, William Addis, James Clarkson, John Worth Codington, Isiah Unangst and John Cranston. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

Purchased Watchung Ave. Property.

R. W. Barnes, of Mountain avenue, has purchased seven building lots on Watchung avenue, between Regent street and Mountain avenue, from R. H. McCullough, of Steiner place. The property has a frontage of 300 feet and a depth of 126½ feet, three of the lots being on Mountain avenue and the other four on Watchung avenue. Mr. Barnes expects to erect dwelling houses on the property.

DEALERS IN FRUIT VIOLATE ORDINANCE

Health Officer John O'Brien having discovered that dealers in fruits and vegetables are ignoring the health ordinance requiring tham to protect their products from flies, dirt, etc., today gave them all a warning that unless the ordinance was strictly complied with by Monday, he would take steps to prosecute them. He has made this decision upon advice of Judge W. A. Coddington, who is now counsel for the Board of Health.

Just why the fruit and vegetable dealers have become lax in this matter is not known, and the only reason assigned is that one dealer was reported to have ignored the ordinance and the others probably thought they could likewise. Last summer Mr. O'Brien had considerable trouble in the enforcement of the ordinance and he believed that the dealers thoroughly understood the situation. This week he learned of general violations.

Following the adoption of the ordinance by the Board of Health many dealers were put to considerable expense to comply with its provisions, recognizing the fact that proper protection of fruits and vegetables was due their customers. Mr. O'Brien said today that he had notified all dealers that no infraction of the law would be permitted.

SISTERS MEET HERE FOR THE FIRST TIME

Mrs. Adolphus Emery, of Elmwood place, is entertaining her sister, Miss Elva Conover, of Byron, Ill., and the strange fact about it is that is the first time they have seen each other, although sisters, and both grown to womanhood. Naturally their meeting was a most happy one and marked with sentations seldom experienced by near relatives.

Aside from this being the first time Miss Conover has seen her sister, it is likewise the first time she has beheld the glories and beauties of the East, which have profoundly impressed her while the magnitude of New York City, with its myriad wonders was a revelation.

The cause of the sister's separation came about through their parents who moved to the West thirty years, ago leaving Mrs. Emery, then quite small, to be raised by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Apgar, of Pattenburg. After Mr. and Mrs. Conover settled in the West another daughter was born and that child is the one now visiting her sister.

Last Sunday was the first glimpse Miss Conover ever had of a mountain and a remark to this effect made regarding the Watchung range was the cause of a trip to the Oranges, where the mountains are infinitely more picturesque than hereabouts. She was enchanted with the view and pried a piece of rock loose to take home as a souvenir.

FOUND LOST MIDSHIPMEN IN NORWEGIAN WILDERNESS.

Gaston L. Holmes and Charles L. Clifford, the two midshipmen of the American practice squardon, who were lost in the Norwegian wilderness, were found yesterday. The men had been staying at a farm house in the vicinity of Bergen on account of an injury received by one of them, while climbing in the mountains.

Their story was discredited by Lieutenant VanAuken, a cousin of Ensign Frederic Tabor VanAuken, of this city, who was the leader of the searching party and the men were arrested as deserters and sent to the squadron at Gibraltar. Ensign VanAuken, of this city, is now stationed at Hayti on the protected cruiser Desaure.

Blame the Railroad.

Blame for the wreck on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad at Bridgeport several weeks ago, was placed on the railroad company in a report made last night after a secret inquest conducted by Coroner Clifford B. Wilson. The wreck caused the death of fourteen persons and injured thirty more. It was sent to Prosecuting Attorney Alexander L. Delaney, of Fairfield county, Conn.

Funeral of Joseph Marcus Attlee.

Private funeral services for Joseph Marcus, the infant son of Rev. and Mrs. C. W. F. Attlee, of West End avenue, who died on Monday morning after a brief illness, were held at the home of the parents, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss officiated and the burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, will leave Monday for Pike county, Pa., where they will spend the month of Augut. Miss Adele Kirby, sister of Mrs. McKelvey, will join them for the latter part of the month.

ADOPT A PROGRAM

Playground Commission Arranges a Schedule For Daily Work at Schoolyards.

TIME SYSTEMATICALLY DIVIDED

Youngsters Will All Have a Chance to Play and Not Become Overtired—Attendance Breaks Record.

The Board of Playground Commissioners at a meeting held this week adopted a program for use at the playgrounds in this city. The routine as laid down has been in vogue in all the large cities of the country but had not been adopted here.

The program as outlined, is a very good one and from its brief use in this city has proved very satisfactory. The plan provides that the children will be able to participate in all the activities without becoming the least bit fatigued. That is, there is a period in which a talk is given to the children after which a period of free play is allowed them. In this manner they can take part in all the amusements and still not become the least bit tired.

The grounds have been popular this year and the attendance has far surpassed that of last year. In fact the places are a regular mecca for the youngsters, and if the crowds coming to the grounds increase much more another recreation park will have to be opened. All the apparatus in use have been screened from the sun's rays making it a place for the children to go in spite of the hot weather. In other cities the supervisors have had numerous accidents among the little girls and boys but accidents here have been noticeable by their absence. At the Irving school the largest attendance has been roted, being the most thickly populated part of town. This ground is in charge of Miss Ethel Skillman, a graduate of the city High School in 1909, and notwithstanding the fact she has the largest number of children to look after she has been very successful in her work.

The daily program is a follows:

Morning session—9:30 to 10:00, quiet talk and story; 10:00 to 11:00, occupation work; 11.00 to 11:25, organized games, (girls), organized free play, (boys); 11:25 to 11:50, organized games, (boys), organized free play, (girls); 11:50 to 12:00, marching dismissal, singing.

Afternoon session—2:00 to 3:00, (girls), occupation work and folk dances, (boys), ball games, gymnastics, races; 3:00 to 3:30, organized games (girls), organized free play, (boys); 3:30 to 4:00, organized games, (boys), organized free play, (girls); 4:00 to 4:20, organized games, (girls), organized free play, (boys); 4:20 to 4:40, organized games, (boys), organized free play, (girls); 4:40 to 5:00, dismissal, marching, singing.

GAVE A LAWN PARTY FOR NEW DOVER CHURCH.

The lawn party given for the benefit of the New Dover M. E. church at the home of Charles Thomas, at Mt. Pleasant Farm, last night, was a great success and largely attended, there being a number of Plainfielders present. A splendid program was prepared, a feature of which was the vocal selections by Ralph Christie, formerly well-known in this city. He sang several popular songs.

By an unique arrangement the lawn was fitted up as a miniature theatre. The large white barn was used as the back drop of the stage and lighting arrangements was three automobile searchlights fed by a presto-lite gas tank. In addition to this there were numerous Chinese lanterns suspended over the enclosure.

JULY MUSIC FESTIVALS FAIL AT OCEAN GROVE.

Ocean Grove, July 26.—The plan of holding music festivals here in July has proved such a financial loss to the Ocean Grove Association that it is more than likely that they will be discontinued after this year. This statement was made Monday night by Tali Esen Morgan, the musical director. He declared that the July concerts were abandoned last year and there was such a cry for their resumption this year that they were made a part of the summer program.

"Now," said Mr. Morgan, "the people fail to appreciate our efforts. We have tried to appreciate our efforts. We have tried repeatedly to draw people to the Auditorium during July but the best we have done is to lose money although we have given high-class entertainments."

Mr. Morgan went on to say that he was contemplating an immense musical festival for August of next year.

ELIZABETH ELKS PLAN BIG PARADE

Heeding the numerous requests to show their friends what sort of an appearance they made in the parade at Atlantic City, where a prize of $150 was won, the Elizabeth Elks have agreed to parade in that city, Friday night. A meeting of the committee having the affair in charge was held last night and all of the arrangements were completed. The prize money was received yesterday.

Those who will be in line have been instructed to have the creases smoothed and the spots cleaned from the uniforms so that the same spick and span appearance will be made as on the day of the big parade at the convention. A large number of the order from this city have signified their intention of going to Elizabeth to see their brother "Bills" do themselves proud on their native heath.

LOCAL CYCLISTS WILL RACE ON LABOR DAY

Cycling races will be revived again on Labor Day when a local meet will be held under the auspices of the Plainfield Cycling Club. Arrangements for the affair are well under way and from all indications some fast riding will be witnessed. The events will be a one mile scratch county championship, a one mile scratch city championship, a two mile scratch boys' race for local juvenile riders and possibly a five mile open handicap.

The races will be over the Mountain avenue course and will be held at ten o'clock Labor Day morning. Trial heats will be run in the city and county championships, while the boys' race will be in one heat. A diamond studded gold medal will be given to the winners in the city and country events and silver and bronze medals to the second and third place men. The prizes for the other races will be merchandise.

Many of the local speed riders have signified their intentions of entering the city and county championships. It is probable that the representatives of this city will carry away a large number of the prizes as there are some well known cyclists in the Plainfield clubs. In the county event the local men will be matched against some of the best material from Elizabeth, Westfield Summit and Rahway. Among those who will attempt to hold up the reputation of this city are Sherman Haberle, holder of the world's record for one mile, Percy Haberle, Ernest Mantz, Raymond Mantz, George Jones, George Simon, Edward Simon, William Drake, Kenneth Mair and William Simon.

The officials for the Labor Day meet will be as follows:

Entries for the races will close Labor Day morning with Jack Horner, of Somerset street.

The Bulkhead and Improvement Company, formed to reclaim submerged lands and build dykes, bulkheads and draws filed articles of incorporation with County Clerk James C. Calvert, at Elizabeth yesterday. The incorporators are Edward J. Brookins and F. T. Ostrom and Harry E. Cittel, of this city. The office will be at 138 North avenue. The company is incorporated at $2,000 in twenty shares, eleven of which are paid in.

Declare Extra Dividend.

The announcement by the board of directors of the City National Bank today that in addition to the regular dividend of four per cent. an extra dividend of one percent is declared on the earnings of the past six months, is most gratifying to the stockholders of this banking institution. The dividends will be payable to stockholders of record on and after August 1.

James Davis Ill in Texas.

James Davis, formerly manager for the Plainfield Cab Company, but who has been located at El Paso, Texas, for sometime, in a letter to his friend, J. W. KING OF NIAGARA

Bobby Leach, Lashed in Steel Barrel, Takes Rapids and Cataract.

SUFFERS FROM BROKEN LEG.

Rescued by Friends—A Woman the Only Person to Survive a Similar Attempt.

Bobby Leach, who for several years conducted a wagon lunch room on East Second street, eluded the New York and Canadian police yesterday afternoon and won for himself the title of "King of Niagara," by going over the Horseshoe Falls, in the steel barrel that was a familiar object on the porch of the Iroquois Hotel, now the Queen City Hotel, while Leach was a resident of this city. He was in the water less than an hour and aside from a broken leg and numerous bruises, was apparently one the worse for his perilous ride.

Leach is only the second person to make the dip in safety, the first being Mrs. Ann Taylor, in 1901. She used a barrel of wooden construction and was not even injured. She was older in years than Leach, who is 49. The barrel in which Bobby made the plunge was set adrift near LaSalle. It was towed by a launch to the danger point for boats, sealed up with Leach inside and let go.

Lazily the man with ambition for fame swept on. Into the upper rapids and over the reefs the strange craft went and them Leach knew he was speeding toward the dropping off place. An eddy current drew him near shore opposite the power plant of the Electrical Development Co., but the currents that hurry toward the fall were stronger and on them Leach continued the journey. From this place it was quick work. Faster and faster the waters carried him, and then, 400 feet out from the Canadian shore, they dropped out from under him and let him drop into the waters of the gorge right where they boil and toss at the foot of the water fall.

The barrel went out of sight. A moan went up from the watchers as thousands of eyes watched for the reappearance of the barrel speck. The barrel came in sight again quickly, and then the gorge current picked it up and swept it well toward the Canadian side. There friends were waiting, and as the barrel swung into the eddy Frank Bender, of Chippewa, Ontario, plunged into the river and swam to it. He caught it and pushed it toward shore, where others helped take Leach from the barrel. He was conscious, but as he was taken out it was evident that his left leg was broken and he was in a badly shaken up condition. His realization of having made the trip successfully was sufficient despite the stimulants taken to enable him to wave to those on the cliff tops, and he was placed on a stretcher and hurried up the bank and home.

From the time of starting to the time he was rescued Leach was in the barrel less than an hour. He was set adrift at 2:55 o'clock, and it was exactly 3:13 o'clock when he made the plunge over the brink. Twenty-two minutes later he was taken from the barrel in the gorge. About all he was able to say was that he was glad he had made the trip in safety. As Leach has been through the whirlpool rapids several times and has droppped from the upper steel arch bridge, his trip over the Horseshoe makes him king of the Niagara performers.

Street Improvement Resumed.

After several weeks' delay, Mobus & Burke, contractors, have resumed the work of repairing West Front street, between Plainfield and Grant avenues, and it is now expected that it will be pushed rapidly to completion. The roadbed was excavated and made ready for the crushed stone and bituminous binder which will comprise the top, but the contractors were held-up by a delay in getting tar kettles. The apparatus has arrived and the work of spreading crushed stone resumed.

Saving as a Habit

Economy is not a natural trait—men and women save money because they have been trained to do so. The advantages of saving have been illustrated so forcibly either by personal experience or observation of others that they begin to acquire the saving habit themselves.

When you acquire the saving habit, you're on the high road to prosperity.

Extravagance is unscientific and leads nowhere except toward failure. The saving habit is your grip on the ladder of success.

The best time to start acquiring the saving habit is in childhood. Start your boy or girl right. Open a savings account for them and teach them the value of money.

Fidelity Trust Co.,

Newark, N. J.,

will be glad to help you in this matter. It accepts in its Savings Department accounts as small as $2.

'CHICK' EVANS PUT OUT OF GOLF TOURNEY

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—An intensely interesting golf struggle between Mason Phelps, Western champion and "Chick" Evans, ex-Western open champion, which Phelps won by halving the last fourteen holes—one contest decided on twenty-first green and another at the nineteenth hole and a match card of 72, one stroke slower that the course record turned in by W. L. Howland, of Chicago—proved the startling features of the second day's play for the Western amateur golf championship on the links of the Detroit Golf Club.

The Phelps-Evans play attracted a large gallery, and the spectators were not disappointed. But after it was decided, R. G. Harrison, of Des Moines, and M. D. Ritchie, of Pittsburg, fought nip and tuck until the latter won the nineteenth hole in 4-5. Later still, James D. Standish, Jr., cheered the Detroit contingent when, with a ten-foot put, he claimed the twenty-first hole and match from Ralph Rider, of Des Moines, with a four to the Iowan's five.

Phelps was the favorite in his match with Evans, and he outplayed the latter much of the way. Evans was decidedly off on his putting, and only spectacular approach work combined with favorable breaks of luck seemed to save him from greater defeat. Several times he drove into the rough, while Phelps save on one or two occasions, when he missed short puts, played smooth, consistent golf.

HARRY GISSING WILL NEVER RUN HERE AGAIN.

The announcement that Harry Gissing intended to accept a position as coach at the Berliner Sport Club, Berlin, Germany, was confirmed yesterday by the receipt of a letter from Jake Webber, his trainer, to Mel Sheppard. Although Webber does not make it plain as to whether or not Gissing has any intention of turning pro, yet he declares the former New York A. C. champion middle-distance runner will never return to this country. Webber will sail for home within a few days.

JONES SURE TO START.

A lot of ugly rumors are being passed around that J. P. Jones, the mile champion of Cornell, will not show up at St. Agnes' meet Saturday. W. L. Jones, who is conducting the meet, begs to state for the one hundred and fifty-fifth time, that Jones is coming on sure.

It leaked out yesterday that the great runner has been training hard at his home in Washington. He wants to beat Sheppard and Kiviat. The report says that Jones, in a trial half mile, did 1:50 or better and broke his own record of 4 minutes 15 2-5 seconds for the mile. He isn't going to be caught napping, if he can help it. "Old Fox" Jack Moakley, too, is keeping quiet, and he may spring the biggest surprise ever.

ADAMS NOT GOING.

Despite reports to the contrary, Platt Adams, the allaround athlete of the New York A. C., is not going to compete at the all-around championships to be held on Marshall field, Chicago, on August 12. He hasn't become proficient enough in two of the big events scheduled, the weights, and until he has mastered them will keep out of the big games.

With Sheridan, Adams and Johnny Gillis out, it looks like a cinch for F. C. Thompson, of Los Angeles, to repeat again. He won last year, nosing out Gillis by a few points.

Pirates Likely to Keep O'Toole.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 26.—President Barney Dreyfuss expressed no alarm today over the claims of the New York National League Club management that Pitcher O'Toole, bought from St. Paul, belonged to the Giants. He had already forwarded to the National Commission the formal agreement, the papers being in regular form and signed by Mr. Dreyfuss and President George E. Lennon, of the St. Paul club. Dreyfuss yesterday received a letter from Lennon in which he said that "Mike" Cantillon had called him over the long-distance telephone and said that C. A. Comiskey had authorized him to go as high as $25,000 for O'Toole but Lennon had answered that the deal had been closed and the pitcher belonged to Pittsburg. President Dreyfuss announced late yesterday that he had placed an insurance policy for $25,000 on O'Toole's life, and he would take out an accident policy for a large sum, as soon as O'Toole had reported to the Pittsburg Club.

Reds Trade 2 Pitchers for Lessard.

Cincinnati, July 26.—It was announced here yesterday that Pitchers Herbert Juul and George McQuillan, of the Cincinnati National League team, had been traded to the Columbus, Ohio, American Association Club, in exchange for Pitcher Lessard.

PROBABLE CAUSE OF OUR COLD WEATHER.

For five minutes Monday night a snow flurry occurred several miles southeast of Bay City, Mich., the only snow ever recorded during July in that part of the State. A gale from the southwest lowered the river to such an extent that the traction and electric lighting plants were deprived of water for their boilers. Street car, power and light current was off for nearly an hour while an extension was fitted to the powerhouse intake pipe.

Citizens of reputation, of Findlay, Ohio, avert that quite a little snow fell Monday night. The snow was genuine and was probably forced down by a very heavy atmosphere.

GOODWIN IS DIVORCED BY HIS FOURTH WIFE.

New York, July 26.—Nat Goodwin is free to enter again in the matrimonial handicap, provided he makes his start ouside of the boundaries of New York State. In the Supreme Court yesterday Justice Bischoff signed the final decree divorcing the actor and his fourth wife, Edna Goodrich, the actress. Under the terms of the court order Miss Goodrich may resume her maiden name and marry again when and where she pleases, but Goodwin is forbidden to marry again within the jurisdiction of the court.

The decree does not mention alimony, Miss Goodwin being satisfied with the settlement upon her by Goodwin prior to their wedding.

BURGLARS IN NEW PROVIDENCE.

New Providence, July 26.—Burglars made a tour of the entire residene of James Henbest, in Springfield avenue, in the western section of the town early yesterday morning, entered the rooms of the sleeping occupants and ransacked every nook and corner without being interrupted. For their trouble the visitors obtained an umbrella and some cash. They worked close to Mr. Henbest and his son, removing their trousers from alongside of their beds.

When the family awoke the house was in a topsy-turvy condition. Bureau drawers were emptied upon the floors, closets were ransacked and the contents strewn about. The intruders got in through a window on the first floor.

P. H. LATOURETTE IS LAID TO REST

Funeral services for Peter H. Latourette, whose death occurred at his home on East Fifth street Sunday morning, were held at his late residence this afternoon. The home was filled with friends from this city, fellow lodgemen and relatives and friends from places nearby and Hunterdon county. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, conducted the service and interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

There was a large collection of floral tributes to the memory of the departed, many of his friends showing their respect and esteem for him in this manner as well as the fraternal orders of which he was a member, all of which were largely represented. The bearers were selected from the various delegations representing these organizations and the committal services were in charge of the lodgemen.

NEW JERSEY COURT ISSUES INJUNCTION

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and local affiliated organizations are directed by an order of Vice Chancellor Howell of New Jersey to show cause before Vice Chancellor Walker, in Trenton, next Tuesday, why they should not be enjoined from further preventing members of Local 1787 of New York "from procuring employment in any part of the State of New Jersey or in any part of the United States of America."

The Vice Chancellor also signed an order directing the defendant organizations, "their agents, servants, attorneys, confederates, and any and all persons acting in the aid of or in conjunction with them or any of them from interfering in any manner or with any person, firm or corporation in employing any of the complainants; from threatening any boycott against any person, firm or corporation employing or intending to employ any of the complainants; from declaring or threatening any boycott against any of the products of any factory or any person, firm or corporation employing any of the complainants; from aiding, abetting or assisting in any such boycott; from printing, issuing, publishing or distributing through the mails or in any other manner any copy or copies of the Carpenter or any other written newspaper magazine, circular, letter or other document whatsoever which shall contain or in any manner refer to any of the complainants or local 1787 as being non-union, unfair or 'scabs,' and from publishing or otherwise circulating, whether in writing or orally, any statement or notice of any kind or character whatsoever calling attention to the complainants or any of them that they are non-union men or that they are not affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and from procuring the dismissal from employment of any of the complainants."

The application was made by Samuel F. Leber. In addition to the brotherhood and affiliated locals, Albert R. Wyatt and Christian Mowell, business agents, are also made defendants by the order. Trouble between local 1787 and the national organization dates back to March, 1910, when the local was suspended following a dispute. There are 287 members in the local and they assert that they had difficulty in obtaining work because of the activity of the walking delegates of the councils. The court action is the first step in the legal battle by the local to retain its standing with the national body.

ROMANCE OF THE SURF HAS CLIMAX IN WEDDING.

Asbury Park, July 26.—A romance that had its inception in the surf ended yesterday at Long Branch, when Jacob Anekstein and Ruth Dembitzer were married at Long Branch by Rev. Dr. De Maris. Mr. Anekstein saved the young woman from drowning while the two were bathing at the Fourth avenue grounds on the Fourth of July, and the romance dates from that time.

It had been intended that the marriage should take place in the fall, but the bridegroom-elect insisted on an early wedding, and Miss Dembitzer finally acquiesced.

LAWYER IS JAILED ON CHARGE OF WITNESSES.

Atlantic City, July 26.—John McClintock, Jr., a lawyer, with offices at 1125 Land Title building, Philadelphia, was jailed Monday night on the charge of tampering with witnesses testifying before the coroner's jury investigating the death of Howard Pew, of Weehawken, eleven years old, who was run down by a machine driven by George Irwin, of New Rochelle.

The arrest was made following identification of McClintock by a woman witness who testified that he had told her she would get in trouble unless she swore that the machine was traveling over fifteen miles an hour and did not blow its horn.

"Yes, I'm the man," said McClintock, jumping to his feet, and he was summarily arrested, charged with subornation of perjury. Other witnesses testified that they had been approached by a short man, identified as McClintock, and a tall man, said to be connected with his office. The police are looking for the other man. McClintock was the attorney for the Pew accident. The jury returned a verdict of unavoidable accident.

"DEFENSELESS!"

In spite of the hot weather, Miss Christie MacDonald, of "The Spring Maid," has been taking boxing lessons, so the other night she was fully prepared when, upon leaving the theatre, she was insulted by one of the loiterers.

Rejoicing in her newly acquired knowledge, Miss MacDonald landed a right hand blow, which sent the offended sprawling.

Towering above him she indignantly said, "How dare you insult a defenseless woman?" and wrathfully passed on.

The brute looked up and simply murmured: "Defenseless!" — July Young's Magazine.

BRADLEY KEEPS UP WAR ON TAX ASSESSMENT.

Asbury Park, July 26.—Founder James A. Bradley is keeping up his fight against what he calls "indiscriminate assessments," and Monday night he caused to be issued a statement in which he takes to task the president of the county tax board, William K. Devereux. Mr. Bradley tells the history of the Auditorium block on Ocean avenue, which has been assessed at something like $30,000. He says that for years he gave the free use of the building to all conventions that came to Asbury Park, that he maintained both men and women janitors, and that he kept everything about the place in repair. Now, in the face of that condition, he declares, he thinks some consideration should be shown him.

Mr. Bradley says that the use of his building as a convention hall had been the means of bringing thousands of visitors to Asbury Park.

"Now reckon the cost of the building, interest on investment, expenses of maintenance for twenty-five years, and tell me what it amounts to," he declares in his open letter to President Devereux. "I have figured I could erect a hospital as good as the Ann May Memorial Hospital at Spring Lake and possibly leave a fund for maintenance."

PHILLIPSBURG TO AID CONCERN BUILD PLANT.

Phillipsburg, July 26.—At a conference between a special committee of the Board of Trade, the members of the Sewer Committee and Mayor Firth, of the town, and Superintendent G. R. Elder, of the Ingersoll Rand Company, and the Cameron Pump Company, Mr. Elder stated that a $1,000,000 plant will be erected on the fifteen-acre site, which adjoins the local Ingersoll Rand plant in which to operate the Cameron Pump Works, to be moved here from New York.

The pump works now employ 900 workmen and the new plant in Phillipsburg will have a capacity double the New York factory. The municipal autorities have agreed to construct a new sewer to connect with the proposed new works, in spite of an order issued by the State Board of Health four years ago, to the effect that no more sewers be constructed to carry anything except surface water. The town council has already voted that it is the sense of the body to construct the new sewer to accommodate the large new industry and defy the State authorities on that point.

HOTELS BAR CHINAMAN.

Ocean Grove, N. J., July 26.—After accommodations were refused him at a dozen hotels here Edward S. Moy, a Chinaman prominent in religious work in Washington, D. C., has returned to the capital in high dudgeon. But for a chance meeting with friends, Moy likely would have been obliged to sleep on a park bench Monday night. He met Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Taylor, who have a cottage here and they took him to their home.

Moy was so incensed that he refused food and sat all night in a rocking chair. Yesterday morning he returned to Washington. He is the President of a branch Y. M. C. A. at Washington and a member of a Baptist church.

Hotel proprietors here dismissed Moy with the curt announcement that Chinamen were not wanted.

FRANCHISE VALUES HIGHER.

Trenton, July 26.—Special Commissioner Charles Hansel filed yesterday with the State Board of Assessors records showing completion of the revaluation of railroad and canal property in New Jersey. It is understood that the revaluation will show a large increase, especially in the assessment of franchises.

It is reported that the new assessment on the physical property of the Central Railroad of New Jersey is about $5,000,000, which is only about $1,000,000 more than the valuation by the State Board of Assessors, but that the assessment on the company's franchise is about $20,000,000 as against only $7,000,000 by the State Board.

Season's Big Bass.

Asbury Park, July 26.—One of the largest striped bass ever caught from the fishing pier was landed yesterday morning by Paul S. Zierz, of 573 Warren street, Newark. It took him almost an hour to land it. It weighed forty pounds and three ounces. Mr. Zierz stands good chances of winning the gold medal offered for the largest striped bass caught along the New Jersey coast from Seabright to Egg Harbor.

START CRUSADE AGAINST CARELESS MOTORISTS.

State Forester Alfred Gaskill and State Motor Vehicle Commissioner J. B. R. Smith have jointly started a crusade against motorists who start forest or grass fires along the highways by throwing away matches after lighting cigars, or in other ways. The first victim of the crusade is Joseph Halt, of Yonkers, who is charged by Mr. Gaskill with causing an incipient fire near Pomona Station, Atlantic county, recently.

Mr. Holt has been summoned to appear before Commissioner Smith and answer the charge. The case was to have been heard yesterday, but was postponed until next Tuesday.

COLORED FIREMEN TO FIGHT TO KEEP HOSE.

Asbury Park, July 26.—A demand has been made upon the Eureka Hose Company, an organization of colored firemen on the west side, for the 900 feet of new hose which was recently turned over to that company by Councilman W. C. Weeden, chairman of the Fire Committee.

It is claimed that the Eurekas are not a part of the fire department of Asbury Park. When a reorganization of the department took place several years ago the Eureka company was not recognized in the ordinance. The Eurekas say that they will not give up the hose, and a fight seems probable.

NOTES OF THE MODES.

Gold trimmings apepar on millinery and dresses alike, the modish colors combining well with the bright tone.

An original type of morning hat seen recently was of white straw piped with black. Straight up from the centre of the hat in front, producing the effect of a feather, was a ruche of plaited net, with a thin black centre line.

Fabric hats for the summer girl are fashioned from broderie Anglaise, mousseline, figured net, linen and the regulation lingerie combination of fine batiste embroidery and lace.

Ball trimming is an interesting detail of summer dress. Irish crochet beads and mercerized materials are utilized. Ball trimming in black and white makes an effective finish to a tunic of hair line check, black and white mousseline, the white underdress having a deep band of black satin.

INSPIRATION FROM A FLY.

It was Mendelssohn who first put fairies into the orchestra, and that composer's incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is surely the happiest accompaniment to Shakespeare's play. But there is more than the revels of fairies in Mendelssohn's work. There is the buzzing of a fly which one day in the summer of 1826 flew about Mendelssohn's head as he lay on the grass with a friend in the Schonhauser Garden, Berlin, planning the overture. As the fly buzzed by Mendelssohn said "Hush!" and listened intently for a time. Afterward, when the overture was finished, the composer pointed to the modulation of the 'cellos from B minor to F sharp minor in the middle section, and said: "There, that's the Schonhauser fly." That overture has become one of the world's musical classics, and Mendelssohn was a boy of 18 when he wrote it.—London Chronicle.

Juvenile Activities.

"Father," said the small boy, "what is a prodigy?"

"A prodigy, my son, is a boy who can be persuaded to get his mind on the third dimension instead of trying to get his feet on third base."—Washington Star.

PASSAIC VOTES FOR COMMISSION RULE

Commision government won in Passaic yesterday by an overwhelming majority of 931 votes, more than two votes for every one against, the total beting 1,792 to 861. It was a most complete victory, and astounded the opponents of Governor Wilson's plan, who were confident that it would fail to get the minimum of 1,352 ballots required by law. Passaic is the second New Jersey municipality to accept the new form of government, Trenton being the first.

The Second and Third wards, where the commuters, business and professional men reside, cast sweeping majorities for the proposal, the totals being 1,058 against 248. In the Fourth ward, which was doubtful, the antis were given an awful shock, losing out by 330 to 606. Even more astonishing was the result in the First, where the opposition was confident of fully 500 majority. Twelve of the sixteen districts were carried for the plan.

In face of the defeats at Bayonne, Jersey City, Hoboken and New Brunswick the outcome is most remarkable. Twenty-six hundred and fifty-three of the citizens who voted for the Assembly candidates last year went to the polls.

The election was the first held in New Jersey under the new Gerran law, and proved most satisfactory. There was no disorder at the polls and the election passed off very quietly.

THAT BON VOYAGE GIFT.

The search for a suitable gift for the friends about to sail causes more than a few woeful hours at this time of the year. Anyone in whom the thrift of her ancestors lingers at all is loath to buy expensive flowers that will perish so quickly. Anyone in whom there is a maternal solicitude for the physical well-being of her friend hesitates to put candy in her way, and—what is there left? Only the small and useful gift—the thing which it is almost impossible to find. However much one may enjoy presenting one's friends with oil paintings and cut glass at Christmas, one draws the line at steamer gifts which, however beautiful, are unessential to traveling.

"One of the few possible gifts is a folding scrap basket," says one who knows, "for these are never provided in the steamer staterooms, nor are they to be found in the continenal hotels. Therefore, one is always acceptable. If made of wallpaper, such a basket is light in weight and pretty."

Another present which one thoughtful woman makes a habit of giving to her friends for "bon voyage" is a huge lingerie case of dotted muslin, lined with silk and edged with lace. It smells deliciously of a faint perfume made of orris and wood violet sachet. The giver tells her friend that in this case is to be kept her best set of underclothes, so that it will always be ready for very special occasions like a royal house party or a Fourth of July dance in Venice. The value of these lingerie cases has been tested by the giver, for she herself, even staying at home, always keeps a number on hand. As her clothes come from the laundry the ribbons are run in and each set is put in a separate case. With these cases packing for a week-end visit is no trouble, for the cases are simply lifted from a drawer and put in the tiny trunk that goes on such jaunts.

Too Hasty.

"Hello! Is that the information editor?"

"Yes."

"Please tell me where the Giants—"

"Call up the sporting editor. You've got the wrong man."

"I think not. I want to find out where the Giants' Causeway is located, is it in Ireland or is it in Scotland?"—Chicago Tribune.

His Only Hope.

The doctor stood by the bedside and looked gravely down at the sick man.

"I cannot hide from you the fact that you are very ill," he said. "Is there anyone you would like to see?"

"Yes," said the sufferer faintly.

"Who is it?"

"Another doctor."—Judge.

BALASH GIVEN 30 YEARS FOR ASSAULTING GIRL.

New Brunswick, July 26.—Sandor Balash, of Roosevelt, was sentenced to thirty years in prison, the maximum penalty, by Judge Peter F. Daly yesterday for an assault upon six-year-old Lizzie Bogolia. This is the heaviest sentence ever given in New Jersey for this crime. Balash left the girl to die in the woods after the assault on June 15, and she remained there all night, exposed to a severe thunder-shower, and was found almost dead the following morning.

RESEMBLES A MERMAID.

If the Dugong Had Long Hair It Would Make a Real Sea Woman.

The old stories about mermaids do not seem so improbable after all when one looks at a full sized dugong. The only thing it lacks to make it a real sea woman is long hair.

This enormous fish has flippers instead of fins and rudimentary arms. The flippers end in four distinct fingers and are startingly like the human hand. The shoulders of this weird marine creature slope in to a short but perfectly defined neck, on which is set a round head. The eyes are like a human being's in shape and expression, but very much larger. They are set far apart on each side of the head and have a brown iris swimming in a white ball, but are lidless. The dugong has no nose, but the forehead is broad and well developed, and while the mouth is "fishy" in shape there is a distinct under lip.

The dugong is twice the height of a tall man when it is full grown, and a mother dugong moving about through the water holds her baby tenderly in her "arms" pressed to her breast, just as a human mother does.

Glimpses of this strange inhabitant of the sea no doubt gave rise to the old time belief in mermaids. The dugong is rapidly becoming extinct, but still can be found in fairly large numbers in the Indian ocean.—New York Press.

SICKROOM PLANTS.

Why They Should Be Put Out of Doors During the Night.

In his random suggestions to his students, printed in the Medical Record, Robert H. M. Dawbarn, M. D., tells why it is considered best not to keep flowers or growing plants in a sickroom at night. Flowers give off moisture taken up from the soil; hence air becomes somewhat humid if many—particularly growing plants—are kept in the room. Flowers having a method of breathing, they use up the oxygen as human beings do and in exchange give off carbonic dioxide as waste matter.

The action of sunlight upon the stems, leaves and all green parts of flowers is to store carbonic dioxide within the plants and release oxygen. Thus in daylight there is a fair balance between the carbonic dioxide and the oxygen given and taken, leaving neither good nor ill results. But during the entire night the plant continues to breathe, and until the return of daylight the oxygen is used just like an additional person breathing in the room, thus leaving less oxygen for the use of the invalid. Therefore the standing order to remove all plants and flowers at night is based upon the facts of plant physiology and is right.

Chateaubriand's Early Struggles.

A new discovery has been made about Chateaubriand—nothing less than that he once sold stockings on commission. It was in 1790, when he was still an officer in the royal service. He had a debt of honor, amounting to £200. He wrote to a distant relative, one La Morandais, who manufactured stockings in Switzerland, appealing for help on the ground that he must either pay that debt or blow his brains out. La Morandais, instead of sending him money, sent him 169 dozen pairs of stockings, offering him a liberal commission if he would sell them among his distinguished friends. He gratefully accepted the offer and succeeded in disposing of the merchandise. There is reason to believe that he managed to plant a good deal of it on the stores department of his own regiment.—Westminster Gazette.

The Clever Brahman.

Speaking of the great power the Brahmans in India possess in localizing thought, a prominent Brahman once said: "We would consider a game of chess as played in this country mere child's play. An ordinary Brahman chess player could carry on three or four games at a time without inconvenience. The usual game played by the Brahmans consists in checkmating with one pawn designated when the play begins. I have seen a man perform a long problem in multiplication and division, at the same time noting the various sounds and discussions going on about him in the room. I have seen a man compose a triple acrostic in Sanskrit in a given meter, at the same time having three well versed men trying to overthrow him in his argument on religion."

Somewhat Unfortunate.

"There are some times in my life when I have felt that fate is indeed ironical," said the man who was seldom troubled by his debts.

"Do you refer to any special occasions?" inquired one of his oldest creditors.

"One of them came last week when I was in Chicago," said the cheerful debtor. "I had a money order for $25, and the only person who could identify me was a man to whom I owed thirty."—Youth's Companion.

Contradicting a Proverb.

"People can't expect to get something for nothing," said the ready made philosopher.

"My landlord manages it," replied Mr. Growcher. "He makes me sign a contract to pay a full year's rent whether I live in his flat or not."—Washington Star.

Respect For the Aged.

"What's the matter, Miss Dallington?" asked the village wag. "You never laugh at any of my jokes."

"I have been taught never to laugh at the old and decrepit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

ROSES AND THORNS.

An Old Eastern Legend and Its Application to Human Life.

This world we're living in
Is mighty hard to beat.
You get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet?

There is an eastern legend that when the beneficent Creator prepared the earth for man, causing it to bring forth herbs and trees pleasant to the eye and good for food, each bearing its seed within itself for propagating its kind, the roses had no thorns and the lilies, violets and other blossoming plants were free from thistles, brambles and noxious weeds.

But the sons and daughters of men in their greedy eagerness to gather the flowers, each one selfishly striving to secure a larger share than his fellow, seemed likely to despoil the earth of its beauty and leave not even enough blossoms to perfect their seed and perpetuate their species. So the kindly All Father provided the roses with thorns for self protection and sent a host of defenders of the more tender blossoms by causing thistles and briers to spring up around them like wardens of a castle or the bodyguard of a queen. And this is the reason for the thorns and briers—nature's protection against human greed.

The legend has a wider application. The roses typify the pleasures of life and the thorns its pains. A life of ease and pleasure was not only useless, but satiating. It would demoralize him who indulged in it. Satiety despoils the rose of its beauty and the violet of its fragrance; hence kind nature makes true pleasure the reward of virtuous effort and punishes overindulgence with penalizing suffering, to the end that greed may be restrained and self control developed with its attendant virtues of temperance, kindliness, industry and thrift.—John B. Stoll in South Bend Times.

FOES TO SUCCESS.

Don't Be a Victim of Timidity, Shyness or Self Consciousness.

Timidity, shyness and self consciousness belong to the same family. We usually find all where we find any one, and they are all enemies of peace of mind, happiness and achievement. No one has ever done a great thing while his mind was centered upon himself. We must lose ourselves before we can find ourselves. Self analysis is valuable only to learn our strength; it is fatal if it makes us dwell upon our weaknesses.

Timid, shy people are morbidly self conscious. They think too much about themselves. Their thoughts are turned inward; they are always analyzing, dissecting themselves, wondering how they appear and what people think of them. If these people could only forget themselves and think of others they would be surprised to see what freedom, ease and grace they would gain, what success in life they would achieve.

Thousands of young people are held back from undertaking what they long to do and are kept from trying to make real their great life dreams because they are afraid to jostle with the world. They shrink from exposing their sore spots and sensitive points which smart from the lightest touch. Their supersensitiveness makes cowards of them.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

A Congregation of One.

In his younger days the Rev. Sir Cameron Lees, D. D., was a highland missioner in a scattered territory and passing rich on £40 a year. On one occasion on the Sabbath day the windows of heaven opened and there was a deluge on a small scale. The young minister of course was at his post, but only one member of the congregation had the courage to turn up, an old farmer. Cameron Lees suggested that in view of the terrible weather they should adjourn to his study and hold their devotions there.

"No, no," said the old highlander. "It is written, 'Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I also.' You are one and I'm one, so there's the two, and we'll have the service as usual." And there was a service for a congregation of one.—London Globe.

Worrying Happiness.

The bishop of Manchester, speaking at a meeting at Church House, Westminster, said the secret of happiness was to have a sufficient multitude of worries.

The man who had only one worry, a blind that would not be pulled up straight by the servant or a coal scuttle the bottom of which was always coming out, found his way to the lunatic asylum, but the man who had no time to dwell upon his worries because he had to go from one to another and back again and round and round like a squirrel in a cage could be a perfectly happy man.—London Mail.

Elastic.

"An' one other thing I want you to remember when you build the house is to put one of the finest elastic steps on it that money can build.'

"An elastic step, madam?"

"Yes; I was readin' how Miss Blublud had a fine elastic step, an' I want one just like it or better."—Houston Post.

Becoming.

"Isn't my new dress becoming to me?" asked the delighted wife.

"Yes," replied the head of the establishment, "and I suppose the bill for it will soon be coming to me."

Life is a quarry out of which we are to mold and chisel and complete a character.

"ALL right, sir, glad to take your order. Street and number, please! Yes, we will start delivering to-morrow."

People moving into a new town naturally consult the Telephone Directory for a reliable ice dealer.

A delivery wagon may break down. The driver telephones to the office. Another team is sent out and customers are saved serious inconvenience.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

THE ARTIST'S IDOL.

She Didn't Know Anything About Music; She Only Loved It.

The incident happened upon one of the great ocean liners during an autumn trip when a famous violinist was among the passengers. At first he firmly refused to play, but was finally persuaded, and upon the appointed evening the salon was crowded with eager passengers.

It was a most enthusiastic audience, intelligent, sympathetic and appreciative, yet as the evening wore on people began to notice that the violinist's glance went always in one direction, and after a time others followed it.

They saw a plain little woman, plainly dressed, with no marks of wealth or culture. But she was looking at the master with shining eyes, her face wet with tears, unmindful of everything except the magic of his violin. When the program was ended, pushing his way through the people who would have detained him, the musician went straight to the little shabby figure.

"Madame, I congratulate you—you are ze great artist!" he cried.

She looked up at him almost in alarm.

"I—oh—I cannot play a note," she stammered. "I don't know anything about music. I only—love it."

The violinist shook his big shaggy head impatiently.

"Is it not what I say? You have ze artist soul—ze artist to listen. What good to play to ze deaf—like ze rest?" with a disparaging gesture toward the crowded room. "It is to ze one wiz ze heart to listen zat we masters play."—Youth's Companion.

AN OLD TIME EXPLOSION.

Its Curious Phases Told by a Seventeenth Century Scribe.

An old chronicler tells a curious story of an explosion which occurred in London Jan. 4, 1649. A ship chandler, it seems, "about 7 of the clock at night, being busy in his shop about barreling up of gunpowder, it took fire and in the twinkling of an eye blew up not only that, but all the houses thereabout to the number of fifty or sixty. The number of persons destroyed by this blow could never be known, for the next house but one was the Rose tavern, a house never (at that time of night) but full of company. And in three or four days, after digging, they continually found heads, arms, legs, etc." The most interesting part of the account comes further on:

"In the digging they found the mistress of the house of the Rose tavern sitting in her bar and one of the drawers standing by the bar's side, with a pot in his hand, only stifled by dust and smoke, their bodies being preserved whole by means of great timbers falling across one upon another.

"There was also found upon the upper leads of Barking church a young child lying in a cradle as newly laid in bed, neither child nor cradle having the least sign of fire or other hurt. It was never known whose child it was, so that one of the parish kept it for a memorial, for in the year 1666 I saw the child, grown to be then a proper maiden."

The Green Plover.

Every "man on the land" knows the lapwing, or green plover, though he may not know that this bird is one of the very best friends of the farmer and literally worth its weight in gold several times. It takes its proper name, lapwing, from the regular, slow flapping of the long, rounded wings. Because of its peculiar cry it is popularly known in England as the peewit and in Scotland as peesweep. The Germans call it kiebitz. The French say that it can count "eighteen" (eighteen in French is dixhuit, which is pronounced deezweet). The peewit is found in every country in Europe and Asia. In Great Britain it was once very common, being chiefly found in marshes, moors and meadows, but its numbers are gradually decreasing because its eggs are collected and sold as "plovers' eggs," for which there is a large demand during the proper season.—Smallholder.

The Hawaiian Language.

The language of Hawaii is very simple. To one who hears it for the first time comes the conviction that the aborigines expressed their sentiments in primitive vowel sounds, to which some consonants have been added. Each vowel is sounded as in Latin, and the words are easily pronounced by one who is patient and wishes to speak distinctly. The pronunciation will be all the better if the speaker will draw out, almost drawl, the vowel sounds, for which reason the language is well suited to the doleful Hawaiian wail. Say Hoo-noo-luu-luu and let the word sing itself.—Rosary Magazine.

Glass Windows.

The first glass window in England was put up in an abbey about the year 680. Glass windows, however, did not become general for many hundred years, and as late as 1579 the glass casements at Alnwick castle, the Duke of Northumberland's seat, were regularly taken down when the family was away from home.

One Thing Sure.

"My wife went to town today to get a good plain cook."

"Did she get one?"

"I don't know whether she's a good one yet, but she's plain, all right."—Baltimore American.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done.—Longfellow.

HEALTH AND FOOD.

A Doctor's Idea of a Perfectly Balanced All Year Round Diet.

That every one is more or less susceptible to tubercular trouble is a matter on which all old fashioned medical authorities are agreed. They tell us that we may pass through a phase and out again without knowing it. According to Dr. T. Y. Hull in the Dietetic Gazette, there is only one thing very certain, and that is that if we keep in good health or adapt ourselves to a perfectly balanced diet the danger is slight.

He advocates a reduction of vegetable food, relying more upon butter, meat and nuts. Here, of course, one has to face the increased danger of tubercular meat, itself probably a large contributory cause of consumption.

This is Dr. Hull's idea of a perfectly balanced diet, calculated to keep the average individual in perfect health all the year round: The basis for the diet is found in meat, eggs, milk, butter, bread, potatoes and fruit. It consists daily of two quarts of milk, five eggs, four ounces of beef, one and one-half ounces of butter, two ounces of nuts (pecan), four ounces of bread, three and one-half ounces of rice, three ounces each of potatoes, peas and oatmeal, one ounce sugar, one ounce raisins, one apple and one orange.

FOLLIES OF SCIENCE.

Seven Problems That Have So Far Baffled Man's Mighty Brain.

The history of science has seven problems that men in all ages more or less have tried to solve, but which have finally been given up by all. Today they are called follies.

The usual list comprises the following: First, squaring the circle; second, duplication of the cube; third, trisection of an angle; fourth, perpetual motion; fifth, transmutation of metals; sixth, fixation of mercury; seventh, elixir of life. Some lists put the philosopher's stone for the last three and then add astrology and magic to make the seven.

To the unlearned it would seem possible to draw a square which shall be exactly equal in area to a given circle, which is the first problem in the list, but we are told by the highest authorities that it is impossible.

Since the discovery of radium it is claimed that the change of one metal into another has been accomplished, but it is yet too early to dogmatize about the matter.—Chicago Journal.

Learn to Think on Your Feet.

It does not matter whether one wants to be a public speaker or not, a person should have such complete control of himself, should be so self reliant and self poised, that he can get up in any audience, no matter how large or formidable, and express his thoughts clearly and distinctly. In all ages oratory has been regarded as the highest expression of human achievement. Young people, no matter what they intend to be, whether blacksmith or farmer, merchant or physician, should make it a study. Nothing else will call out what is in a man more quickly and more effectively than the constant effort to do his best in speaking before an audience. When one undertakes to think on one's feet and speak extemporaneously before the public the power and the skill of the entire man are put to the severest test.—Success Magazine.

At Sea on Land.

A clergyman who had neglected all knowledge of nautical affairs was asked to deliver an address before an audience of sailors. He was discoursing on the stormy passages of life. Thinking he could make his remarks more pertinent to his hearers by metaphorically using sea expressions, he said:

"Now, friends, you know that when you are at sea in a storm the thing you do is anchor."

A half concealed snicker spread over the room, and the clergyman knew that he had made a mistake.

After the services one of his listeners came to him and said, "Mr. ——, have you ever been at sea?"

The minister replied:

"No, unless it was while I was delivering that address."

Rivulets and the Rivers.

All are to be men of genius in their degree—rivulets or rivers, it does not matter, so that the souls be clear and pure, not dead walls, encompassing dead heaps of things known and numbered, but running waters in the sweet wilderness of things unnumbered and unknown, conscious only of the living banks, on which they partly refresh and partly reflect the flowers, and so pass on.—Ruskin's "The Stones of Venice."

Abrupt.

Judge Stevens had a slight hesitation in his speech, but that affliction did not prevent his using long words. One morning his dog Snip got into a fight with another dog. Tapping him with his cane, Judge Stevens exclaimed, "I-d-dis-con-t-t-tin-ue."—Success Magazine.

Amended.

"James is a physical wreck."

"Why, he used to have a strong constitution."

"Yes, but the doctors have amended it several times."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nothing raises the price of a blessing like its removal, whereas it was its continuance which should have cost us its value.—Hannah More.

LAUGHTER AND TEARS.

A Comedy Scene In Which Grief Played a Leading Part.

"Stage fright is not one of the emotions which get across the footlights," writes Miss Alice Crawford. "Audiences are for the most part as serenely unconscious of it as they are of other individual sentiments in the actors having no relation to the incidents of the play.

"I shall never forget an instance of this curious insensibility of the crowd. Once when I was touring one of the most charming and popular girls of the company died after only a few days' illness. She was one of those sweet, tranquil natures and had endeared herself to us all. Her death in lodgings in the small provincial town had an element of real tragedy in it.

"The news that she was dead reached the theater in the evening just as two of the actors and I were about to go on for a scene of broad comedy. We went on the stage with tears in our eyes, and I can still see the face of one of those comedians with the great tears glistening on the paint. He was dreadfully affected. Try as he would, he could not control his voice, and the tears kept choking him as he rattled off his lines.

"The audience were convulsed every time his voice broke, and it made me cry more than ever to see the grief shaking him as he grinned and chaffed through his tears. Yet that comedy scene never went so well before. The audience never guessed."—Exchange.

STORY OF A MUD HEN.

And the Man Who Tried to Shoot or Drown the Bird.

"It is a mighty hard thing to down a mud hen," said a Portland official. "Every one knows this homely bird, so clever that it can dodge the flash of a gun, making it very hard to kill if any one ever wanted to kill one.

"A friend of mine who was a great hunter, but not acquainted with the mud hen, was out hunting on the Columbia sloughs some years ago when he saw what he thought was some kind of duck floating on the water. He aimed his shotgun and fired, but the bird dived as the gun was discharged, and the shot struck the water where the bird had been a moment before. As the smoke cleared away the hunter saw the bird come to the surface, and he gave it the other barrel, with the same result.

"His obstinacy was now aroused, and he determined to kill that bird before he left the place. He shot away every round of ammunition he had, but the bird dodged every one and still floated in the same spot. In great disgust my friend sat down on the bank and lit his pipe. At the first puff of smoke the bird dived again, and this gave him his inspiration.

"To make a short story, he smoked up all his tobacco in an effort to drown the mud hen, but when darkness fell and he started for home the bird was still floating in the same old spot."—Portland Oregonian.

A Wedding Ring Superstition.

Although there was a lifelong friendship to back up their business deals, the jeweler was not surprised when his old customer who had married a second time bought the wedding ring at another shop.

"If he should take a third wife he would buy the ring at still another store," the jeweler said. "That is one of the superstitions of the trade. A man may have the marrying habit ever so bad and require several wedding rings in his time, yet he never buys any two of them from the same place. Jewelers do not expect it. They don't want to sell two wedding rings to the same man. Bad luck would surely light on all concerned, and there is enough trouble in the world anyhow without deliberately inviting more of it by defying a good old wedding ring superstitution."—New York Times.

Her Recommendation.

A woman prominent as a social worker was in the city to engage a new girl the other day. She visited an employment agency which makes a specialty of finding places for country housemaids and was much pleased with one from the country.

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked the woman.

"I didn't have no last place," answered the girl, "because I ain't had no last place to leave, and I'm still working at it, being for myself that I've been working, and I'm sure I'm a good servant, and I can recommend myself to you, ma'am."—Exchange.

Melodramatic.

A dramatist was condemning two melodramas that had had an unmerited success among the less cultivated portion of the public.

"The first," said the dramatist in his epigrammatic way, "was all blood and thunder, and the other was all thud and blunder."

Proof Positive.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

They Go Into Particulars In High Life In England.

In this country, when the contracting parties to a marriage desire to inform the public of the event, you will see inserted in the proper column a little notice like this:

"Brown-Smith.—Married on Saturday, March 4, at St. Joseph's church, Mary Smith to William Brown."

It's simple and sufficient. But did you ever take up one of the English social weeklies and see how a marriage is recorded? It will read something like this:

"Married at Ramsgate Rookery, near Oakley, Stafford, at noon on Thursday, 30th instant, by the Rev. Plantagenet Clutterbuck, LL. D., F. R. S., A. T. S., M. N. O., Q. R. D., uncle to the bride, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, Elephant's Head, Briary lane, Berkeley, assisted by the Rev. Theophilus Timoleon Titmouse, J. O. B., R. R., R. X. Y. Z., D. B. F., cousin of the bridegroom, rector of Cavalry church, St. Martin's-in-the-Back-Cellar, Man's Nose, Grantley, Gertrude Maude Beatrice Constance, daughter of Grantville Neville Bollingbroke Bopgappers, Esq., L. ORGIES IN NEW GUINEA.

Wild and Bloody Scenes When the Natives Get Intoxicated.

Of the unpleasant drinking customs of certain nations in New Guinea Walter Goodfellow writes: "We did not find the people down by the coast nearly so tractable or companionable as those at the headwaters of the river. They were also much more quarrelsome among themselves. They tap a species of sugar palm up the river and make fermented drink out of it. On this they get fearfully intoxicated, and wild orgies take place all day. Parties of them would go off in canoes and sit under the palms from which the drink was obtained. In the morning they would return extremely drunk, and fights used to be the result.

"Sometimes these fights lasted for two days at a time. In our vicinity they more often than not took place at night. The natives then made such an indescribable din with their howling and their noises that we could not sleep at our base camp. Spears and showers of arrows were discharged in all directions, and one could hear the sound of their axes dealing blows on the bodies of the combatants.

"After a time the women would join in the fray, and their shrill voices added to the babel, making the noise greater than ever. When they became involved in the fights they seemed to be worse than the men. The cries were not like sounds emitted by human beings, but rather like the cries of animals."—Chicago News.

Wanted to Make Sure.

Under ordinary conditions he was a man of prominence, but as he ascended the steps of his residence very early in the morning it was very evident that he desired to be as much otherwise as possible. The cabby was lingering near by to see that his charge was safely disposed of for the night. The door opened before the man on the steps could get the key to work, and he was greeted with the question, "Henry, where have you been?" (Silence.) "Hen-ry, where have you been?" (He turns to descend the steps.) "Are you going to answer my question?" "Yes, dearie heart, I sure am. From my personal knowledge, beloved o' my soul, I can't give th' desired inf'mation. So you jest lay down again while I go back an' ask th' back driver!"—Argonaut.

Holes In Everything.

It is held by more than one high authority that matter is neither continuous nor homogeneous. Thomson showed by an experiment that hydrogen can be passed into a vacuum tube through an incandescent platinum window. In a similar way sodium passes through glass, and this is a useful fact in the manufacture of vacuum tubes, because sodium can be passed into the tube to absorb the residual oxygen. Bellati, the Italian physicist, has shown that hydrogen can pass through cold iron. Matter may therefore be generally regarded as full of holes.

Got His Dose Later.

Mr. Courtney (flatteringly)—I had the blues awfully when I came here tonight, Miss Fisher, but they are all gone now. You are as good as medicine. Miss Fisher's Little Brother—Yes; father himself says she'll be a drug on the market if she doesn't catch on to some fellow soon.

Quit Voluntarily.

"My good man, how did you happen to be thrown out of work?"

"I got out," replied Weary Wombat, with dignity. "I didn't have to be thrown out."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

BASEBALL.

What excitement can come out of Scotch Plains.

Well, that quiet little village stirred the Plainfield fans last Saturday, when rumors were floating around that Lindeman or Coakley would be on the slab for them in the game with the Pets. They also stated that they were the ones to put the barricade on the local's winning streak.

Manager Dorflinger didn't slow up his outfield a bit when he put Tommy Mullen in the right garden Saturday in place of Cosgrove. Tommy handled everything (which was only one fly) but he caught that to the surprise of everyone. It was a long swat near the foul line and would have been good for a three bagger had not the ever ready Tommy nabbed the sphere after a hard run. Keep it up Tommy and get that bat a working.

Never were truer words said than were uttered on paper by F. G. Adams, in the New York Evening Mail when he said that all O'Toole would get out of that $22,500 deal was honorable mention. It is rather a case of the middleman getting the profit. Baseball players, like regular common ordinaries, can't deal direct from the manufacturer.

Here's another chance for some rumors—Scotch Plains plays Somerville Saturday. Nevertheless the 'Plainers will have a rumor loud enough to overcome that 15-2 landslide a fortnight ago.

Teston came forth into the calcuim of fandom Saturday afternoon when he did the backstop work for Dunellen against the Central Railroad nine. He is a youngster, hailing from Bound Brook, where he caught on the High School team for several years. His work with Dunellen Saturday attracted the attention of the magnates of this vicinity.

Ortlieb is playing now with the Westfield team covering right garden. It is expected that George will be given a tryout on the Mt. Ararat slab when his arm gets in limber condition.

But where are the Plainfield Elks? The season is in its height and tempus fugit, you know.

The lawyers of this city have asked for an adjournment of their game with the ministers, according to the looks of things. Now Messers legal advisers you are cutting off your own necks for the sky pilots' business is with the future.

Cheer up—there's another league game in town Saturday afternoon and you'll have a chance to express your opinion to the Westfield fans.

Again After Commission Rule.

Newton, July 26.—The rapidity with which the county appropriations are increasing and the recent increase of $13,000 to cover expenses, is causing considerable talk again in favor of the commission plan of county government, to replace the Board of Freeholders. The agitation is leading to the circulation of petitions for the third time. The question of adopting the commission plan has been voted on twice, and each time lost by a small majority. Those who favor the change are confident that in view of the increase of taxes it will carry this fall.

Preparatory services will be held at Warren chapel this evening, when the monthly missionary offering will be received. There will be the celebration of the Lord's Supper on Sunday morning.

COLBY GIRDING FOR CAMPAIGN.

There is joy among the Progressive Republicans of Essex county over the announcement that former Senator Everett Colby is coming home September 1 to fight for the success of the Progressive ticket.

Mr. Colby will sail for this country from Europe August 24. Progressive Republicans are discussing the advisability of arranging a rousing reception. A part of their plan is to send a steamer down the bay to meet Mr. Colby. There is talk also of a dinner, which shall mark the formal opening of the primary campaign.

All speculation as to how Mr. Colby would view the nomination of his personal friend, Austen Colgate, as the "regular" candidate for Senator, have been set at rest by the receipt of letters from Mr. Colby announcing that he is "itching" to be at home to take off his coat and work for the success of William Fellowes Morgan, the Progressive candidate.

Before Mr. Colgate entered the Senatorial contest he wrote to Mr. Colby, asking him his advice. At first the idea pleased Mr. Colby, but when he learned later of Mr. Colgate's close affiliation with the "regulars," and of his attitude toward the Progressives, he wrote to Mr. Colgate advising him not to be a candidate.

The Progressives will formally open their campaign early in September. The candidates for the Legislature have already held several meetings for the purpose of discussing issues and getting acquainted. Cheered by the news that their real leader is soon to become active in the campaign, the league workers have begun to manifest a buoyant belief that they will give the "regulars" a hard run at the primaries.

MAN CANNOT REPRESENT WOMAN, DECLARES SPEAKER.

Ocean Grove, July 26.—"The average woman is as well qualified to vote as the average man, if not better," said Mrs. T. M. Moore, of Paterson, at the institute of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which opened in the temple yesterday.

Mrs. Moore declared that women should not be taxed without being represented.

"No man can represent a woman," the speaker asserted. "We have a different point of view and a better understanding of the needs of the women and the children. It is the woman who took the polling places out of the saloons, and it is the woman who will exercise a great influence for good over men when they meet at the polls."

Mrs. Moore closed her remarks with the statement that the greatest men in the country and the greatest women, including Lincoln, Roosevelt, Taft, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Dr. A. E. Ballard, of Ocean Grove, believe in equal suffrage.

FOR JERSEY 'PHONE INQUIRY.

Camden, July 26.—Attorneys representing the Gateley & Hurley Company and twenty-four other business and financial concerns filed a petition with the Public Utilities Commission of New Jersey Monday asking for an examination of the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company, and alleging that it charges unjust and discriminatory rates.

The commission is asked to inquire into the relations existing between the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company and the Bell Telephone Company. It is desired to know, the petition says, how much the construction of the New Jersey company's system cost, how much it cost to operate it, the value of its business and the amounts paid to the Bell Company.

NUGENT EXPLAINS

He Admits Making Toast to Governor, But Was Only Intended For Friends.

RAILLERY LED TO CRITICISM.

Talk of Asking State Democratic Chairman to Resign— Politicians at Governor's Luncheon.

State Democratic Chairman Nugent made public in Newark yesterday a statement regarding his toast to Gov. Wilson at Avon. He admits making the toast, but declares it was meant only for the ears of his friends who were helping him celebrate his birthday anniversary. They had been indulging in champagne, he said, when he offered the toast.

"I was present there," said Mr. Nugent, "in the company of some friends and met others of my acquaintance, including some military officers. The affair was purely a social one in character, and the remarks I made were intended only for the ears of those who were of the gathering, it being a sort of birthday party.

"There were many toasts offered. The members of the party indulged in raillery and this led to a criticism—not in a serious spirit—of some recent public utterances of Gov Wilson. These were called out by the fact that they were made in that same place while myself and distinguished members of the Democratic party were guests.

"The term 'scoundrel' was used by Go. Wilson in characterizing his opponents, and I was taunted with the jibe that I was included among those so characterized.

"There has been other incidents concerning Mr. Wilson and myself in the past that had contributed to a feeling that, to say the least, was not harmonious or cordial. These were recalled and led up to a situation which I repeat, was not intended as a public matter."

After a thorough investigation, nine members of the New Jersey Democratic State Committee, who had gone to Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, yesterday, to attend the first Governor's day gathering, passed a resolution demanding that if it was true that State Chairman James R. Nugent toasted Governor Wilson a liar and an ingrate in a public restaurant at Avon, on Thursday night, Nugent must hand in his resignation. This action was not taken until they had asked several officers of the New Jersey National Guard, who were present when Nugent made the remarks, about the story, and these officers had verified everything that has been printed.

Eight of the members of the committee signed the resolution and the ninth, Circuit Court Judge Nelson Y. Dungan, who is about to resign from the committee because of his recent elevation to the bench, said he was in sympathy with the sentiments expressed. The members who signed the paper were Mayor George Hampton, of Bridgeton, Senator George C. Low, of Tom's River, Thomas Flynn, of Passaic, Michael Kearns, of Cape May, David Crater, of Freehold, Gen. Collins, Dan Followes Platt, of Enggiewood, Johnston Cornish, of Phillipsburg, and Benjah P. Willis, of Mount Holly.

Politicians from all over the State came here yesterday at the Governor's bidding for the Governor's luncheon. They had luncheon with him under a big tent on the lawn adjoining his cottage, talked politics, and then watched him review the two regiments in camp before a crowd which was estimated at from 6,000 to 10,000. The Governor was greeted by shrieks from hundreds of automobile horns when he rode on the field.

Ex-Gov. E. C. Stokes and ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy had not arrived at the luncheon hour and the Governor chose Vivian M. Lewis, who ran against him last Fall, as his companion. Among those present were three New Jersey Congressmen, Ira W. Wood, W. E. Tuttle, and Thomas J. Scully; several State Senators, Assemblymen, and other State officials.

J. C. Toms Finds Bicycle.

J. C. Toms, of Warrenville, who notified the city police Tuesday of the loss of his bicycle, reported yesterday that he had found it just where it had been left. The wheel was not stolen at all but had been put in such a safe place that when Mr. Toms returned he was unable to find it in the dark.

"Mike" Shannon In Town.

Genial "Mike" Shannon, former assistant manager of the Plainfield theatre, blew into town yesterday afternoon, after a continuous trip from San Francisco. He will not tarry here long, he said, but wanted to see some of his old friends and attend to a business matter before he blew out again.

DISMISSED COMPLAINT OF NON-SUPPORT

Andrew Alonzo, arrested here several weeks ago at the instance of his wife who charged him with desertion and non-support, was given a hearing on the charges before Judge Hahn in Newark, yesterday. The complaint was made to the overseer of the poor of Newark, the last place where Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo resided together. Mr. Alonzo said he left for the purpose of coming to this city to work, but he alleges that his wife refused to accompany him.

Judge William G. DeMeza represented Alonzo and showed that he is ready to properly support his wife and provide a home for her here any time she chooses to join him. Judge DeMeza said that this being the case, Mrs. Alonzo could not properly bring a charge of non-support and Judge Hahn also took this view, dismissing the complaint against the defendant, saying that Mrs. Alonzo had recourse to the Court of Chancery for separate maintainance, as suggested by Mrs. Alonzo's counsel.

BARREL SUIT IS WON BY THE DEFENDANTS

The second trial of the suit growing out of the disposal of eighteen vinegar barrels, by J. W. P. Taylor and his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Taylor, that had been left in the basement of the Taylor building, now the Warnock building, by Fred Dunn when he discontinued business, occupied a long part of the session of the Elizabeth District court yesterday, and resulted in the jury bringing in a verdict in favor of the defendants. The suit was for $500 and was brought by Hubert Phillips, of Fanwood.

Mr. Phillips alleged that he had stored the barrels, filled with vinegar, in the basement of the Taylor building when Mr. Dunn conducted a grocery store there. That was in January, 1908. Mr. Dunn discontinued business several years later and in 1911, when the Taylors took possession of the building they had it cleaned and renovated. The janitor, John Lassiter, was ordered to dispose of the barrels, then empty, and sold them for a dollar apiece. Several months after this was done Mr. Phillips, as he stated, called for the vinegar and evinced much surprise upon learning that Mr. Dunn had been out of business a long time and his goods disposed of, the barrels included.

Suit was brought for the amount of the goods he alleged he had lost, but counsel for the defendants, W. F. Wolfskiel, showed that the goods had been abandoned by Phillips, in asmuch as no claim had been made prior to the sale.

ROOSEVELT CANNOT ATTEND CONVENTION

Those in charge of the plans for the State Sunday-school convention to be held in this city, November 14-16, had hoped that among the speakers at that time would be former President Treodore Roosevelt, and every possible effort was made to secure his presence on that occasion. But after due consideration, Mr. Roosevelt has notified the committee that he will be unable to come to Plainfield. This naturally is a great disappointment. However, the committee is working hard on the program and it will be ready for announcement within a short time. Sunday-school workers can rest assured that a strong list of speakers will be secured for the several sessions.

The following letter from Mr. Roosevelt to Louis H. Koehler, superintendent of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, will explain itself:

"My dear Mr. Koehler:

"Mr. Russell has sent me your very kind invitation to speak at the annual convention of your association. I wish I could accept, but it is a simple impossibility. I have received literally thousands of similar requests and with the best wishes in the world, it has proved impossible for me to accept one in a hundred of these invitations that come to me. I deeply appreciate the courtesy and kindness of those who ask me to speak, but your have no conception of the drain it is upon me even to accept the very limited proportion that I am physically able to accept and I could not greatly increase this proportion or accept more of the invitations without absolutely abandoning all thought of any other work.

"Very sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

WILL BREAK CAMP

Company K. Preparing to Leave Sea Girt Tomorrow.

THE BOYS HAD A FINE TIME.

This Year's Camp Said to Be the Best In Its History— First Band Concert.

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, Friday—The work of breaking camp will commence tomorrow and will mark the close of one of the most successful weeks ever spent in camp by Co. K. The boys are all well and feel the effects of the week's work and outing. They have also added materially to their knowledge of war tactics, proficiency in drilling and are now as much accustomed to their equipment as though they had never worn anything but a National Guard uniform.

The weather has been varied as to quality, but the diversity aside from the inconvenience, has only tended to give the boys a taste of real campaigning. It has not affected any of them in health or spirits nor put a damper on their interest and enthusiasm in the new and actual duties they were called upon to perform.

As a result of the large number of privates and non-commissioned men spending nearly all of yesterday on the rifle range, the company streets about the camp were almost deserted. The fact that it was Governor's day brought a large number of visitors from all parts of the State, but the rifle practise was no attraction for the majority of them and after a look at the men at work, they found their way back to the vicinity of the Governor's cottage.

Last evening the first band concert of the season was given by the regimental band and the Executive and Mrs. Wilson entertained on the porch while the musicians played. Invitations were sent out yesterday for a luncheon Governor Wilson will give next Thursday. These invitations were to the county judges, prosecutors, sheriffs, county clerks, surrogates and members of the various state boards and commissions not included in yesterday's list of guests.

With the arrival of every train yesterday came hundreds who had accepted the Governor's invitation. The first delegation to arrive was from Trenton. After the guests had arrived, and had been received by the Executive and his wife, luncheon was served and then the whole party went to the parade ground to witness the troops on dress parade and in maneuvres.

GODFREY BETZLAR INJURED IN FALL FROM A TREE.

Godfrey Betzlar, aged nine years, one of the boys at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, fell from a tree into which he had climbed while at play with a number of his fellows, yesterday, and received injuries that occasioned his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. No bones were broken but the little fellow was so badly bruised and cut that it was deemed wise to take him to a place he could be properly cared for. He will be all right in a few days.

Enjoying Annual Excursion.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY MOTORCYCLIST

While boarding a car at Watchung avenue and Fourth street yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Wilfred Sherrill, of Brookside Sanitarium, Somerset street, was knocked down by a man riding a motorcycle. She was carrying her baby at the time, but fortunately both escaped injury. The man on the motorcycle did not slacken his pace and disregarding the shouts of several eye-witnesses, including John Keeley and Thomas Duffy, the conductor of the car, continued on Watchung avenue.

Several witnesses had the presence of mind to notice the number on the motorcycle before it was lost in the traffic and turned it over to the police. It was C 6309. Chief Kiely has written to Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith for the man's name and address for the purpose of having him apprehended.

The famous Scottish Highlander Band from New York, with its double-action bass drummer, will be a feature of the parade. The drill squad and the flag and banner squad will execute the intricate maneuvres which provoked such applause at Atlantic City. The parade will be escorted by a picked detail police. Delegates from Newark, Kearny, Plainfield, Bayonne, Rahway and New York lodges will attend. Following the parade a social session will be held at the clubhouse, which will be thrown open to the public.

He has been in this country twenty-one years; Mike Shiergei will take $5,000, saved from his labors for a local contractor in seven years; George Daily, another driver and laborer on an ice wagon, will take $8,000, saved in twenty-five years, and John Romansky, another ice wagon helper, will have $8,000 in his purse.

WAS MORRIS SANE?

Police Believe That Local Bandit Was Not in His Right Mind.

HIS FEAT WAS EXTRAORDINARY

William J. Morris Was Riding On Top of Train and Then Entered the Car.

That William J. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Morris of South avenue, who was shot as a train robber by a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, Monday, July 17, was either intoxicated or insane when he entered the train, is the belief of Chief James Carl, of the Cedar Rapids, Mich., police., where the local boy is lying in the hospital. This statement by the police chief was made in a letter to the young man's father, which was received yesterday afternoon.

The police official has taken the reports of several of the passengers on the train at the time the shooting occurred and is convinced that something unsual was the matter with young Morris. While the train was moving at a speed of fifty miles an hour coming east ward and in the early hours of the morning, Morris entered a sleeping car through a vestibule door, the glass of which he kicked out. He stole a stick pin from the clothes of one of the sleeping passengers and was just about to crawl out of the opening in the glass when he was shot by the brakeman.

Morris, in his first statement to the police, told Chief Carl that he was riding on top of one of the cars in company with a tramp whose name he did not know. The train was going at the rate of fifty miles an hour and the two were chilled through by the cold night wind from the prairies. The tramp had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket and gave the young man a drink of it to warm him up. From that time until he was shot by the brakeman young Morris claims that he does not know what he did and that everything is a perfect blank in his mind. The tramp jumped off the train when it was brought to a stop after the shooting and escaped.

How the young man ever accomplished the feat of getting from the roof of the car into the sleeping compartment is a mystery to the police for it would require extraordinary strength and great acrobatic ability. Morris is of slight build and is nothing of an acrobat and the police believe that he was not in his right mind when he entered the car. In order to get from the roof into the car, it was necessary for him to hang from the top and kick out the glass in the door with his feet and then slide in while the train was moving at a high rate of speed. It was while the young man was attempting to climb back on the roof through the broken glass that the brakeman drew his revolver and fired, the bullet entering Morris' leg.

The injured man, it is claimed, was cruelly treated for he was left at the Belle Plain freight house in the care of the station agent and was then turned over to the Overseer of the Poor at the place. After much delay, a physician was finally summoned and attended to the wound. The family are much incensed over this fact. His condition now is reported as being much improved, although it is believed that he will be a cripple for life. The bullet was found after an operation, which the young man withstood very well.

The prisoner's father is now in Caldwell, but is arranging a defense for his son, when the case comes up in court. It is expected that he will be tried on the charge of burglary as the report that he was shot after a card game appears to be erroneous. A western lawyer will be engaged to defend the young man.

SEEK RELATIVES OF DEAD MAN IN THIS CITY.

Word was received here of the death of John Gallagher, who was a foreman employed on the San Pedro, Los Angeles ad Salt Lake Railroad. He was killed at Otisfi Cal., July 17. No details of the accident accompanied the information and when the body was found there were no papers or anything by which it could be identified or that would furnish any information as to his relatives. He is supposed to have been either from Plainfield or this vicinity and it is thought that he has a sister residing in this locality.

Any one knowing anything regarding Mr. Gallagher can learn further particulars by communicating with A. W. Crawford, at Las Vegas, Cal.

Edward Bennett, Harry Blimm, Jack Todd and John Duckworth will spend the week-end at Lake Hopatcong.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES DISCUSS CITY AFFAIRS

The Councilmanic street committee and the police board met last evening to discuss routine and special business which is under consideration. The full membership of neither committee was present and after considerable discussion, adjournment was taken until next Thursday evening.

One matter of importance that came up for consideration by the police board was the proposed ordinance requested by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, taking advantage of the new law authorizing cities to pension policemen. The section discussed had been rewritten by a member of the committee and is not as attractive to the other members of the committee as in its original wording.

The street committee discussed street work now being done and work comtemplated and Street Commissioner Gavett is to prepare plans for the improvement of the sewer beds and streets to be presented to the committee at the meeting next week.

DOES NOT OBEY RULE; AUTO RUNS OVER HIM

Disregarding the caution of Miss Harriett Moe, director of the Bryant school playground, about crossing the street, Miller Mann, aged eight years, of Richmond street, narrowly escaped death if not serious injuries yesterday afternoon, when he was run down by an automobile in front of the school yard. The machine knocked the young boy down, but fortunately he was thrown underneath the car so that the wheels did not pass over him.

He was immediately picked up by the owner of the automobile and Miss Moe rendered first aid to the boy in the school yard. After a hasty examination it was found that the only injuries he had received were a few slight scratches on the face and a bruised side. The boy's father was summoned and took the child home.

No blame is attached to the driver of the automobile for he was running his car at a slow speed when the youngster ran directly out in front of the machine. The auto was a small runabout, its owner's name being unknown. Had the car been a large one and going at all fast, it is probable that the boy would have been killed.

Miss Moe had just told the children at the playground to go to the crosswalk on Richmond street before they attempted to cross the road yesterday afternoon, as is her usual custom in dismissing her charges at 5 o'clock. The Mann boy did not regard the cautioning words and without looking around started on a run into the street. The machine hit him before he had gone ten steps.

HORACE D. GROVES IS STILL MISSING

Until a late hour today nothing further was learned regarding the disappearance from Camp Wilson at Sea Girt of Horace D. Groves. His name remains unanswered at roll calls and the vigilant watch on the beach is still maintained. The investigation started soon after his disappearance Wednesday so far has not revealed anything of more definite nature than known yesterday. Fear is expressed that he was drowned, but lacks confirmation.

He went to the rifle range for practice and it is thought that he returned to his tent, for his gun was found there, but no one remembers having seen him since he left the range. The general impression is that he went to the beach and went swimming, going under when the life guards were not looking. He was number 13 on the muster roll of Co. K, of this city.

Cyclist in Collision.

An unknown woman riding a bicycle ran into Miss Wilhelmina Vroom, of East Sixth street, at Park avenue and Front street, at 7:30 o'clock last night. Miss Vroom was thrown to the ground and stunned for a minute. The woman on the wheel was also thrown and was injured about the shoulders and face, but was able to continue her journey unassisted.

Herbert Parker, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. left today to spend his vacation at Binghamton, N. Y., where he will remain until the latter part of August.

ANOTHER NOMINEE

Friends of Robert Clark, Jr., Want Him to Run For Mayor of Borough.

WILL CONSIDER THE MATTER.

Committee of Citizens Wait On Boroughite—Will Give His Answer Soon.

There were rumors in the borough this morning that Robert Clark, Jr., will be a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination in North Plainfield in the fall campaign. A committee of twenty influential Republicans in the borouga called on Mr. Clark at his residence at Jackson and Watchung avenues, last night, and requested him to stand for the nomination at the fall primaries. Mr. Clark made no reply.

From the fact that Mr. Clark maintained a silence on the subject and would give no answer affirmatively or in the negative, the committee inferred that he was in a receptive mood for the nomination.

When interviewed by a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Clark said that he was simply a listener at last night's visitation. "I have nothing to say on the subject as yet," he added, "for I want at least two weeks to think the matter over. Because I have delayed in giving my answer does not mean that I am going to run or that I am not going to run. I am considering the question and will give plenty of thought to it before I decide one way or the other."

Mr. Clark is well known in the borough, having lived there for the past fifteen years. He has been interested in the affairs of the community ever since he took up his residence in North Plainfield. In 1890 he was elected to the Borough Council, where he served until 1902 and was then re-elected. During his first term he was chairman of the streets and public health committee and during the last two years of his term he was chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee. While a member of the Council, he served the borough faithfully in every particular.

Last year Mr. Clark was elected a member of the Borough Board of Education but resigned after serving a few months. His business necessitated his living in Newark and on account of his inability to give the proper attention to his duties on the board, he sent in his resignation. Before coming to the borough to live, Mr. Clark was a resident of Washingtonville, where he was president of the Board of Education for several years. He lived in Newark for many years.

Mr. Clark has been a successful business man, having been junior partner of the Wharton Hat Manufacturing Company in Newark until last spring, when he sold out his interests. He has lived a quiet life at his beautiful home at Watchung and Jackson avenues ever since, but expects to enter the business world again for as he said this morning, "A man is never retired until he is so enfeebled that he cannot work any more."

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, has signified his intention of entering the race for the Republican mayoralty nomination and in case Mr. Clark decides to run, a lively fight at primary time is anticipated for the latter has a host of loyal supporters. In all his career, Mr. Clark has never sought public office but has always been pushed forward by his friends.

BAPTIST EXCURSIONISTS HAVE FINE DAY AT SHORE.

The same happy crowd of excursionists who departed yesterday morning on the excursion of the First and Temple Baptist churches, returned last night just as happy, but a good deal more tired and somewhat more soiled and sunburned than when they left.

The water was fine for bathing and the weather was ideal. Not a single accident occurred to mar the day's pleasure, which was continuous from the time the train was boarded until the excursionists returned.

Gave a Fine Entertainment.

Mrs. Frank Houston Bogle, of Westfield, a clever impersonator and reciter, entertained the mothers and children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, Wednesday night with a fine program. She gave recitations from Joe Lincoln and James Whitcomb Riley and other well-known writers, and delighted the audience with her work. F. C. Iglehart, Jr., formerly of the First Presbyterian church, also pleased the audience with the singing of negro dialect songs, in which all joined in the chorus.

THE OUTLET

PERPETRATED BY WALT McDOUGALL:

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Many of the lovers of minstrely will be gratified to learn that Lew Dockstader and his Great Minstrels will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, August 5, matinee and night. There is only one Lew Dockstader, and he is "king of the minstrel world." No Don Carlos has yet arisen to dispute his claim or to pretend to sovereignty in the realm of burnt cork where Dockstader holds sway as the undisputed monarch. His conceded individuality and his unique personality, coupled with geniality and magnetism, are attributes which have made his name familiar as household words and have won for him a popularity which extends from ocean to ocean. Mr. Dockstader has during his long professional career succeeded in elevating negro minstrel to an artistic plane and in rescueing it from the inane doggeral which pervaded it a generation ago to the highest standards of popularity and appreciation. Lew Dockstader has the happy faculty of gathering none but the best of minstrel talent to march under his banner. Consequently, the theartegoers of this great country feel perfectly assured of a first-class entertainment wherever they see the Dockstader banner unfurled to the breeze. The singing contingent of "Dockstader's Great Minstrels," is one of the features of this year's entertainment, including such artists as Bob Albright, Samuel Gillitti, Frank Farron, Master Leo, Henry DeCunea, Roy LaPearl and Don Ferrandou. The musical numbers have all been especially written and are of exquisite beauty particularly the ballads.

Little Silk Boleros.

The dressmakers have experimented with boleros for two seasons and they seem to have landed them into fashion at last. They are worn in bright colors with white muslin gowns or old-fashioned frocks of floral organdie. They are finished around the edge with a plaited ruching of ribbon or a ruffle of lace. The severe ones have only a thick cable cord covered with silk or satin.

BARRED IN UNIFORM; WILL SUE HALL LESSEES.

Sea Girt, July 28.—Refused a ticket when he offered to purchase one at the Beach Casino Dance Hall, owned by the city of Asbury Park, First Lieutenant William C. Burroughs, Company D, Second Regiment, National Guard, of Trenton, will sue Mitchell & Fry, lessees of the hall.

Burroughs was in uniform and accompanied by his wife when he attempted to enter the hall, and when he asked the floor manager why he could not be admitted he was told that orders had been issued to admit no one wearing the uniform of the New Jersey Guards.

SOURCES OF LITHIUM.

During the past two years, it is stated, the operation of mines of the mineral amblygonite in South Dakota has resulted in reducing the price of lithium carbonate from $2.50 to 50 cents a pound, or even less. Carbonate of lithium, which is extracted from the amblygonite ores, is used in making storage batteries, in the preparation of fireworks and in medicine. Lithium bromide is used to some extent in photography and medicine, but pure lithium, which is the lightest metal known, has no practical use.—Youth's Companion.

GERMANS WILL KEEP THE AMERICANS ON THE JUMP

When our high and broad jumpers and pole vaulters take the trip to Sweden next year, it would be well for them to remember that they are not going to have the cinch they had in former Olypiads. Hugh S. Baxter, of the New York A. C., warns us in the form of a letter received yesterday by Chairman James E. Sullivan, of the American Olympic committee, that he considers the German, Passemann, about one of the most dangerous of the foreign element in the three aforementioned contests.

The former champion pole vaulter and track captain of the New York A. C. saw Passemann compete for the first time in the English championships. The German won two first and one second. He won the high jump with a leap of six feet, vaulted twelve feet and finished second in the running broad with a jump of 23 feet, 2½ inches. Mr. Baxter immediately sized him up as really the first good German jumper developed in years. He is simply a marvel in his line of endeavor, writes the old-time athlete.

GIANTS LOST O'TOOLE THROUGH BUSINESS DELAY.

With the arrival of Mike Finn, yesterday went New York's last hopes of ever getting pitcher Marty O'Toole. Micky insists that the St. Paul owners agreed to sell the flinger to the Giants for $15,000, but that while they were waiting for authority from President John T. Bush to close the deal, Barney Dreyfuss came through with his proposition.

Owner Lennon promptly called off the negotiation with Finn and closed with the Pirates before the boss buccaneer had a chance to reconsider his bid.

Finn declares that O'Toole is the greatest spitball pitcher in the country today. He was with the Reds a couple of years ago, but had nothing but a sore arm. He was turned loose and later picked up by Boston Red Sox.

"Did you say the fishing around here was interesting?"

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntassel. "The fellow that catches one fish breaks the record."—Washington Star.

Games Tomorrow.

Westfield at Plainfield.
Scotch Plains at Somerville.
Bound Brook at High Bridge.

Westfield is coming here tomorrow with six new players and from all the dope that has been handed around, Mt. Arrarat's supporters are going to back their team to the limit. You know there always was a lot of rivalry getween Plainfield and Westfield and the Central League hasn't reduced that old spirit in the least. The Westfield club has a good financial standing and isn't going to let the Pets get away with another game if it can be helped.

Consequently some new players have been engaged, six of the strongest men from the South Orange F. C. Sam Hope will be the second virtue of the original Westfield lineup, Howard Craig still playing the part of Faith, and Keene in the role of Charity. Hope has some reputation as a box artist and Westfielders are confident that the peerless "Red" Waller will meet his Waterloo at last. The South Orange bunch won the Herald amateur cup for the New Jersey league last year and the old players are still in the game with all their old time speed. Several old college stars are on their lineup, and Lewis, who was the idol of Williams College last year, is slated to appear in the Westfield suit. Flynn and Hogarty, of Holy Cross College, are also among the new men.

The Pets will appear as usual and it is probable that Harter will be back in the game again with his old time form. His leg is getting along nicely and he expects the injured member to be in condition before tomorrow's game. The report that a "kick" had been made by several of the Plainfield players for more money is without foundation and the team will have the same lineup which it has had for the past three Saturdays. "Red" will naturally be on the firing line and George will cover the short field.

EASTERN TENNIS STARS SHINE.

Several excellent matches were played in a busy day of the Western Tennis Tournament yesterday. The match between Hugh G. Whitehead, of Norfolk, Va., and Harry Waldner, Chicago, won by the latter, was exceptionally interesting. Dean Mathey, well known in this city, of Elizabeth, and G. M. Church, of New York, representing Princeton University, defeated Ward C. Burton and Joseph J. Armstrong, of Minneapolis, Western intercollegiate champion, in the second round of the men's doubles, after a hard struggle, winning 7-5, 6-1, 6-3. The superior work of the Princeton men was the deciding factor. Both Burton and Armstrong were wild in their drives down the lines and the Princeton pair had only to await mistakes by their opponents in order to win.

Brides to Coach Yale.

It was announced today that Arthur Brides, formerly a fullback and guard on the Yale football team, has been chosen one of the field coaches for next year by Captain Arthur Howe. Brides was graduated from Yale in 1909, and last year coached the University of North Carolina eleven. He was one of the strongest players on the girdiron, two year ago. He and Kistler will be "Jack" Fields' assistants. Fields is head coach.

BAPTISTS WILL GIVE MONROES HARD FIGHT

Monroe Avenue Methodists will endeavor to keep a clean record in the Sunday-school League tomorrow afternoon, when they cross bats with the First Baptist nine. Captain Smith, of the Baptists, says that they will have to go some for his new team is going to move around a bit. The Baptists have one of the strongest teams in the league on paper and when the players once strike their stride the Monroe Avenues will have to look to their laurels and put in a few fresh leaves. The Baptists will play on the Clinton avenue grounds.

Trinity's tailenders are going to try, try again, their opponents on the Cricket Field tomorrow being the Park Avenueites. "Wiggy" VanZandt will be on the mound for the Reformed church boys with Captain Harold Schenck doing the smile act at short stop. "Snoocums" Schenck is a speedy fielder and a hard, consistant hitter and with a little cooperation, his team would be a wonder.

Let George Do It Thusley!

The schools now stand in the cup race as follows:

Monroe Avenue	3	0	1.000
Park Avenue	3	1	.750
First Baptist	1	3	.250

Baseball Deals.

Since the week started the Phillies have bought Pitcher Hall from Tacoma, and Pitcher Rasmussen from Vancouver, each to be delivered immediately; Cleveland has secured Catcher Howley from Utica; Chicago Nationals have made deals for Outfielder Zimmerman, of Atlanta, and Pitcher Cheney, of Louisville; the Highlanders have paid a fancy price for Pitcher Clark, of Sioux City; Pittsburg has taken Outfielder Murray from Missoura, and several other purchases, or arrangements for the same, not now called to mind, have been made. These, of course, must all be imaginary transactions, since we are assured that players cannot be bought or begged.

Clarke Wins at Velodrome.

Jackie Clarke, wrought up to a high pitch by the recent occurances on the bike track, displayed more fighting ability and speed at the Velodrome meet Wednesday night than he has shown at any time this season, with the result that he made a general clean-up in the races. His triumph consisted of a victory over Frank Kramer in the half-mile national championship event and the circling of the entire field in the two-mile handicap, riding from scratch and coming home in the remarkably fast time of 3 minutes, 44 1-5 seconds, the best time made for two miles at the Velodrome for the year.

HORSE SCARED TO DEATH BY TRAIN AT CROSSING.

Frightened by an express train on the Centhal Railroad, near the Roselle station, Tuesday afternoon, a horse owned by George Garthwaite, of Chestnut street, Union Township, dropped dead. Mr. Garthwaite had taken a drive to Roselle and when he was within about 100 feet of the station the express train dashed by. The animal reared and suddenly dropped to the ground.

Mr. Garthwaite worked over the horse for a few minutes and then summoned a veterinary surgeon. The latter declared the animal had died from fright. The steed was valued at $250, the owner declares.

DISCUSS BEER LICENSES.

Elizabeth, July 28.—The Board of Excise at a meeting held Tuesday night revived the question as to whether a saloonkeeper who has a beer license only can sell other liquors.

Every saloonkeeper in Elizabeth, it is said, does this and has been doing so right along.

Saloonkeepers here have to get only ten signers to their license application, while those who apply for a beer license must have twelve signers. It is regarded as doubtful if the agitation started by the present excise board, to have the city attorney define the issue, will have much result.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

An open letter to the Board of Health of North Plainfield. Gentlemen: The recent savage attack upon my man by four full grown Russian wolfhounds from the Boreas Kennels, some of them said by the keeper to be among the most dangerous in the kennels, should be sufficient warning to you to rid the township of these noisy and dangerous animals. The barn and sheds should be removed and the ground under and around thoroughly disinfected. The scores of rats said to infest the kennels should be destroyed before they make their way to neighboring dwellings, possibly carrying infection with them.

As one of the largest property-owners and taxpayers in the township I demand protection for my life, health and property and that of my servants. If these suggestions be not heeded I consider the township to be in grave peril for which, gentlemen, you will be responsible.

Yours respectfully,
RUPERT W. ANDERSON.

Agricultural Board Not to Meet.

Owing to the disastrous fire at the College Farm, New Brunswick, recently, and the extra work of rebuilding, the summer meeting of the State Board of Agriculture, which was to have been held there on August 2, will not be held this year.

NEW JERSEY RATE HEARING.

Trenton, July 28.—On its own initiative the State Board of Public Utilities Commissioners yesterday began at the State house an inquiry into the new passenger railroad rates to take effect August 1. The hearing was adjourned until today to be continued in New York.

The companies contend that thenew tariffs are not a general increase but simply a readjustment of the inter-State commerce law. Seventy-nine advances are made on the New York Division of the Pennsylvania system, the greatest being 20 cents between Bordentown and Camden. There are 443 reductions in fare, the greatest being 26 cents between Trenton and Avon. On the Amboy Division there are 4,720 reductions and 1,170 increases. No changes have been made on the West Jersey and Sea Shore Division, and practically none on the Belvedere line.

On the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad the greatest increase was between here and Bound Brook, 24 cents.

MORTALLY SHOT BY SISTER.

Phillipsburg, July 28.—Dying of two bullet wounds in him,one inflicted by his father, and the other by his sister Elizabeth, William H. Wilken lies in the Easton Hospital. Neither the father nor sister have been arrested.

Wilken was trying to force his way, early yesterday morning into his father's house in Montana, nine miles from here, when the parent opened fire, but inflicted only a slight wound. The youth attacked his father and his sister took the pistol from him and fired a shot that may prove fatal.

Young Wilken had been arrested Wednesday on his father's complaint, having failed to pay board for four of his children at their grandfather's home. He was out on bail when he went to his father's home to get revenge.

Wilken's wife is in the insane asylum and he was unable to care for the little ones.

SENSELESS IN ENGINE CAB.

Trenton, July, 28.—Struck in the head by a piece of ballast rock which was thrown at him as his train passed through the Greenwood Avenue tunnel, John Garwood, of Jersey City, engineer on a New York-Washington express of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was knocked senseless yesterday in his cab.

Another stone crushed through the window of a passenger car in another train and just missed a man's head. Railroad detectives arrested Walter Miller and Edward Miller and Edward Stevens, boys, who were held pending an investigation.

ASK FOR RESIGNATION WHICH CHIEF FORGOT

At the meeting of the Dunellen Fire Department, held last night, a resolution was passed declaring the office of chief vacant. This was done because Chief C. M. Wyhusky removed away from Dunellen without giving any of the members notice of resigning from the office and department. A copy of the resolution was also ordered forwarded to Chief Wyhusky and he was invited to present himself at the next meeting to offer an explanaiton. At that meeting a new chief will be elected.

Another resolution was passed authorizing J. Newton Apgar to act as chief until one in place of Chief Wyhusky has been elected. The action of Chief Wyhusky caused considerable discussion among the members, a number of whom were in favor of more drastic measures than those adopted. There has been no occasion, the members declared, that would warrant his acting as he has, but the counsel of cooler heads thought that possibly he could explain the matter satisfactorily, was heeded.

KEITH & PROCTOR AGREE TO DIVIDE THEIR THEATRES

Portland, Mr., July 28.—The long litigation between B. F. Keith and F. F. Proctor, of the Keith & Proctor Amusement Company is practically over, and Mr. Keith and Mr. Proctor united yesterday in the making of a statement.

The corporation will be dissolved, and Mr. Proctor and Mr. Keith will each receive back the theatres controlled by them at the time of the organization of the corporation and contributed by them to its assets.

Mr. Keith will receive the Union Square and Jersey City Theatres, Mr. Proctor the 125th Street, the Fifty-eighth Street, and the Twenty-third Street Theatres, and the question of the control and ownership of the Fifth Avenue Theatre will be decided by Justice Bird, of the Supreme Court. At this stage of the proceedings the Fifth Avenue Theatre is one of the assets of the corporation. Mr. Keith and Mr. Proctor agreed yesterday that until the questions connected with the Fifth Avenue Theatre are settled by Justice Bird, it shall be managed by Edward F. Albee, the present manager.

After the organization of the Keith & Proctor Amusement Company the corporation acquired the control of the Harlem Opera House, and that remains an asset of the corporation but it was agreed yesterday that with the approval of Justice Bird it shall be sold to the highest bidder of the two present owners.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE RALLY.

The July session of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, was held at Metuchen Wednesday, in the chapel of the Reformed Church of America with an attendance of about fifty delegates. William C. Acken presided, owing to the absence of Rev. Charles H. Elder, of Trenton.

Reports of officers were presented, and it was voted to approriate $100 from the $500 legacy of the late Grand Scribe Henry B. Howell to be used in advancing te work of the Grand Division. At the afternoon session, addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Vansaten, pastor of the church; Edward K. Drake, Colonel William P. Compton and I. Newton Smith, at one time principal of the Metuchen public school. The women of Americus Division provided dinner. The next session will be held in October in Elizabeth.

J. B. BETTS DEPUTY COMMISSIONER

The appointment of J. Brognard Betts, of Washington avenue as one of the four commissioners of education, has been announced by Calvin N. Kendall, the newly appointed commissioner of education of this State. Mr. Betts will have charge of the legal and office work of the department. Commissioner Kendall is awaiting the decision of the Attorney General as to whether or not the other commissioners will have to be selected by competitive civil service examinations.

The new board met for permanent organization last Friday but owing to the decision which is being awaited from the Attorney General regarding the legality of the four deputy commissioners appointments, they did not take part in the deliberations. Dr. William G. Schauffler, of Lakewood, was chosen president and Professor Henry J. Ford, of Princeton, vice-president.

UMPIRES ON SCHEDULE NOW IN CENTRAL LEAGUE.

The schedule for umpires in the Central New Jersey League for the next four weeks has been announced by the supervising committee of that organization. R. H. B. Dalley starts on his vacation tomorrow and so will not officiate in any of the games until August 19. William Cunningham will take his place.

The umpires will officiate as follows:

July 29—M. J. Stockdale at Plainfield; Degnon at High Bridge; Cunningham at Somerville. August 5—Degnon at Scotch Plains; Cunningham at Bound Brook; Stockdale at Somerville. August 12—Degnon at Somerville, Stockdale at Westfield; Cunningham at High Bridge. August 19—Stockdale at Scotch Plains; Dalley at Somerville; Degnon at Bound Brook.

FISHERMEN REPORT GOOD CATCHES NOW AT SEWAREN.

The fish are beginning to bite again at Sewaren after a period of slackness. Boats on the bay this morning landed as many as twenty-four fish apiece. Dr. Thomas Platt, of Dunellen, was among the best of the fishermen during the week with a catch of 16 weakfish.

Some of the lucky ones this week are: W. R. Beers, Elizabeth, 18 weaks; Detective Sergt. George Conger, Rahway, 24 weaks, 4 blues; August Scholz, Perth Amboy, 21 weaks; Dr. T. C. Platt, Dunellen, 16 weaks; Artie Deter, Marty Einhorn, Woodbridge, 10 weaks; LeGrand and John Wallace, Oscar Jackson, Cranford, 7 weaks, 2 blues; George Nagengast, Bayonne City Yacht Club, 18 weaks.

Dunellen Has Hard Game.

Dunellen will line up against the strong Orange Y. M. C. A. team at the Dunellen grounds tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that an exciting game will be witnessed as the Orange team is a speedy combination. The Dunellen boys defeated the Orange Y. M. C. A. on June 10, in a 13-inning game by the score of 3-2. Harney, who twirled against Blackwell, the former High Bridge pitcher at Whitehouse last Saturday and winning the game, will be on the slab for Dunellen, with Hand, of Scotch Plains on the receiving end. There is a rumor around this morning that the Orange team will be padded with a college battery.

Spirited Foot Race for $100.

A spirited foot race for a purse of $100 was run last night by Michael Mansfield and John Watson. The distance was 100 yards and Mansfield the victor, covered the course in 9 4-5 seconds. He is now ready to defend his title against all comers, especially 100 yard men of the West End. Maurice Kenedy, a well known sport, acted as referee.

Frederick's Debut.

It is probable that Otto Frederickson will be on the slab for Scotch Plains tomorrow in the game at Somerville. The young southpaw is in great shape and has been twirling steady ball since he joined the 'Plains club. Manager Joe Alberts thinks he will make good in the league games and hopes to stem Somerville's winning streak through Frederickson's efforts.

New Stand In City Market.

The LaRue Realty Company will open a delicatessen stand in the City Market tomorrow. Another meat stand will be located in the market within a short time.

Leslie Leland, of Sandford avenue, leaves today for a trip to Long Island.

ELKS ARRANGE THEIR SCHEDULE FOR AUGUST

The Plainfield Elks will appear on the local diamond for the first time this season August 10, when they will face the strong team from the Brooklyn Lodge. On August 3 the local 885's will travel to Burlington where they will cross bats with their brothers in that place and on August 17, the Bridgeport aggregation will come here to try their luck with the Plainfield Antlered ones.

Games are being arranged for August 24 and 31, it being expected that one will be played here and one out of town. All the games are scheduled for Thursday afternoons and those in this city will be played on Crescent Oval.

The Elks are moving some these days and are practicing hard during the week on the Oval. With Warry in good form on the mound and Jack Torpey behind the bat, a long string of victories is anticipated by the non-playing brothers. Last year's record by the local Elks was one of the best of any lodge teams in the State. All the players on the 885 team are in good condition and ready for anything that comes their way.

PERSONAL.

Miss Mosher, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., leaves today for her home in Oberlin, Ohio.

Mrs. E. T. Van Winkle and daughter, of Sandford avenue, are spending a week at Flemington.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greer, of East Fourth street, are parents of a boy born to them today.

Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, of Putnam avenue, is entertaining her mother and father from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Graves, of East Fifth street, and a party of eight are camping at Weston.

Augustus Nash, of Prospect avenue, leaves today to spend the week-end with his parents at Atlantic City.

Charles Prior and family, of Hillside avenue, leaves today for Belmar, where they will remain until September.

Dr. Norman Probasco, who has been critically ill for the past two weeks remains in about the same condition, but it is believed he will recover.

ANOTHER KICK COMING.

The little boy was carrying home the empty bowl that had contained his father's dinner, when a big bully appeared.

"Do you mind if I kick that bowl?" inquired the bully.

"Not a bit," said the small boy.

"Do you mean that? Do you mind if I kick that bowl?"

"Not a bit."

"For the last time. Do you mind if I kick that bowl?"

"No. I should like you to."

"Oh, would you? Then watch me!" exclaimed the bully, as he shattered the bowl to atoms.

"Do you mind now?"

"Not a bit?" retorted the small boy, edgeing away. "My mother borrowed the bowl from your mother this morning. You'll hear all about it when you get home!"—Tit Bits.

WHAT YOU DON'T HEAR.

In the office: "I bag your pardon, sir, but I had called to see if I could sell you a set of Watson's Poems printed on incombustible paper. See that you are busy, however, and I will not disturb you. Good day, sir."

Over the telephone: "Is this 1976 Cortlandt? Oh, 1976 Broad. My mistake. I gave Central the wrong number. I am very sorry to have bothered you. Hello, Central! That was my mistake, Central. Yes, my mistake. Hello! Well! Well! They say that Central has fainted!"

In the subway: "Boys, here are six ladies standing. Let us set a good example and get up and give them our seats."—New York Evening Sun.

Junior Excursion Tomorrow.

The annual excursion of the local Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils to Willow Grove will take place tomorrow. Every arrangement has been made for a fine trip and there will be plenty of attractions to entertain everyone joining in the outing. Baseball fans will have an opportunity to see the Athletics and Detroits play in Philadelphia in the afternoon, if they desire.

Division of Labor.

There were points of resemblance between Mrs. Hammond and the lilies of the field; she had married a young man who had a good salary, but she herself had never earned a penny in her life, nor had she been blessed with well-to-do parents.

"We have a point account in the National Fountain Bank," she announced to one of her friends when she had been married a few months. "It is such fun to pay bills by check."

"What do you mean by a joint account?" asked the incredulous friend. "Do you put in equal sums?"

"Oh, I don't put in any," said Mrs. Hammond. "Will puts it in and I draw it out."—Youth's Companion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 30, 1911.

Topic:—A missionary journey around the world.—VII. Missions in Burma and India.—Acts xvii, 16-21. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

India with her "coral strands" and teeming population is a great religious battleground. Here Brahmanism and Buddhism had their birth, and Mohammedism was introduced as a result of the invasion and gradual conquest of almost the entire country by the Arabs, which began about 1000 A. D. In no other land have the evil effects of these so called religions been more evident. The caste system of Brahmanism has been fully developed, idolatry is practiced in its grossest forms, and the evidences of the hopelessness of Buddhism are seen on every hand. No more revolting religious practices were ever developed than the sacrifice of the lives of infants by casting them into the Ganges river and the horrors of the juggernaut and the suttee, and no darker life is imaginable than that of the millions of child widows in India. It is true that these conditions have been greatly changed under the supremacy of England in India, and yet it is still true that—

They call us to deliver
Their land from error's chain.

Bartholomew, one of the twelve apostles, is said to have preached in India, but this is mere tradition. We do know, however, that Christianity was introduced into India at least as early as the second Christian century. Indian merchants visited Egypt to sell their silks and pearls and learned of the Saviour. Through their efforts Pantaenus, who is supposed to be the first Christian missionary to India, was sent to teach the Indians of Christ. A number of Syrian Christians settled in India in the fourth century. Francis Xavier visited south India in the sixteenth century, and many Hindus became Christians. Protestant missionaries reached Tranquebar in 1706, but missions in Bengal were not fairly commenced till William Carey, "the consecrated cobbler," began his work in 1800. The first American missionaries to India were sent out in 1833. Protestant missionaries from Europe and America are now scattered throughout the empire and are doing an aggressive work for Christ.

The present situation in India is most complex. There are many signs of political, social and religious unrest. There is great political discontent and an increasing desire to throw off British rule. Bitter enmity exists between the Hindus and the Mohammedans, and the only hope of continued peace lies in British supremacy, and yet the national spirit is strong. "The dream of Indian nationality is being dreamt." One of the most serious obstacles in the way of Christianity is the belief that it is opposed to this new national movement in that it is supposed to denationalize and to westernize its converts. The only solution of this problem lies in a church of Christ in India. The missionaries may be from the west, but Christ is not western and the supreme aim of all should be to so present Christ as to make Him the Saviour of India equally as much as England or America. Moreover, the church in India should have as little identification with a western church as possible.

Signs of progress in India are not, however, entirely wanting. Some progress is being made among the high caste people through the influence of the schools and colleges. But one of the most encouraging features is among the lower castes and the outcasts or no caste peoples.

This work should be heartily supported. "The harvest is great and the laborers are few." "The burden of the message from India today is 'haste.' What is needed is immediate re-enforcement to prepare for the situation that is sure to develop in the near future"—a situation that "calls for the most earnest prayers on the part of God's people."

Protestant mission work in Burma was begun at Rangoon in 1807. Among the early missionaries was Felix Carey, the eldest son of William Carey. When in 1814 he went from Rangoon to Ava, then the Burman capital, "no Burman had heard that there was an eternal God." In 1813 Rev. Adoniram Judson and his wife arrived at Rangoon and opened a mission. In 1819, after six years of effort, Judson baptized his first convert. The Burmese rulers were for the most part arrogant and brutal and filled with hatred toward everything that was foreign. Judson was called upon to endure great sufferings and persecutions, and the early converts to Christianity suffered cruel persecutions, fines, imprisonment, tortures and death from the officials. In 1885, after several wars, the empire of Burma was annexed to British India. Successful missionary work is carried on among the various Burman tribes, the work being largely directed by American Baptists. The work of evangelization is largely carried on by trained natives. This has been a feature of missionary work in Burma from the beginning.

A DUEL IN THE DARK.

The Unexpected Happened When the Englishman Fired.

Among the less known writers of the nineteenth century was Samuel Rogers. He kept open house and frequently entertained Dickens, Macaulay, Carlyle and other celebrities of the time. Rogers was a notable wit, but unfortunately his thrusts were not always tempered with kindness. Irving in a letter says: "I dined tete-a-tete with him some time since, and he served up his friends as he served up his fish—with a squeeze of lemon over each. It was very piquant, but it set my teeth on edge."

This same caustic flavor of his wit is shown in a story he was fond of telling to the discredit of French valor.

An Englishman and a Frenchman had got into a wordy squabble, which led to mutual insults and a challenge. Nothing could save the honor of either of them but a duel.

But duels were not fought to kill. Even serious wounds were unpleasant, and a mere scratch would answer the purpose much better. So that the antagonists might have a better chance of missing one another they repaired to a dark room.

All was in readiness. The signal was given. The Englishman, no less eager to preserve his foe than himself, groped to the open fireplace. He pointed his pistol up the chimney and fired.

"And, by Jove," Rogers was wont to exclaim, "he brought down the Frenchman!"—Youth's Companion.

FOLLOWED THE DIAGRAM.

The Motorcar Tourists Rewarded the Man Who Drew It.

An amusing practical joke which was played by a Canadian farmer on a party of motorcar tourists is described in Suburban Life. The farmer had drawn a diagram to show the automobilists how to proceed through the little known country.

"For five miles," writes the author of the article, "we followed the countryman's diagram and then came to a piece of road which was atrocious. We climbed over stumps and in and out of ruts and gulleys. Grass grew in the middle of this 'road,' showing how little it was used. At last we saw ahead a little house just at the edge of the woods. We felt sure we were off the right road and decided to make inquiries at the house.

Great was our surprise upon drawing up in front of the house to find our countryman, his wife and several children out in the middle of the road to meet us. They all looked at the car with wondering eyes, and the smallest child hung to her mother's skirts and howled with fright. The other children fled to the house and peeked out of the window.

"Our friend the countryman said: 'Well, I most run my horse to death to get here before you did. I wanted the kids to be sure and see this critter. They never saw one before. I'm much obliged to you, and now if you want the right road you'll have to pull back two miles to the road where you turned in and go straight ahead!'"

Too Much Toothbrush.

It is possible to err in the direction of a too free use of the toothbrush. "Once a day for three minutes is sufficient," writes a dentist in the Family Doctor of London. "Even in using a toothbrush once a day it is better not to rub it directly across the surface of the teeth, but to slant it, holding the point down so that it cleans the spaces between the teeth as well as the front of the teeth and removes the full force of the contract from the teeth. I have had many patients who have literally rubbed the enamel from their teeth by the excessive use of a brush. The average person uses a brush too much and not too little. In addition to being careful with the brush, it is also important to see that the bristles are soft and not hard. Tooth powder should be used only once a day."

Many Kinds of Knives.

An extraordinary thing about the cutlery trade is the variety of knives made. At the Suffolk works in Sheffield, for instance, they have 10,000 different patterns on the books. They make sometimes 3,000 patterns to order at one time. The same thing is true of the large cutlery works at Solingen, in Germany. One firm has 9,000 patterns for Germany alone. New ones are constantly coming out. The Suffolk works have averaged ten new patterns a week for two years. This is a trade that will not be standardized, which is one reason why America has failed hitherto to compete.—Cassier's Magazine.

The Important Question.

The new fireman was telling his wife about the fire.

"It broke out at midnight in the Von Biffers' house on the avenue," he said, "and just as we got there Miss Von Biffer came stumbling out of the flames and smoke, carrying her little niece all wrapped up in her arms. It was the bravest act I ever saw."

"What was she wearing?" inquired the fireman's wife.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Willing to Tune It.

"John, that man next door came over here today and offered to tune little Lucy's piano."

"Great! Did you let him do it?"

"No, dear. He wanted to tune it with an ax!"—Baltimore Sun.

What do we live for if it is not to make life less difficult to each other?—George Eliot.

Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

Thickness of walls shall be not less than is required by law for brick walls, except where Hollow Tile Blocks are used as a substitute for wood construction, the exterior walls shall be not less than the following thicknesses:

(a) For a one story building, 6 inches;
(b) For a two story building, first story 8 inches; second story 8 inches;
(c) For a three story building, first story 10 inches; second story 8 inches; third story eight inches;
(d) For a four story building, first story, 12 inches; second story 10 inches; third story eight inches; fourth story 8 inches;
(e) The foundation walls shall be not less than 4 inches thicker than the first story walls, provided that no foundation wall shall be less than 12 inches thick.

Except for foundations not over 7 feet 6 inches in height of small frame houses of light construction, blocks 8 inches thick may be used in lengths not exceeding twenty linear feet between masonry cross walls or buttress piers of dimensions approved by the Inspector.

If the walls are exposed to the weather the blocks shall be of dense material, vitrified in burning, or they may be of dense material hard burned but not vitrified, covered on the exposed side with at least one inch of cement plaster. All blocks shall be dovetail scored to retain this coating.

(8) Whenever girders or joists rest upon walls so that there is a concentrated load of over ten tons, the blocks supporting the girders or joists shall be made solid by filling at least two contiguous blocks with cement mixed in proportion of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts broken stone or gravel Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

(9) No hollow blocks shall be loaded in excess of one hundred pounds per square inch of net section in compression, if laid on the side, or in excess of three hundred pounds per square inch if set on end. All piers and buttresses that support loads in excess of five tons shall be filled solid with cement concrete. Lintels spaning over four feet six inches in the clear, shall rest on blocks filled solid with concrete, or an equivalent in iron support.

(10) When used for curtain walls between supporting piers not over twenty feet apart on centers, not more than twelve feet in height between girders, hard burnt clay standard blocks not less than 8 inches in thickness, set in cement, may be used, reinforcing by concrete filling to the extent necessary and directed by the Inspector.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

HOTEL BEDS ABROAD.

To Get Into Some of Them One Has to Use a Stepladder

The European bed always strikes the uninitiated American traveler as a huge joke. In France they commence to impress him with their height and narrowness, and he looks dubiously at the enormous Turkey red cotton "couvre pied" of eiderdown, which seems something like a mountain, and he wonders how he is ever going to bear all that extra weight on his person. But when he has slipped between the sheets and the grateful warmth communicates itself to his cold bones—if it is winter they are sure to be like icicles—he discovers that it is deceptively light and deliciously comfortable.

In Switzerland the beds attain a little more height, but it is in Germany that they become of such an altitude as to necessitate a pair of steps to mount them. One tourist, finding that one leg of the stepladder was broken, solved his difficulty by going to the extreme end of the room, taking a running start and landing with a flying leap in the midst of the Turkey red eiderdown. He crawled in under the crocheted counterpane and was soon fast asleep. Some time in the night he became sleepily aware of a consuming thirst and started to get out of bed for a drink. A startled shriek, followed by some swear words that even the thick headed German watchman understood, penetrated to the remotest chamber in the inn.

"I was half awake," he explained afterward, "and had been dreaming of standing on Table rock, in the Yosemite. I started to get out of bed—and began to fall. Naturally I supposed I was plunging to the bottom of that precipice, and I'll leave it to you if any one wouldn't have let out a yell when he thought he was going to be dashed to death."

Sometimes in European hotels the tourist is taken solemnly to one side and told that by paying a few francs or lire more he can have the royal bedchamber. A certain hotel in Sorrento, where a dozen or more royal heads have lain in one season, is even more generous, for if the rooms are empty they make no extra charge. And the traveler loves to recount when he is back on his native heath how his cheek pressed the same pillow that had been used by the little queen of Holland or the king of Saxony.—New York Tribune.

BALANCING THE SEXES.

Singular, Isn't It, the Way Nature Preserves the Equilibrium?

One of the most subtle and interesting problems of life, according to the eminent statistician and student of heredity, Professor R. J. Ewart, is the numerical relationship of sex and its influence upon the body politic. The woman's rights movement is in essence a mathematical and statistical problem, according to him. There is not a general advance of woman, as some sociologists assert. There is a sudden manifestation of her power, a period of supremacy and then a decline of her status.

The explanation is statistical mainly. True, it has always been something of a puzzle why the proportion of each kind, apparently with little or no underlying reason, is produced in the right numbers. The argument that if such were not the case the particular species would not survive does not reveal to us the methods by which the object has been achieved. That some mechanism must exist by means of which within certain limits the number of males and females born is regulated is proved by the facts of history, where we have numerous examples of wars and other social upheavals where males have largely suffered, and yet within an apparently short period of time, as measured by such events, a balance has again been established.

The sex equilibrium may be compared to that of a gyroscope, where the greater the disturbance of position the greater is the force tending to reestablish its natural stand while in motion.—Current Literature.

She Had Noticed.

He was talking to the pessimistic, sharp tongued damsel.

"Have you noticed," he asked, "that, as a rule, bachelors are wealthier than married men?"

"I have," she replied.

"How do you account for it?" he inquired.

"The poor man marries and the rich one doesn't," she answered. "A man is much more disposed to divide nothing with a woman than he is to divide something, you know."

Maine's First Hotel.

Maine's first public hotel was built in 1654. Waddock's Ordinary, erected near Old Orchard, according to a Saco historian, is entitled to the distinction. The old tavern was erected by Henry Waddock and stood almost within sight of the large summer hostelries which fringe the crescent shaped beach at Old Orchard.—Kennebec Journal

SPANISH LAW.

The Snub It Gave a British Consul In Cuba Some Years Ago.

The haphazard character of Spanish law is well illustrated by the following case: Some years ago a young English sailor, accompanied by an American and an Irish sailor, went on shore at Havana. When returning to their ships they were attacked by Chinamen. The American struck one of the Chinamen on the head with a stick, and the man died. The Spanish authorities did not trouble to discriminate, but sentenced the three men to two years' imprisonment.

The British consul, being unaccustomed to Spanish ways, took up the case of the Englishman very strongly. The authorities thereupon, possibly to teach him a lesson, tried the men over again and gave them twenty years each.

The Englishman after three years in a Cuban prison, during which time his companions died of yellow fever, was transferred to Ceuta to serve the remainder of his time. After some years he and a fellow prisoner, a Spaniard, escaped, but they were recaptured. The food provided in the convict prison of Ceuta consists of two meals a day of garbauzos—chick peas—occasionally flavored with a tiny bit of salt pork, a remarkably healthy if not appetizing diet, and the Englishman came out of prison in particularly good health. After his twenty years' unjust imprisonment he married a Spanish woman.—London Family Herald.

HE SAW THE POINT.

And For That Very Reason He Didn't Join In the Laugh.

"They" were chatting in the smoking room of a little Koninklijke Paketvaart Maatschappij coaster, on a two months' run among the islands below the equator, when some one speaking of the Malay peninsula some one else said, "My impression of the Straits Settlements can be summed up in a single picture—a strong black man, standing in the center of a muddy stream, trying to split a rock with a shirt."

Now this always provokes a laugh; it is venerable and infallible. But to my surprise, said Frederick S. Isham, the novelist, one of the smoking room contingent, on this occasion it partially failed. What was the trouble? The delinquent, the one man out of seven who didn't laugh, was sallow, saturnine and English.

"What's the matter, old chap?" asked the novelist. "Don't you see the point or are you waiting until tomorrow to wake up to it?"

The other man turned his head wearily. "See the point?" he said sadly. "I should think I did. I ought to. I," tragically, "am the man who owned the shirt."

Then we, knowing he had lived twenty-five years in the orient, became silent; our laughter ceased. A sympathetic melancholy descended upon us. Englishman or not, we took him to our heart of hearts and made a brother of him.—Baltimore American.

Jokable Relatives.

One of the curious social customs practiced by the Crow as well as by many other Indian tribes is the "mother-in-law taboo"—that is to say, a man is under no circumstances permitted to hold conversation with his wife's mother. Another strange regulation is that relating to the playing of practical jokes. A man is not permitted to jest with any one he pleases, but is limited to the individuals whose fathers belonged to the same clan as his own father. Within this group, however, practically any liberty is allowable. If a man discovers that a "jokable relative" has committed some foolish or disgraceful act he can publicly twit him with it, and the person derided must not get angry, but bide his time for some favorable opportunity to retaliate.—American Museum Journal.

Fissures In the Rockies.

In some of the high plateaus or mesas of the Rocky mountains there are to be found a short distance from the edge cracks or fissures not more than four feet wide and often as much as eighty feet deep. During the terrific blizzards that rage in the winter these crevices are filled to the level, and cattle and horses which are not acquainted with the country frequently drop into them, their struggles only causing them to sink deeper and deeper. The cracks, into which the sun never penetrates, are like refrigerators, and the hapless brutes, when death has come to their relief, become to all intents and purposes mummies.

A Close Student.

The late Goldwin Smith, writing for the Nineteenth Century, recalls that Robert Lowe, afterward Lord Sherbrooke, was so nearsighted that when he was reading his nose literally touched his book.

He took high honors at Oxford, but a wit said of him:

"Lowe would have taken higher honors at Oxford if he had not rubbed out with his nose what he had written with his pen."

Dodged His Duty.

Cholly—While I was calling on your daughter last evening, Mr. Butts, your dog growled at me. Old Butts—Did he bite you? Cholly—Oh, no—only growled. Old Butts—I'll have to get rid of him and get another.—Chicago News.

COINS UNDER WEIGHT.

In England It's the Duty of Those Who Get Them to Break Them.

It is the duty of each loyal British subject not merely to refuse gold coin that is under a certain weight, but to break it.

"Every person," the act reads, "shall, by himself or others, cut, break or deface such coin tendered to him in payment, and the person tendering the same shall bear the loss."

But in spite of this act it is a risky business interfering with coins which you may suspect to be under weight or spurious. Some months ago a Grimsby woman offered a half sovereign in payment of goods to a local shopkeeper. The latter put the coin in a testing machine and, as it broke in two, refused to take it.

The coin, however, was pronounced by experts to be perfectly genuine, and when the case was taken into a court of law the shopkeeper was ordered to refund 10 shillings to the customer.

Money, both gold and silver, wears out at a startling rate. It is reckoned that there is usually £100,000,000 in gold coin in England, a very large proportion of which is locked in the strong rooms of banks. Yet of that which is in active circulation the wastage is so great that during every twelve months £70,000 worth of gold and silver is rubbed off into fine dust.—Pearson's Weekly.

PUNCTUATION.

The Modern System Was Introduced by Aldus Manutius.

Punctuation by means of stops or points, so as to indicate the meaning of sentences and assist the reader to a proper enunciation, is ascribed originally to Aristophanes, an Alexandrian grammarian, who lived in the third century B. C. Whatever his system may have been, it was subsequently neglected and forgotten, but was reintroduced by Charlemagne, the various stops and symbols being designed by Warnefried and Alcuin.

The present system of punctuation was introduced in the latter part of the fifteenth century by Aldus Manutius, a Venetian printer, who was responsible for our period, colon, semicolon, comma, marks of interrogation and exclamation, parenthesis and dash, hyphen, apostrophe and quotation marks. These were subsequently copied by other printers until their use became universal.

Most ancient languages were innocent of any system of punctuation. We find in many early manuscripts that the letters are placed at equal distances apart, with no connecting link between, even in the matter of spacing, an arrangement which must have rendered reading at sight somewhat difficult.

Strict School Rules.

John Wesley held that school children should do without holidays altogether. When he opened Kingswood school in 1748 he announced that "the children of tender parents, so called, have no business here, for the rules will not be broken in favor of any person whatsoever. Nor is any child received unless his parents agree that he shall observe all the rules of the house and that they will not take him from school, no, not for a day, till they take him for good and all." Further, no play days were permitted, and no time was ever allowed for play on the ground that he who plays when he is a child will play when he becomes a man. Every Friday the children had to work till 3 in the afternoon without breaking their fast.—London Chronicle.

A Faith Cure.

Dr. Josiah Oldfield relates a story of his student days at St. Bartholomew's hospital. A man came to him with an injury to his hand. The doctor did not know what the ailment was, but he prescribed an ointment which was practically lard. The man returned to the hospital the following week.

"Ah, sir," he said, "I begin to recognize why it is that St. Bartholomew's hospital has such a great reputation! I come from Leicester and have been to all the doctors in Leicester. Your ointment has done me more good in one week than all the ointment of the doctors of Leicester in many months."

That result, added the doctor, was owing to the fact that the man came to St. Bartholomew's believing that he could be cured there.—London Graphic.

Two Records.

"I have crossed the Atlantic twenty times," boasted the man from New York.

"Have you?" replied the man from Chicago. "My record beats that."

"Oh, really? How many times have you been over?"

"I've never been over at all, but I've set foot in every state of the Union."

"Quite remarkable. By the way, old chap, how many states are there now?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Good Scheme.

Not Easily Caught.

Wife—I see you're putting on your new coat. It makes my old hat look awfully shabby. Husband—Is that so? Well, that's soon mended. I'll put on my old coat.—Fliegende Blatter.

Worry poisons the mind just as much as a deadly drug poisons the body and just as surely.

SMILE WHEN YOU LOSE.

Then Brace Up and Start Right In to Become a Winner.

Be as good a loser as you are a winner—a hard task to set a man, but not an impossible one. Many have met it. Those who have are those who win more than they lose, for nothing inspires success or victory like calmness in defeat or coolness under stress. It is true in business, in politics, in sports, in any sphere of competitive endeavor.

Not only that, but nothing is quite as disconcerting to one's opponent in one of life's contests as the ability to lose with a smile and well directed effort to regain the lost. Any man who has run a foot race or boxed or wrestled or played ball knows that.

But nobody has any time for the man who is forever lamenting his own loss or defeat. The world simply credits him with being what it terms a "grouch," which means a poor loser, and passes him by for a more agreeable man. Any one can be a good winner, but it takes a man to be a good loser.

The philosophy of life itself teaches that in all of its precepts. Some one has to lose. It may as well be you, perhaps, so far as the good of the world goes, as your neighbor. It makes for unselfishness to keep that in mind.—Omaha Bee.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY.

An Honor Which Had Its Birth In the Middle Ages.

The ceremony of presenting the freedom of the city as an honor arose in the middle ages, when such right was not acquired by mere domicile. No stranger could move into a medieval town and go into business, his own gainful occupation or the civic activities. First he must become enrolled in the guild of his trade, then he had to undergo an apprenticeship of full seven years before he could be admitted to its livery. Then only and thus only could he arrive at the freedom of his city.

As a reward for high deeds these medieval city republics sometimes conferred on such strangers as had served them well the freedom of the city by solemn act of the burgesses and liveries without the apprenticeship of servitude. Every such recipient of a city's freedom became at once a burgess, free to dwell, free to engage in trade, free to vote for the civic rulers and to aspire to the civic chair. The key was the visible sign of this freedom—the city gates, closed at sunset against the stranger and the foe, opened to the burgess' key at all hours, as the door of his own home.—Argonaut.

Wit "In Extremis."

Of the men of letters who lost their lives on the scaffold two at least died debonairly.

There was Montrose, poet and king's man in Scotland's king versus kirk business. On the morning of his execution Warristown, the covenanter, went to his cell, doubtless to make himself unpleasant. Montrose was combing out his curls.

"Why is James Graham so careful of his locks?"

Montrose smiled and made answer: "So long as my head is my own I mean to see to it. When Warristown gets it he may deal with it as he likes."

At the scaffold Sir Thomas More asked the lieutenant of the tower to see him safe up the steps.

"I'll shift for myself coming down," the poet promised.—Youth's Companion.

Cecil Rhodes' Grave.

Cecil Rhodes, the "diamond king" and famous South African statesman, is buried in Africa, in obedience to his own wish, as expressed in the following words left in his will: "I admire the grandeur and loneliness of the Matoppas, in Rhodesia, and therefore I desire to be buried in the Matoppas, on the hill which I used to call the 'View of the World,' in a square to be cut in the rock on the top of the hill, covered with a plain brass plate with these words thereon: 'Here lie the remains of Cecil John Rhodes.'" Rhodes died March 26, 1902, at the age of forty-seven.

Windows of the Soul.

Eyes are bold as lions, roving, running, leaping, here and there, far and near. They speak all languages; they wait for no introduction; they are no Englishmen; ask no leave of age or rank; they respect neither poverty nor riches, neither learning nor power, nor virtue, nor sex, but intrude, and come again, and go through and through you in a moment of time. What inundation of life and thought is discharged from one soul into another through them!—Emerson.

Remarkable Case.

"How much your little boy resembles your husband!" said the cunning politician.

"I've always heard," she replied, "that people grow to look like those they are much with, but this is quite a remarkable case. We only adopted the little fellow last week."

In His Interest.

Jack—You know when Mabel rejected me last week I told you my troubles, and you promised to help me. Well, she accepted me last night. Am I to thank you for interceding for me? Cousin Belle—Not exactly, dear boy. I simply intimated to Mabel that I was after you myself.

How shall I be able to rule over others that have not full power and command over myself?—Rabelais

MISS MOORE WINNER OF THE W. C. T. U. MEDAL.

Ocean Grove, July 28.—The winner of the W. C. T. U. oratorical contest held in the temple Wednesday afternoon in connection with the summer institute of that organization was Miss Leola Moore, a member of the Loyal Temperance Union of this place. Miss Moore, who is seventeen years old, is a pupil in the Neptune Township High School, being in the junior department. The subject of her recitation was "Well." This is the third medal of the kind Miss Moore has won in such contests, and it is planned to send her to a school of oratory in the fall. Her parents are John Wesley and Rebecca Moore, of 77 Abbott avenue.

Frank Farley, also of this place, won the medal in the musical contest with his song, "The Lord is My Light," by Allison.

Others who took part in the contest were: Miss Helen Middleton, of Bradley Beach, whose subject was "Rum's Tragedies;" Miss Charlotte Sandford, of Eatontown, subject, "There were Ninety and Nine;" Miss Ruthena Guerin, of Asbury Park, subject "A Daughter's Sacrifice;" Miss Lucille Walker, of Ocean Grove, who sang "Behold a Multitude," by Florini; Miss Norma Murray, of New York; Lee Broome, of Ocean Grove, who sang "Face to Face," by Herbert Johnson; Miss Ruth Huyler, of Eatontown, who sang "Shadows."

The Judges in the oratorical contest were Miss Elinor R. Gedhardt, Rev. Dr. H. Ridgeley Robinson and Henry C. Brinley, and in the musical contest Mrs. Isabella Demarest and Horation Rench.

The expenses of the contest were borne by Melvin A. Rive, of Atlantic Highlands, who was recently appoined a member of the State Board of Education.

GAME PRESERVES ARE NOT EXEMPT

The law by which a uniform hunting season throughout the State is created while pleasing to the main body of hunters, is very distasteful to a few organized body hunters who for many years have had special privileges granted them by virtue of their having officially recognized private preserves on which to hunt the English or ringneck pheasant.

These special privileges allowed hunting on preserves from October 1 to December 31 in the counties of Essex, Passaic, Sussex, Morris, Warren, Hunterdon, Somerset, Hudson, Union and Bergen, providing such preserves were established previous to 1911.

The Adams law enacted by this year's Legislature changed all this by failing to attach the usual proviso exempting these preserves. Therefore the owners and their guests must refrain from shooting until the regular season opens in November 1. Likewise they must end their shooting on December 15 instead of on December 31, as was previously the case. Among the largest private preserves in the State are those of the Rutherford Club, and of Joseph Mundy, of Newark. On these two preserves the English pheasants are raised by the owners and protected and fed by them. Why the proviso was omitted from the new law is not known, because no concerted effort was made by any one to have it omitted, and it is looked upon as an oversight rather than the result of forethought in the matter. Several private preserves in South Jersey are also affected, as well as one that has just been started by purchase of a large estate and stocking with birds.

Another feature of the Adams law is that woodcock hunting is permitted from October 15 to December 1.

THOUSANDS ATTEND MAYOR STOY'S FUNERAL.

Atlantic City, July 28—Turning out en masse, the people of the city paid a remarkable tribute to the memory of Mayor Franklin P. Stoy, whose body lay in state in the council chamber of city hall from 11 until 2 Wednesday. During those three hours a solid line of people, estimated at 35,000, passed the bier, the lines guarded by the police, members of the City Troop in their brilliant uniforms and the Morris Guards, the semi-military organization of the resort.

While the body lay in state all business was suspended through the city hall, and many of the places of business throughout the city also closed. Outside the building a huge throng extended up and down Atlantic avenue, all patiently awaiting their turn to look for the last time upon the features of the man wha has been so conspicuous in the official life of the resort for twenty years. All classes of citizens were represented, from the millianaire hotel proprietor to boardwalk chairpushers. Hundreds of women and children also went to make up the throng.

There was a display of floral tributes within the council chamber, consisting of pieces sent by the police, the various city departments and the many organizations with which the Mayor was affiliated.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the casket was conveyed by a special electric train to Pleasantville, where interment was made. The train carried fully 500 persons, including practically the entire police force, members of the City Troop and the Life Guard, who formed about the grave in a hollow square while the services were in progress.

The burial services were conducted by Trinity Lodge of Masons, of which the Mayor was for many years a member and the final benediction was pronounced by Rev. Thomas J. Cross, of Worcester, Mass, fromerly pastor of the First Baptist church, of this city, and for many years a friend of the Chief Executive.

Polite Trolley Conductor Rewarded.

Because he was polite to the patrons of his car, E. C. Egou, a conductor of the Chicago and Milwaukee electric railway, has been awarded a gold medal by the company. In an effort to secure good treatment of its patrons the company offered a reward and Egou is the first to win the distinction.

HIGHWAY SLAUGHTER IN N. Y., N. J. AND CONN.

New York, July 28.—Forty-six men and thirteen women were killed, sixty-one men and six women seriously injured, nine children killed or badly injured, twenty horses killed and thirty-two horse-drawn vehicles and fourteen automobiles demolished by grade crossing accidents in this State, New Jersey and Conneticut since the first of the year. The tragic toll was completed by Colonel Edward S. Cornell, secretary of the National Highways Protective Association, yesterday, and it is so startling that the association will begin at once, he says, a vigorous campaign for universal abolition of the grade crossing death trap.

The campaign will be directed against civic authorities, as well as the railroads, and it is hoped to bestir both to the increasing need of a complete abolition of the grade crossing. The survey of recent accidents shows that a large percentage occurred in Long Island, with the vicinity of Buffalo a close second.

CIVIL SERVICE HEARING.

The Civil Service Commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday, August 1, in its rooms in the State house, Trenton, on the exemption of the following positions and amendments to rules:

The above positions are to be exempted by the Civil Service Commission in view of the fact that competitive examinations are not deemed practicable. The civil service law requires that a public hearing shall be held before final action is taken by the Civil Service Commission, at which anyone may appear either for or against such exemption.

Proctor's Fine Bill.

"Who's Who," a bright original comedy sketch, is being presented at Proctor's theatre, by Richard Lyle & Co. It is full of human interest. The Oriole Trio, presenting a program of grand and comic opera and popular selections is making a hit. Wilkens and Kilkens are clever in comedy talk and dancing and The Delmons European arcobats are far above the average and well worth seeing.

Co. K Returns After a Successful Week Spent at Sea Girt.

SHAM BATTLE CALLED OFF.

Inclement Weather Interfered With Target Practice, Drills and Manoeuvres—Local Boys Made Good Showing.

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, July 29.—Owing to the hustle and bustle incident to breaking camp, Co. K boys have had little time for anything else than getting their belongings together and saying hasty adieus to acquaintances formed with other members of the citizen soldiery during the week spent in camp. The friendships thus formed terminate today until next year when the guardsmen will again meet at the seaside resort.

The places vacted by the boys today will be immediately taken by troops from other cities who will spend a week here and when they go still others will arrive, thus completing the three weeks' schedule of camping for the National Guard of the State.

There was nothing of a special nature to occupy the soldiers yesterday. Quite a number of them spent considerable time at the rifle range perfecting the marksmanship made on previous days. In some instances these marks were not equalled and the boys blamed their lack of accuracy to the stiff wind that was blowing. Sergeant Phillips is still the high gun man with a mark of 139.

The enthusiasm so marked when the boys left Plainfield last Saturday for the camp, did not lessen as time passed although the weather on several days was anything but pleasant. The officers are much gratified by this show of interest and spirit and on different occasions have remarked upon it, commending the boys highly. In fact, Company K won the reputation of having optimism, as one of its characteristics.

Yesterday was the day set for the sham battle in the country but owing to a down pour of rain that began at day-break it was called off, causing deep disappointment to reign among the men. This event was looked forward to as the feature of the entire week, eclipsed only by the Governor's day celebration. The rain also caused the drills and manoeuvres for the morning and afternoon to be postponed.

In the morning the officers of the two regiments were given a lecture by Major Evan M. Johnson, of the United States Army, on tactical work under various circumstances. The officers of the National Guard have greatly profited by the instructions of the major, and have nothing but praise for his work at Sea Girt with them this season. That the detailing of officers from the regular army for work with the National Guard is a long stride forward in bringing the Guard up to a high standard of excellency, and that no greater move could have been made toward this purpose is the belief of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, who is deeply enthused over the success of the departure from the old system of State militia.

It is the plan of the officers to have the camp entirely broken before the incoming troops arrive. In case the weather is clear and the tents have dried out from the rain, the canvas will be lowered, neatly folded and placed at the end of every company street. This is done in order to give the guardsmen actual experience in the making of camp.

Will Sing From Hotel Roof.

Roy LaPearl, who is one of the leading men with Dockstader's minstrels, and who is said to have the biggest musical voice in the world, will sing from the roof of the Queen City Hotel at 12:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, August 5, accompanied by the band, which will be stationed in front of the hotel.

New Autos to Hire.

You can hire new five-passenger cars, also seven-passenger cars, day or night, at Thompson's garage.
7 29 2

In addition to the regular services of the Salvation Army tomorrow a special meeting will be held in the afternoon at Wayside Park, commencing at 3:30 o'clock.

The Temple Quartet, instrumental, will render a special program of music at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow night. Beginning with September 1 a double male quartet will comprise the choir at this church. It is now being organized under a competent leader.

Miss Mildred Barnes, of West Fifth street, is sojourning at Midland Beach.

ELKS JOIN IN BIG CELEBRATION AT ELIZ.

A large number of Elks from this city saw their Elizabeth brethren repeat their triumphal performance of Atlantic City, last night. The Elizabeth Elks won second prize for the appearance they made in the parade that marked the grand lodge convention held at Atlantic City several weeks ago and owing to the honor thus conferred, many requests were made to give Elizabeth an opportunity to see what the residents and visitors at the convention city had been shown.

Delegations from Elk lodges in this locality were among the visitors that thronged the clubhouse and "open house" was the rule. The celebrated Kilty Band, of New York, the same that led the Elizabeth Elks at Atlantic City, furnished the music and shared honors with the white suited and plug hatted paraders. After the parade a reception was held at the clubhouse. Those going from here went in autos and by train.

JUNIORS SPENDING DAY AT WILLOW GROVE

The excursion to Willow Grove today by the combined councils of Juniors did not take as large a crowd as expected, but as the train was to pick up excursionists from all points between here and Somerville, it was thought by the time that the train made other stops the fourteen coaches would be well filled.

The day is ideal for the outing and as the train will not leave on the return trip until 10 o'clock tonight, the excursionists will be given ample opportunity to spend a full day in the city of Brotherly Love. A number of baseball enthusiasts will see the Athletics and the Detroit Tigers fight a round in the pennant contest of the American League. The famous electric fountain at the grove has also been featured as an attraction.

UNION COUNTY TO HAVE NEW BOOTHS

Because of the new Geran election law it will be necessary for Union county to have an entire set of new voting booths. The old ones, built for one voter and for privacy, will either have to be thrown away entirely and become a total loss or will be used in the making of the new ones. Under the Geran law it is necessary that the booths be large enough to admit three persons—the voter and two election officers—in cases where the voter is incapacitated and needs assistance. Also because of the long Australian ballot the new booths must contain a large shelf, which the present booths have not.

In Elizabeth there were thirty-two of these and about two-thirds of this number in other parts of the county. Not only will these booths become useless but several polling places in Elizabeth, according to the statement of the clerk, must be abandoned for they will not be large enough to hold five booths, which under the Geran law will be the number used in every district of 300 voters. The redistricting of Elizabeth left 300 voters in each district, consequently it will be necessary to have the five booths in each of the forty-seven polling places.

The freeholders have already provided for the increased expense which the adoption of the Geran law will entail. It is possible that the increase in the election expenses over last year will be $50,000, or about $2.50 for each voter in the county.

Already many of the party leaders are declaring that the Geran law will not prove expensive, but will lead to a heavy falling off of the votes.

Proctor's New Show.

Harry Holman, who will be remembered as having appeared at Proctor's theatre last winter, will play a return engagement next Monday. He is undoubtedly one of the best black-face comedians in vaudeville. He will appear here in a sketch entitled "The Wise Old Owl," with a company of three. The bill will also include The Bootblack Quartette, with Messrs. Ferris, Adams, Weber and Hayes, and The Mells Troupe of European acrobats, together with Paulie Verdayne, a clever singer, and the best moving pictures will complete the fine bill.

JUSTIN LINDSLEY DIES FROM OVERDOSE

Justin Lindsley, of Grant avenue, who took on overdose of mercury in the retiring room of the Central Railroad station at Elizabeth last Sunday, died early this morning in the Elizabeth General Hospital where he was removed and had since been a patient. Everything possible was done to save the young man's life and at first hopes were entertained for his recovery, as he responded to the treatment. Wednesday there was a change for the worse since when he failed rapidly.

Mr. Lindsley was about 27 years old and came to this city with his parents from Morristown about four years ago. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Lindsley and was unmarried. He was employed in the engineering department of the P. S. C. in the Newark office, but had not been at business several months prior to taking the poison, on account of his health. He had been a patient at a sanatorium in New York undergoing treatment for a nervous disorder. His parents, a brother and two sisters survive.

FIRST REGISTRY DAY IS SEPTEMBER 12TH

Under the new election law the first registry day will be on Tuesday, September 12, and the primaries will be held two weeks later. Under the law the petitions of candidates must be posted with the city clerk fifteen days before the primaries, while formerly only ten days were required. The law further provides that there must be two registry lists, one for the primary only and a separate one for the November election.

Garret T. Dunham, during the past three weeks, has been engaged in separating the voters registered at the last election into the new districts, there being eighteen districts now instead of ten as before. He has been separating the names of those belonging in the new districts from those of the old and making eighteen new copies of registry lists.

Sometime during August there will be an announcement of the election officers chosen from the competitive lists throughout the State. In this city a limited number of persons took the examination, not nearly enough to take care of all the eighteen districts, and thus far it is not known how many passed the examination successfully.

A SACRED CONCERT AT MT. ZION M. E. CHURCH.

The choir of the Mt. Zion M. E. church will render a sacred concert tomorrow night in the church at 8 o'clock. The following program will be given, with A. Preston White as organist:

Anthem, "I Will Love Thee, O Lord," Bradbury; baritone solo, "Alone With Jesus," Hart; soprano solo, duet and quartette, "Nearer My God to Thee," Cole; soprano solo, "Teach Me to Pray," Jewitt; trio (female voices), "Lift Thine Eyes," from "Elijah;" tenor solo, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," Lehman; soprano solo, "The Eternal City," von Tilzer; quintette (male voices), "Crusaders' Hymn;" soprano solo, "Come Unto Me," Bartlett.

Rev. C. S. Kemble to Speak.

The services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home tomorrow afternoon will be of special interest. The speaker will be Rev. S. C. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, who is always a favorite speaker with children. The soloists will be Miss Edith Hamilton, whistler, of this city, and Aleck MacGowan, tenor soloist at the First M. E. church. The singing by the children's choir will be a feature and the public is invited to this and all services.

Arrested For Begging.

John Keely, of New York, was arrested here yesterday on a charge of begging and arrigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. He said that he followed sea faring as a means of livelihood and was on his way to New York from Philadelphia and was broke. Judge DeMeza allowed him to go with the understanding that his interrupted journey be continued.

Special Music at Union Service.

Special music will be a feature of the Union service at the First Methodist church tomorrow night. Raymond McGee will be the soloist and several numbers will be rendered by the church quartet.

Funeral of Infant.

The funeral of Raffale Venesis, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raffale Venesis, of Richmond street, was held this afternoon and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

TO CONTEST WILL

Caveat Filed by Daughter to Prevent Settlement o. W. F. Chamberlin's Estate.

BEQUEATHS HER ONLY $5.00.

Estate Consists of Stocks, Bonds and Real Estae—No Date Set For Hearing.

A caveat has been filed against the admission to probate of the will of the late William F. Chamberlin, of East Third street, by his daughter, Mrs. M. J. Anson, of Manning avenue. No date has been set for the hearing. The will was drawn by V. W. Nash, Jr., about three weeks prior to Mr. Chamberlin's death, which occurred June 15.

The estate consists of a quantity of stocks and bonds, the residential property on East Third street, at which place Mr. Chamberlin also conducted the painting and decorating business he was engaged in for a number of years, and two dwellings on Elk street. His brother, Henry Chamberlin, of Westfield, was named as executor.

To his wife, Mr. Chamberlin gave the residential property on East Third street, the stocks and bonds, and one of the dwellings on Elk street. To his sister, Mrs. Albert Miller, and her husband, the will gives the business and one of the Elk street residences. To Mr. Chamberlin's daughter, Mrs. Anson, by a former marriage, was given a $5 gold piece. The personal property was left to the widow and sister jointly. The brother named as executor is not mentioned in the will in any other connection.

Mrs. Anson has retained Winfield S. Angleman in her action and Mrs. Chamberlin, Mr. and Mrs. Miller have retained Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield.

The Mr. Miller mentioned in the will is a brother-in-law of the deceased and was employed by Mr. Chamberlin as an assistant in the painting business. He also resided with the latter. The Mrs. Chamberlin mentioned in the will is Mr. Chamberlin's second wife. He was divorced from his first wife, the mother of Mrs. Anson and the small bequest to the daughter by the first wife is said to be the grounds for filing the caveat.

MRS. ARBUCKLE BRIDE OF JOHN ACKERMAN

Mrs. Grace Arbuckle, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Terry, and John Ackerman, both of New York, were married last evening at the home of the bride's mother, 331 East Third street, by Rev. Evarts C. Conover, pastor of the Temple Baptist church. The ceremony was witnessed by only the members of the immediate family. The couple will reside in this city.

The bride was formerly Miss Grace Moore, and lived in Plainfield for a number of years. Of late she has been residing in New York. Mr. Ackerman is employed in New York as a detective, and while the couple has decided to make their home here the groom will continue his work in New York.

MANY MOURNERS ATTEND FUNERAL OF MRS. ZELLER.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Zeller, whose death occurred suddenly at her home on Lane avenue, Wednesday afternoon, were held this morning from St. Mary's church. The requiem mass was celebrated by Father Sciolla and Father Butscher, of Newark, a nephew of the departed, said the prayers at the commitment service.

Six nephews acted as bearers. They were Joseph, Frank, Theodore, James and Theodore Wurmser, and Isaac Burns. There was a large number of relatives and friends at the church and many floral tributes attested the esteem in which the departed was held.

Miss Edna Moffett to Wed.

HORACE D. GROVES FOUND IN RAHWAY

The Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Horace D. Groves, the private of Co. K, of this city, has been cleared up. The young man is well and is receiving the sympathy and congratulations of his friends. The former are for the loss of a relative, Miss Effie Huff, and the latter for his being located safely.

Groves reason for leaving Camp Wilson was on account of the funeral of Miss Huff, who is a near relative. She died in Perth Amboy and in the arrangements attending the removal of the body to her late home in Rahway, word of the funeral was not sent to Mr. Groves until late. As soon as he received the letter at camp he left without telling anybody and arrived home just in time for the services.

Friends and companions of Groves in this city are much relieved at the clearing up of the mystery. Arrangements have been made with other members of his squad to bring his gun and other equipment home with them this afternoon.

MET IN THIS CITY; ENGAGEMENT FOLLOWS

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Winfield Armstrong, of Romeo place, Los Angeles, California, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Bedloe Armstrong, to Arthur Wilfred Tuthill, of New York city. Miss Armstrong spent last winter in the East, most of the time as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Clinton Wilmerding, of Belvidere avenue, and during her stay, she made many friends by her charming personality and accomplishments, she being a talented musician. Her education in music was first secured at the West Lake School, a well-known institution in the West, from which she was graduated.

It was during her stay at the Wilmerding home that Miss Armstrong met Mr. Tuthill, who promptly laid seige to the heart of the fair Californian. Miss Armstrong returned to her Western home about June 1, when the news of the engagement was kept a secret until announced today.

Mr. Tuthill resides in Brooklyn and is one of the managers of the Sayre & Fisher Brick Co., with general offices at 261 Broadway, New York. He is a member and one of the directors of the Building Material Exchange of New York, a member of Joppa Lodge, 201, F. and A. M; Clinton Commandery, No. 14, Knights Templar, and Kismet Temple of the Mystic Shrine; also secretary and treasurer of the Suffolk County Association and a direct descendant of the old Tuthill family that first settled on Eastern Long Island in 1640. The wedding will take place in the early winter after which the couple will live in Brooklyn.

Funeral of Miss McKissack

The funeral of Miss Margaret McKissack, who died Wednesday in her ninety-first year, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her nephew, James H. Manning, of East Sixth street. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. Two solos were sung, "Asleep in Jesus" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." A large number of floral tributes were in evidence, one coming from the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, of which the dead woman was a member. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Supply at Temple Baptist.

Rev. George E. Allen, pastor of the Baptist church, South Amboy, will supply the pulpit of the Temple Baptist church during August, and during the month will reside in Plainfield, taking charge of all the pastoral work of the church. NEIGHBORS AROUSED BY FAMILY SCRAP

Several 'phone messages were received at police headquarters from residents in the vicinity of West Front street and Grant avenue about 10 o'clock last night, to the effect that a murder was being committed. A woman's voice, the 'phone said, was shouting police, murder, help, and calculated to arouse the whole neighborhood.

Several patrolmen and the patrol wagon were hurried to the scene, only to find all tranquil and serene. There were no bruised or battered bodies lying about and no evidences of the desperate struggle supposed to have taken place. Investigation elicited the information that two brothers, Thomas and James McGrath, of South Second street, had been fighting and the blood curdling shrieks that rent the still night air came from their mother while her sons were scrapping. No arrests were made.

RECOGNIZE SERVICES OF C. E. BRODHEAD

The Plainfield Democratic Club at its meeting this week adopted a resolution recognizing the services performed by Assemblyman Calvin E Brodhead in the Legislature the past winter, and a copy of the same was ordered sent to Mr. Brodhead. The resolution follows:

"Be it resolved, That recognizing the great service that Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead has rendered the citizens of this county, the Democratic party locally and at large, in his activities for good government while he represented this county in the Assembly of the State of New Jersey, and believing that no person better fitted to serve this party in the Senate of this State can be found, this club in meeting assembled regrets exceedingly that Calvin E. Brodhead finds it impossible to permit his name to be presented to the people as a candidate for Senator."

INSECT IN STOMACH MAY RESULT FATALLY

William Thompson, thirty-four years old, until recently a baggagemaster on one of the Central Railroad way trains, was removed from his home in Roselle Park to a sanatorium yesterday. For the past seven years he has been suffering with a painful and serious illness that has baffled the medical profession of this State and stomach specialists of New York city. Several years ago a specialist he consulted diagnosed the case by saying a live insect was eating the lining of the victim's stomach.

A similar case was known of in Porto Rico and medicine was sent from there for Mr. Thompson, with which he was treated, but without success. Two operations were performed but gave no relief and he failed steadily until obliged to resign his position. Three weeks ago he made a visit to his sister, Mrs. Jacobus, of East Orange. Last Monday he returned to his home in Roselle and was found lying on the front porch where his strength had given out. He became delirious and his mind was disordered to such an extent that it was deemed best to remove him to the sanatorium where better care of him could be taken.

Ten years ago Mr. Thompson made a trip to California and it is thought that in something he had eaten the insect had found its way alive into his stomach, for ever since his return he has been a sufferer with the puzzling malady.

Belle Grant Arrested.

On complaint ow Celia Holmes, of West Fourth street, Belle Grant, also colored and of West Fourth street, was arrested this morning by Detective Sergeant Flynn. The charge as drawn alleges that the Grant woman stole three shirtwaists and a skirt from the Holmes woman. In order to give both an opportunity to secure witnesses and to allow the police to make a search of the Grant woman's home, Judge William G. De Meza set the trial down for Tuesday morning.

Summer Schedule at Trinity.

The Consistory of Trinity Reformed church has decided to close the church for cleaning and repairs the first week in September, instead of the last week in August, as usual. It will be closed only the one Sunday, September 3. Rev. J. Y. Broek, the pastor, will leave on his vacation for Grand Rapids, Mich., on August 14, and will be away four weeks, returning to preach in his pulpit on September 10.

DISCUSS WIDENING

Borough Citizen Argue For and Against Improvement of Somerset Street.

SOME VERY HOT WORDS ENSUE.

Mayor Smalley and Arthur Cannon In Lively Debate—Decision On August 4.

North Plainfield citizens turned out in large numbers at the public hearing before the Borough Council last night on the question of the proposed widening of Somerset street between Jackson avenue and Johnston's drive, the ordinance for this improvement coming up for its third reading at the regular August meeting of the borough fathers next Friday night. The council chamber's gallery was filled and an overflow delegation was seated in the firemen's room adjoining. Objectors and forwarders of the proposed improvement were given ample time to express their pros and cons and in the discussion some breezy disputes arose, principally between Mayor Newton B. Smalley and Arthur A. Cannon, whose home is located on the narrow road.

The proposed widening will make a forty foot street from curb to curb and a sixty feet width between the building lines. This distance is the same as that between curbs and building lines from Jackson avenue to Front street and it is the intention of those interested in the borough's welfare to make a suitable entrance to the town from the valley. The ordinance for this improvement has passed its first and second readings before the Council and prior to its third reading, a public hearing for objections was set for last night. B. R. Waldron and Alexander Milne were the only councilman absent.

Before verbal objections were heard last night, written communications to the borough clerk, Frederick A. Martin, were read. One from Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, stated that he was heartily in favor of the much needed improvement, which would benefit the entire community. Mrs. Anna R. Miles, in a letter, deemed the improvement quite unnecessary on the ground that valuable shade trees would be destroyed and it would call for an unfair sacrifice of land on her part. The trustees of the Grace M. E. church stated the same objection to the destruction of trees. I. H. Boehm also regarded the work as a detriment to property.

Forty-four of the residents along Somerset street sent in a petition against the proposed improvement, among the signers of which were J. A. Powlison, Anna R. Miles, Charles E. Steiner and Joseph A. Blatz. They claimed that the part of the street in question was a residential section and not a business district; that the majority of the houses were near the sidewalks; that the removal of valuable shade trees would be necessitated.

Charles Steiner was the first speaker on the floor, stating that there are 3,894 feet of taxable property on each side of the street, where the proposed improvement will be carried on and that there are property owners of 4,387 feet on the street, who object to the work. Arthur A. Cannon declared that several of those who had signed the petition for the improvement, were unaware of the extent of the widening. W. J. Conroy suggested that the work be postponed for a few years when the cost might be less and when the sewer question would be settled, thus avoiding nunecessary tearing up of the road.

W. DeLaR. Anderson spoke for the people of North Plainfield township, who are large taxpayers in the borough, saying that the road was too narrow and that the growth of the borough toward the mountains as well as the comfort of the taxpayers, who reside in the township, would warrant such an improvement. Albert Steiner replied that the township had Watchung avenue to open and that street was for them.

Judge Delevan A. Holmes, of Rockview avenue, who owns a farm in the Valley, then expressed his opinion in oratorical form. He said that upper Somerset street was in worse condition than the sloughs of the prairies and it was the very gateway to the north country. "The way to make good cities," he declared, "was to have every citizen cooperate for the public good." He told of his difficulty in reaching the Valley in the morning on account of the congestion caused by the narrowness of the road and the large number of stone and ice wagons. He showed that it would be better to start the work now, if shade trees were to be destroyed, for there would be just so much more time to grow new ones.

When Well-Known Plainfield People Tell It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I still endorse Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity and I confirm all I said in their praise when I publicly recommended them some years ago. You are at liberty to continue using my statement, for this excellent medicine cannot be given too much praise. For several years I was annoyed by a distressing backache, together with pains through my kidneys. My head also ached severely and the kidney secretions were in bad shape. I went to several physicians and also took so-called kidney cures, but it did not seem as though I could get relief. As time passed and I did not improve, I became discouraged. When suffering intensely I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and I got a supply at Randolph's drug store. As if by magic my pains and aches disappeared and my condition improved in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills deserve the entire credit for restoring me to good health."

RAILROAD RATE RAISE CHECKED.

An order suspending the increases in passenger rates which six railroads of the State had announced to become effective August 1 was issued yesterday by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners.

The order suspends the proposed increases until October 3. The order is directed to the Pennsylvania, Erie, Philadelphia and Reading, Susquehanna, Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Lehigh Valley. The board wound up its hearing on the matter yesterday morning and then held a conference. The issuance of the order followed.

The next step in the proceedings will be an inquiry by the board into the reasonableness of the projected increases. The first hearing on this question takes place at Trenton at 10:30 o'clock next Tuesday.

It is worthy of note that the order of the board applies only to increases proposed in the readjustment of rates, which the six roads planned to put into effect August 1.

The roads have contended that all of the changes in the readjustment were not increases, but that there were decreases in a number of cases, the total of the decreases offsetting to a considerable extent the total of the increases.

The board gave a hearing yesterday afternoon in the investigation begun under its own initiative into the question of whether the railroads of the State are furnishing "adequate and proper service" in the matter of furnishing an adequate supply of drinking water to their passengers and also in furnishing drinking receptacles. All the railroads of the State had been notified of the hearing.

A GREAT MILE RACE BETWEEN STARS TODAY

Today is the big day in athletics. Perhaps the greatest mile race ever staged in America, in which the world's titleholder will endeavor to beat two of his most dangerous rivals, features the elaborate set of games arranged by St. Agnes' club, to be run off at Washington Park, Brooklyn. Seventeen events are on the program.

Though there is no danger that J. P. Jones' time of 4 minutes 15 2-5 seconds will be bettered when the sensational Cornellian battles Sheppard and Kiviat, it is almost a certainty old marks in the weights will go by the boards. With such stars as Son Walsh and Matt McGrath, of the New Yorks—they will compete unattached—and "Babe" McDonald in the "56" and Sheridan and Duncan in the discus, it would not surprise many to see them smash their own records.

According to W. L. Jones and John O'Gorman, both of whom have successfully arranged all the deatils for the game, more than 440 entries were registered with them when they closed last Monday. A little over 300 of these are from individual athletes. They expect a crowd of 5,000 to witness the meet. Jones is expected in New oYrk from Washington late today.

TY COBB SENDS PHOTO TO YOUNG CHARLEY TAFT.

Charley Taft, the President's son, has reason now to be the proudest boy in Washington—or rather in Beverly, where he is now enjoying his vacation and learning to play golf so that he can beat his father. Somewhere in the mails yesterday addressed to "Charley" is an autographed picture of "Ty" Cobb, the great American League batter.

When the President and Major Butt go to the ball game in Washington, Charley frequently accompanies them. He is a real fan and almost as great admirer of Cobb as is Major Butt, who hails from Augusta, Ga., Cobb's home. The other day Major Butt suggested to Cobb that an autograph photograph of himself might be acceptable to Charley. Cobb found one, wrote his signature across the face and sent it to the White House. Major Butt lost no time in forwarding it to Beverly.

Giants to Cuba.

Even if the Giants fail to land a pennant this season the players will suffer no financial disappointment. Manager John J. McGraw yesterday completed arrangements with Senors Munos and Conte, of Havana, to have the New York Nationals tour the island in November in case the Polo Grounders do not figure in a world's series. Twelve games will be played during a four weeks' visit. McGraw is obliged to take his strongest lineup.

Fans Speak for Magee.

A group of St. Louis fans have wired President Lynch, of the National League, asking that Sherwood Magee, the Philadelphia player recently suspended, be reinstated as a tribute to Manager Charles Dooin, whose leg was broken in a game in St. Louis Wednesday. Dooin has been removed to a hospital near where Roger Bresnahan lives, as the St. Louis manager desired to look after his treatment.

To Play in New York.

It is practically certain that the international lawn tennis championship tie matches between the British team and the Americans will be decided in New York on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Manhattan. The series of competitions, four singles and one double, will be decided late in September.

QUEST FOR WILL SHOWS A PECULIAR SITUATION.

Califon, July 29.—Efforts made by Mrs. John Brown, Jr., of Woodglen, five miles west of this place, to locate the person who holds the last will and testament of her husband, John Brown, Sr., who died suddenly last June, have as yet proven fruitless.

It is not definitely known that Mr. Brown executed a will, but inferences were drawn from conversations had by several persons a short time previous to his death. His statements about his will varied considerably. While out driving with Mrs. Brown they passed Senator William C. Gebhardt.

At the time Brown said: "Mr. Gebhardt executed my will, and I left you my entire estate." Mr. Gebhardt has no knowledge of executing the will. To a sister Mr. Brown stated he had made a will and remembered her in it. To Mrs. Brown he said: "I expect my four sons will try and break my will."

During a conversation with James Backer, a neighbor, he said: "I have a will, and have left my entire property to a boy in Newark, whom I took to raise." To a Mrs. Henry, he stated: "By my will I gave my sons only what the law allows."

The house has been searched from cellar to garret, only to find a blank will. Mr. Brown, it is said, during the last year, became eccentric, and it is generally believed no will was executed.

THE QUESTION IN VERSE.

Scotch Plains has come and gone,
Bound Brook was easy meat;
Eight wins and no defeats,
The Pets, they can't be beat.

The pennant's in the ice-box,
They are the league's best bets;
And all the fandom wonder
Who can beat "them Pets?"

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The American College athletes who lost a close international track contest to their English brothers, July 11, expect to arrive home from Europe about August 16, according to advices received at Harvard yesterday. The Americans have been treated royally abroad. They were recently the guests of Sir Lee Knowles at luncheon, and they took tea in the House of Parliament. The English labor leader, Mr. Burns, showed the boys about Parliament. The athletes also met Lord Charles Beresford and Lord Claude Clarendon and visited Oxford University. The team to a man declared in favor of the American girl for beauty, wit and style over her English sister.

Johnny Hayes' time in England is pretty well taken up competing in professional distance races. Hayes has taken a liking to England and intends remaining abroad for some time. Mike Ryan, who is also taking in the English races will sail for this country shortly.

Melvin Sheppard, Martin Sheridan and Matt McGrath will attempt to take the props from under several records in the games of the Eccentric Engineers at Celtic Park, Sunday. Sheppard will take a crack at the 1,000-yard record, Sheridan is after his own mark in the discus and McGrath is desirous of removing Flanagan's mark with the hammer.

Only $1,000 for Him!

Catcher Kelly, of the St. Paul team of the American Association, who is Marty O'Toole's battery partner, has been purchased by the Pittsburg team for $1,000 in cash and the Pirates give one of its catchers in exchange. O'Toole was recently bought by the Pittsburg team for $22,500, partly in cash and partly in players. O'Toole and Kelly have had great success with the St. Paul team and a great career is predicted for them in the major league next season.

Investment Company, stated that both of these interests were heartily in favor of the proposed improvement. William F. Williams showed that the amount required to keep Somerset street in condition was $1,000 a year, the interest on $20,000 at 5%. This repair work was made necessary on account of the narrowness of the road and the lack of storm sewers. The amount of the improvement would be only $25,000 and the interest accruing from this would be only a little over the present cost of maintenance.

B. A. Hegeman, former mayor of the borough declared that without doubt the widening of Somerset street was in the line of progress and in spite of the mockery of several of the objectors, he carried his point and proved what he had to say. He also showed that by using Watchung avenue instead of Somerset street, a large amount of business would go over to the city and be lost to the borough merchants, who are all located on Somerset street. Charles Lyman added that the highest real estate values are on broad streets.

Howard Woolston made a more or less neutral speech, endeavoring to show that the present condition was satisfactory. "If I were a resident of Somerset street," he declared, "I would vote against the measure, but if I owned a stone crusher, I would vote for it?"

With Morris C. Van Arsdale, president of the Council, in the chair, Mayor Smalley then made his speech. He said that the council never favors any improvement unfairly and that it was only after the inquiries from several citizens that the proposed widening was brought up for consideration. He said that as present conditions exist, there was a loss of three feet between the flagging and the curb anyway and only five feet would be taken by the widening while the drainage work is the largest expense in the improvement. The Mayor then explained to the citizens of the borough that the Somerset County Tax Board had assessed North Plainfield last year over $27,000 less than the year before.

"I am glad to be able to serve fair people," continued the Mayor, "and I'll guarantee $2 for every $1 that the present objectors will give toward the opening of Watchung avenue." Mayor Smalley and Arthur Cannon then had a few hot words over several statements that both sides had made. The Mayor argued that he was a resident of the borough and that the citizens in the West End carried the largest amount of the tax burden.

While the meeting was being adjourned Councilman L. B. Woolston suggested that the township help the borough in the proposed improvement by widening the upper end of Somerset street and opening up Watchung avenue through the mountains which would only cost $1,500 for the land. Arthur Cannon then wanted to know what Judge Holmes knew about narrow streets for the latter came from the West where they have roads as broad as prairies. And the Judge remarked that Chicago wasn't such a little berg at that.

After the adjournment the discussions continued far up and down Somerset street and the disputing citizens went to bed asking themselves what would happen when the council met next Friday night.

DAVID B. HETFIELD DEAD.

Prominent Citizen of Rahway Victim of Acute Indigestion.

Rahway, July 29.—David B. Hetfield, one of Rahway's best-known citizens, died at an early hour yesterday morning of acute indigestion at the Ann May Hospital, at Spring Lake, to which he was taken from Asbury Park, at which place he was spending the summer. Mr. Hetfield served as member of the Rahway Board of Water Commissioners for several years and was actively identified with W. H. Barry Post, No. 27, G. A. R., and a past commander of the post. He was for a number of years connected with the firm of Hetfield & Jackson, carriage manufacturers, the factory being destroyed by fire about twenty-five years ago, after which he engaged in the livery business and was widely known as a prominent horseman.

The deceased was 68 years of age. His wife died some six years ago, from the shock of which he never recovered. He is survived by two sons, Newton Hetfield, of Linden, and John A. For lack of proof as to the order the case was non-suited.

TEXT OF LETTER TO CHAIRMAN NUGENT

Eight members of the State Democratic Committee have drafted a letter which has been sent to James R. Nugent, chairman of the committee, regarding the insulting toast said to have been offered by him to Governor Wilson in a restaurant at Neptune this week. The letter, which is as follows, was signed by Dennis F. Collins, Nelson Y. Dungan, George Hampton, George C. Low, Dan Fellowes Platt, H. H. Kearns, Thomas Flynn and Davis S. Crater:

"Dear Mr. Nugent—The public press of yesterday report that on Tuesday evening at Neptune Heights, in a public dining room, you characterized the Governor of this State as an ingrate and a liar.

"The members of the State committee present at Sea Girt unanimously disapprove of such statement on your part, occupying as you do the position of chairman of the State Democratic committee. If it be true that you made this statement it is our sentiment that you should no longer continue to hold your office as chairman, and we would suggest that you either tender at once your resignation as chairman or that a meeting of the State committee be called immediately to consider the matter."

BURGLARS OVERLOOK LOOT.

Make $1,000 Haul in Teaneck, N. J., and Miss $12,000 in Jewels.

Hackensack, July 29.—Automobile burglars who early yesterday morning visited the home of George A. Sipp, at Teaneck, had the prevailing hard luck among burglars, being within two feet of a safe containing $12,000 worth of jewels, the door of the safe not being locked, but they didn't know it. The burglars carried away $1,000 worth of silverware and cut glass, two large candelabra, a punch bowl and other articles.

"I believe the burglars were frightened away during their search, because my son was ill and got out of bed early this morning," Said Mr. Sipp, "Of course, I regret my loss, but an tickled to think the jewels were not taken. I have to laugh on these burglar, all right; but I'm not boasting, mind you. On my desk were international checks for $2,000, which I had secured in anticipation of my trip to Europe tomorrow, but the burglars probably didn't understand that they were checks and didn't take them. A great many of my letters were opened, the intruders no doubt looking for real money, which they didn't find."

Mr. Sipp is a real estate broker at No. 147 East 125th street, New York.

Asbury Boosters to Incorporate.

Asbury Park, July 29.—The Asbury Park Boosters' Association, which was organized last spring to boom Easter business met Thursday night and decided to incorporate. The plan is to advertise the resort catering to spring business and also take means to extend the season late into the fall. Now the season is practically over on Labor Day, but it is believed that if the proper means were taken people could be persuaded to remain here all during September. The boosters will incorporate with a capital of perhaps $2,000, but this is only nominal.

Lighter Mail Sack Adopted.

Washington, July 29.—A considerable saving in transportation charges will be made by an order, signed yesterday by Postmaster General Hitchcock, adopting a new canvas mail sack. It weighs only one pound against the two pounds and fourteen ounces of the sack now in use.

Down to the Rind.

A grocery salesman entering a store found the place in charge of the delivery boy. Upon being asked where the proprietor was the boy replied:

"I am the whole cheese here," The traveling man departed leaving a note for the proprietor which the boy promptly opened.

"Permit me to suggest," it read, "that you are nearly out of cheese."

DETECTIVE BURNS AT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, July 29.—Great as has been the furor caused throughout the city and county by the presentation of indictments against alleged election law offenders, ranging from Sheriff Enoch L. Johnson to the "machine" henchman accused of voting illegally in four different wards, the work of the grand jury may be said to have merely begun.

Before the resort had fully recovered from the shiver occasioned by the first batch of true bills at May's Landing there came the startling announcement that William J. Burns, the nemesis of election crooks and grafters from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, had arrived in the city with a number of his men and had taken the trail of the corrupt gang that has held the city and county in its clutches for so many years.

Burns arrived Wednesday night at 8:30, accompanied by one of his most trustworthy men, and was driven direct to the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel. He remained there only long enough to remove the stains of travel and then hurried out with his companion, apparently to keep an appointment. He returned to the hotel shortly after midnight and was astir against early Thursday morning.

All his movements were attended with the greatest secrecy and his visit was known only to a few employes at the hotel. He left the city just before noon, ostensibly for New York, but is expected to return within a day or two, either to make further inquiries regarding the local situation or to begin at once the work of ferreting out election crimes and graft charges.

One of the surprising features of the day's developments was the withdrawal of Simon Faber from any further participation in the prosecution of those accused of election frauds and with the levying of graft in connection with the granting of licenses and other branches of the city government. This decision is said to have been reached by Faber after a conference with Attorney-General Edmund Wilson. Faber was closeted with that official for some time Thursday after the special grand jury had made its presentment, and he was given to understand that while his work up to this time had accomplished a great deal of good and was thoroughly appreciated, the attorney-general and his associates would greatly prefer that the task of cleaning up the resort be worked out on the comprehensive plan which they had mapped out and that there should be no seeming clashes with outside agencies. Faber is said to have been impressed with the wisdom of this plan, and he assured the attorney-general that he would cease his activities, at the same time assuring him that he stood ready at any time to render any aid that lay in his power.

GUARDSMEN AGAIN ARE BARRED FROM CASINO.

Asbury Park, July 29.—The indignation over the refusal of Mitchell & Fry, leesees of the Beach Casino to allow National Guardsmen to dance in that building was further increased Thursday night when several soldiers from Sea Girt were prevented from going on the floor.

The guardsmen were told that if they would don civilians' dress there would be no objection to giving them the same privilege enjoyed by others but that khaki uniforms were not allowed.

The guardsmen threatened to bring action against the lessees, but the latter were firm and would not yield an inch. They said in effect that they had a right to discriminate when in so doing they were protecting their business.

CLEARS DR. VANDER ROEST.

Jersey Committee Finds No Evidence Against State Veterinarian.

Trenton, July 29.—Dr. Henry Vander Roest, of Newark, against whom charges of incompetency as a State Veterinarian were made last spring, was completely vindicated yesterday in a finding announced by the State Committee on Tuberculosis in Aaimals. The charges were made by the President and members of the New Jersey Veterinarian Medical Association, and the hearing took place at the State House June 13.

The decision of the State commission was that there was no evidence that Dr. Vander Roest was incompetent, that the charges that he was unreliable in testting two cows at Montclair and Kearny were not sustained, and that the evidence of Detectives Herbert Lang and William Martin was, in the opinion of the commission, wholly untrustworthy.

The commission revoked the suspension of Dr. Vander Roest imposed April 19 last.

Extinguishes Small Blaze.

While off duty at the noon hour today, Captain Feiring, of No. 1 house, noticed a blazing door mat at the entrance to the Marsh building on Park avenue and Second street, and promptly extinguished it. The mat had caught fire from a cigarette butt thrown on it by a passerby.

Invitations to the wedding of Miss Helen Hanrahan and Albert LaRock, both of Jhon street, who will be married September 14, have been issued.

"CAP" ANSON'S

FORTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Dedicated to all my old comrades and lovers of the sport, who have made the game what it is today, and to all those who will continue to "play ball" after we old-timers have struck out for the last time.

ADRIAN C. ANSON.

(Copyright, 1911, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.)

"Don't say another word!" I butted in quickly. "I've made a pretty bad mistake on account of not knowing the language and I hope you will pardon us for the intrusion."

Then I bowed myself out the best I knew how and we reentered the carriage and were driven back to the hotel. I was feeling pretty serious, but the first thing Mrs. Anson did after the carriage door was slammed shut was to throw herself back on the seat and explode with laughter.

"I wouldn't have missed it for the world!" she choked. "It's worth going around the world. Oh, why don't that horrid driver hurry up a little!"

"You don't mean that you are in a hurry to get back to the hotel so that you can give me away to the boys, do you?" I asked.

"I certainly do," she confessed.

She did it, too—told all about my mistake, and never once intimated that she had any share in it. As a result I was guyed unmercifully about my "night at the circus" long after Cairo had become a memory, and the very last time I met John Ward he asked me if I had lost my taste for the circus.

The first thing I saw next morning as I entered the hotel was the following bulletin:

"Baseball at the Pyramids. The Chicago and All-America teams will please report at the hotel office, in uniform, at ten o'clock sharp. We shall leave the hotel at that hour, camels having been provided for the All-Americas and donkeys for the Chicagos, with carriages for the balance of the party. The Pyramids will be inspected, the Sphinx visited and a game played on the desert nearby, beginning at two p. m."

At ten o'clock to the minute, we were in the saddle, the picked nine on their camels and my boys on the little donkeys. Halfway an exchange of steeds was made, an exchange that I, for one, didn't relish. About two o'clock we arrived at the foot of old Cheops, and after we had eaten our luncheon proceeded to the hard sands of the desert, where a diamond had been laid out for our use. Fully one thousand people had gathered there, some of them Bedouins, who made a terrible clatter in their efforts to sell us musty coins and other rubbish which they claimed had come out of the pyramid. The balance of the audience was composed of Europeans and Americans who were wintering in the Orient.

The game was played with considerable difficulty on account of the queer antics of the Arabs. Whenever a ball was thrown or batted into the crowd they would pounce upon it as though it were a great treasure, and it was only after a row that we could regain possession of it. We played five innings and all the pitchers took a hand in the game, Tener and Baldwin for us and Healy and Crane for the others. Not a man in the crowd was satisfied to go back to America without being able to say he took part in that memorable game presided over by the Sphinx, the first and only game of baseball that the great silent sentinel of the desert had ever looked down upon.

I don't mind telling you, too, that both sides were mighty anxious to win that game. For my part, I put up the best effort that I was capable of, but in spite of it all fortune favored the All-Americas, and we were beaten—10 to 6. You may well believe that I was disappointed that the only game of ball ever played in the shadow of the pyramids had not been recorded to the credit of Chicago.

The only thing I could do was to apologize to the Sphinx for our failure to distinguish ourselves, but I really don't know what she thought of it. She didn't say.

CHAPTER XXVII.

I Play Under the Blue Skies of Italy.

Of our journey from Cairo to the shore of the Adriatic I shall say nothing except that our voyage across the Mediterranean was about as free from poetry as anything I had ever struck up to that date or have ever run across later. That means, of course, that we were seasick, and it isn't a pleasant part of our tour to recall. We got into Brindisi more dead than alive, in the teeth of a fearful gale, and were glad to be put to bed and left to our own reflections.

Next morning we took the train which was to carry us across Italy, a day's journey through gardens, groves and vineyards, and arrived at Naples in tiptop shape, a trifle too weary to do any more sight-seeing that day, but full of joyous anticipation of the days to come. No arrangements had been made for us to play ball until the fourth day after our arrival at Naples, so we had plenty of time to take in the sights, and that is exactly what we did. Mrs. Anson developed a pretty severe case of the cathedral mania, and as a result I saw enough of those structures to last me a lifetime. For me, cathedral inspecting is about the slowest game on the foot stool—I don't mind half a dozen or so, but the bunch gets monotonous.

Of course we did Pompeii, Capri and Vesuvius, but after the experience of Mark Baldwin, who came within an ace of slipping into the crater, Mrs. Anson didn't think it prudent for me to make the attempt. She seemed to feel sure that what Mark had failed to do I would be certain to accomplish, and she was probably right.

Our first game of ball in Italy—the first also ever negotiated on the continent of Europe—was played in the Campo de Marto, Naples, February 19, 1889. It wasn't an ideal ball ground, but it was the best that could be had, and that settled it. It turned out to be one of the most exciting games ever played anywhere. There was a crowd of 3,000 persons on the ground, among them a liberal sprinkling of foreign diplomats and the Neapolitan Four Hundred. If those people had conducted themselves as well as an American crowd would have done under like circumstances all would have been well, but that, it seems, would have been asking too much. That crowd was an Italian crowd and just about as manageable as the Frenchman's flea. The game was hardly under way before those guineas swarmed on to the playing grounds in such a way as to make fielding well nigh impossible and batting a real danger.

For once in his career, at least, Mr. Spalding threw aside his dignity and got unmistakably hot. When he saw that the police had no power to restore order, he undertook the job himself, with the result that he got very red in the face, and that was about all. He had been studying Italian in a red-covered book ever since we landed at Brindisi, but it was evidently of a breed that was unknown in Naples, and was regarded by the crowd as a part of the entertainment. Then we tried to clear the field ourselves, and, though we succeeded partially for a time, it would soon be as bad as ever. A ball from Carroll's bat laid a perambulating guinea out senseless, but it seemed to have no effect on the others except to increase the general hilarity.

Realizing that his Italian was too feeble for the occasion, Spalding fell back on his mother tongue, and never before or since have I heard him use it so forcibly. I don't insist that he employed cuss words—of course he didn't know in those days that he would some time be United States senator from California—but I don't mind telling you that what he did say under provocation of that terrible moment wouldn't look well in print.

For three innings neither side scored. In the fourth each got a man across the plate. In the fifth the All-Americas increased their score by seven runs. Thinking the game was over, the crowd swarmed across the field like an army of grasshoppers. Quick to take advantage of the situation, John Ward ordered his men into position and claimed the game.

John Tener was umpiring that day, and for some reason that I couldn't understand then and can't now, he gave Ward the game by a technical score of 9 to 0, the score books showing 8 to 2. Some time when I have a day off I'm going over to Harrisburg and ask Governor Tener how he figured that matter.

When we went to Rome we were handed a lemon of the most acid variety, and it didn't come from the Vatican either. All the church dignitaries we met were courtesy and hospitality personified. But the American minister gave us the cold shoulder. When Mr. Spalding called on him the morning after our arrival, as he felt in duty bound to do, the minister threw him down hard. He declared that he had never felt the slightest interest in baseball and regarded it as a great waste of time and energy. He added insult to injury by asserting that he would not permit himself to be identified with anything as mercenary as professional baseball. The secretary of the legation at that time, Mr. Charles Dougherty, was quite a different species of the genus homo. He tried to do everything in his power to wipe out the bad impression made by his chief and devoted much of his time and attention to us while we were in the city.

On the afternoon of Washington's birthday we called, by special invitation, at the American college and were received most hospitably. It reminded me of my old school days at Notre Dame. As a slight return for the courtesy we had received I put Clarence Duval, our mascot, through his stunts, including a hoedown and baton swinging, and then we adjourned to the big assembly room, where we listened to a couple of very compliments speeches by the professors and a mighty slick response from Mr. Spalding. When we took our departure the students promised to attend our game next day in a body.

That game was played on the private grounds of Prince Borghese, and a better place for a diamond could not be found in Rome outside the Vatican gardens. Under a group of great trees near where the diamond had been laid out there was assembled a bunch of notabilities such as few ball-players ever run up against. Among them were King Humbert, the prince of Naples, Prince Borghese and his family, Signora Crispi, wife of the prime minister, and a host of way-up Italian dignitaries. We were especially pleased to see that the students of the American college were there in full force, as well as Mr. Dougherty and all the members of the American legation except the grumpy minister.

When we made our appearance we got a send-off of three rousing cheers and a tiger from our friends, the students, and then, after fifteen minutes of fast practice, we began the first professional ball game ever played in the Eternal City. Right here let me tell you it was a game that was coveted by both teams. Crane and Earle and Tener and Daly were in the points. It was a game that reached the high-water mark, the fielding on both sides being gilt edged. At the end of the second inning the score was a tie, each side having made two runs. The next few innings were marked by double plays, clean hitting and sharp fielding, and it was not until the eleventh inning that Burns crossed the plate with the winning run for my boys, the score standing 3 to 2.

After this, at the special request of some of the royal family who hadn't got enough of it, we played an exhibition game of two innings. In this we tried to do a lot of sensational stunts, and I guess we must have succeeded, for when we left the grounds we received a round of applause that would have been remarkable even in America.

The next day was Sunday, and at noon we started for Florence, arriving there early in the evening. It was too cold, however, to explore the town. The following afternoon we played a game, which was won by the All-Americans.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

I Win at Monte Carlo, But Lose a Game in Paris.

As we passed through the Italian city of Pisa on our way to France we got a fine view of the leaning tower. That curious piece of architecture was one of the few things I remembered of my earliest school days, and I probably should have forgotten that but for an incident connected with a picture of the tower in my old Mitchell's geography.

There was a boy in my class named Sig Granger, whose intellectual development wasn't of the highest, which fact made him the butt of a good many jokes. I regarded Sid as a tiptop fellow, and some of the tricks the boys worked on him made me so hot that finally I gave out a proclamation to the effect that from that time on any one who trifled with Sid Granger would have to square himself with me.

It wasn't long until I had an opportunity to make good. Sid came to me one day in a peck of trouble. He had bought a new geography at the Marshalltown bookstore, and one of the boys—a fellow I disliked cordially—had pointed out to him that one of the pictures was not on the level and advised him to return the book and ask for a perfect copy. Sid took his advice and tried to exchange the geography, and of course got laughed at for his attempt to straighten the leaning tower of Pisa. That fired me, and I lost no time in picking a quarrel with the jokesmith, and gave him a sound thrashing.

Shortly afterward Sid asked me confidentially if I really believed that tower was so out of plumb. I was obliged to confess that I didn't; that I'd never believe such a thing could stand alone until I saw it. Sid agreed with me and has probably never changed his opinion. I have, but I reached middle age before I did it.

It had been our intention to play a game of ball at Nice, but when we got there we found there wasn't a spot in the neighborhood suitable for a diamond. So the game had to be given up, to our great disappointment and that of several hundred Americans who were stopping at Nice and were longing for something new. We tried to console ourselves by going over to Monte Carlo, and although we didn't succeed in breaking the bank in that world-famous gambling establishment I, for one, had no reason to complain of my luck. I haven't forgotten, also, although possibly he has, that Mr. Spalding was a winner on that occasion, as he usually is in everything he goes into.

After we got into Paris it was almost a week before we were given a chance to show the Parisians how much better they could enjoy life if they were familiar with the greatest game ever devised by the hand of man. I don't mind telling you that we went in for all we were worth to see ourselves if things we had heard about the gay capital were true. It was a pretty big job to undertake, but we were mighty industrious, and I don't think we overlooked a great deal. I thought Mrs. Anson came pretty close to the mark when she observed, toward the close of the week, that in order to do full justice to Paris one should never have learned to sleep.

It will always be a matter of wonderment to me how the members of our party were able to play as good ball as they did after that week of sight-seeing in Paris. Both sides were anxious to get the game and as a consequence the playing was spirited. We had a very distinguished crowd that day in the Parc Aristotique, where the game was played. It was on the bank of the Seine, just opposite the exposition buildings and within sight of the big Eiffel tower, and it was walled in by enclosed gardens and splendid residences. President Carnot had promised to be present, but at the last moment the preventing something happened.

It was the second inning of that exceedingly warm game that the famous "stone wall" infield of the Chicagos came to grief on account of an injury to Ed. Williamson from which that splendid player never fully recovered. He had taken his base on balls and was trying to steal second when he tripped and fell, tearing his kneecap on the sharp sand and gravel of which the playing surface was composed. He was piloted by his wife—who was among the spectators—to his hotel, and he and his wife thought that a few days of rest would bring him around all right, but such did not prove to be the case.

Williamson's accident made it necessary for Baldwin to go to first while Ryan took Williamson's place at short. That weakened our team very materially, for Ed. was always a tower of strength to us in our infield. We didn't seem to be able to bat with our customary vim and it was not until the sixth inning that a home run by Ryan and a two-bagger by Pettit and a passed ball enabled us to put two men over the plate. As luck would have it, these were all the runs we got that day, and when the game was called the score stood 6 to 2 in favor of our opponents.

That night we crossed the English channel and I discovered that I had never experienced the full cussedness of seasickness until I took that trip from Dieppe to New Haven. According to the captain, a veteran of thirty years' experience in channel weather, it was the worst ever. Now that I come to think of it most of the sea captains I have met are always experiencing the worst ever. When we landed on British soil next morning we looked more like a bunch of "gone-to-seeds" than a party of American ball players. We had expected to play our first game in England on the day of our arrival, but we knew better than to attempt anything so dead certain to be a failure and to disgrace us and bring the fair fame of baseball into disrepute.

So we took a couple of days off and went sight-seeing. Mrs. Anson had always been properly shocked because on my previous visit to London I had seen so little of the town. She declared she couldn't understand how any one could pass by the door of Westminster Abbey day after day and never take the trouble even to peek in. When she announced her intention of repairing the omission on my part I knew I was in for it, and so it proved. If there was anything beneath the roof of that historic structure that I didn't see on that all-day visit I am perfectly willing to have missed it. Of all the strenuous days I ever put in that was the most laborious.

"You look as if you were on your last legs," Mrs. Anson observed as we sat down to dinner at our hotel.

"I am," I admitted. "I'd rather play a game of ball in Dante's Inferno than to put in another such a day."

"How absurd," she laughed. Dante's Inferno is a book, not a place."

LITERARY.

Governor Wilson, journeying through Nebraska, got off the train to stretch his legs at the little station of Wymore. Immediately a keen-faced young man in blue overalls and jumper, wiping his hands on a bunch of cotton waste approached him with the question:

"Isn't this Governor Wilson of New Jersey?"

"That is my name," said the Governor, extending his hand in response to the other's greeting.

"My name is Mauck,' said the railroad man, "and I am the Mayor of Wymore. We've heard a great deal about you out here in Nebraska, and I want to welcome you to our town. People out here are beginning to think you'd make a mighty good President of the United States."

"That is very flattering indeed," replied Governor Wilson. "I assume from that that you are a Democrat."

"Not at all," replied Mayor Mauck. "I was elected on the Socialist ticket."

"I did not realize that the Socialists were making so much progress in the West," commented the Governor.

"It isn't so much that," was the Mayor's reply "but the people out here are not satisfied with the way things are going. The vote that elected me was only about 20 per cent. Socialist and 80 per cent. protest."—Frank Parker Stockbridge in the World's Work.

Never gather or eat fungi that grow in woods or that have white gills. Avoid all those that you cannot positively identify as the common or edible mushroom that is known to the scientists as agaricus campestris. In all parts of the world in which this fungi grows, it is known and used as a food. If its characteristic and habitat are memorized there is little danger of its being confused with the poisonous growths. Its stalk is from two to six inches in height and never more than an inch in diameter. On the upper end of the stalk is an umbrella-shaped cap, the color and thickness of which varies. The cap may be white or cream color or running the gamut of shades down to deep brown. The stem is usually of a cream tint and has near the cap a ring of material sometimes called the annulus, which forms a protection for the delicate under-surface of the cap. On this under-surface are the gills or lamellae. In the early stages of the growth of the mushroom these gills are pink; later they turn brown or even brownish black. The agaricus invariably grows in open fields and meadows. It is never found in woods or shaded places. If the casual visitor to the country will remember this, he can eliminate ninety per cent. of this danger.—From Physical Culture for August.

DEATH COMES TO GIRL WHILE SHE IS DANCING.

Long Branch, July 29.—Swooning in the arms of the partner with whom she was dancing at the Long Branch Casino Wednesday night, Tillie Mencael, aged sixteen years, whose home was in New York, died before the gravity of her condition was realized by those about her.

Miss Mencael had been living with her mother at the home of an uncle, A. L. Hammerstein, in Broadway, Long Branch. She went into the Casino about 10:30 and immediately went on the dance floor. The girl had danced but a few times when she swooned and she lived only a few moments afterward.

Acute indigestion is believed to have been the cause of death. An inquest will be held to determine this question. The body was removed from the dance hall to the undertaking establishment of Coroner Flock.

Find Abandoned Automobile.

Long Branch, July 29.—A deserted automobile was found in Broadway, opposite Rockwell avenue, early yesterday morning. The number of the machine was 20969. It has been removed to the Ocean garage, waiting a claimant. No official report has been received at police headquarters concerning stolen cars. It is believed that the driver was out for a joy ride and deserted the machine to avoid detection.

The committee has put out plans and specifications drawn by the County Engineer for bids and have received three bids. The lowest bid is five hundred and twenty-five dollars for the entire work. FINE CHICAGO AUTOISTS ON EIGHT-DAY LICENSE.

Asbury Park, July 29.—For running an automobile without having a driver's license, A. C. M. Azoy, Jr., of Chicago, paid a fine of $25 to Justice of the Peace Borden Thursday. Azoy was in the car of J. E. Jenkins, of 2625 Prairie avenue, also of Chicago, and he pleaded that Jenkins sprained his wrist and he (Azoy) was obliged to take the wheel.

Jenkins was fined $10 for failure to cross out the dates on his eight-day New Jersey license as provided by law. He pleaded as an excuse that he had neglected to read the directions on the back of the tag.

Frank Probasco, of Plainfield, was fined $10 for running his car with the muffler cut out. He paid.

"SOME ON EM 'LOWED I WAS UNION."

THIS Celebrated Civil War Novel is one of the American classics. Written by Captain F. A. Mitchel, the soldier-author, the story gives a most realistic picture of the great struggle fifty years ago.

Those who read this story in the past will be glad to have an opportunity to follow its plot once more, just as they find pleasure in reading again the works of Dickens, Thackeray and Scott.

Don't worry, "Red" is going to pitch!

From the looks of Westfield papers, someone is sore in Mt. Ararat.

Police this afternoon!

Quit your knocking, Westfield—you all know that the Pets have it on your team so what's the use of crawling?

Harney is on the slab for Dunellen this afternoon in the game with the Orange Y. M. C. A. on the Dunellen grounds. Hand, of Scotch Plains, will be on the receiving end. Harney is well known in this vicinity and will make the association team look around a bit.

It's a funny thing what an influence the women have over baseball. Several of the Orange Y. M. C. A. boys have sweethearts in Dunellen and so they always bring a strong team when they are going to play the nine from the land of love. "Ain't it just lovely, Florence?"

Frederickson is slated to do the twirling for Scotch Plains this afternoon against Somerville. Beware of that man McDonald, Otto, for his walloping willow drove a home run from "Red" Waller's delivery.

Fandom around this city is mourning this morning over the departure of one Dudley Wilcox, who has left Plainfield after a month's vacation, so he says. Dudley was at one time a member of the local Y. M. C. A. team when Platt Adams covered the initial bag. But that doesn't mean that Dudley is an almost all-around champ for he has worked so hard of late that his athletic ability has completely run down. He is now going on the road to yesterday and will finally arrive in Philadelphia, where he will lead the simple life. Watch the papers now for Dudley's performance with the Phillies!

Howard Craig will be given a hand at Crescent Oval this afternoon when he covers the third sack for the Westfield team. Craig is one of the best known players in this city, having participated in baseball games in this vicinity for the past ten years. He made his debut on the Plainfield High School nine in the good old days of 1902, when that organization used to win a few games once in a while. His best work for the city High School was in 1905 when he played short stop and batted .427 for the season on the best baseball team that ever wore a P. H. S. uniform. It was the champion school nine of this State and New York. Howard has since been in amateur ball until this year when he joined the semi-professional ranks.

"Lew" Wiltse will again try to win another game for the Tailenders this afternoon at High Bridge. The old vet southpaw handed one to the Hunterdon county boys last Saturday with the figures 5-3 and he says that there is no reason why he cannot repeat the trick.

What will be Westfield's excuse today?

OLD ODD FELLOW DEAD.

Captain Durham Served Pennsylvania Road Sixty-three Years.

Jersey City, July 29.—Captain William Durham, one of the oldest Odd Fellows in the State, and the oldest retired men in point of service in the marine department of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died Thursday night at his home, Halliday street, this city. He was eighty-seven years old. For sixty-three years he served without a break in the Pennsylvania Railroad's marine service. He retired in 1899. He became an Odd Fellow in 1847, joining the lodge of that order at Bordentown. The Y. M. C. A. branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad loses one of its best workers.

The captain is survived by three children, Edward, of 292 Halliday street, who is vice president of the Porterware Milk Bottle Company; William Durham, of New Brunswick, and Mrs. William C. Cooper, of Newark.

The funeral will take place from the captain's late home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in New Brunswick Monday morning.

Was Murdered in 1878.

Basking Ridge, July 29.—The remains of Jefferson Dunster, who was killed in California, in 1878, were brought here for interment in Evergreen Cemetery. He went to California in 1861, to the mining district, and was shot by a miner April 14, 1878. His father, Oliver Dunster, had him buried there, intending to have the body brought on later. Recently a sister, Mrs. Mary Pickle, went to California and had the remains brought here. The body was placed in the family burial plot in Evergreen Cemetery.

TUMULTY QUITS AS COUNSEL FOR DENTISTS.

Asbury Park, July 29.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to Governor Wilson, has withdrawn as counsel of the New Jersey State Dental Society. Thursday the executive committee of that body engaged the firm of Kenny & Conway, in Newark, in place of Mr. Tumulty.

The latter felt that he could not well represent the society in the move which it is making to have Vernon D. Rood, of Morristown, appointed to the State Dental Society because of his (Tumulty's) connection with the Governor's office.

Mr. Rood has been indorsed for appointment to the board by the "insurgent" element of the society, while the "old guard" has recommended that Dr. William E. Truex, of Freehold, be named.

Kenny and Conway will proceed at once to recover possession of the society's books, papers, seal and membership dues, now in the possession of the "old guard." What proceedings are to be taken has not been determined, but it is said to be likely that the lawyers will asked the courts for a writ of mandamus.

John and Henry Hammann, sons of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hammann, of West Seventh street, returned home Thursday night from the State Y. M. C. A. Camp at Lake Wawayanda. They report having had a good time.

Pets Lose Their First Game In Pennant Race to Westfield Team.

GREAT GAME AT HIGH BRIDGE.

Seventeen Innings Necessary to Decide Contest Between Bound Brook and High Bridge—Waller Hit Hard.

Saturday's Results.

Westfield, 10; Plainfield, 4.
Somerville, 7; Scotch Plains, 2.
High Bridge, 7; Bound Brook, 6 (17 innings).

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

	W.	L.	Pc.
Plainfield	8	1	.889
Somerville	7	2	.778
Westfield	4	6	.400
Scotch Plains	4	6	.400
High Bridge	4	6	.400
Bound Brook	2	8	.200

Saturday was a day of surprises in the Central New Jersey League for Plainfield's Pets were at last checked in their clean trip for the pennant after winning eight games,by Westfield and High Bridge pulled a win out of the lost heap in the seventeenth inning of one of the closest games in this vicinity for several years. Somerville furnished another bit of excitement by winning from Scotch Plains by a score of 7-2, although the Somerset county boys were heavily outbatted.

Large crowds attended all the games and the enthusiasm in the league race ran high in every town. The fact that Westfield had a heavily padded team and that Plainfield was in danger of a setback was the topic of discussion with all the fans. High Bridge furnished the thriller of the pennant competition so far by snatching a game from the tail enders at the last minute with a lead of three runs staring them in the face.

Frederickson made his debut 'n league circles by twirling for the Plains aggregation against the Somervilleites. He pitched a good game, allowing only four hits but a few bases on balls were costly for his rep. Waller was hit hard for a change as well as Sammy Hope.

W. J. Stockdale entered the list of umpires amid a blaze of good decisions and was perfectly satisfactory to the very criticising fandom of this city. The other officials improved and hopes for perfection are entertained by the league magnates.

Westfield and High Bridge moved up a peg in the race by their victories Saturday while Scotch Plains is tied for the third position with these two teams. Somerville is now only one game behind the Pets.

WESTFIELD HAPPY

There was great rejoicing Saturday night in all the towns in the Central New Jersey League, excepting Plainfield. Not because the other teams had won, but because Plainfield had lost. The sizable score, 10 to 4 in Westfield's favor, was by no means a damper on the merriment and held but sparse consolation for the local enthusiasts.

That mirth was not rampant in Plainfield does not mean that the fans were broken and shattered like their idols, at whose shrine fandom has been prostrating itself for the past nine weeks. Far be it from such. They merely yawned and stretching, said, "Oh, well, that winning streak can't be pulled all the time." Even the fact that the humble and hard losing Mt. Ararat aggregation was the outfit to break the winning streak, lost its sting in the thought.

But the trick those lowly mountineers did; they not only trimmed and skinned Dorflinger's "Darlings," but they hung the quivering hides on the fence. Getting to the heretofore impregnable "Red" Waller in the first round for five bingles that incubated four runs; and again in the third for three smacks, to which add a couplet of errors, as the cause of four more tallies, making eight for the visitors and none for the "Pets," why, Hennessy man, moind, there was nothing for the "Darlings" to do but play to stop a whitewash, dye moind?

For four innings the hope of preventing a shutout was smothered by Hope. Sammy made every edge cut and had the locals bending double to connect with his teasing slow drop, alternated with a sizzling underhand raise ball. In the fifth he perceptably slowed down and was found for two doubles, one by Waller and one by George. Waller scored, but George died on second, Nelson having been thrown out by Lewis, Cosgrove's wallop to centre having been taken care of by Wilbur and Driscoll's dribble to Flynn being easy for an unassisted out.

RIORDAN ARRESTED FOR BREAKING PAROLE

Thomas Riodan, who has been making his home in Scotch Plains for several weeks, was arrested at that place Saturday afternoon by a detective from Bristol, Conn., on a charge of breaking a parole. Riordan and another man were arrested at Bristol, sometime ago charged with robbery. Riordan entered a plea of guilty and his chum pleaded not guilty. When Riordan was arraigned he agreed to turn State evidence at the trial of his chum and the court paroled him.

At the time if the trial, Riordan was missing, but was soon located at Scotch Plains, to which place a detective was sent to arrest him. After spending several hours in the local lockup, Riordan decided to waive extradition and he returned to Bristol Saturday night. Several years ago, Riordan served a long term in State Prison at Trenton, for stealing a horse at New Market.

NEW EXPRESS RATES IN EFFECT TOMORROW

Beginning with tomorrow the combination express rates will go into effect with the United States Express Company in this city. These rates are the result of a meeting of all the leading express companies of this country and will do away with a double charge on articles weighing less than a hundred pounds when two express lines are used on the route of shipment.

As the system now stands two separate charges are made when a shipment goes over two companies' lines. This necessitates the graduation of rates for small articles and the conquently errors are made in this system of separate charges. Under the new plan small articles of less than new plan ssmall articles of less than a hundred pounds can go through two or more companies on one single charge, the rates for which have been agreed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission and a card of which is posted in each express office. The new list of rates does not effect the shipment of articles over a hundred pounds in weight for the old two charge system will be used for these cases.

All of the express companies have agreed to the new schedule of prices except the Long Island Railroad Express Company, which claims that it is not a regular private organization since it is controlled by the railroad. There will be no difference on the charges for small packages to points on Long Island, but to all other places the rates will be about 20 cents less than the present price for articles under 100 pounds in weight.

DR. FRANCIS PAINE ON LONG TRAMP

Dr. Francis Paine, of East Front street, left yesterday morning on what he thinks will prove to be one of his best vacation trips. He was accompanied by his two toy spaniels, "Pansy" and "Peggy," who entered into the preparations of departure as enthusiastically as though they knew all of the arrangements and had helped plan the trip.

Dr. Paine rode as far as the Delaware Water Gap, where the remainder of yesterday was spent. This morning the trio hit the trail along the Delaware river to Port Jervis, N. Y, From there Middletown and Goshen will be visited, the distance to be covered entirely on foot. From Goshen the pedestrians will enter the picturesque Loongwood Valley and follow it to Lake Hopatcong, which it is expected will be reached some time next Saturday. From the lake they will return to this city by train unless better time is made than the schedule calls for, in which event they will walk from the lake home.

The boys from the Y. M. C. A., who took part in the athletic contests at the New Jersey State Camp on Lake Wawayanda, made a good showing, scoring forty-eight out of a possible sixty points. They have an excellent chance of winning the trophy offered by the Y. M. C. A. in these contests. Jack Peacock and Craig Blair each scored thirteen points; Walter Bell, nine; Frank Dunning, eight, and Tomlinson, five.

In the individual events, Joseph Sattels won the quoit tournament and Frank Dunning won first prize in the tennis matches. The local boys also won prizes in the aquatic events.

MOVEMENT PLAN

Rev. F. K. Mathiews Reports on "Men and Religion" Conference at Silver Bay.

275 DELEGATES WERE PRESENT.

Extensive Fall Campaign is Planned and An Organization Will Be Effected Here.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church and representative for this city at the Men and Religion Forward Movement conference at Silver Bay, Lake George, returned from the meeting yesterday. He said that the convention was a complete success and that the intended work of the organization will be the most stupendous religious project ever attempted.

There were 275 delegates from all the important cities in the country at the conference, which lasted for eight days. Eighty cities were represented, mostly by laymen, the leaders of the movement in their respective towns. The work has already been started in 90 cities with a committee of 100 men in each. Of these 23 chairmen and 38 executive secretaries were at Silver Bay.

It was decided that this city should be attached to the Newark work. A committee of one hundred prominent citizens of Plainfield will attend the meeting in Newark early in the Fall and will then carry on the work in this city and the surrounding towns. Extension work will be started in this city provided that the local churches decide to participate in the movement.

The purpose of the conference was to agree upon plans and methods whereby the men of the churches may the more effectively work with men and boys in the interest of the Kingdom of Christ on earth. It was agreed that the message for the time must be altogether comprehensive. Men must be urged to bring all their life under the power of Christ. All of a man's activities, domestic, economic, social, political must be brought under the power of religion.

It was repeatedly said that the only solution of our modern problems in industry and politics is to be found in applied Christianity. To intelligently apply such a remedy is the reason for this mighty movement. To this end, sociological and religious surveys wil be made of practically every city in the United States. Only those permitted to see the survey blanks with their hundreds of questions to be answered, always by those most competent to make reply, can begin to relize what the carrying out of just this single feature of the program will mean. If this survey is accurately made, we will have a knowledge of the churches and their relation to society such as our American Christianity as never before.

After this information has been gathered, it will be charted, no less than sixty charts being made to visualize the facts presented. These charts will be in the hands of the teams of experts who are to visit the several largest cities and based upon a careful study of each particular field, men most competent to advise will offer suggestions to the committees of one hundred as to how best to meet the religious needs of their city.

These advisers—teams of experts—will be made up of men secured from every part of the country irrespective of denominational affiliation. There will be six teams in all, experts on evangelism, boys' work, ible study, mission, social service and community extension.

The plan will be, beginning in October and continuing until May, to promote in the ninety cities chosen, eight day campaigns under the direction of these six teams of experts. One day each will be given to presenting the needs of the local field from the point of view of these several departments of church activity, the conference closing in each instance with a convention lasting two days, when all the surrounding cities and towns will be invited to send delegates. Then, the convention over the whole city will throw itself in a campaign of religious activity among men and boys that will have for its goal Conservation Day—the last Sunday in April—when the results of the year will be gathered up and tabulated and plans presented whereby the campaign may be continued for the next five years.

WALTER BENNETT SERIOUSLY INJURED

Walter B. Bennett, formerly of the borough, but who has been engineer at the Metuchen plant of the Public Service Corporation, is detained at his home on New street, Metuchen, suffering from severe injuries, including broken bones, the result of an accident on Saturday. He was busily engaged with some work on a trestle near the plant, when he accidentally slipped and fell a distance of eighteen feet.

Mr. Bennett, in falling, landed on a pile of debris. He sustained a fracture of the right arm, severe cuts in the head, requiring a number of stitches to close, his hip was injured and the physicians believe that there are internal injuries. While his condition generally is considered serious, it is the opinion of the physicians that he will recover.

MISS MOFFETT BRIDE OF FRANK SIMMONS

Miss Edna Moffett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moffett, of West Sixth street, and Frank Simmons, also of this city, were married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss. The affair was a quiet one, being attended only by relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple. The house was attractively decorated for the occasion, the scheme in the parlor being especially effective.

The bride was gowned in white trimmed with lace, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Mabel Cronce, of this city, an intimate friend of the bride, who wore a gown of white material and also carried white roses. The best man was Phillip H. Martin, of Chrone, this State.

An informal reception followed during which congratulations were offered and supper was served. The couple will reside in this city. Mrs. Simmons received a large number of handsome gifts. She was for several years employed as a cashier at the store of the Woodhull & Martin Company. She is also a member of the First Baptist church, where she is active especially in the young people's work. The groom has been a resident of this city for several years.

UNCLE SAM MAKES QUICK DELIVERY HERE.

The Plainfield postoffice, Saturday afternoon, figured in what is perhaps the best record yet made in the transmission of a mail package from New York. At 3 o'clock, L. W. Randolph 'phoned to the Ditmar's Company, of Barclay street, New York, for a special order to be sent by special delivery and was told that it would be mailed immediately. Some time was consumed in filling the list, wrapping the article and depositing at the New York postoffice.

Mr. Randolph then inquired at the local office regarding the arrival of mails from New York and selected the one received at 8 o'cloock as the one to bring his package. At a quarter after five when one of the special delivery boys walked into the store, laid a package on the desk and extended his book for signature Mr. Randolph could hardly belive that it was the order he had given oover the 'phone at 3 o'clock and opened it before signing. This took a few minutes. From the time he sent in the order until it was received was just two hours and seventeen minutes. Postmaster E. H. Bird has the wrapper to substantiate and verify the correctness of the time.

WILL ENTER RACE

Robert Clark Jr., Agrees to Stand For Mayoralty Nomination on One Condition.

THAT HE MAKE NO PLEDGES.

Notifies Committee of Citizens of His Decision—Mayor N. B. Smalley Declines to Talk at Present.

Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, today decided to enter the Mayoralty race in North Plainfield this fall, and notified the committee of citizens which waited on him last week at his home, to that effect. This announcement has been received with considerable pleasure on the part of Mr. Clark's friends, who feel sure that he will not only get the nomination on the Republican ticket, but will win cut at the polls. In giving his decision to the committee, Mr. Clark says that he will allow the use of his name with one proviso, that if the primary should select him as its candidate, he will be absolutely free from pledges or promises. He says that the request for him to stand for the nomination comes in such a forceful way that he will consent to the use of his name.

The fact that Mr. Clark has agreed to become a candidate will make political affairs in the borough rather lively this fall. It has been understood that Mayor Newton B. Smalley had consented to stand for a renomination, but when interviewed on the subject today, Mr. Smalley informed a reporter for The Daily Press that he never made such a statement for publication, in fact, he added my only position is to do what I can for the best interest of the borough. Further than that Mr. Smalley would not discuss the matter nor have anything to say at this time regarding Mr. Clark's decision.

As stated in The Daily Press a few days ago, a committee of citizens waited on Mr. Clark for the purpose of getting his consent to stand for the nomination for Mayor at the Republican primaries. He said that he would give the matter careful consideration and inform the committee of his decision within a short time. Today he announced his decision in the following letter received by the committee:

"Gentlemen:—

"When you, a representative body of citizens of the Borough of North Plainfield, called upon me Thursday evening, July 27, and urgently requested me to allow my name to go before the primary as a candidate for the Mayoralty of the borough, I told you that I would take the request under consideration and advise you at an early date.

"After giving the matter due consideration, I have reached the conclusion that as the request comes to me in such a forceful way, I will consent to allow my name to go before the primary as a candidate for the Mayoralty with this proviso: that if the primary should select me as its candidate I am to be absolutely free from pledges or promises.

"Respectfully yours,
"ROBT. CLARK, JR."

SLIPPERY PAVEMENT CAUSES AUTO ACCIDENTS.

The slippery brick pavement on Front street was the cause of two minor automobile accidents yesterday. The first occurred about 11 o'clock in the morning in front of the Endress Company's store. An automobile, number 27488, N. J., driven by a man who refused to give his name, skidded on the wet pavement and ran into a support of the awning in front oof the store. The force of the collision broke the wind shield and bent one of the lamps. No one was injured.

The second accident occurred in the afternoon at Front street and Park avenue. An automobile owned and driven by E. W. VanNest, of Newark, skidded when turning the corner and brought up against the curb. The impact broke one of the rear wheels. The occupants escaped injury.

Summoned to Grand Rapids.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, in answer to a telegram that his mother is near death, left early this morning at once for Grand Rapids, Mich. Mrs. Broek has been ill a long time and during the past few days there has been a change for the worse. Mr. Broek's brother, Rev. Albertus T. Broek, and Mrs. Broek, of Newark, have also gone.

Baptist Excursion a Success.

The First Baptist church excursion to Asbury Park, last week, was even more successful than the one of last year, there being 720 excursionists. The committee in charge believe that there will be no deficit.

CARRIED A GUN; IS HEAVILY FINED

Angelo Desanta, of Cottage place, was arrested yesterday afternoon after an argument with the son of the man where he boards and who had helped eject Desanta from the house. Later he came around with a revolver which was found on the prisoner when searched by Patrolman Birmingham who made the arrest. Judge W. G. DeMeza today imposed a fine of $50 or 90 days in the county jail.

Adam Huber was arrested Saturday night much the worse for drink, after a session with several friends. He was given at talking to by Judge William G. DeMeza and allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

Harry Hatchet, colored, of Somerset street, was arrested Saturday night after an argument with Frank Conway in a restaurant. It appeared that Conway's kidding got Hatchet's "goat." Both men were lectured by Judge DeMeza who suspended sentence.

MICHAEL WILLIAMS DEAD, AGED 82 YRS.

Michael Williams, aged 82 years, perhaps one of the best known farmers in this section of the State, and one of the most successful, died yesterday afternoon at his home in Warrenville, following a stroke of paralysis on Tuesday last. Owing to his advanced age he did not have the strength or vitality to stand the severe stroke and he failed rapidly. Mr. Williams was born in Germany, coming to this country when a young man. Shortly after arriving in New York he removed to Plainfield and for six years was employed by the late Henry Clay Randolph at his farm on Rahway road.

At the end of that period he went to California, where he was successful in his hunt for gold. He accumulated a sufficient sum to return in six years and purchase the farm at Warrenville, one of the finest in the State, which he tilled with great success until six years ago, at which time he retired. The work was then continued by his sons. Mr. Williams came of sturdy German stock and was always a hard worker. He made a great many friends by his genial manner.

Surviving are a wife and five children, all of which are married. The children are Henry Williams and Peter Williams, farmers, who reside at Warrenville; Julius M. Williams, who resides at West Front street and Plainfield avenue; Mrs. Robert Zergiebel and Mrs. Eugene Bowers, also of Warrenville. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and Rev. George Hauser, of Warrenville, will officiate.

POLISH CHRISTENING ENDS IN A FIGHT

During the festivities marking the christening of a Polish child at the home of its parents, on West Third street, last evening, a fight started among the guests. As a result of it Wojziel Brnadyn was hit on the head with a beer bottle and the services of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow were required to close the wound. The man who wielded the bottle escaped. He had taken a hand in the scrap after it had gotten well under way and when he saw that one of his friends, Stanley Keilak, who started the fight, was being worsted.

Before the blow was dealt, loud, angry talk had aroused the neighborhood causing a large crowd to congregate. Some one had the forethought to call the police who arrived at the scene of trouble, headed by Chief Kiely, just when some of Brnadyn's friends were dragging his unconscious form from beneath the combatant's feet. The man who hit him had already left the house as had also Keilak, who was located in hiding and placed under arrest. The name of the man who made a getaway is known and the hearing was set down for tomorrow morning when the police will have had time to apprehend him and bring him back from Bayonne, where he is said to have gone.

While a search of the vicinity was being made for the fugitive Walter Mussey, of South Second street, ran afoul of the police and was arrested after trying to assault one of them. He was fined $5.

HOLD-UP IN PARK?

Antonio Dilabrio Furnishes Lots of Excitement in Quiet Neighborhood.

RESENTS OUTSIDE INTRUSION.

Dudley S. Miller and Son, Russell, Have Lively Experience With Italian Saturday Night.

What appears since to have been a case of mistaken identity, gave residents of Union street, and several whose homes face or adjoin the city park, a fright late Saturday night. The error was occasioned by a 'phone message from Mrs. Dudley Miller, of Union street, to her husband at his drug store to the effect that a man was prowling about the house and peeping in the windows. Mrs. Miller was at home alone and Mr. Miller informed police headquarters what his wife had said.

Patrolman Vanderweg was sent to the scene in the patrol wagon, but was unable to find anyone acting suspiciously. He reported to Mr. Miller when returning to headquarters. After closing his stoore to go home Mr. Miller, who was accompanied by his son, Russel, crossed city park and noticed a man occupying one of the benches. At the sight of him, the incident of the early evening was vividly recalled and the conclusion reached that the man on the bench was the "peeper."

Mr. Miller and his son had passed on some distance when they thought to question the man, who turned out to be Antonio Dilabrio, an Italian who has been in this country but four months. He worked for Warren Marsh, of Union street, and owing to his short residence here is not proficient in the English language. He somewhat resented being accosted by the two men who were strangers to him and showed no disposition to answer their questions. They then took hold of him to escort him to police headquarters. The Italian became excited and frightened and put up a stiff fight.

In the midst of this he managed to mention Mr. Marsh's name and make it clear that Mr. Marsh knew him. The erstwhile captors then thought that it would be a good plan to let Mr. Marsh have a look at their prisoner, but before reaching his home Tony again became obstreperous, his shrill, excited flow of language, delivered in a high vibrant voice piercing the still night air.

This aroused among others Tony's brother, who also works for Mr. Marsh and recognizing his brother's voice he went out to investigate. Mr. Miller and his son with the struggling, noisy captor were nearly to their destination at the time and upon the arrival of Tony's brother, explanations were offered and the matter straightened out so that quiet was restored and reigned for the remainder of the night.

"DEACON" SPENCER CONWAY REPORTS THEFT OF HORSE.

Spencer Conway, colored, of West Fourth street, reported to the local police yesterday that two colored men, Victor Cook and Richard Scudder, had taken his horse from his stable without his permission and had gone away for a drive. The police of the nearby towns were asked to be on the lookout for the men.

The men were arrested in Westfield at 3 o'clock this morning with the horse and a carriage which they had hired from a local livery, in their possession. They will be brought to this city today and arraigned for a hearing before Judge William G. DeMeza tomorrow morning.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Society seems to have taken a keen interest in the forthcoming engagement of "Lew Dockstader's Great Minstrels," which is scheduled to appear at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, August 5, matinee and night. The entertainment provided by Mr. Dockstader and his numerous associates this season is varied, picturesque, mirth-compelling and melodious. The gorgeous settings of the first part is said to be spectacular to a degree, a triumph of the scenic painter's art. Mr. Dockstader has a new line of splendid songs, and a monologue that is rich with humor. Neil O'Brien, the irrepressible blackfaced comedian, is one of the principal funmakers. Bob Albright, Harry Wardell, "Happy" Naulty, Frank Farron, Master Charles Leo, Roy LaPearl, Henry De Cunea, Samuel Gillitti and Don Ferrandou are among the other burnt cork artists.

DEDICATE ROAD LINKING TWIN SHORE RESORTS.

Asbury Park, July 31.—That portion of the ocean boulevard connecting Asbury Park and Ocean Grove was dedicated Saturday. The new road shoots off from Lake avenue, just west of Emory street and enters Ocean Grove at Lawrence avenue. The promoters or some of them at least, would like the ocean front, but the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association interposed an objection, saying that it would kill the religious influence of the place, which now allows no horses, carriages or automobiles to enter on a Sunday.

The new road does away with a dangerous turn into Main street from Lake avenue. Several accidents have occurred there during the past year or two. The only fault found with the Asbury Park-Ocean Grove boulevard is that it is too narrow, but it is said that if after a trial it is found that the thoroughfare needs widening the work can be easily done. There is plenty of room on the west of the road. This expense of the work was born jointly by Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and the State, but Ocean Grove paid by far the larger part of the cost.

After inspecting the new road the members of the party was taken in automobiles to Deal Lake, where it is proposed building a road over the flume to connect with Allenhurst on the north. The improvement has been agitated for some time and during Governor Fort's administration an appropriation of $5,000 was made to cover part of the expense. For some reason or other the appropriation was never forthcoming. The State road commissioner will be asked to use his influence toward getting the road built and it is expected that something definite will be accomplished within the coming year.

"Ty" Cobb Spikes Hat.

"Ty" Cobb has displayed a little human touch that endeared him to the Philadelphia fans. He leaped over the right field ropes and pulled down a long drive of Murphy's. After the catch it was thought that Cobb had spiked some person in the bleachers. Two innings later Tyrus went to the same spot in the bleachers. It looked as if he was having an argument. Instead Tyrus was handing $5 to the man whose hat he had spiked when he jumped over the ropes.

The family of Dr. Samuel Long, of New Brunswick, are spending a few weeks on the Arthur Stout farm, Washington Valley.

AUGUST FUR SALE

This Bigs Mid-Summer Event Presents Guaranteed Savings of from 20 to 30 Per Cent.

We say that this is the greatest mid-summer sale ever held in Newark, but we question whether any other store in the country has ever entered upon an event of this sort with better merchandise or more attractive values. The majority of these furs were contracted for last February when the fine skins were so cheap. We bought early and we bought unsparingly, with the result that we secured the very lowest possible prices. The coats, muffs and scarfs are all made according to the very latest style and the savings range from 20 to 30 per cent. This we positively guarantee; in fact every garment will bear two tickets—one with the price that will prevail later on and one with our special August price. This is going to be the most talked of sale ever held in Newark and you might as well profit by it. Just glance over these offerings and see how radically we have cut our prices. You can not afford to remain away from this sale.

Griffith Suspended.

Clark Griffith, manager of the Cincinnati National League baseball team, was suspended Saturday for three days by the President of the league because of a dispute between Griffith and the umpire, Mr. Johnstone, last Thursday. Just before the suspension Griffith announced that Murphy, catcher, and McDonald, infielder, had been purchased from the Dallas (Texas) club.

Reconsider Magee's Case.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the National League has been called for eleven o'clock next Tuesday morning at the Auditorium Annex, in Chicago, to consider the appeal for reinstatement of the left fielder, Sherwood Magee, of the Philadelphia club, who was recently fined and suspended for striking the umpire, Finneran, in a ball game.

Chess Champion Coming.

Dr. Emanuel Lasker, chess champion of the world, is expected to visit this country in September after a lengthy absence, during which time he has been to South America. Most of this time, however, has been spent in Europe, and since his marriage to Frau Marco, the author, he has been residing at Berlinchen, Germany, the place of his birth.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., July 31, 1911

DIES SUDDENLY WHILE ON VACATION

Gus Frank, an employe of the Recorder Press, who left on his vacation Saturday, stopping with his mother in New York, was seized with acute appendicitis yesterday and died shortly afterward. He had planned to leave for the Catskills today, where he intended spending two weeks.

Young Frank had been a resident of this city for the past six years, all of which time he had worked at the Recorder Press. Until three years ago his mother lived here also. Since she removed to New York he has been boarding with John Bowman, at 315 West Front street. He had a host of acquaintances here and that word of his sudden death is a matter of sincere regret to them all. His mother alone survives him.

DOUGHERTY RESEMBLES COLORED HIGHWAYMAN

Chif O'Reilly, of the South Plainfield police, brought John Dougherty, colored, to police headquarters in this city last night. The man had been arrested for acting strangely and was thought to be demented. Chief O'Reilly said that he wanted the man taken care of until today when an examination would be made to determine his mental condition. In some respects Dougherty resembles the colored man who held up and robbed an Italian near the Woodbrook Farm, shortly after Harry Van Nest had been shot in the leg by a highwayman, on Park avenue, last Sunday night. The Italian, who was robbed, will be given a chance to identify Dougherty, if possible, before the examination for commitment is made.

Slocum Signs with Athletics.

Louis Slocum, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Slocum, of Central avenue, was signed by the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday and will report with that team Thursday. The contract was signed in New York city after the McNulty Brothers' game, in which Slocum twirled. A scout from Connie Mack's organization was present and made a proposition to the Plainfield young man after his star performance with the McNulty team. Slocum accepted the offer, which the big league team made him and will enter fast company when the Athletics play at home again.

German Couple Wed.

The marriage of Miss Anne Mary Holl, a buxom German fraulein, who arrived in this country Thursday, and Paul Shaft, of South Second street, was celebrated Saturday afternoon in the office of City Judge W. G. DeMeza, the ceremony being performed by the latter. The wedding was the culmination of a Trans-Atlantic romance, the young woman coming here to keep her promise made to her sweetheart in the old country. B. J. Schreiner and Louis Pregar were witnesses.

To Continue Parcel Express.

H. C. Corsa, of Putnam avenue, will continue the parcel express business of the late William Williams, between this city and New York. He has made arrangements for the work with Mulford Estil, whose store will be his headquarters. He makes his first trip tomorrow morning.

Will Sell Entire Stock.

Morris Abram has engaged W. A. Schorb, the auctioneer, to sell out his entire stock of boots, shoes and rubbers, before removing to his new store. The sale will commence Monday afternoon, August 14.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will conduct the meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home on August 24.

"The Little Boy Who Gave up His Lunch on the Excursion," will be the topic of thte mid-week prayer meeting at Trinity Reformed church, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. A. Woodruff has donated thirty books to the Home Department of the Netherwood Reformed church. They are greatly appreciated by the department.

—Jersey peaches are getting better every day. Neuman Bros. will have a fresh shipment tomorrow.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tomorow night to insure payment at the August meeting of the Common Council.

Preached an Excellent Sermon.

"Following Jesus," was the theme of the discourse by Rev. G. M. Conover, of the Grand Avenue Reformed church, Asbury Park, at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning. The theme was taken from Numbers 14:24, and Mr. Conover preached a very good sermon, which was enjoyed by the congregation. Mr. Conover is also a pleasing reader of the Scripture, a fact equally enjoyed by those present. He occupied the local pulpit in exchange with the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek, who preached at Asbury Park yesterday.

LEAGUE SURPRISES

The fielding back of Hope was giltedge. Many smashes that en rout looked good, landed in a Westfield glove, the owner of it having placed it in position by accurate, swift fielding. The rooters from the mountaintop-town had plenty of opportunity to turn loose the three weeks accumulation of "roots," it being that long since they have had any chance to rid their system of these articles. Naturally, they out-rooted the local fans who have been hard at this sort of thing for a considerable period of time and had no pent up feelings left.

A double by Harter and a single by Martin brought in one more for the locals in the sixth and in the seventh another clout by Harter, his fourth out of as many times up, and a triple cushion drive by E. Stallings, brought in two more, E. Stallings being scored by his brother, who was thrown out by Quimby. Driscoll had flown to Craig and Martin fanned, retiring the side.

Aside from the four runs gathered in the first and four more in the third at told above, the visitors gathered several more run-breeding bingles from Waller's assortment. Two of these, a double by Craig and a single by Pickering in the sixth, brought in a run. A three-sacker by Wilbur in the seventh scored Keene whose jump to George was fumbled, making the total ten. In the eighth and ninth they were retired without scoring although "Red" was shattered for a double in each. The feature of the eighth was Craig's double to centre and his steal of third. Craig had two doubles out of three times up and a sacrifice to his credit for the game. That he is hitting them no body can deny.

Harter played a sterling game and easily carried off the honors for the locals. He poled safe every time he faced Hope and made a sensational one-handed grab of Quimby's poke in the first. McCabe, the lad adorning left, for the visitors, was some tower of strength to his team also. He ran behind an automobile and pulled down Waller's mile high foul in the second and drove safe three times out of five times up. The only man in the Westfield lineup not getting a hit was Quimby.

SOMERVILLE VICTORS

Three bases on balls in rapid succession, sprinkled with a few errors contributed largely to the victory of Somerville over Scotch Plains at Somerville on Saturday. The game started off in lively fashion and for a short time it looked as though it might be a pitcher's battle. Clinton, for the home team, steadied down to good work, the Kilties being able to secure only a few wallops, but they did not come at the right time. Frederickson is entitled to a great deal of credit. He held his opponents to four hits, but the errors of his team-mates lost the game. Had he been given good support, the 'Plains aggregation would surely have won out.

Somerville started the scoring in the second inning. Frederickson after two men were down issued Uhrig a free pass; Grimes and McCaffery fared likewise. Things did look dubious. Clinton, Somerville's tried and true slab artist, then advanced to the bat. He connected with a little one to short stop and sorry to relate it was allowed to proceed unmolested and he forthwith gained first bag. Uhrig meanwhile coming home. McCarthy now grabbed the elongated bit of hardened wood and strode to the batter's box. He became acquainted with the spheriod through a fly to center field. Both left and center field were anxious to get the ball, and in the confusion, and through the "Alponse and Gaston" stunt the ball dropped to the green sod with a thud. In the interim both McCaffery and Clinton raced speedily across the rubber. Even though Frederickson filled the bases, it was the errors that caused the runs.

Somerville in the next spasm tallied one more. Their appetite for runs could not be appeased, and in the next inning one more run was brought in. The fifth and the seventh saw more of the pernicious work on Somerville's part, and two more of their men plodded through the desert of bases and reached home. Somerville seemed contended now.

Scotch Plains all this time had been doing nothing. They never started anything in the way of runs until the ninth. Warry McLaughlin connected with the ball to deep center; H. Alberts drove one almost to the left field fence for a two bagger, Warry coming home. Goodwill up next banged another bagger scoring Alberts. Goodwill was nailed at second and Foley laid down a little one to third and the game was over. Their spurt was fine but it was too late.

BEST GAME IN LEAGUE

High Bridge spirit was the cause of the victory of the team from that Hunterdon county town over Bound Brook in a seventeen-inning heart thrilling game at High Bridge Saturday afternoon. It was by far the best game that has been played so far in the Central New Jersey League not only from the standpoint of closeness, but from the many exhibitions of classy ball playing which were shown.

It was long after the evening shadows had begun to lengthen and the two teams were still fighting it out with Cliff Randolph and Lew Wiltse handing over their twisters in the McGinnity style. At last in the seventeenth round Bound Brook made three runs all in a heap and the score stood 6 to 3 when High Bridge batters heard the hearty pleas from their staunch supporters in the last half of that inning to get the game at any cost. The uphillers and their friends in the grandstand and bleachers then began to work and swatted Mr. Wiltse's curves for further orders and possibly further innings. With three men on bases J. Walton brought over the winning tally by a hard two-bagger to deep left. Needless to say Jackie was the real noise about High Bridge Saturday night.

The feature of the game was O'Rourke's fielding for High Bridge, the speedy center gardener nabbing nine put outs in the first thirteen innings. In the sixth he hauled down a speedy liner from Poole's bat when the sphere was traveling at a sixty mile gait toward the home run district of left field, and in the eleventh he robbed Nolan of a long slam by pinching the horsehide against the right field fence after a desperate run.

Both Randolph and Wiltse pitched good ball, the former being unsteady at the start when Bound Brook made three runs and the latter weakening in the last few innings. Adler started the trouble for Randolph in the first when he doubled to right and stole second while Meehan was striking out. Nolan then brought him home on a clean hit to left. In the next round Roberson came in for a clean swat, stole second and was sacrificed to third. Bollinger's hit made his tally possible while McLaughlin's wallop put Bollie on the home stretch. Adler doubled again but McLaughlin was caught at the plate.

High Bridge had its turn in the third when one run came across. Silva walked and stole second, coming in on J. Walton's sharp single to left. The score was tied in the eighth on some clean hitting. Singles by Charles and Elmer Walton and Torpey together with a double from Cliff Randolph's willow brought two runs down the aisle of High Bridge joy. The Hunterdon boys here missed their best chance to cop the game in the early innings, but Chick Boyd couldn't come across with a clout when the bases were full.

Neither side had any good chance to score again until the seventeenth when the fun ended. For seven innings the men were retired in order, largely through gilt edged playing. Roberson made the fans sit up in the eleventh when he worked a neat double play unassisted after grabbing a hot liner from J. Walton's bat, which came on a whiz over first base. J. Walton also nabbed a sizzler on short stop while Lew Wiltse startled himself and everyone else by holding a red hot drive from the bat in the second inning by a long reach and a steady arm.

UMPIRES AND GRIT

Courageous Acts of the Men In the Iron Masks.

A FINE DISPLAY OF NERVE.

When Billy Evans Braved the Onslaught of a Chicago Mob and Won Out—A Notable Decision by O'Day. An Umpire Who Saved Baseball.

"Umpires are brave men—at least the great majority of them. One of the bravest things I ever saw was the act of Billy Evans on the old White Sox grounds in Chicago," writes Hugh Fullerton in the American Magazine. "On that park there was a tier of seats known as the 'stockyards,' in which gathered one of the most dangerous crowds (for umpires) in the country. They were regulars who occupied the same seats almost every day and who fought for them. The seats, of course, were not reserved, but hundreds claimed a title to certain places. They paid their quarters, and if any one was in the place and refused to move he was tossed out and thrown over the heads of the crowd to the bottom. That crowd started after Evans, who had given a close decision at third base against Chicago. Evans walked over on to foul ground back of first base, and a shower of bottles fell around him. It looked as if a hundred men were throwing bottles at the umpire. One bottle touched his cap, several bounded and struck him, one hit him on the arm. During this bombardment Evans did not turn his head. He stood watching the batter. For at least three minutes the bottles whistled around his head. The people in the grand stand shouted for him to run, fearing he would be killed. The players begged him to move into the diamond out of range. He stood still with back to his foes until the batter made a base hit, then trotted down near second base to watch for a play there. As the opposing team took the field a few moments later Evans walked to the same position back of first base, and the crowd that had tried to kill him stood up and cheered him. They recognized a brave man. One fellow threw a bottle, and the crowd pitched him down the steep steps, passing him along until he hit the fence.

"The nerviest decision and one of the most important ever made was that of Umpire O'Day in the world's championship game between Chicago and Detroit on Oct. 8, 1907, the first game of the series which finally ended in a tie in twelve innings. In the eleventh inning Chicago actually scored the winning run only to lose it through the decision of O'Day, a Chicago man and a National leaguer. Slagle was on third base and started home with the ball back of third in left field. The ball was thrown home and arrived after Slagle had crossed the plate and was nearly to the bench. Steinfeldt, who had been batting, was excited, and when the ball was thrown to the plate, wild and wide, he jumped and let it hit his shoulder and prevented Schmidt from catching it. O'Day, in spite of the fact that Slagle had crossed the plate and that there wasn't a chance to put him out, called him out because of Steinfeldt's interference.

"There was a close decision at Cleveland one day when Tim Hurst, widely known as the 'scrappy ump,' was officiating. Burkett was trying to score from second on a hit. The catcher failed to touch his foot, but touched his knee, and Cleveland claimed the foot reached the rubber before the ball reached the knee. Hurst called him out, and in the wrangle that followed expelled Pat Tebeau, O'Connor and Burkett from the game. Then he put them off the grounds. They left the playing inclosure, but all three had their heads over a gate shouting at Hurst and urging the other players to avenge them. Tebeau shouted to good old Deacon Maguire, who was catching, 'Get after him, Jim!' Hurst heard, but was not in position to reply. Maguire heard and waited until he thought Hurst miscalled a strike. Then he rushed at the umpire at top speed. Hurst stood still. When Maguire came near enough Hurst kicked him on the shins and poked his mask into his face. Maguire fell back, astonished. 'If you don't like it, Jim,' said Hurst softly, 'give it to Pat. I merely punched you vicariously.'

"They are 'square men,' these umpires, forced to be a bit gruff and to fight, but their devotion to their work and their honest effort to discharge their duties mark them as men of high integrity. And they are 'game.' I saw Bob Emslie once when a foul ball struck him over the heart. The pain was excruciating. His face grew white, and he set his teeth together and resumed work. Three balls were pitched after he was hit. He called them all clearly. Then he collapsed, falling as if dead, and was carried off the field unconscious.

"One night I saw politicians, wealthy men, club owners, argue for hours with an umpire. All they wanted him to say was 'I didn't see it.' Upon those words hung the fate of a championship, the future of a major league and the honesty of baseball. The umpire replied, 'But, —— it, I did see it!' And he saved baseball."

Gentle Hint.

"You want to go back to your husband, do you? How did you tell him?"

"I bought myself a new hat and sent him the bill."—Fliegende Blatter.

When the heart is won the understanding is easily convinced. — Simmons.

HOW TO BECOME INVISIBLE.

A Sample of the Mummery Used In Ancient Witchcraft.

Some curious formulas of ancient witchcraft are given in Mr. A. E. Waite's "Book of Ceremonial Magic." Here is a recipe for becoming invisible:

"Begin this operation on a Wednesday before the sun rises, being furnished with seven black beans. Take next the head of a dead man. Place one of the beans in his mouth, two in his eyes and two in his ears. Then make upon the head the character of the figure which here follows. (Omitted.) This done, inter the head with the face toward heaven, and every day before sunrise for the space of nine days water it with excellent brandy.

"On the eighth day you will find the cited spirit, who will say unto you: 'What doest thou?' You shall reply: 'I am watering my plant.' He will then say: 'Give me that bottle; I will water it myself.' You will answer by refusing, and he will again ask you, but you will persist in declining until he shall stretch forth his hand and show you the same figure which you have traced upon the head suspended from the tips of his fingers. In this case you may be assured that it is really the spirit of the head, because another might take you unawares, which would bring you evil, and, further, your operation would be unfruitful. When you have given him your vial he will water the head and depart. On the morrow, which is the ninth day, you shall return and shall find your beans ripe. Take them, place one in your mouth and then look at yourself in a glass. If you cannot see yourself it is good. Do the same with the rest or they may be tested in the mouth of a child."

ESKIMO WIDOWERS.

Six Weeks Is the Limit They Will Wait Before Remarrying.

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have lapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's kill. She dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes. On a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

A Turkish Love Story.

A Turk knocked at his beloved's door, and a voice answered from within, "Who is there?"

Then he answered, "It is I."

Then the voice said, "This house will not hold thee and me."

And the door was not opened.

Then went the lover into the desert, where there is nothing but Allah, and fasted and prayed in solitude.

And after a year he returned and knocked again at the door.

And again the voice asked, "Who is there?"

And he said, "It is thyself."

And the door was opened to him.

D'Orsay and His Tailor.

"D'Orsay, the Complete Dandy," as Mr. Tiegnmouth Shore calls him in his biography, was fully aware of the value of his patronage to the tailors. When clothes arrived for him, in the most mysterious manner banknotes had found their way into the pockets. Once, when this accident had not happened, D'Orsay bade his valet return the garments with the message that "the lining of the pockets had been forgotten."

The Old, Old Story.

"What did you do when your husband told you the old, old story?"

"I told him to shut up before he was half through."

"Why, what a funny way to reply to a confession of love!"

"Oh, is that what you mean? I thought you meant the story he told last night when he came home from a time with the boys."—Houston Post.

Her Strong Chin.

Dawson—The facial features plainly indicate character and disposition. In selecting your wife were you governed by her chin? Spenlow—No, but I have been ever since we were married.

A Case of Necesstiy.

"Why are you breaking up housekeeping?"

"My wife's florist says she'll have to take the rubber plant to a different climate."—Washington Herald.

Nature knows no pause in progress and development: and attaches her curse on all inaction.—Goethe.

Actual Results From Electric Power

Business men who have used both steam and electric power in their establishments are in a position to speak authoritatively of the relative merits of the two kinds of drive.

Almost without exception their testimony is favorable to Central Station Electric Power.

W. W. Douglass, a pattern and model maker, of 179 Second street, Jersey City, is one of the many who have substituted electricity for steam. Read what he has to say:

> Having always used steam power in my business until the last two years, when I installed a motor, I take this opportunity of expressing my full appreciation of the benefits of electric power over steam. Have found it reliable, clean and inexpensive. Will take pleasure in recommending electric power for general use.

You can get just as satisfactory results from Central Station Electric Power in your plant as Mr. Douglass did in his. As he says, electric power is RELIABLE, CLEAN AND INEXPENSIVE.

Our power engineers will study your needs and give you detailed information, without cost, if you will notify us.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

LEGION OF HONOR.

The Order That Was Founded by the Great Napoleon.

THRIVED DESPITE RIDICULE.

The Despotic Corsican Proved by the Inauguration of the Decoration That He Was a Keen Student of French Human Nature.

France owes the Legion of Honor to Napoleon. All orders of chivalry had been abolished by the revolution and had left a gap which it was not easy to fill. "They are mere geegaws," said Monge, the chemist, who had taught the revolutionists how to make gunpowder out of plaster of paris. "Geegaws, if you will," the first consul answered, "but people like them. Let us approach the question frankly. All men are enamored of decorations, the French more than any. They positively hunger for them, and they have always done so."

This was at Malmaison in 1802. In May the conseil d'etat was invited to consider the project of the institution of the Legion of Honor. It was ridiculed by many, notably by Moreau, who as victor of Hohenlinden was bitterly jealous of the victor of Marengo. At a dinner party he sent for his cook and said to him in the presence of his guests: "Michel, I am pleased with your dinner. You have indeed distinguished yourself. I will award you a saucepan of honor." Mme. de Stael was also satirical upon the subject. "Ah, one of the decorated?" she used to ask each guest who was shown into her salon.

But Napoleon had gauged human nature correctly. His Legion of Honor did meet a felt want, and it was definitely inaugurated on July 14, 1804. Among the eminent men of science and men of letters on whom it was then bestowed were included Laplace, the mathematician; Lalande, the astronomer; Cuvier, the naturalist, and Legouve, the poet. The most notable name omitted was that of Bernardin de St. Pierre, just then in disgrace for championing Mme. de Stael, whom Napoleon had banished, but he got the decoration later on the entreaty of Queen Hortense.

After Napoleon's downfall the question of suppressing the Legion of Honor arose. Chateaubriand, whom Napoleon had not decorated, strongly urged its abolition. So did Puzzo di Borgo. Marshals Victor, Marmont and Macdonald opposed. After debate it was decided to recognize and retain the order, not on any high moral or patriotic grounds, but because Louis XVIII. could not afford to make himself more unpopular than he was already by stripping people of their decorations. Chateaubriand and Lamartine consented to accept the red ribbon, but it was also conferred upon a great number of worthless personages and so brought into contempt.

There have been many Legion of Honor scandals since those days, but one of them surpasses all the others in magnitude. This is, of course, the Wilson scandal, the history of which, though intricate, is worth recalling.

The trouble may be said to have begun on the day on which Mlle. Alice Grevy fell in love with an opera singer who need not be mentioned here. He wanted to marry her, and she wanted to marry him, and the papers were beginning to couple the two names in a manner most embarrassing to the president of the republic. The president, however, sent the opera singer about his business and found his daughter another husband, not a very good husband, but the best husband he could procure on the spur of the moment. His choice fell upon M. Daniel Wilson, who had long been one of M. Grevy's political supporters and was a financier of some mark.

No sooner was M. Wilson established at the Elysee than he proceeded to enrich himself by various means. Among other things he founded a paper called Le Moniteur de l'Exposition Universelle, which really covered a traffic in decorations. The whole story came out in a state trial toward the end of 1887. It was proved that Wilson had made a regular practice of selling the Legion of Honor, or, rather, of inviting people who wanted it to bribe him to use his influence to obtain it for them. His overtures were presented through his jackals, Generals d'Audian and Cafferel and Mmes. Limousin and Ratazzi, and the whole party had to stand in the dock together.

Wilson was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, a fine of 3,000 francs and five years' deprivation of civil rights. He appealed, and the court of cassation annulled the judgment. The accused, said the judges, was obviously guilty of everything that he was charged with, but as his offenses were not anticipated by any punitive law he could not be punished. So he retired to the country and tried to live down his bad name. As he ultimately got himself elected conseiller general one must suppose that he succeeded in this object.—Pall Mall Gazette.

CHATTANOOGA

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY
BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

PROLOGUE.

Just fifty years ago the great civil war, which arrayed north against south, brother against brother and father against son, was the all absorbing real life tragedy of the time. This romance, written by a soldier who is the son of a great general, gives the son and the grandson of today an absorbing view of the perils faced by sire and grandsire of half a century ago. A northern spy penetrating the southern lines with the shadow of the hangman's noose ever before him; a fair daughter of the south divided in her allegiance between love and duty; a mere boy with wits sharpened by the vicissitudes of war; a slip of a girl, ignorant, but brave, loyal and self sacrificing; a chivalrous soldier in gray who fought and loved in vain—these are the leading actors in "Chattanooga."

CHAPTER I.

NO MAN'S LAND.

It was the twentieth of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-two. Corinth had been evacuated more than two months before. The army of the Ohio had moved eastward into northern Alabama. The president and eminent Union generals were anxious as to east Tennessee, where, it was rumored, the Confederates were preparing for some new move.

High in the Cumberland mountains a soldier in the blue and yellow uniform of a private of cavalry sat on his horse looking down on the valleys of the Sequatchie and the Tennessee. A carbine was slung over his shoulder; a Colt's revolver was at his hip. He was long and lithe and graceful. About him was an air of refinement seldom found under a private's uniform except during that war which called out men from all classes, both in the north and in the south. His hair was light, his blue eye was restless and denoted its possessor to be a man of great mental and physical activity.

As the soldier gazed down upon the expansive view different expressions flitted across his face. At one moment there was a serious look, such as men wear on the eve of battle; at another a shrinking expression; then a dreamy one. He saw territory that lay beyond the Union lines. He wondered what warlike scenes were hidden down there within the blending of rocks and rivers and undulations, lying calm and sweet before him that summer afternoon. Were clusters of white tents there? Were brigades, divisions, army corps marching?

Now he thought he could hear a distant creaking of caissons and gun carriages. But he knew this could not be. If they were there, they were too far to be heard. The sounds never became real. The young man's fancies were always broken by the actual rustle of the leaves or some sound from the furred or feathered inhabitants of the mountains.

Then a scene he had passed through the previous evening came up before him.

He stood in the presence of a general of division—the finest specimen of physical splendor of all the generals of the Union army—one who was a year later to achieve the title of "the Rock of Chickamauga." The general was speaking while his subordinate was listening respectfully and attentively.

"I am ordered by the department commander to find out what is going on at Chattanooga. Our reconnoitering parties have thus far brought us nothing except that there is no enemy very near. We are liable to be flanked and cut off from east Tennessee. See here!" He turned to a map spread out on a pine table. "Here is Chattanooga; here the Sequatchie valley; up here to the north is Knoxville, held by General Kirby Smith for the Confederates. Here is Cumberland gap. If the enemy is concentrating at Chattanooga, he may not only hold it against a greatly superior force, but can march right along here"—he traced the route with his finger—"form a juncture with General Smith at Knoxville, and into Kentucky. Louisville and Cincinnati will be in danger. Forrest and Morgan are hammering at our communications; we get reports of immense forces of the enemy at Knoxville; everything points to this or some similar plan of campaign on the part of the Confederates. If so, they must be concentrating at Chattanooga as a point of rendezvous."

The general paused; then looking the soldier in the eye said impressively:

"You are the only man to whom I can intrust so important a mission. I can't order you, as you know, beyond our lines, except in uniform. Go as far as you dare as a soldier; I leave the rest to you. Will you undertake to bring me the information we require?"

"I will, general."

"Very well. The fate of this army, the success of the Union arms in the west, perhaps the prolongation of the war, depend upon you."

The young man bowed, but said nothing.

"You will need a pass to get beyond our pickets." The general drew a camp chair beside a pine table and took up a pen. "How will you have it written?"

"'Pass Private Mark Malone'—that name will do as well as any—'beyond our lines at will.'"

The general wrote the pass and handing it to Private Malone, "Go, and God bless you!" he said. He took his emissary's hand and pressed it heartily.

As the words, "Go, and God bless you!" rang again in memory the soldier touched the flanks of his horse lightly with his great brass spurs and began to descend the mountain.

An hour later he entered the little town of Jasper. Riding up to the tavern he reined in his horse and let him drink at the rough wooden trough in front. A number of country people were sitting on the veranda, and every one fixed his eyes on the soldier, who sat on his horse looking about him with as much apparent indifference as if he were within the Union lines. When the animal had drunk his fill his rider cast the reins to a negro and dismounted. Then, detaching his carbine from where he had hooked it to his saddle, he took it in his hand and tramped into the house to the jingle of his spurs.

Not a word was spoken by those watching in admiration the strapping young fellow with so young a face set on so stalwart a frame. He paid no attention to them, but walked into the dining room and called for supper. After devoting himself to a plate of bacon and corn bread, with a cup of chickory in lieu of coffee (for the blockade of the southern ports had stopped the flow of the coffee bean from foreign countries), he walked out on the gallery, and seating himself on a wooden bench took a brierwood pipe and a tobacco pouch out of his pocket and began to smoke.

Jasper was "no man's land." The people living there and thereabout were nearly all Confederate sympathizers, but had learned to look for Union or Confederate troops with an equal chance of either. From the moment of the soldier's arrival they had discussed his coming in whispers. Soldiers of either side usually came in numbers. It was seldom that a single trooper had the hardihood to enter the town of Jasper alone, especially one wearing the blue. Presently an old man dressed in "butternut" got up from his seat among the loungers and approached the stranger for the purpose of reconnoiter:

"Reckon y' come from Decherd, Yank?"

"Thereabout."

"You uns got many sojers over thar?"

"Where?"

"At Sparty."

"No."

"Murfreesboro?"

"I don't know."

"Reckon thar's a powerful sight at McMinnville?"

"A division perhaps."

"Thet's an all fired pert rifle o' yourn. Wouldn't mind letten me handle it, would y'?"

Mark cocked the piece, took off the cap and handed it to his interrogator. He still had his revolver, while the man had a weapon which could not be fired without a percussion cap.

"Waal, now, thet's quar."

The man looked from the rifle to the soldier, not knowing which to admire most—the mechanism of the former or the coolness of the latter. Then he handed it back.

"You ain't no Yank."

"Why not?"

"Yanks don't come down hyar all alone. Besides a Yankee sojer wouldn't ride a blooded mare like that a-one. Morgan's men rides them kind o' critters and wears them uniforms sometimes."

Mark smiled knowingly.

"You think I'm one of Colonel Morgan's men, do you?"

"Reckon yer one o' ourn anyway."

And the man walked away well satisfied with his penetration.

The soldier got up, went into the tavern and paid for his supper with one of the postal shinplasters used at the time in lieu of silver; then he came out and called for his horse. While waiting he stood leaning against a post of the gallery, maintaining the same easy confidence that had characterized him since his arrival. Presently a negro came around from the barn, leading the slender legged mare, and the soldier, sauntering up to her leisurely, stroked her neck; then mounting, without once looking at his observers, he rode away.

But Private Malone's confidence was all assumed. He did not start on the road he designed to follow; he trotted off up the valley, intending later to find a path or a crossroad which would take him southward to the Chattanooga pike. He suspected that the group he was leaving would not suffer him to ride that night in safety, and he did not care to let them know his true route.

When he was riding in the open he felt comparatively confident, but upon entering a thicket he would uneasily reach down and put his hand upon his rifle. He knew the bushwhacker of the period, and fancied that a rifle or a shotgun lurked behind every tree.

The twilight was nearly faded. Mark had gone about three miles from the tavern when, nearing a fork in the road, he heard:

"Halt, thar!"

Instinctively his hand went to the handle of his revolver, for the sound was near enough to indicate that a pistol rather than a rifle might be needed.

"Air you uns the sojer ez tuk supper at the tavern at Jasper?" asked a voice, singularly soft for a bushwhacker.

"Well, suppose I am!"

"I know y' from yer voice."

"How's that?" asked the soldier, puzzled.

"Kind o' deep and smoothlike. Y' mought as waal put up yer shooten iron, I got a bead on y'."

"Well, what do you want with me?"

"I'm one o' the Slacks. We're Union, we Slacks air. They're goen to drive us out soon, I reckon."

"Union, eh? What are you—man, woman, boy or gal?"

"I'm a gal."

"The dickens! What are you stopping me for at the muzzle of a gun?"

"Lordy! How'd I know y'? Y' mought 'a' ben a bushwhacker. I war at the tavern whar y' tuk supper. The landlord's wife, she's my aunt. I sor y' come in and hearn y' talken to old Venables. They reckoned y' war Confederate till y' paid in Yankee shinplasters; then they reckoned y' mought be Yankee after all."

Buying as we do in combination with over thirty other great establishments, located thruout the United States, we are able to command absolutely the best the fur market affords, at prices lower than would be quoted to any individual establishment or any smaller organization.

From these varied lines we selected the product of less than one-fifth of them, after the most keen comparison of qualities, styles, making and prices.

Not only one, but a number of fur experts passed on these selections. Crack furriers from one of the largest fur establishments in New York took part. Under the conditions mistakes in selection would have been impossible. We are assured that we have the best Furs the market contains. We are equally certain that we own them at lower prices than any other concern in the country. We are just as positive that we are going to sell them at lower prices than any other store can sell them and live.

'PER' HARNEY PITCHES DUNELLEN TO VICTORY

With Percy Harney, a brother of the well known Norman Harney, in the box, Dunellen again took the measure of the Orange Y. M. C. A. nine at Dunellen Saturday afternoon, but this time it was only a game of regular length, the score being 3 to 1. Harney was the whole show and certainly made good in his first work on local diamonds. He held the heavy sluggers from Orange to six hits, struck out nine men and gave but one free pass. Dunellen banged the ball at will, clouting out ten safe drives.

The Y. M. C. A. boys opened their score card in the third inning by making one run. An error and a hit followed by a slow relay of Robinson's grounder to Barnes allowed Shott to cross the plate.

Dunellen came back in the next round and put the game in the ice box by scoring three runs. Ramsberger got a berth on an error and came in on Elliott's two-base slam to deep left. Schott brought Elliott across with a swat to center. Then the Orange catcher let an easy one go through his mit and Schott scored.

The feature of the game in the fielding line was a speedy throw by Elliott to Barnes from right field robbing Moore out of a sure hit. The runner was nabbed on a very close play. Hand's throwing to second base attracted much attention, his wing being deadly to all attempting the steal route. Ramsberger and Slocum came in for their share of the praise while Livingston starred for Orange.

The Monroe Avenues continued their winning streak in the City Sunday-school League by defeating the First Baptist team on the Clinton avenue grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 7-4, thus keeping a clean slate on the standing. Park Avenue took another from Trinity and kept the Reformer bays at the bottom of the ladder. Both games were exciting and much improvement in the speed of the playing was noticed. Raymond Force, the Trinity first baseman, was spiked in the ankle and a physician had to be summoned to sew up the wound.

First Baptist Loses Again.

Seven errors combined with seven hits proved too much for Carlton Smith's best pitching and Monroe Avenue Methodists won another game with ease from the First Baptists after a merry-go-round in the sixth inning. The Baptist team went up in the air in the sixth and the league leaders scored four runs, thus clinching the game.

Smith and VanArsdale both pitched good ball but the latter had the better support. Herbert Stine was on the receiving end for the Baptists and caught a great game, handling Smith's delivery in speedy style. Bert Trotter had a big day at third with four chances while Chilton did the error act at shortstop. Hendry put out twelve men on first base without a misplay.

W. A. BOURS JR. MAKES BEST SCORE

An 18-hole, medal play, handicap, was the only event at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, and it served to attract a large field of players. W. A. Bours, Jr., won first honors with the low net score of 66, while Willard Wadsworth finished a close second with a score of 68 and O. W. Gott was third with a score of 70, showing that the members were in excellent condition for the game. There was a total of a dozen cards returned in the competition, and the highest net score was 91, made by T. D. Heed. All of the rest were remarkably close. The following cards were returned:

W. A. Bours, Jr., 92, 26-66; Willard Wadsworth, 74, 6-68; O. W. Gott, 84, 14-70; W. F. Merrill, 97, 25-72; A. E. Betteridge, 82, 9-73; S. H. Patterson, 87, 14-73; C. W. King, 96, 21-75; H. D. Hibbard, 86, 7-79; W. W. Coriell, 106, 27-79; W. G. Cooke, 104, 22-82; H. A. G. Taycir, 100, 18-82; T. D. Heed, 116, 25-91.

RETURN LOW SCORES IN GOLF EVENTS

The fact that so many of the members are cut of the city accounted for the small number taking part in the weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups at the Park Golf Club, Saturday. J. B. Betts, Peter C. Sweeny and W. E. Lough divided the honors for the President's cup, while Dr. H. K. Carroll, Mr. Lough and Mr. Sweeny shared the honors for the scratch cup. Nine cards in all were returned and the scores were generally low. They were as follows:

J. B. Betts, 114, 30-84; Peter C. Sweeny, 105, 18-87; Nelson A. Miller, 107, 19-88; Charles B. Morse, 106, 17-89; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 98 8-90; N. H. Morrison, 111, 18-93; A. M. Morrell, 110, 14-96; F. W. Thompson, 143, 30-113.

Trinity Again Defeated.

The Trinity baseball team went down to defeat before the strong team representing the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school by a score of 13 to 6, Saturday afternoon on the Cricket Field. The game was one of the series of the Sunday-school league, and was an exciting contest even though the score would belie the fact. Harriman for Trinity and Ricketts, for the opposing team, pitched good ball and were well supported by their team mates. The lineup for Park Avenue Baptist—Wilson, lf; Hobson, ss and p; Ricketts, p and ss; Mills, 3b; Tice cf; Gage, c; Doane, 1b; Thompson, 2b; Kline, rf. Trinity—Schenck, ss; Doeringer, c; Vail, 2b; Harriman, p; Layton and Force, 1b; Fritz, rf; Kirch, cf; Gayle, 3b.

REV. DR. C. H. DODD DEFINES DISCIPLESHIP

Rev. Dr. C. H. Dodd, formerly of the Peddie Memorial Baptist church, of Newark, but now pastor of a Baptist church in Baltimore, was the preacher at the fifth union service of the First Baptist, First Presbyterian, First Methodist and Trinity Reformed churches, held last evening in the First M. E. church. There was a gratifying attendance and the special musical numbers were greatly enjoyed. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, led in prayer, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the responsive reading and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church presided.

The preacher took his text from St. Luke 10:5-6; "And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house. And if the Son of Peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it; if not, it shall turn to you again." In order that his hearers might more readily understand his reason for thus denoting the message embodied in the text, he said he would divide it into three heads, namely, the travelling directions of discipleship, the wayside privileges of discipleship and the sweet treasurer trove of discipleship.

Under the first head he told of God's instructions to spread the gospel. Under the second one he told of the infinite pleasure in knowing, while spreading the gospel that it is meant for and fits the hearts of humanity. Under the last heading he told of the thoughts the text expresses, that if the gospel is rejected by those to whom it is carried, it will return as a benediction, bringing sweet peace to those who are its messengers.
